A farm service department was inaugurated a year ago by a bank in Olympia, Washington, and a farm advisor appointed. Close cooperation has been maintained with the state college extension service. Work in dairying is carried on in conjunction with the Dairy Herd Improvement Association. Also a pasture contest was held in cooperation with the four banks in the county which offered prizes amounting to $100. Work in poultry was carried on in cooperation with the Co-operative Poultry Association and assistance was given in organizing an economic conference for the benefit of berry growers. The farm advisor of the bank is active in the Agricultural Council of the county composed of farm and other organizations interested in agricultural development, and also in the Farmers' Market. Six hundred farm business analysis blanks were distributed while farm account books and poultry record books were also provided to farmers and have been helpful in starting many farmers in keeping business records.

Resourcefulness

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

"Necessity is the mother of invention," the old proverb says, and I suspect there is truth in the statement. I have myself invented a device which no one before me seems to have thought of because perhaps no one has before been quite in the same physical situation that I am in. I was in a hole out of which I needed to extract myself and hence the device. But often I am not so successful: the need arises but the way to meet it does not readily occur to my mind.

I ran onto the statement not long ago: "Some people would grow poor on a mountain of gold, while others would make a good living on a rock."

Evans was really a very bright boy. Whatever was assigned to him to do he did well—far better than the average in fact—but he did not know how to get a job. He had been in college two years when his father came to see me.

"I don't know what's the matter with George," he said. "He's a good worker and he is willing to work, but so far he has not gotten hold of anything. He doesn't seem to know how to sell himself."

And yet George was familiar with the town and with the conditions of living. He knew where there were jobs and yet he did not seem to have an idea of how to get one. I got him into a place and the man for whom he is working says he never has had a more faithful or a more efficient man.

Now it was quite different with Quin. Quin was a thousand miles from home. He had never before been within the limits of a college town. He was an Irishman, as his name suggests, fluent speech, quick to see an opening, and ready to meet an emergency. He hadn't been in town a half hour before he had a job, and he had it even before he presented the letter of introduction to me from Fowler asking me to help the boy.

From Oliver Smith About Poor House

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you please give me space in your paper to reply to some statements Mr. Jadie Bean made against me in a letter that appeared in your paper of last week, relative to the poor house?

Mr. Bean states in this letter that Mr. W. T. Hand often goes to see Oliver Smith, who once had the poor house; and who has been prejudiced against most everyone of the keepers since he was keeper; and that Mr. Hand and myself have seen fit to stir up all trouble possible at the poor house. Mr. Hand has visited my home only twice and the statement that Mr. Bean made that I had been prejudiced against most everyone of the keepers since I was keeper, and that W. T. Hand and myself have seen fit to stir up all trouble possible at the poor house is false.

It is not my purpose to get into a newspaper controversy, but since I live near the poor house and have been for fifteen years, and Mr. Bean has accused me falsely through both of the county newspapers, I have a right to defend myself; and contend for humane treatment of our county's poor. If Mr. Bean is feeding inmates at the poor house as he should why do some of them go out begging for something to eat and say they are starving for food? I have seen their supper carried to them time after time and they had nothing but a piece of cold corn bread about as large as my four fingers and a glass of milk.

I have seen Mr. Bean whip Gip McQueen, and Gip told me Bean whipped him because he went out and got some bread to eat. I have also seen Mr. Bean's son beat Gip, and knock him down. Religious services have been denied the inmates by Mr. Bean.

Mr. Bean, in his letter, said some mighty hard things about Mr. Hand. After Mr. Hand was kind enough to bring the inmates of the poor house three bushels of oranges; and also give Mr. Bean a half bushel and give me a peck. If anyone is interested just ask the inmates if they got the three bushels of oranges that Mr. Hand brought them.

Some of the inmates have come to my house time after time and asked for something to eat, and I always give them something. But they are not allowed to come to my house at all now. I think it is a shame for the unfortunate inmates of the poor house to have to be treated as they are by Mr. Bean.

I will state further that Mr. Hand gave to the inmates on one occasion three dollars in cash, and brought other gifts and gave them. The following is a letter from W. C. Burnett, and who is a former keeper of the poor house.

The letter says: In regard to the piece in the paper about Oliver Smith, it stated that Mr. Smith never did get along with anyone. I can say positively that we never had a cross word as long as I stayed there. It was two years I stayed.—W. C. Burnett.

Mrs. Annie Mae Huckaby states that during the seven years that her father lived near me we had no trouble whatever. Mr. Bean mentioned several times in his letter about the sanitary conditions at the poor house. The sanitary conditions have not been questioned by anyone so far as I know since the grand jury sime time ago went there and condemned the sanitary conditions and demanded that the place be cleaned up.

The new building is nice and modern. But no one has ever occupied it yet. It is standing vacent. If Mr. Bean will make the feeding and clothing of the inmates of the poor house compare with the buildings and sanitary equipments of the home all would be well.

In conclusion let me say to my personal knowledge I know the inmates at the poor house are not fed and clothed as they should be, and are not treated as humans should be treated. Such conditions is a stain to the name of Chilton County and some of her officials.—Respectfully, Oliver Smith.

Lesson for May 24

JESUS' PREPARING FOR THE END

GOLDEN TEXT—And he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:7-30.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Wants Us to Remember Him.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How We Can Remember Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Meaning of the Lord's Supper.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Meaning of the Lord's Supper.

I. The Last Passover (vv. 7-18).

1. The Passover prepared (vv. 7-13).

a. Peter and John sent to prepare the Passover (v. 8). As the time had arrived for the killing of the Passover, Jesus commanded these disciples to make ready for it.

b. The disciples' inquiry (v. 9). They inquired of Jesus as to where they should prepare the Passover. The true disciple is not only ready to do the Lord's bidding, but anxious to know exactly his will.

c. The Master's strange directions (vv. 10-12). They were to go into the city where they would meet a man bearing a pitcher of water. The usual custom was for the women to carry the water. This unusual occurrence would make it easier for them to find the man. He assured them that they would then be shown a large upper room furnished.

d. The obedience of the disciples (v. 13). They did as Jesus directed them. They did not stop to question the sanity of the command but, as true disciples, obeyed.

2. The Passover eaten (vv. 14-18).

a. By whom (v. 14). Those who sat down to this last Passover Feast were the Master and the twelve apostles.

b. Jesus' words unto the disciples (vv. 15-18).

(1) "I have desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer" (v. 15). He greatly desired to show them the meaning of the passion through which he was to go.

(2) "I will not any more eat thereof until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God" (v. 16). His death was the antitypical fulfillment of the Passover.

(3) "Take this cup and divide it among yourselves" (vv. 17, 18). By the token of the cup the disciples were partaking of his shed blood. Drinking anew in the kingdom of God does not mean that in heaven this service will be renewed, but that it was symbolic of the heavenly reality.

II. The Feast of the New Covenant Instituted (vv. 19, 20).

This feast took place at the close of the paschal supper.

1. The bread a symbol of Christ's body (v. 19). As bread nourishes and strengthens our bodies, so Christ is food to our spiritual nature. Unless our souls feed upon Christ, we shall perish.

2. The cup a symbol of Christ's blood (v. 20). This was symbolic of the atonement which was made by the shedding of his blood on Calvary's cross. He said, "This cup is the new testament in my blood which was shed for you," indicating that each one must personally accept the atonement made by the shedding of his blood.

III. The Wicked Behavior at the Feast (vv. 21-27).

1. The treachery of Judas (vv. 21-23).

a. The time of its manifestation (v. 21). It was while they were eating the last Passover that Jesus made the announcement of the betrayal, perhaps that Judas might be given an opportunity at this last moment to repent.

b. The betrayal was by the determinate counsel of God (v. 22 Cf. Acts 2:23). Nothing takes place by chance. Even the sinful acts of wicked men come within the permissive province of God. This does not, however, lessen the guilt of sinners, for Jesus said, "Woe unto the man by whom he is betrayed."

c. The sorrowful question (v. 23). The disciples did not seem to suspect one another but made the question a personal one.

2. The selfish ambition of the disciples (vv. 24-27). In this tragic hour the disciples were so concerned with the thought of position that they were striving among themselves as to who should be the greatest.

IV. The Apostles' Place in the Kingdom (vv. 28-30).

Jesus assured them that those who continued with him in his trials would be appointed a place in the Kingdom which would entitle them to eat and drink at his table and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

IF you hold out any longer from buying your side-dressing, you may find it too late for your crops to take full benefit from the fertilizer. You may also find it hard to get it in time. I've still got a good supply of Chilean Nitrate of Soda on hand. But it's not going to last very long the way they're buying it just now.

Your Fertilizer Dealer

IF you wait too long before side-dressing, you'll only be delaying harvest time and you won't get the big yields you should. With Chilean Nitrate selling at the lowest price in years, there's no saving in waiting until the last moment. Get your Chilean—the natural nitrate—NOW. Then there'll be no delay in putting out your fertilizer when crops need it most. In the new 100 lb. bags that stay in good shape, you'll find Chilean keeps in better condition. But be sure to insist on "Chilean" when you order your nitrate. It is the real thing . . . the real original "SODA." CAMP SPRING VILLA SOON TO OPEN, SCOUT CAMP SEASON

Boy Scouts of the Central Alabama Area Council and particaluarly of this district are looking forward to the approaching camp season. Camp Spring Villa for boy scouts of this council officially opens Saturday, June 6th, and will continue through July 4th. Each district has a special time to come to camp as only 60 scouts will be at the council at any one time.

A special feature of this year's camp will be the training of the Junior Staff under direction of Assistant Camp Director, E. J. Harris. This training will be held June 3rd, 4th, and 5th at the camp. The Junior Staff will be then ready for the campers early Saturday morning, June 6th, to put on an even better prtgram with Camp Director John J. Sigwald than that of last year. It will be remembered that Camp Spring Villa earned the standard grading certificate from the National Camping Department last year for the first time in the history of the camp. The goal of both camp director and staff will be of course to conduct the camp on such a high plain as will merit a similar award this year.

It will be interesting to know the qualifications and duties of the varitus members of the camping staff for scouts of the Central Alabama Area Council.

Camp Director, John J. Sigvald, is Scout Executive of the council. He is a fifteen year veteran scout. This is his 14th consecutive camp, 6 of which he has been director. As camp director he will be in complete charge of the scout camp and have the cooperation of a splendid camp committee of which Mr. John Hollis of this district is a member.

Mr. E. J. Harris, the assistant camp director, was formerly a scoutmaster under Mr. Sigwald in West Palm Beach, Florida, and comes all the way from there to serve in this capacity for the 1931 encampment. All campers of last year will remember Mr. Harris and his fine wtrk, as he served in his capacity of assistant camp director. Mr. Harris will have particular charge of the commissary. He is a lover of boys and has two of his own.

This year Willie-Vera Hardnett will be the camp cook. She will be assisted by her son, Ernest, and together will assure the campers of good food and plenty of it three times a day. The camp director has been fortunate to have Miss Dana Gatchell, dietition at the A. P. I. approve, after a few slight alterations, the camp menus.

Now as to the boys who are to be known as Junior staff members the camp feels itself fortunate this year. Withtut a doubt this is the best group of leaders Camp Spring Villa has ever had.

Eagle Scout Walter Westerbeke of Opelika who has been a regular camper at Spring Villa for many years will be the camp bugler. In addition Walter was chosen by Lt. V. C. Finch, Aeronautical Engineer at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute as the best student in his model airplane making class. Walter will teach this craft during the project period at camp.

Eagle Scout Clifford Wear, of Opelika with past experience on a camp staff at Camp Spring Villa will assist this year with special duties pertaining to the camp fire feature which is another high point of each day at camp. Clifford will have special charge of teaching each of the tents and cabins how to make their totem poles. In addition this scout will be one of the leaders of athletics.

Douglas Harris, an Eagle Scout, of Tallassee, who is Senior Patrol leader of his troop, which last year won the Jamboree and this year took second place, is to be known as handicraft director and will teach campers how to make their bows and arrows.

Marion Lee Melson of Selma, Alabama, recent graduate of the First Aid course held in that city is the camp's First Aider. He will have the cooperation of a corps of doctors under direction of Health and Safety Chairman, Dr. Julian Palmer. Scout Melson will have charge of the camp museum.

One of the best liked campers of last year will return to Spring Villa as a member of the Junior Staff in charge of water front. This is Eagle Scout John Coley of Alexander City. John will see that scouts use the buddy system while they are in the $5,000.00 Rotary-Kiwanis swimming pool, either in regular swimming sessions or in one of the classes to tecah scouts to swim or in the class for life savers. During the project period John will tecah all prases of leathercraft.

William Palmer Long of Opelika, who is a lone scout of Eagle rank, will again serve as camp scribe and have as his teaching project that of "bone work." Many scouts will go home from the camp with a unique bone neckerchief slide.

Last but not least is Scout Parker P. Powell of Auburn whose special attention is to be wood work. This scout will help the scouts in their building of camp crafts, chairs, tables and camp souveniers.

It will be noticed that this year special attention is being given to the various crafts, however, the regular sessions for study on advancement will be conducted each morning with the assistance of a large number of the professors from the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Enrollment for Camp Spring Villa is fast drawing to a close and all local scouts who have not already registered for a tleast one week are urged to see the local camping chairman and advise him of their desire for reservation. The cost per week is only $5.50 and it is believed by all those who know anything at all about Camp Spring Villa and its staff to be very reasonable.

CHILTON COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL

For many years I have been greatly interested in schools, and I am particularly interested in the schools of Chilton County. Too often it is, I think that many think too lightly of schools. This should not be so. Good schools are the best assets any community can possess. There are many good schools in our county, and I believe that every one should think more and more of schools and lend his influence to make the schools better and better.

As I write these few lines I am thinking of Chilton County High School. I know something of the school since its beginning, and for a few years just past, I have had opoprtunity to watch daily the workings of the school. Having had this opportunity to observe the way Chilton High is conducted, I am prompted to say that I believe there is not a better high school in the state now. I feel that the school is now closing one of the most successful year's work in the history of the school. A more conscientious and devoted faculty has not been known in Chilton High than has been in the school this year. Prof. Warr, as principal, has done work in the school that will reflect credit for him and the school so long I think as the school stands. Prof. Warr is a man who weighs matters carefully, and he disciplines the school thoroughly. Men of the school qualities which Prof. Warr pessesses are few. Chilton County as a whole, I think, should feel thankful, if not really proud, to have such faculty as has done work for us in the school this year. The improvements on the school grounds are very noticeable and to be commended.

Let's not forget and neglect the schools. Let's support our schools whole-heartedly. If you should feel that you are not getting from your school what you should, it may be that you haven't put much into it. Put the best you possibly can into your school, and then you have a right to demand something therefrom.

Clanton Grammar School

Too, I have heard much about Clanton Grammar School this year. It is gratifying to the people of Clanton I know to recall the good work that has been done in that school this year. This school, I am reliably informed, is closing a most successful year. The teachers in the school have done their work well.

From the foregoing I do not wish it to be thought that I in any way claim ability to judge schools. I do not, but noticing such wonderful improvements in the Clanton schools, I felt that to let those who have labored in the schools know that their labors have, and are appreciated, will not be out of place. I feel too, from what I have heard spoken of the schools that I am in a small degree at least expressing the sentiments of the patrons of both Clanton schools. Now, that our schools have proved good this year, and seeing that the teachers have manifest such interest in our schools, let's lend our schools and teachers all support and encouragement possible and thereby assist them to maintain schools of real merit for the future.

Yours for good schools.—W. M. Bean.

BOOKER WASHINGTON SOCIETY

The officials are requesting all fraternal, Christian and Civic organizations to make a donation the fourth in May 1931 to help on the Booker Washington Home for the protection of the Orphans and Dependents of the Negro race. A little donation from every colored organization will help greatly. We are accepting from a postage stamp to the naming of a room, a paper of pins to a furnished room, one nail to $1,000. This property is given to the negroes of Alabama, and all the citizens are now being called on to contribute toward the work. The work of remodeling the Chilton County jail is going at top speed now. Pouring of concrete is being carried forward with the use of machinery and a large crew of men.

"THE HOODOO"

This is the name of the senior play of Thorsby Institute, Thorsby, Ala., which is to be rendered Thursday, May 28, at 7:30 p. m. This is a three-act comedy of eighteen characters, full of laughter and fun, and if you can't laugh, don't come.

One poor fellow in the play has the misfortune of becoming engaged to three pretty women, becoming the father of seven kids he had never seen, and losing all his money in the same evening. This is a clean play, for it has gone through a strainer, which caught all the cigarette stubs and all the other segments of filth loitering about.

There are some living in the vicinity of Clanton who might be interested to know that they may obtain safe and comfortable conveyance to and from Thorsby the night of the play for 10 cents by writing to the president of the Senior Class, Thorsby Institute, Thorsby, Ala.

The admission to the play will be 15 cents for all school pupils and 25c for all others. Everybody come and join in the jubilee, and you will never regret having come.

W. O. W. FIELD DAY PROGRAM

Event Next Thursday Will Bring Many Visitors From Over Central Alabama

According to the District Manager, E. C. Evans, of the Woodmen of the World, the plans for the program of W. O. W. Field Day in Clanton on next Thursday, May 28th, are substantially completed.

It is stated by Mr. Evans that the activities for the day will begin at ten o'clock in the morning at the Chilton County High School grounds. During the morning there will be public speaking, band music and a flag raising ceremony.

Addresses will be made by such eminent personages as Congressman Lister Hill, Commissioner I. T. Quinn Senator Garrett, and Governor Bill Brandon. The music will be furnished by the band from the Boys Industrial School at East Lake.

At two o'clock in the afternoon the program will be resumed with a competitive drill in which ten different uniformed ranks will compete. These drill units come from Montgomery, Birmingham, Greenville, Tuscaloosa, Shawmut, Pheonix City, and four local teams of this county. Following this there will be a drill by ladies of the Woodmen Circles of Birmingham and Montgomery.

At six o'clock in the evening the Industrial School Band will give a concert at the courthouse, which will be followed by a torchlight parade, in which several hundred Woodmen will take part.

An interesting feature of the day activities will be the appearance of three members of the Woodmen who have received treatment at the W. O. W. hospital at San Antonio, Texas.

Ellington, of Montgomery, one of the best head consuls in the order, will preside. He well be assisted by selected officers from different parts of the State.

This will be a day worth while for everybody. There will be plenty of fun, amusement, as well as a proper presentation of the fundamental values of Woodcraft which will be worth the serious consideration of everyone.

IT WAS REALLY A MAD DOG

Last Wednesday morning a stray dog appeared in Clanton, apparently mad, and bit lots of dogs in and about town. The dog was captured by Chief of Police Boockholdt, Dr. Parrish and Walter Poole. Dr. Parrish carried him to his barn where he was confined until he died Monday afternoon.

The head was sent to Montgomery for examination, and Chief Boockholdt received a report by telegram Tuesday afternoon, stating that the examination revealed positive rabies.

Mr. Boockholdt has been unable so far to find the owner of the dog, and states that he would like to know who the animal belonged to. It was apparently a Walker fox hound.

So far as is known no persons were bitten, but several dogs in the eastern part of the town were savagely attacked.

Anyone who knows of a dog being bitten should take the necessary precautions to avoid further trouble.

WHEN TO SELL BROILERS

Nine out of ten poultry raisers are better off if they sell broilers at two to two and a half opunds for heavy birds, one and a half pounds for leghorns, rather than carry them on to heavier weights.

One of the important reasons for this is that most brooder houses are carrying all the chicks they can house and then a few more. This overcrowded condition doesn't become noticeable until the chicks are eight to ten weeks old. It the cockerels are kept much longer than this, the pullets are crowded and stunted, and it means that they come into egg production stage late, that they are undersized and poorly developed, and that colds are much more likely to occur.

The biggest reason, however, is that as much money can be gotten per head for a chicken that is sold to weigh two to two and a half pounds, as can usually be gotten for the same bird weighing twice that much. This is especially true of chicks hatched during March and April.

Our lowest broiler prices usually occur from July 15th to October 1st. If broilers in June are worth 25c a pound, poultry in August and September is likely to be worth 15c to 18c. That means that the April hatched cockr els can be sold in June for 50c, but if that same bird is kept until September, when he weighs twice that much, the probabilities are that we will only get 60c for the same bird. Of course, in the meantime we have had the pleasure of this young rooster's company and have fed him a goodly amount of feed. There has been no return for labor, and we have not gotten back the additional feed cost.

Let's have a SHOWDOWN on this matter of TIRE COMPARISONS

WITH all the conflicting claims published about tires, it is obvious that misleading statements are being made. The only conclusion that you as a tire buyer can draw is that either we, as Firestone Dealers, are misrepresenting Firestone products, or that a certain mail order house is not telling the truth about theirs. Both can't be right—one or the other is misleading the public by their comparisons.

Firestone, in their advertising, only make comparisons that can be easily verified by the customer before buying tires. To attempt to substantiate the comparisons made by this mail order house, it would be necessary to go into a laboratory and employ experts.

The very reason that the comparisons made in Firestone advertising enable you to get the facts yourself, makes it unnecessary for Mr. Firestone to make affidavit on the truth of his statements or to file any complaint with the Federal Trade Commission, and then advertise it, in an attempt to lead the public to believe his statements were true.

Mr. Firestone doesn't ask you to accept comparisons about Firestone Tires and special brand mail order tires until you see the facts yourself. Neither do we. All we ask is that you make your own comparison.

We have cross sections cut from special brand mail order tires purchased from stocks of mail order house and from Firestone Tires—no "tricky" or misleading comparisons—come in today and make your own comparisons for Quality, Construction, and Prices. YOU and YOU ALONE be the judge!

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

NOTICE TO FARMERS WHO SECURED LOANS FROM SEED LOAN OFFICE

The following letter has been received by County Agent, Stapp, from the Seed Loan office in Memphis:

Our records indicate that there are a large number of second installment payments on seed, feed and fertilizer loans due farmers in the territory served by this office, but can not be made until the expenditure of the initial installment check has been reported to this office.

We have recently sent out tracer letters to secure the return of these cards but still there is a large number outstanding. This is to advise that we expect to close on all loan payment on May 20th. If you know of any farmers in your county who are still due a balance on their loan, please suggest that they write this office immediately, stating precisely what they have purchased with the initial installment of their seed, feed and fertilizer loan, and we will make final settlement. If there are no cards available, a letter will be satisfactory.

It is desirable that the initial installment of the seed, feed and fertilizer loan only be reported on in this manner.

FIX SUMMER LAWN NOW SAYS AUBURN PROFESSOR

Auburn, Ala., May 18.—"Now is the time to prepare summer lawns," says John W. Hyde, proffessor of landscape architecture at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Bermuda grass is still our old standby for a great part of the South, particularly Alabama south of the Tennessee River and north of the Florida line, continued Mr. Hyde. This can be planted either by seeding or by "sprigging in."

A good lawn is rarely obtained the first season from seed, but the "sprigging in" or stolen method is the most satisfactory."

Twenty-five pounds of seed per acre are generally recommended but double this amount will give a quicker stand. n planting the stolens or rootstocks by hand, rows about a foot apart may be outlined with a garden hoe and the grass broken up and placed in these drills. Partially cover the grass and roll with a heavy roller or tamp thoroughly with the back of a shovel. Water heavily at least every two days for the first week, although care should be taken not to wash away the grass.

HOW TO MAKE GOOD HAY IN ALABAMA IS TOLD

Auburn, Ala., May 18.—Farmers in Alabama can make all the hay they need and some for sale. They can make large yields per acre at a low cost per ton.

Evidence in support of the above statement has been obtained by the experiment station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn in hay production experiments.

The summer hay crops are recommended by the Auburn station for planting this spring. They are sudan grass, soy beans, and cowpeas.

After frost danger is over, sow 25 pounds of sudan grass seed per acre. Top dress with 100 to 200 pounds of either nitrate of soda or nitrate of lime as soon as the grass is up. Mow when the grass is heading or in full bloom.

Soy beans, too, should be planted after frost danger. Drill one to two pecks of Otootan or one peck of Laredos in rows just wide enough to permit one or two light cultivations to control weeds and grass.

Apply per acre at planting as a fertilizer either 600 pounds of basic slag or 400 pounds of superphosphate. Mow when pods begin to ripen and before leaves begin to shed.

Cowpeas are planted from late spring until early summer. Either drill at the rate of one to two pecks per acre or broadcast at the rate of one to two bushels per acre. As a fertilizer apply per acre either 600 pounds of basic slag or 400 pounds of superphosphate.

A combination of cowpeas and sudan grass is good for hay. For planting together, plant 20 pounds of sudan grass seed and one to two bushels of cowpeas per acre. Use the fertilizers recommended above for each of these crops.

FEEDING COTTON SEED MEAL IS BEING URGED

Auburn, Ala., May 18.—The animal husbandry group of the Experiment Station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn is recommending and urging farmers of the state to feed cotton seed meal to work animals. Prof. J. C. Grimes, head of the group, says that by feeding cotton seed meal to horses and mules at work farmers will reduce the cost of feeding; they will feed a better ration; and they will consume a product produced on Alabama farms.

Experiments at Auburn and other experiment stations have shown that it is safe, economical, and desirable to feed one to two pounds of cotton seed meal per day per animal at work.

A mule or horse weighing 1,000 pounds and a t hard work may be fed up to the mixmum of two pounds per day where their roughage is a grass hay. If a legume hay is fed the amount should be reduced.

"And one pound of cotton seed meal should replace two pounds of corn," Prof. Grimes said. This means that a farmer who feeds one pound of cotton seed meal per day should reduce his corn two pounds; or if he makes it two pounds of cotton seed meal per day per animal he should reduce his corn four pounds per day. He should not exceed two pounds of cotton seed meal per animal per day, and this should be fed only when they are at hard work and eating grass hay."

Several experiment stations outside of the south where cotton is grown have found that a limited amount of cotton seed meal is good for work animals. Animals like it and it is good for them.

TRUCK CROP SHIPMENTS BRING $1,500,000.00

During the past five weeks Alabama farmers have received over $1,500,000 for the 2,515 cars of strawberries, cabbage, and potatoes shipped from the State to markets of the North and East, says the Department of Agriculture and Industries.

Truck crop shipments from the State to date this season include 900 cars of strawberries, 625 cars of cabbage and 1,100 cars of truck crops moved from the State.

Three French scientists (Bridel, Lavielle, and Mangin) have communicated to the Academy of Sciences their discovery that a common paraguayan plant known as "kaabee" contains 300 times as much sugar per gram as sugar cane contains. Announcement of this was made in a press dispatch from Paris.

Emphasizing work as the means for achieving the opportunities that lay before them, Gov. Miller addressed the 354 graduates in the closing exercises of the centennial commencement of the University of Alabama.

I. T. Quinn, state commissioner of game and fisheries, was stricken with an ailment while in his office and was removed to his home. Physicians said Mr. Quinn's condition was not critical, but that he probably would be confined to his bed for several days.

The City of Tuscaloosa, national guard ship, was christened in honor of the Druid City by Miss Lyda Foster, 8-year-old Tuscaloosa miss, while Gov. Miller, Maj. Gen. Frank B. McCoy, commanding the Fourth Corps Area, and other high state and city officials looked on.

James Thomas Sharkey, 32, a milkman in Boston, was awarded first prize of $25,000; Mrs. Walter Sweet, mother of three children and wife of a Marine Corps captain stationed at the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Navy Yard, won second prize of $10,000, and Julius M. Nolte, real estate dealer, and former secretary of the Duluth Commercial Club, received the third prize of $5,000. In addition, five prizes of $1,000 each, five prizes of $500 each and twenty-five prizes of $100 each were awarded.

The three fortunate prize winners will go to Winston-Salem, N. C., where Camel cigarettes are manufactured, to receive their checks.

INCOME TAX WOULD HELP STATE FARMERS

Subtracting his fixed expenses from his gross income the average Alabama farmer pays 8.7 per cent of his net income and 13.8 per cent of his cash income in taxes, according to statistics compiled by Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture and industries, who recently gave figures showing that the farmer without an automobile pays 1.9 per cent of his gross income, or if he owns and operates an automobile 9.7 per cent of his gross income in taxes.

"An income tax in lieu of real estate and ad valorem tax, even at the highest rate assessed by the federal government, would be a decided saving to the farmer," he said. "As a matter of fact, with the average income of $720 he would be entirely exempt. Only the farmer who owned as much as 400 acres of land would come within the provisions of the federal tax unless his income was greatly in excess per acre of the average."

ALABAMA CROP OUTLOOK GOOD

General crop conditions in Alabama on the first of May this year were much improved and present prospects for the current season are flattering compared with the 1930 opening, according to a report by F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician.

"Last year the drought had already set in and the month of April was exceedingly dry," Gist said. "The preparation of land had been delayed and little planting had been done compared to normal seasons. This spring the weather has been favorable for farm work, ground was prepared earlier and in larger volume, and planting had progressed to practically a normal extent."

ALABAMA SUFFERS LEAST AMONG SOUTHERN STATES

"In the farm land depression since 1920, Alabama has suffered the smallest loss of any of the chief cotton growing states," F. W. Gist, state and federal agricultural statistician said. He declared that Alabama land values are 73 per cent of the 1920 value, the high peak of land value in recent years. "A slump in farm real estate values in virtually all states during the year ending March 1st, 1931, carries average values to new low levels since the post-war agricultural depression," he said.

He attributed the fall in farm land values to low prices of farm commodities, drouth, world depression and a congested farm real estate market.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Early in May the Federal Reserve Bank of New York reduced its rediscount rate to 1 1-2 per cent, the lowest rate ever established by a member bank of the Federal Reserve system. It superseded a rate of 2 per cent.

The Illinois legislature is considering a special tax on tobacco with a view to increasing the state's revenue approximately $20,000,000 annually. The proposal is to tax cigarettes and package tobacco 20 per cent of the retail value while cigars will be taxed one mill each.

During the thirty days beginning early in April, Alabama farmers shipped more than 1,500 cars of strawberries, cabbages, and Irish potatoes, for which they received more than $1,000,000, according to the Department of Agriculture and Industries in Montgomery. Strawberries filled 728 cars; cabbages, 522; and potatoes, 346. Half of these were shipped the first week in May, which marked the beginning of the potato season in Alabama.

At a recent meeting in New York City, Dr. Charles H. Herty, industrial chemist and consulting chemist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, displayed the first sample of white paper made from the pulp of young slash pine. In making the display, Dr. Herty gave it as his opinion that the success of the experiment will result in the shift of the wood pulp industry from Canada and New England to the South and reduce the cost of news print to one-third of its present price.

FORESTRY PRIZES AWARDED

Montgomery, Ala., May 18.—First prize in the state wide forestry essay contest was won by Mr. Elmer Casey, a senior of Susan Moore High School, Route 2, Altoona, of which Professor W. A. Moore is principal, according to an announcement by Colonel Page S. Bunker, state forester. The second prize was won by Miss Ellie B. Dickenson, a senior of Clarke County High School at Grove Hill, Professor Curtis Matthews, principal. The third prize was awarded to Miss Benie Phillips, a senior of Covington County High School at Florala, Professor Patterson Hicks, principal.

The first place in the contest entitles the winner to a year's scholarship at one of the higher institutions of learning in the state. The second award comprises a trip to California and return, while the third prize is a trip to Washington, D. C., and return. The warding of the prizes was made possible only through the generosity of a number of Alabama lumbermen who contributed sufficient sums of money to render the prizes of worth while character.

Each high scholl or school of similar grade in the state was entitled to submit one essay. The Commission of Forestry states that practically all of the papers were of very high quality. After very careful study by a committee of judges, however, the contest was narrowed down to fifteen. From this point on, determination of the winner was quite difficult, and it was only by applying the most stringent standards that the three best were finally determined.

Idyotick Simtoms— and what of it!

Since reading a news story in the Post a few days ago, we have been wondering just how a fellow feels when larcerated on fifth Avenue, and just where in the hunman anatomy fifth Avenue is located.

It used to be "in tune;" now it is "tune in." Who was it that said "the first shall be last and the last shall be first?"

Since Congress is not in sesion to furnish the grandstand attractions in Washington, gangsters and hold-up men have taken charge—to the tune of at least two killings a day—peaceful Washington—Bah!

And now Representative Ramseyer, of Iowa proposes to have the wealthy pay for the next war. He asks that it be run on a pay-as-you-fight plan, taxing the income of the wealthy of the nation!

The state is to have some more of the Heflin-Bankhead show. The Nye Committee is going to count beyond the 10 counties originally authorized. Wonder what they have now found?

The Druid City have found out who got their money. They have indicted the former city Clerk on five counts. A case of getting the turnip when they failed to get the "Blood."

What will happen next? An all-time precendent has been broken! Chicago union telephone electricians have refused to accept an increase in wage. Good for those boys—more like them are needed.

Birmingham Law breakers will now have one less Court to fear since The Morrow Bill has passed which will abolish one branch of the Jefferson County Municipal Court.

FORTY CARS OF BERRIE SHIPPED FROM CLANTON

L. E. Diefenderfer, sales manager of Clanton Berry Growers, stated Wednesday morning that car number 39 was being loaded here, and that car number 40 would be loaded out Friday.

Mr. Diefenderfer stated also that he expects to close out car load shipments about next Monday. After that a number of small truck and express shipments will be made to wind up the late pickings.

The entire berry crop of the county, according to Dief, will be around 160 cars, with a total net return of something like $140,000 to the growers.

FORMER CHILTON LADY DIES IN TEXAS MAY 4

Mrs. Amelia Cobb, wife of James W. Cobb, deceased, formerly of Jemison, Ala., died Monday, May 4th, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Mitchell, at Harringen, Texas.

Before her marriage she was Miss Amelia Franklin, sister to B. F. Franklin and Peter Franklin, of Thorsby. She lived and reared her family near Pleasant Grove Church, of which she was a member. After the death of her husband, about nineteen years ago, she moved to Maplesville, where she lived for several years; moving from there to Birmingham, where she lived for several years. She moved from Birmingham to Wetumpka, where she spent three years; going from there to Morton, Mississippi, where she lived for five years.

In 1929 she had a stroke of paralysis in her left side, and was confined to her bed. In 1930 her health became very poor and she was not expected to live. Her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Mitchell, was called to her after some two months. She carried her to her home in Harlingen, where she remained tell her death.

After arriving in Harlingen her health improved and she was able to walk a little, by help, but one day when all were out of the room she tried to walk alone, and had the misfortune to fall and brake her thigh. She suffered a great deal, but it healed, but she never walked again, since it was her good leg that was broken.

She remained in bed most of the time until her death. She was cheerful and had a wonderful memory. She was seventy-five years old. She was neatly and substantially laid to rest in Rest Lawn, which, when completed, will be one of the most beautiful cemeteries in the South.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. J. W. Mitchell and Mrs. Maude Cobb Tucker of Harlingen, Texas, and Mrs. Mollie Cobb Worcester of Laferria, Texas; James M. Cobb and Thomas Franklin Cobb, of Harlingen and John A. Cobb of Columbus, Ohio; all being present at the funeral except John A. Cobb.

She was a sweet Christian woman and often spoke of the many friends and loved ones in Chilton County.

SALE OF POPPIES TO BE SATURDAY

Event In Charge of Ladies of American Legion Auxiliary

Work of preparing for the annual poppy sale of the American Legion Auxiliary went into full swing today when the memorial poppies which will be worn on Poppy Day, May 30, in honor of the World War dead, were received at Auxiliary headquarters here. The little red flowers, packed in neat boxes, came from a United States Government Hospital, where they were made by disabled veterans under Auxiliary direction. They must be counted and arrange for distribution to the volunteer workers who will offer them on the streets on Poppy Day.

The poppies are paper replicas of the wild European poppies which bloomed on the battle fields in France and Belgium during the World War, Mrs. Gertrude Calloway, who is in charge of the work at auxiliary headquarters, explained. It was this flower, growing between the rows of wooden crosses above fresh battle graves, which inspired the famous poem, "In Flanders Fields, by Col. John McCread. Since the war the flower has become recognized throughout the world as the symbol of war sacrifice.

"I wonder how many of the people in Clanton, who will wear these poppies this year, realize the story that is behind each little flower," Mrs. Calloway remarked, as she examined one of the little paper blossoms. "Each poppy has been made individually by some disabled veteran who through this work has been able to help himself or his family in the long struggle against the handicaps of war disability. Often there is a tragic and pathetic story wrapped up in these flowers.

"Each poppy made means one cent earned by some needy disabled veteran for the support of his family or to aid him when he attempts to reestablish himself in the world. Three hundred flowers a day is the limit usually placed on the workers to prevent them from overtaxing their strength, but three dollars a day is a God-send to men who have earned nothing for months and years. Approximately 10,000,000 of the poppies have been made this year and about $100,000 has been paid by the auxiliary into the empty pockets of the disabled men."

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION

Saturday, May 30, was proclaimed Poppy Day in Clanton in a proclamation issued by Mayor J. Lee Smith. The proclamation urges all citizens of the city to observe the day by wearing an American Legion and Auxilairy poppy as an individual tribute to the American men and women who gave their lives in the World War. It also calls upon the citizens of the city to contribute as liberally as their means will allow to the welfare of the disabled veterans and dependent families of the dead and disabled when purchasing their poppy.

The proclmaation follows:

"I, J. Lee Smith, mayor of the City of Clanton, remembering the fine young men of Chilton County whom we sent forth in the years of 1917 and 1918 to defend the honor and ideals of our nation on the battle fields of the world's most terrible war, and who died in the heroic performance of the duty the nation assigned to them, and deeming it fitting that the citizens of the city should pay honor to their memory by wearing the flower among whose bright red blossoms many of them died, do hereby proclaim Saturday, May 30, Poppy Day.

"I urge that this day be observed by all patriotic citizens by the wearing of the memorial poppy made by disabled veterans which will be offered on the streets of the city by the women of the American Legion Auxiliary. I further urge that the citizens of Clanton who gave so gallantly of their services and so liberally of their wealth during the war, think on this day of those who gave health and strength, and when purchasing a poppy give as liberally as their means will allow to help lighten the burden for those who are still paying in suffering and poverty the price of our glorious victory."
—J. Lee Smith, Mayor.

DIED AT COUNTY ALMSHOUSE

All rural mail carriers in the county are urged to take notice of this announcement, and make arrangements to come and bring the family.

Mr. Duffey states that it will be a most enjoyable occasion, judging by similar events that have been carried out by the carriers in the past. It is a delightful place to hold a picnic.

MEMORIAL SERVICE NEXT SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Under auspices of Chilton County Post of the American Legion and the Legion Auxiliary, there will be a memorial service held at the Clanton Methodist Church next Sunday afternoon, beginning at three o'clock.

On To Montgomery Is Last Rallying Cry

Confederate Veterans Will Have Reunion In Cradle of Confederacy

This seems to be the cry of the entire South on the eve of the 41st annual reunion of the United Confederate veterans, which will be held in Montgomery June 2-5. Not Montgomery alone, but all Alabama will hold the attention of the nation during these four days when to her sons who wore the gray Dixie will pay tribute in what is thought by many to be the last great reunion of these soldiers until they gather in the Army Eternal.

For weeks and months committees have been at work making all possible arrangements for this great event, and plans are complete in every detail. Already the streets of the city are taking on a holiday appearance, and each day sees new decorations added. When the state's visitors arrive, they will find the streets of the capital blazing with the Stars and Bars and other patriotic emblems characteristic of the Confederacy.

The first event scheduled for reunion week will be a special Confederate veterans service which will be given by the Big Brothers Bible Class. In addition to the veterans, the American Legion, the Spanish-American War. veterans, Maxwell Field forces, disabled World War veterans, and the National guard have been invited to participate in the service. The boy scouts will also have a part. The program will include a flag raising ceremony with special electrical effects, and many other notable features, and is expected to attract thousands of people. Visitors who arrive early are especially invited to attend.

The Montgomery Post Number Two, American Legion is charged with the responsbiility of putting over the largest parade ever staged in Alabama, which will take place in Montgomery, Ala., June 5, at 10 a. m. This grand parade will be the final review for the fast thinning grey line. The parade and all its respective sections are in charge of legionaries of this post. There is an ex-service men section in charge of W. A. Gayle, post commander Montgomery Post No. 2, which will be reserved for all veterans of the World War, Spanish-American War. The state commander, Rufus H. Bethea, of Birmingham, urges all ex-service men to take part in this parade.

The parade will form at 10 a. m., Friday, June 5, 1931, and will traverse the business and other sections of the "Cradle of the Confederacy." It will be one of the most colorful parades ever staged, which will be a fitting tribute to the last review to our heroes of 1861. All ex-service men are invited to attend the open dance Thursday night and be on hand for the grand parade Friday morning.

All legion posts as well as Spanish-American posts are requested to bring their respective post flags and colors, and if possible, furnish a color guard for same. Individual members should wear their legion caps or arm bands.

There will be a legion information booth established in the parlor on the mezzanine floor of the Exchange Hotel which is right in the heart of Montgomery and will be in charge of Legionaire Joe King Stanley Chief of the Fraternal Division of the reunion parade.

STANTON NEWS

Stanton was well represented at the American Legion fish fry at Lay Dam, Friday, by the following: W. D. Rush, Charlie Rush, Joe Davis, Jesse Bean Rush, C. E. Cagle and their families, also Mrs. Cora Harris and Miss Virginia Woolley.

Thomas (Turkey) Bowman of Birmingham is here visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. U. W. Hicks. Turkey, as he is best known, was once a professional base ball player with Little Rock team. Strange as it seems, at Maplesville last Sunday he was talking with a stranger, and related how he was once hit with a pitched ball. It developed a few minutes later that this stranger was none other than Bob Edmunson the player with New Orleans who threw the ball that landed on Turkey's head. They had not seen each other since that day.

Mr. Gaddy, an employee of the Southern Railway Company was here with his family over Sunday.

Mrs. Gray Cook and son returned to Birmingham Thursday afternoon after spending a pleasant visit with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cook.

C. E. Cagle is in Birmingham on business at this writing.

Ernest Davis and family of Plantersville visited Lee Dennis Sunday.

Prof. Luther Little and wife are here. He is overseeing the installation of some badly needed equipment at the school house. We are glad to know that when the term opens next fall everything will be ample for all requirements. Mr. Little was fortunate in that he was able to purchase a surplus of equipment for much less than he could have bought what was badly needed, had he not found such a bargain. The school at Moffat disbanded and offered for sale, the entire furnishings of a four room school which Mr. Little was glad to buy at such saving.

Several from here attended the all day singing at the courthouse at Rockford, Coosa County Sunday.

W. C. Friday, J. W. Carter and their families spent Sunday at Mitchell Dam.

Mis Dorothy Reynolds, daughter of Mr. Frank Reynolds, who graduated at Auburn recently, is at home where she will spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Gregg have gone to Mars Hill, N. C., to attend commencement exercises of the Mars Hill Junior college. Mr. Gregg's sister, Ethel, who is a teacher there, will return with them.

Marvin Carter has moved his electric shop to the Wright Building, first door below Newt Gray's Barber Shop.

Heflin Recount For All Counties Ordered

Ballots In Every County Will Be Purged By Senate Committee

Washington, May 25.—A full recount of the ballots cast in the senatorial election last Fall was assured Monday when Senator John H. Bankhead withdrew his protests against continuing the recount.

Senator Hastings, of Delaware, chairman of the sub-committee handling the contest filed by former Senator Heflin, said that the recount will proceed at least until the sub-committee meets, probably some time in July. He abandoned efforts for an immediate meeting of the committee on receipt of Bankhead's telegram.

Bankhead at first protested continuing the recount beyond the 10 sample counties until the sub-committee had met.

Hastings stated Monday that, while he made no charges of fraud with regard to the recount in the first 10 counties, "the door was opened to the opportunity for fraud through disregard by Alabama election officers of the requirements of the law in numerous instances."

The sub-committee agents have completed recounting the ballots in 12 counties and in 23 of the 25 boxes of Barbour County, and 18 of the 43 boxes of Blount County. Official returns from the recount to date gave Bankhead 39,204 and Heflin 24,902 and the recount gives Bankhead 35,968 and Heflin 22,423, with 5,915 ballots set aside for future decision. These figures show a net reduction of Bankhead's 50,000 majority of 725.—By Russell Kent, Advertiser Staff Correspondent.

TWO LOCAL BILLS WERE ENDORSED

Mass Meeting Held At Courthouse Last Saturday Afternoon

A mass meeting of citizens was held at the courthouse last Saturday afternoon, at which time resolutions were adopted asking Senator Duncan and Representative Pitts to use their influence in the legislature to secure the enactment of local bills for Chilton County providing for the election of the county superintendent of education by the people; and also providing for the election of the members of the county board of education by districts, and the chairman of said board from the county at large.

W. W. Fox, of Clanton, acted as chairman of the mass meeting last Saturday, and C. D. Hughes, of Verbena, acted as secretary. The meeting was well attended by people of different political parties.

Following is the resolution which was adopted at the meeting, and transmitted officially to Representative Pitts and Senator Duncan:

We, the citizens of Chilton County, Alabama, assembled in mass meeting at the courthouse of Chilton County, Alabama, in Clanton on Saturday the 23rd day of May, 1931, hereby pass and indorse the following resolutions:

That, whereas, the County Superintendent of Education of Chilton County is now an appointive officer being appointed by the members of the Board of Education of Chilton County, and whereas, we believe that it would be to the best interest of the schools of Chilton County that said office of superintendent be elective without lowering the educational qualifications as now fixed by law;

Be it therefore resolved that this mass meeting go on record as favoring and endorsing the election of the County Superintendent of Education at the earliest possible time by popular vote with the qualifications of said superintendent remaining as the same are now fixed by law, and be it further resolved that Hon. J. G. Duncan, Senator from this senatorial district, and Hon. Percy M. Pitts, member of the House of Representatives from this county, be urgently requested to use their vote and influence in behalf of the passage of a local law making the selection of said superintendent by popular election.

That, whereas, the members of the Board of Education of Chilton County are elected from the county as a whole and we believe it to be also to the best interest of the schools of this county that said members be elected from districts and the chairman of said board to be elected from the county at large; be it therefore further resolved that said senator and representative also use their influence and vote in getting a local bill passed for this county, the purpose of the same being the election of said members of the Board of Education from districts and the election of the chairman of said board from the county at large.

Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be transmitted to said J. G. Duncan from this Senatorial District, and Percy M. Pitts, Representative from this county, and that the same be published in both local papers.—W. W. Fox, Chairman, C. D. Hughes, Secretary.

INSECT SPECIAL

To be successful in gardening we must not only plant and cultivate, but we must protect the plants from our insect enemies. This protection is perhaps most effective where winter plowing and the destruction of all old vegetables is practiced, but in most cases we have to resort to artificial means to perfect our control.

The following brief recommendations are being made with the hope that Alabama gardens may be protected fro mthe ravages of some of our most common insects.

Cucumber Beetle (Chewing Insect)

Calcium arsenate, 1 pound; land plaster or gypsum, 20 pounds.

Apply as a dust while plants are still very small by use of duster or by shaking from cheesecloth sack. In addition, the seed should be planted rather thickly and later thinned out to a perfect stand. Hydrated lime is sometimes used instead of land plaster or gypsum, but it has been found to exert a stunting effect on melon plants.

Mexican Bean Beetle (Chewing Insect)

Spray—magnesium arsenate, 1 pound; water, 50 gallons. Dust—magnesium arsenate, 1 pound; hydrated lime, 3 pounds.

Apply these materials only to the underside of the leaves.

Bean Leaf Beetle (Chewing Insect)

Use same materials as for the Mexican bean beetle and apply as first leaves are being formed.

Cutworms—Keeping the soil thoroughly plowed throughout the year, particularly during the fall and winter, is the best means of controlling the cutworm. However, for those who have neglected this important phase, the following is being recommended: poison with a mixture of 2 pounds of bran, 2 ounces of Paris green, 1-2 cup of syrup, and 1 quart of water. This should be broadcast over infested areas late in the evening.

Aphids or Plant Lice (Sucking Insects; Cannot Be Poisoned)

Nicotine Spray—Nicotine sulphate, 1 tablespoonful; soap, 1 inch cube; water, 1 gallon. Larger quantity, nicotine sulphate, 10 onces; soau, 14 pounds; water, 50 gallons.

May be used as recommended by manufacturers, or it may be prepared at home as follows:

Nicotine sulphate, 8 ounces; hydrated lime, 12 pounds. Mix thoroughly.

Harlequin Cabbage Bug (Sucknig Insect; cannot be poisoned)

Practice clean cultivation. Do not leave old cabbage, collard, mustard, rape, or turnip plants standing in the garden after crop has been harvested. Plant a trapcrop of mustard or rape. Practice hand picking in small gardens. Spray young bugs with strong nicotine soap spray.

Cabbage and Collard Worms

Lead arsenate or calcium arsenate, 1 pound; hydrated lime, 5 pounds.

Apply as dust when first worms appear and repeat as often as necessary.

Colorado Potato Beetle

Apply same materials as for control of cabbage and collard worms.

Tomato Worms

For early crop tomatoes plant sweet corn as a trap crop. Dust tomatoes once a week with a mixture of 1 pound of arsenate of lead and 4 pounds of hydrated lime.

TERMITE DAMAGE CAN BE PREVENTED

Montgomery, Ala., May 25.—Damage to buildings by termites, or the so-called flying ants, can be prevented by a little extra care in construction, says Colonel Page S. Bunker, state forester. This is one of the cases where an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, according to Colonel Bunker.

Where foundations are made of weed, only timber impregnated with coal tar creosote should be employed. In case stone or brick is used, termites shields consisting of strips of metal inserted in the masonry and turned slightly downward should be employed to prevent the building of shelter tubes by the termites across the masonry to the wood sills.

Timber not treated with preservatives should never be placed in the building in contact with the ground since it offers an easy entrance for the termites. Quite frequently the insects enter the building in this manner and have the timbers reduced to a mere shell before their presence is noted. An inspection of the foundation of the building at least every month should be made when no antitermite measures have been taken. In case signs of their work are found immediate steps should be taken toward eradication.

County Farm Agent's Notes

1930 FARM CENSUS FOR CHILTON COUNTY

A statement issued by the director of the Federal Farm Census for 1930, gives some interesting figures on Chilton County, from which statement we have selected the following for publication:

Number of farms in Chilton County, 3,920; acreage of all land in farms, 237,603; average acres in each farm, 60.6; value of land and buildings, $6,663,986; value of land alone, $4,287,342; value of buildings alone, $2,376,644; value of dwellings alone, $1,789,021; value of implements and machinery, $502,206; average value of land and buildings, per farm, $1,700; per acre, $28.05.

The size of the farms is an interesting item shown by this census. In the county there were 12 farms under 3 acres; 188 farms of from 3 to 9 acres; 344 farms from 10 to 19 acres; 1,808 farms from 20 to 49, acres; 969 farms from 50 to 99 acres; 433 farms from 100 to 174 acres; 96 farms from 175 to 259 acres; 51 farms from 260 to 499 acres; 13 farms from 500 to 999 acres; 6 farms of 1,000 acres and over.

COTTON FARMING MADE PROFITABLE BY GROWING HEAVY ACRE YIELDS

Growing seed cotton at 2 1-2 cents a pound is the record established in 1930 by twenty-two state prize winners, including farmers, 4-H Club members, and students of vocational agriculture, in contests conducted in nine of the leading cotton states.

Careful study of the reports shows that low grading cost was obtained by heavy acre yields. It is readily understood that the labor and other expenses were cut almost in half per unit when the yield of one acre was as much as the yield of two acres.

Without exception the prize winner were careful in choosing the soil, seed, and fertilizer. In addition to the choosing the x tion to the fertilizer applied before planting, each contensant side-dressed the crop with 200 pounds Chilean nitrate of soda per acre, which was put out after chopping and before squaring.

With present outlook for price this fall, farmers whose acre yields are low may find the pound-cost of growing the crop greater than the sale price. Experience has shown that low yields are caused from poor stands and nitrogen starvation. A hungry field of cotton will pay its owner well for a good side-dressing of quick-acting nitrogen fertilizer.

FARM CROPS IN NEED OF GOOD SQUARE MEAL

The simple fact that even with cotton and corn nothing will take the place of a good square meal accounts for the great need of side-dressing throughout the South this year.

Reports from every section show there has been a material drop in the fertilizer customarily used at planting. Unless crops receive a side-dressing of quick-acting nitrogen during the next few weeks, acre yields are bound to be low. Low acre yields men higher costs per unit which will make it difficult for farmers to show a profit at present prices.

Southern agricultural leaders are unanimous in the opinion that it will pay to side-dress this year. A summary of their recent statements show that, in view of the light application of fertilizer under the crop as well as the extreme importance of making high acre yields, cotton and corn should be liberally side-dressed with quick-acting nitrogen. Assuming a reasonably favorable season, this practice will pay on cotton and corn, even at present prices.

The most effective time to side-dress cotton and corn is about 45 days after planting. The fertilizer should be put out on cotton after chopping and before squaring, and on corn when the plants are about knee-high.

PROGRAM FOR RURAL CHURCH MEET READY

Auburn, Ala., May 25.—Preparations are rounding into definite form for the rural church conference to be held at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, beginning June 21 and ending June 26. Prof. Duncan, general chairman of the committee on arrangements, announces tha tthe program has been prepared and copies are being sent to those who are known to be interested. Others will be mailed upon request, he said.

"The aim," he continued, "is to make a careful study of the rural church and the different factors effecting it with a view to assisting those who are interested in or engaged in rural church work to do a better job than they are doing. With this in view leaders in different lines of work will be in Auburn during the week and appear on the program."

The forenoons will be devoted to discussing general subjects, one being assigned to each day. The afternoons will be given to laboratory studies, during which the visitors will have an opportunity to see different things of interest on the experiment station and campus and to get information from professors and others in charge.

The nights will be devoted to song and inspirational services, open forums, and other features. One night meeting will be spent in studying church architecture. An illustrated lecture will be given. Another will be spent at a barbecue.

The subjects assigned for forenoon discussions are the rural church, the farm, the rural home, rural education, and rural health.

The conference will be non-denominational in every respect and church workers in rural sections, villages, and towns representing all denominations and religious groups are expected to attend. All are cordially invited, Professor Duncan said.

AUBURN'S SUMMER SCHOOL PLANNED

Auburn, Ala., May 25.—Following the close of the regular session at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, on May 19, preparations are in progress for the opening of the 19th summer session on June 8. A catalogue has been issued and is being distributed to prospective students.

Inquiries received by Dean Zebulon, director of the summer school, indicate that the attendance will be large. The faculty, composed largely of the regular faculty, has been selected; and the work will be a continuation of the work during regular sessions.

A large list of courses will be offered for teachers who wish to extend, renew, or reinstate the various kinds of certificates, those who wish to obtain professional certificates, those who wish to prepare as high school teachers, those who wish to prepare as junior high school teachers, and elementary teachers, and also those wishing to prepare for superintendents, supervisors, and principals, Dean Judd said.

Many courses will be offered also fo rcollege students. In addition, courses will be offered for students who wish to enter college but have not completed entrance requirements.

Graduate courses will be offered and a large number of students are expected to be enrolled in the graduate school, he added.

The summer session will be divided into two terms. One will run from June 8 to July 17; the other from July 20 to August 22. At the end of the second summer term a commencement will be held and degrees conferred upon those entitled to them.

Commencement Exercises At Isabella Best In History of The High School

H. G. Williams Preached Commencement Sermon Sunday At Mulberry

11 RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

Senator Hugo Black Made Commencement Address; Diplomas Delivered By Hon. L. H. Reynolds

(By Guy H. de Shazo)

Along with other high schools of the county and state, the past week has marked the closing of the Isabella High School. This is the fifth such commencement for Isabella High. The first graduating class of the school had only two members, and the class this year had a membership of 11. To the best memory of the writer there has been one larger class than this. The school as a whole is far better than it was when this first class was graduated from it five years ago. Considerable time and money has been invested in a new set of buildings and the entire curriculem has been built up to a high standard of excellence.

Activities for the week began on last Thursday night, when the senior class presented their annual commencement play, "The Call of Youth." This was a three act play with a prologue. It was a melodrama of considerable interest and was well presented. The writer is of the personal opinion that it was the best play ever presented by the school and was better portrayed and the parts better enacted than any we have ever seen put on at Isabella in the past. This play was presented to a capacity house and many expressions of pleasure and delight have been expressed relative to the quality of the play.

Friday night the regular class night exercises were presented. A complete and new innnovation in this program was arranged by this year's class. The exercise was presented as a radio broadcast with the announcer handling the whole affair in true and regulation studio style. A number of expressions have been heard to the effect that this was the best entertaining and interesting program that has ever been put on at the school. We do not propose to put it that strongly, but will say that it certainly was the best class night program.

Sunday morning the patrons, students and friends of the school assembled at Mulberry church for the regular baccalaureate sermon. One of the community's own native sons, Dr. Horace G. Williams, pastor of the Norwood Baptist Church of Birmingham, was the speaker of the occasion. Dr. Williams was born and reared in this section of Chilton County and was among friends, having been pastor of the Baptist church here some 12 or 13 years ago. The text of the sermon was taken from Galations and the subject used was: "Christ is Everything."

It is needless to say that Dr. Williams handled his subject in a most admirable and instructive manner, driving home his every point effectively. His word picture of the future and the part Christ will have to play in the lives of the graduates, if they are to become successful in life was most vivid.

Without precedent, the graduating exercises on Monday night was the crowning achievement of the school, in so far as ableness and eloquence of address was concerned. The stage was beautifully decorated in red and white streamers, and the speakers, faculty and members of the senior class filed onto the stage to strains of piano music by Miss Avolene Webb. Invocation was by Rev. Grady Williams, pastor of Mulberry Baptist Church. United States Senator Hugo Black, of Birmingham, delivered the baccalaureate address. He was introduced by Prof. J. D. Griffin, principal of the school in flowing terms, as the country lad who has made good and a name for himself.

Upon arising, Senator Black coroborated the statement that he was a country boy—and proud of it! Using this fact for a background for his discourse, he very aptly pictured the present conditions of the economic structure of the nation, and what the future will hold if the system is not changed from present day methods and having a turning away from the present greed for gold alone. Senator Black drew a beautiful word picture of the happiness and contentment that is to be found in doing right by our fellowman, and living the simple life of our forefathers. He made the emphatic statement that money is not everything, and is a thing to despise rather than worship and seek after.

After giving his hearers an insight into what he considered the economic ills of the country, he then told them that education was certainly a thing to be sought diligently and with much fervor—a thing necessary in these modern times to prepare the youth of the country for their battle of life and competition with their fellows. But, he said, education should not be measured alone in the terms of how much money it will enable the individual to accumulate, but rather how it will help that boy or girl to secure a reasonable measure of happiness and contentment in this life. The Senator also laid down to his hearers that old and familiar remedy for many an ill—WORK! Work, he said, coupled with a sufficient knowledge to work intelligently will bring any man or woman to their final resting place with a peace and happiness of soul that is not for the idler and those who believe the world owe them a living. The Senator expressed the hope that the class of 1931 face the future with a determination to make their mark in the world, that they stay close to nature, adhere to the old American code of morality and right, and work that they might honorably attain the place in life which by virtue of their free birth, is rightfully theirs.

Hon. L. H. Reynolds followed Senator Black, and made some very pointed remarks in the few moments in which he spoke. The Judge very heartily endorsed the remarks of Senator Black and gave facts and figures which bear out the statement that only a very small percentage of the crimes of the country are committed by educated boys and girls—boys and girls who have had the proper training at home and in schools. He also stated that he was fearful that the parents of today were depending too much upon the teacher in the schools to train the child, and putting forth too little effort toward a faithful training of the children in the home which is the real foundation and groundwork of the nation.

The Judge cited instances from the juvenile records of our own county to substantiate his statements. He spoke of the trend of youth to make a grandstand act of life and its efforts to be seen and heard both at the same time. He also expressed a desire and a hope for the young people of our land and country to turn aside from their pursuit of gold and live close to God and nature, working with a zeal and inspiration to attain not only worldly treasures, but also to lay up "treasures in Heaven where rust doth not corrupt, neither do thieves break through and steal."

At the conclusion of his remarks, Judge Reynolds delivered diplomas to the following members of the senior class: Misses Bernice Jones, Nellie Hayes, Elsie Conway, Thelma Pierce, Dorothy Manning, Mary Clay Turner and Gylnder Oden; Messrs. James Deason, Cecil McKee, Quinto White and Aubrey Williams.

In saying farewell to the class, Prof. Griffin told them that they just had a foundation laid for the education they could get if they would only diligently apply themselves. He said that if they thought they knew anything now, they were simply fools, and big ones.

Prof. Griffin expressed a hope and a desire to see each and every one of the class go on through college and complete as much of their education as possible before dropping by the wayside to enter their life's vocation. He also reiterated the fact that where there is a will, there has always been a way, and urged them to find that way.

With an expression of gratitude to the members of the faculty and the patrons and friends of the school for their support and cooperation in making the past year one of the most successful in its history, he spoke the final word of the school year.

Benediction was said by Rev. G. G. Williams.

MRS. BROWDER ENTERTAINS

Among the delightful courtesies of commencement week, extended to Miss Mary Heard was the bridge party Tuesday afternoon given by Mrs. John Browder at her home on the River Road.

The reception rooms were beautiful with an artistic arrangement of flowers. After a series of games Miss Myra Johnson was the successful contestant for high score prize, and Miss Frances Higgins for consolation. An honoree's gift was received by Miss Heard.

Those enjoying the courtesy of Mrs. Browder in addition to the honoree were Misses Elizabeth, Myra and Dixie Johnson, Frances Higgins, Gertie Fiquette, Katherine Hayes, Mary Goodwyn Jones, Janice Danforth, Nell Sumner and Mrs. Inzer, McCraney, Kyle and Heard.

WOMAN KILLED SELF

News was received in Clanton Tuesday that Mrs. Ed Yeargan, of Sylacauga committed suicide by shooting herself. It was stated that Mrs. Yeargan had been brooding over the recent los sof her daughter, which was given as the cause of her suicide.

The Yeargans were former residents of the southern part of Chilton County, before moving to Sylacauga some time ago.

THE MAN WHO CAME BACK

The Kiwanis Club of Clanton is sponsoring another great talking picture at the Wadesonian Theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The title of it is "The Man Who Came Back."

The leading players in the picture are Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrel, two of the screen's greatest characters.

This picture presents a mighty contest between love and wealth. You will be captivated by the way it is worked out.

MAD DOG KILLED

Frank McCary, who lives on the Dudley Collins place, near Clanton, reports that his dog went mad Monday. He succeeded in killing him before he got away from his home, and prevented him from biting anything else.

WHAT'S IN A NAME ANYHOW?

Despite the fact that we were all raised on a farm, The Union-Banner force experienced some difficulty Wednesday morning in arriving at the name of a certain vegetable which was sent in from the farm of G. N. Easterling. There were four of us engaged in the naming contest. One said it was a beet. The second said it was a turnip. The third guessed it was a radish. Lastly came the turn of the devil, and making sure he would guess it right, he said it was a root.

The thing measured exactly 36 inches long. Half of it was root and half top. Therefore, the devil was half right anyhow.

LOST POCKETBOOK

I lost my pocketbook on May 17. It had about $175.00 in it, mostly in checks. If my customers who gave me checks on that date would let me know the amounts of their checks, I could get it back.—H. H. Hays, Jemison, Ala. 5-281c.

WINS DIAMOND RING

Miss Atha McMurray is the winner of the diamond ring in the recent contest for the one finding nearest the correct number of mispelled words in the Leader's Benefit Sale advertisement. Miss McMurray is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Z. T. McMurray, of Clanton.

Mr. Stalin is said to have decreed in Soviet Russia that each worker hereafter is to be paid in accordance with the amount of work he does. We don't believe real communists will stand for any such cruel old fashioned doctrine as that.

The Commencement address of the Verbena High School was made last Friday night by Mr. W. L. Spencer, of the State Department of Education.

Marriage for Reform

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

There used to be a familiar saying years ago when a young woman entered into a marriage contract with a rather wild and unregenerate partner that she had married him to reform him. There was also among some the feeling that such a reform was possible though I do not now recall that any specific illustrations were brought forward to prove the case. In general, those who were led into matrimony with the purpose of bringing about their reformation kept on in the same crooked path that they had previously been following.

There is an old Norse legend of a farmer named Gudbrand and his wife who lived very happily together, the wife never trying to reform her husband.

"Now you must know," the story goes, "that this man and his good wife lived so happily together and understood one another so well, that all the husband did the wife thought so well done, there was nothing like it in the world, and she was always glad whatever he turned his hand to."

They owned their farm, they had one hundred dollars in the bank, and they had two cows, one of which they decided to sell. Gudbrand undertook to sell the cow, but no one in town would buy her.

On he way home he met a man with a horse for which he traded the cow. As he progressed he made a succession of trades and came one after the other into possession of a pig, a goat, a sheep, a goose, and a cock. This last he disposed o for a shilling and then spent the shilling for a bite to eat.

On the way home he met a man who, upon hearing the details of his bargaining, wagered him a hundred dollars that when the wife heard the story Gudbrand would be roundly scolded. However, she, like a sensible woman, approved everything he had done.

The greatest area of fresh water lakes in the world, the five Great Lakes, total 94,000 square miles of surface, or 75 times the size of Rhode Island. The height of their surfaces above sea level varies, but all are between 500 and 600 feet except Ontario, which is only 247 feet above sea level.

When we take into consideration the fact that Uncle Sam has a smaller army than Switzerland, the rantings of Freddie Libbey and his fellow propagandists about Uncle Sam's setting the exabple for the rest of the world by disarming sound a trifle over-ripe to say the least.

How One Woman Lost 47 Lbs.

IN THREE MONTHS AND FEELS YEARS YOUNGER

Mrs. S. A. Solomon of New Bern, N. C., lost 47 pounds in 3 months with Kruschen Salts. She reduced from 217 to 170 pounds. She feels much stronger, years younger and pains in sides, back and abdomen that bothered her for years are all gone. She says she not only feels better but looks better as all her friends tell her.

"I shall never be without Kruschen Salts, will never cease taking my daily dose and more than glad to highly recommend it for the great good that is in it."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but 85 cents at Alred Drug Company and druggists the world over. Take one half teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast.

Attention to diet will help—cut out pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—the Kruschen way is the safe way to lose fat. Try one bottle and if not joyfully satisfied—money back.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

Dr. William J. Mayo

The surgeons were getting ready to operate. The doctor administering an anesthetic to the patient felt faint. A thirteen-year-old boy was in the operating room. He stepped boldly to the front, took the place of the sick physician, and administered the anesthetic under the directions of the operating surgeon. The boy was William J. Mayo, later to become world famous as a surgeon.

Matters of medicine and surgery were familiar to the youngster even at the age of thirteen. His father was Dr. William H. Mayo, one of the best surgeons in the West. His ancestors had been prominent in the profession for generations in England, from which his father came to this country in 1845.

Young Mayo had been brought up in the world of curing the ills of mankind. It wasn't unnatural that he was able, under the circumstances, to serve as an assistant at an operation when he was only thirteen. His first patient recovered. Since then he has cured thousands by the skill of his surgery.

The youngster had early ambitions to be a stagecoach driver. He was born in Le Seur, Minn., in 1861, but his father moved to Rochester, in the same state, when William was two years old. Minnesota was in the Wild West of those days. There were few highways running across the rolling prairies. Indians roamed the plains. Many of the pioneers lived in crude sod huts.

Stagecoach drivers were heroes to the boys in Rochester. They were rough characters, but the glamor of adventure hung over them in the eyes of young Will and his playmates. They dashed into the town, pulling up foam-flecked horses with a flourish that was highly impressive in juvenile eyes. They were a link with the great world outside the little prairie settlement.

But like most of us, who in our youth dream of becoming firemen, policemen, engineers, cowboys—or stagecoach drivers—young Mayo's ambition was soon directed into other channels. His father's practice covered much of the southern part of the state. The boy often accompanied him on visits to patients far out on the lonely prairie.

The youngster saw Indians living in wigwams while on such trips. He held the horses when his father made calls in the sod huts of the homesteaders, occasionally assisting in the setting of a broken limb. He witnessed suffering and fortitude.

His environment tended to direct him toward the study of medicine. He made up his mind when he was in high school to follow in the footsteps of his father and so many of his ancestors. After being graduated from the high school in Rochester he attended Niles academy. From there he went to the University of Michigan. He was graduated in medicine in 1883.

He had hardly returned to the old-fashioned home, which his father had built in Rochester and in which he spent his boyhood, than he had an opportunity to show the benefits of his training. A tornado, one of those wind storms so dreaded in the flat prairie country, struck Rochester and wrecked part of the village.

His father turned his home into a hospital. The elder Mayo, the newly made Dr. William Mayo and his brother, Charles H. Mayo, then a medical student, treated the injured. The sons assisted their father in several emergency operations.

Dr. William J. Mayo made an excellent record in college. So did his brother. Both learned medicine as they grew up. Doctor Will worked in a drug store during his vacations. Doctor Charles did likewise. Furthermore they had the direct benefit of the deep knowledge and wide experience of their father.

They had a good microscope when they were in high school. Their father bought it specially for them and taught them its use. They studied with it many winter nights when a blizzard roared outside the comfortable home of the Mayos. Such training and advantages were most helpful when it came time for them to take up seriously the study of their chosen profession.

The first real practical experience Dr. William J. Mayo had as a practicing physician in Rochester indirectly brought about the establishment of the world famous Mayo clinic. Rochester was without a hospital. The need for such an institution was emphasized after the tornado had left death and suffering in its wake.

The Sisters of St. Francis, who had served as nurses for the Mayos when they were administering to the needs of the tornado victims, agreed to help build a hospital if the Mayos would serve as physicians and surgeons. Doctor Will's father donated the land. The brothers thus began their work together. Out of that early association has grown their own world-known institution for the relief of suffering humanity.

WRITES ABOUT LAWRENCE

Editor Union-Banner:

The Alabama School Journal says Buford Lawrence is a native of Tennessee. While they were about it, why didn't they mention the fact that Lawrenceburg was named after him? Chilton County ought to do something about this. Here's a kick from Bibb. Yours very truly,—C. S. McGee, Randolph, Ala.

BAD WRECK MONDAY P. M.

A party of people from Fairfield, a Dr. Morris and some friends, happened to a bad automobile wreck Monday afternoon about twenty miles south of Clanton as they were returning home from graduation exercises at Womans College in Montgomery.

The big car in which they were traveling swerved around a curve, when two wheels got off the pavement. When the driver saw a deep ravine just ahead, he pulled the car with all the strength he had to get it back into the road. As it turned back on to the pavement the machine turned over spilling the occupants all over the place.

Rev. Haskew also returning from Montgomery, came upon the scene immediately after the wreck. He picked up two of the injured and brought them on to Clanton where their wounds were treated. All were able to proceed to Fairfield Monday night.

Lesson for May 31

JESUS IN GETHSEMANE

GOLDEN TEXT—Saying, Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:39-54.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus in the Garden.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus in the Garden.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Obeying God at Any Cost.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of Gethsemane.

I. Jesus at the Mount of Olives (v. 39).

He went from the upper room under cover of the night to the Garden of Gethsemane, a favorite resort on the slope of the Mount of Olives, a short distance east of Jerusalem (Matt. 26:30). It is a place where the oil was crushed out of the olives. Gethsemane means "oil press." Olive oil was precious, being used both for food and lighting. The bruising and crushing of Christ in this Garden has yielded the largest blessings to the world.

II. His Companions (vv. 39, 40).

Peter, James and John, who had been with him on the Mount of Transfiguration, were permitted to go with him into the deep shadows of the Garden (Matt. 26:37). He took those who were best able to apprehend the meaning of the tragic hour to be his sympathizing companions. This was needed to prepare them as his witnesses. Knowing the peculiar trial through which they would soon pass when the Shepherd should be smitten, he needed to prepare them for it. They needed to taste the bitter cup of which he drank and of which they, too, later should drink.

III. Jesus Praying (vv. 41-44).

1. Withdrawal from the disciples (v. 41). Even these members of the inner circle could not now go with him. He tore himself away from them, for he must be alone in this darkest hour. He kneeled down and prayed.

2. What he said (v. 42). "If thou be willing, remove this cup from me." The cup did not mean primarily the physical sufferings of the cross, though they were exceeding great. He did not now desire to escape from the cross and thus to stop short of his redemptive work, for this was the supreme purpose of his coming into the world (Heb. 2:14). He was so completely identified with a sinning race that the judgment of a holy God which rightfully would have fallen upon it was about to strike him—the Father's face was actually turned from him. The cup, therefore, meant his death as the bearer of sin. He came to Gethsemane with the full knowledge of what it meant, and consciously brought his human will into accord with the divine will. He bowed in submission to the Father's will. So great was his agony that he sweat, as it were, great drops of blood. In this crucial hour an angel from heaven strengthened him. He won the victory in submission to his Father's will, and from henceforth went with unfaltering steps to the cross.

IV. The Disciples Sleeping (vv. 45, 46).

They had boasted of their fidelity (Matt. 26:35), but could not watch with him for an hour. He had issued a word of warning to them (Luke 22:34), but they were so benumbed with sorrow that they failed to keep awake. He gently reprimanded them and commanded that they should arise and pray lest they enter into temptation.

V. Jesus Betrayed (vv. 47, 48).

1. The betrayer (v. 47). It was Judas, one of the twelve. He had enjoyed the most intimate relations with the Lord: eating with him, listening to his teaching, witnessing his marvelous miracles, and enjoying his countenance. These privileges intensify the horror of the deed. He even guided the mob to arrest Jesus.

2. The sign of betrayal (v. 47). It was a kiss, the token of the most tender affection and friendship.

3. Jesus' tender words to him (v. 48). These words to the infamous disciple reveal the infinite tenderness of the Lord's heart. Many professing disciples today are proving their disloyalty to Jesus and even are betraying him. All who bear the name of Christ, and especially ministers and teachers, who deny the virgin birth, deity, and vicarious atonement of Jesus Christ, are following in the footsteps of Judas.

VI. Jesus Arrested (v. 54).

The multitude led by Judas invaded the sacred precincts of the Garden and arrested Jesus and brought him before the High Priest. Peter followed him afar off. Peter's downfall may be traced to his self-confidence.

Faith a Necessity

There is only one door into heaven; that door is faith. There is only one ship that sails for the skies; her name is Faith. There is only one weapon with which to contend with opposition; that weapon is faith.—Talmage.

A Great Mistake

There is no greater mistake than to suppose that Christians can impress the world by compromising with it.—Selected.

BILIOUS

"I have used Black-Draught . . . and have not found anything that could take its place. I take Black-Draught for biliousness. When I get bilious, I have a nervous headache and a nervous, trembling feeling that unfits me for my work. After I take a few doses of Black-Draught, I get all right. When I begin to get bilious, I feel tired and run-down, and then the headache and trembling. But Black-Draught relieves all this."—H. O. Hendrix, Homerville, Ga.

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E Norton, Manager)

A very beautiful candle lighting service featured the Christian Endeavor service of May 24. The meeting was held on the lawn of the campus cottage. Every member was given a candle and at a given signal they marched up to the leader and lighted their candles from her's, thence proceeding, in order, around the dormitory. The originator of this program should be complimented on their good work.

Doctor Horace Franklin, who has nearly completed a year as an "intern" at Hillman Hospital, was home for the week end, and took his mother Sunday to witness the unveiling of the tomb of his uncle, Jim Franklin, who was a prominent member of the Woodmen of the World, who died last winter and was buried in the cemetery at Pleasant Grove Church, near where he lived. As soon as he finishes his term at Hillman Dr. Franklin will take up the general practice of medicine at Eclectic, Alabama.

Rev. J. E. Each, son William, and T. R. McCollum, a Thorsby Institute student, went to Union Church, seven miles east of Mountain Creek, Sunday afternoon, where Mr. Each preached at night.

Mr. Charles A. Petersen, who is in the Dr. L. V. Stabler Infirmary at Greenville, Ala., seriously ill, was operated on last Saturday afternoon. Word came that he had stood the operation well and was resting easy. Sunday night Mrs. Herbert Peterson, who was at the hospital with her husband, a son of C. A. Peterson, telephoned her mother that Mr. Peterson was suffering from heart trouble and was then so low that there seemed to be but little hope for his life. Monday a telegram came saying he had rallied somewhat and appeared to be improving. No further word had been received up to this writing, 10 a. m., Tuesday.

Last Sunday morning the people and churches of Thorsby united in a baccalaureate service of Thorsby Institute commencement week, at Helen Jenkins Hall auditorium. The nineteen candidates for graduation presented an impressive appearance as they filed in to seats reserved for them, and again in the stage, where they sang the class hymn, "True-hearted, Whole-hearted." An anthem, "The Spacious Firmament on High," was sung by the school chorus . "My Creed," a trio, was well sung by Misses Arthur and McKee and H. R. Maddox.

Rev. E. W. Butler delivered, in a forceful manner the principal address, subject: "Jesus the Master Teacher," taken from the fifth chapter of Matthew or "The Sermon on the Mount." He strongly emphasized the fact that the principles laid down there were basic for one who would live the "Abundant Life."

The closing number was a soprano solo, "I will Lift Up Mine Eyes," which was beautifully sung by Miss Agnes Leary.

Mrs. Leonard Moody of Birmingham is a visitor at the home of her mother, Mrs. Gerald, this week.

Mrs. J. E. Each complimented Miss Ruth Gerald, bride-elect of Thorsby, with a miscellaneous shower at her home on Tuesday afternoon. The living rooms were beautifully decorated in cut flowers of yellow and pink. The music program consisted of a vocal solo, "All for You," by Miss Odie Lee Arthur and a violin solo by Mrs. Broadhead of Clanton. The chariot containing the gifts was brought to the bride by three dainty little girls, dressed as angels. They were Helen Louise Mead, Marion Joyce, and Dorothy Howard. The bride was showered with rice from a huge heart suspended from an arch just over her head. The refreshments carried out the color scheme of pink and yellow. About seventy-five guests called to do the bride honor between the hours of two to four o'clock.

Wear the Poppy

Among the French farmers who till the battle fields of the World War there is a tradition that where the men fell thickest the little wild poppies push up their blooms in the greatest profusion. A symbolic connection is seen between the blood of the slain and the bright red blossoms of the poppies. The poppy has become recognized the world over as the hero's flower.

In America on the Saturday, May 30, the poppy will be worn by millions in tribute to the World War dead. Where true patriots dwell the thickest the blood-red symbols of sacrifice will be seen in the greatest profusion. It is to be hoped that no city or town in America will be able to show a more unanimous wearing of the poppy than Clanton.

Everyone can wear a poppy. The person who does not have a poppy on his lapel on Poppy Day gives evidences that he no longer remembers or honors the deeds of the war dead and has no interest in the welfare of the disabled veterans, their families and the families of the dead. Let us pray that we have no such persons in Clanton.

The women of the American Legion Auxiliary who will be on the streets with the poppies on Poppy Day, in reality do not sell the flowers. They offer the poppies to everyone who wishes to honor the dead in exchange for a contribution to help the living. No price is fixed for these little flowers shaped by the patient hands of disabled veterans. The child who drops a penny into the coin box of the poppy seller, the financier who tucks in a ten dollar bill and the penniless unemployed who can give nothing at all will be given the same bright red poppies.

And every penny of the money which goes into the coin boxes will come out in service to needy disabled men and their families during the coming year. The bulk of the mony will be expended right here in our own city by our own legionaries and auxiliary women, who, because of their intimate knowledge of the veterans to be aided and the volunteer character of their service, will make it go farther than almost any other charitable contributions.

Paying honor to the men who have died for the country should be a natural impulse with every patriotic American. Helping better the lot of the war's living victims is an obligation upon all of us. We can do both by wearing the legion and auxiliary poppy on Poppy Day.

Mr. Barnes Explains

It seems that Mr. Julius H. Barnes, who caused such a flurry last week by calling for tariff changes to help American foreign trade, is strongly opposed to action at the next session of Congress. What he meant, he has now explained to the International Chamber of Commerce meeting, was that gradual adjustments, either up or down, should be made through the Tariff Commission. These would not have "the unsettling effects that accompany a general overhauling by Congress."

So the Democrats and insurgents who hailed Mr. Barnes as a convert to their cause rejoiced too soon. Like most business men, he is not willing to have Congress meddle with the tariff. It is the Tariff Commission's task to recommend any needed changes. And, by the way, Mr. Barnes has not yet stated what particular changes he has in mind. It would be interesting to know which tariff schedules, in his opinion, are opperating to the disadvantage of this country's foreign trade.

Poor House Argument

Mr. W. T. Hand, of Jemison, continues his discussion of the county poor house argument with a long letter in this issue of The Union-Banner.

It is noteworthy that Mr. Hand insists that his investigations of the poor house situation prove that there is something wrong with the manner in which the inmates are being provided for.

He contends that he is honest about his conclusions in the matter, and is not actuated by any kind of political or personal prejudice. So far as this newspaper is concerned, we are not in position to say that Mr. Hand is not acting upon the impulse of a good purpose.

Furthermore, we are not in position to declare that conditions at the poor house are up to the standard they should be.

The fact is, we do not know just what is the situation. One thing is sure. Chilton County is able to take care of its wards. We believe our county officials are fully willing to make provisions to take care of them in the right way.

It appears that the time is ripe for a complete thrashing out of this argument. If things are not going right at the poor house, our officials should find out what is wrong.

If Mr. Hand and the others who are criticizing the management are not justified in their contentions, then also should the truth be known.

Fnially, those who have stirred up this racket will be placed in a bad light if they are not honest and are not supported by facts to justify them.

Chairman Stone of the Federal Farm Board told the Chamber of Commerce of the United States that the business men of the country are vitally interested in the farmers' problems for prosperity never continues very long in America unless agriculture is prosperous.

"We have the tariff for industry, the Chairman said, the transportation act for the railroads, the federal reserve system for the banks, the immigration law and the eight-hour day for labor, and aid given to the shipping interests in order to foster our merchant marine. I am bringing this to your attention merely to emphasize the fact that this policy was adopted by our government before legislation, such as the Agricultural Marketing Act, was passed primarily in the interest of agriculture."

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

Well, here we are back on the old job again after having been attending some of those commencement exercises we were spaking of last week. Each one that we have attended has been very interesting and impressive. A number of the senior plays have been exceedingly well presented. Audiences have been larger than might have been expected under the economic conditions.

One exercise we attended was the Class Night program of Isabella High. A novel arrangement of the program was in the form of a radio broadcast, with the radio announcer presenting each item on the program in the regulation radio studio manner. This departure from the usual manner of presenting this program was indeed entertaining and was well handled.

The Sweeper wishes to welcome The Man in the Moon to the family of writers for the dear ol' Banner. May be that we can get a few ideas from him to help fill up this colyum from time to time. But we will say right here and now that when we get off on our vacation after awhile we intend to go down to the land of sunshine and flowers—Florida, and anyone who has ever been there knows and has felt that exotic effect of a tropical moon, and, we are serving notice on the Man in the Moon to be very careful what he tells on us. If he don't, we will just rub our Alladin Lamp and turn witch and ride our broom handle right into Mr. Man in the Moon's front yard and punch his good eye out!

The fellows around the shop who really have the last say about things have decided to change the dress of our editorial page. How do you like it? Of course it cuts down the space we have been using and cramps us into a little smaller and more narrow space, but then we think that is better, as each colyum is now the same size and none of us can feel like we are just a little better than our neighbor. We think it is a good idea.

Boy, it certainly is a sight to stand up on the corner and watch the fun that is being created by the lively competition of Maurice Lande and Reedie Taylor. Stores hard by each other, with only a narrow alley between, and each putting forth his very best merchandising efforts to outdo the other in the matter of sales. Maurice is putting on a Customer's Benefit Sale while Reedie is making things hum with his Public Adjustment Sale. These two boys are among Clanton's most enterprising and up-to-date merchants, and when they get the notion, they certainly do know how to get things going—and believe The Sweeper, from the crowds we saw in these two popular stores Saturday afternoon times certainly are not as hard as some people think they are.

And listen folks, we have seen all kinds of days in Clanton, but it remained for last Saturday to be the first "bull" day we have seen in the city. While Percy Pitts and the politicians were up in the courthouse endeavoring to hog-tie the political bull, Cohen Stapp had the real article on display right out in the middle of Second Avenue. We got so interested in the Stapp variety of bull that we failed to get around and see how the other crowd got along.

And while we are talking about this "bull" business we would like to say that Stapp certainly had a fine bunch of bulls on display. Every one of them were registered stock and from the best of sires and dams. Cohen figures that those bulls are worth at least $5,000 to the dairy herds of Chilton County each year.

We have been doing so much running around for the past week we have not been able to get many clinkers together for you this week, but now that things have sorta quieted down, we promise to do better next week. Mind the dust!—Sweeper.

The National coal supply exceeds three million tons, which is sufficient to take care of our requirements for several hundred years.

The MAN in the MOON

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

Pessimism—

There have been lots of panics in the history of this country, and, as you know very well, last year was a darned good example. But if you are a little far-seeing, like some of the boys are, you can readily see the good that came from it. While the rank and file were standing about grinning at the sun and the world and things in general, a few were going about their plans of cashing in on the hard times. The wise ones, realizing what the country was up against, and realizing that they would be unable to make money during a period, took advantage of such time to readjust their affairs to the new order of things. They took stock, took their loss, making it as small as possible, and took up the job of being all ready for the new order of things when it should come around. As a result, when the worst part of the pinch was over, they were in position to take their places in the new order. They have used the low period to readjust themselves to things as they will be for some time in the immediate future. They are the WISE ones. They have looked ahead; have used the bad times to prepare themselves for better times. And what of the other kind? They kept on fighting fate, trying to escape an inescapable tight situation. Result—they are right where they were when the hard times set in, perhaps worse, because they have had to take their loss like everybody else, and, too, must now use a lot of valuable time readjusting themselves and their businesses. They are the BOOBS. Pessimism helps nobody—hurts the pessimist most of all, in that it blinds him to possibilities of the future.

Daddy of Them All—

New York, the biggest city in the world, keeps on leading the list in nearly any line you can name. Not content with being the largest city, with the most people, the tallest buildings, the most money, etc., it has now furnished the biggest haul by the prohibition forces of the country. Comes word of the capture in New York City—right in the heart of the business district, too—of the biggest liquor still in history, a plant of 103,000 gallon capacity. Along with the big fellow, officers captured 20,000 gallons of alcohol, and 80,000 gallons of mash in tanks 20 by 35 feet. What a whopper. There is one thing about it—they are no pikers. When they go into anything they go head and ears.

Every Knock is a Boost—

You have heard the saying, "Every knock is a boost." Truer words were never spoken. When the great fight broke out against the chain stores a fine example of this was shown. When people were told that the chain stores were robbing them in weights and measures and different other ways, what happened? They flocked into these chain stores and bought and bought. Why? Some went because they hated "knockers," even though they might be telling them the truth. Others went to buy, just to see for themselves if all the charges being made were true. As a result, the chain stores enjoyed one of their greatest years last year, when everything else seemed headed for the rocks. They proved themselves the wiser in the long run. They were too busy making money off of the knocks of their competitors to take a hand in the knocking game themselves. Some time folks are going to awake to the fact that "It pays to advertise," but that "knocking" isn't advertising, except for those being "knocked." Another instance—a famous evangelist has this to say of "knocking": "When my enemies go on the war path and begin to publish or have published all sorts of things about me and my teaching, I find it out first in that my audiences double and treble. My Christ was the most knocked man in history, and yet He and His gospel today have the greatest following of any on the globe." Moral—if you can't be a booster, keep still! Don't knock!

"Cotton Tawm" Outsmarts 'Em—

When "Cotton Tawm" Heflin's beloved Democratic Party leaders got busy trying to punish him for "bolting," he got busy planning on how to feed them the rope with which to hang themselves, so to speak. And the funny part of it all is that he let them furnish the smoke screen behind which he worked toward his own good. He let them fool themselves into thinking they were smart, first. Then he chuckled to himself when they became loud-mouthed about how they were going to beat him, even though they had to steal the votes with which to do it. When he started the ball to rolling again in his contest of the election and Senate investigation, he let them think he really hoped to win, when all the while the foxy old campaigner was only arranging the scenes for his great drive into the rotten political conditions of Alabama. How they laughed and whooped and burned votes! How they welcomed investigation, secure in the belief that all was so well hidden behind the smoke screen. But how about it, now? He's got 'em praying for rain in the middle of a wet spell, as it were. The wise old party leaders find themselves outsmarted. They find their crooked system and methods, which they thought so well organized, being held up, piece by piece, for all to see just how rotten it all is. They find their rock castle founded upon a sand foundation and now crumbling about them, not only carrying the castle, but them as well, with it into political oblivion. Just what will be the outcome of all the investigation into Alabama's election system no one can foretell, but those in charge of that system certainly find themselves in a position anything but enviable. They find that the rocky path they built for Mr. Heflin has turned out to be only a base for a nice, paved highway of his own, if he chooses to take advantage of it. And you can be mighty sure that "Cotton Tawm" will so choose.

Senator Cousins, who sold out his interest in the Ford business for many millions and then invested his money in tax exempt securities, evidently is no longer willing to assume the hazard that goes with business enterprise. But the senator is full of advice to the big business men of the country on how to give steady employment at high wages. As a bookkeeper for Henry Ford, the senator perhaps had no opportunity to learn that, by conforming to economic principles, business enterprises in the long run will be able to pay the best wages and give the steadiest employment.

Unmistakably—Opportunity is knocking at the Democratic door, says Chairman Shouse. At least, there is some knocking.—Indianapolis Star.

The Man and the Mule

Here is a little yarn we heard the other day which we would like to pass along to you farmer folks:

"Over the hill trailed a man behind a mule pulling his plow, the clod-hopper was broadcasting: 'Bill, you are a mule and I am a man, made in the image of God. Yet, here we work hitched together year in and year out. I often wonder if you work for me or if I work for you. Plowing here we cover the same distance, but you do it on four legs and I do it on two legs. So, mathematically speaking, I do twice as much work per leg as you do. Soon we'll be preparing for a corn crop and when the crop is harvested I give one-third to the landlord for being kind enough to let me use this corner of God's universe. The other goes to you and what is left is my share. But while you consume all of your one-third, with the exception of a few cobs, I divide mine among nine kids, six hens, two ducks, a banker, a life insurance agent and a grocery man. Bill, you are getting the best of me. Is it fair for a mule to rob a man, the lord of creation, of his substance? And come to think of it you only help to cultivate the ground. After that I cut, shock and husk it, while you look over the pasture fence and he-haw at me. All Fall and part of the Winter the whole family, from grandma down to the baby, pick cotton to raise money to buy you a new set of harness and pay interest on the mortgage on you and by the way, what do you give a durn about the mortgage? It doesn't worry you any, not a durned bit. You leave that to me, you ungrateful cuss. About the only time I am your better is on election day, for I can vote and you can't, but if I ever get any more out of politics than you do, I'll be hanged if I can see where it is. Bill, you're lucky just being a plain durned, hard-headed ignorant mule, while for me, Bill, there just ain't no justice'."

What Would Happen—Should—

Farmers really cut their cotton acerage?

A new overhead bridge be built over the railroad on the Selma Highway, or Fourth Avenue North?

Some way be found to raise money besides taxing gasoline?

A bus give half the road when it meets a car?

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

President Hoover did well, in addressing the World Chamber of Commerce to call attention to the great burden of military armaments in Europe. After mentioning the efforts which have been made to reduce naval armament, in which as we all know Uncle Sam took the lead and made the Major sacrifices, voluntarily giving up world naval supremacy which was within his grasp, the President rightly paid some attention to the question of military establishments. As the President well said: "The United States has a less direct interest in land armament reduction than any of the large nations because our forces have already been demobilized and reduced more than all others."

This is a fect which we are too apt to overlook and which the professional pacifists always overloow in their efforts to render Uncle Sam defensively helpless, without regard to whether the rest of the world disarms or not. As a matter of fact although highly efficient and well trained, the United States army is little more, in numbers, than a national police force. It compares in size only to the armies of the Third-rate powers in Europe. Using figures of the Foreign Policy Association, a society not prejudiced against internationalism, we find that seven conscript armies larger than the non-conscript army of the United States, and one power, Great Britain, has a non-conscript army considerably larger than ours. The figures are: France, 607,533; Russia, 562,000; Italy, 354, 570; Poland, 253,824; Japan, 198,800; Roumania, 185,726; Switzerland, 156,070; Great Britain, non-script, 344,450 first line troops. Czechoslovakia, Spain and Jugoslavia have conscript armies of aproximately the same size as the non-conscript army of the United States.

It will be seen, therefore, that in shouting for peace and disarmament in the United States, Mr. Frederick Libbey and his professional "defense busters" are barking up the wrong tree. It is not Uncle Sam who is responsible for the military burdens of the world. His army will not compare in size with that of any of the other first class powers of the world, excepting only Germany, which was disarmed by the Versailles treaty with the understanding that the other nations would follow suit.

If our professional pacifists are entirely sincere, therefore, and wish to do something to further disarmament, why do they not move their propaganda batteries and their peace doves to Europe, where their services are really needed? The reason they do not is obvious. They well know that nothing can be done in Europe, because Europe is not ready to disarm. So they confine their assaults to the United States in the hope of earning their money by rendering Uncle Sam as defenseless as possible, through an appeal to the sentiment of the American People.

Europe will not disarm, in spite of the good advice which President Hoover has given her. She will not disarm for several reasons, among them, mutual national jealousies, fears and ambitions. But the biggest reason of all can be found in the ever-looming shadow of Soviet Russia. The communists have declared war on the capitalist world. And although the Foreign Policy Association gives the number of Russian first line conscripted troops as 562,000, everyone who is in touch with situation knows that Russia's potential military strength is far greater than this. nI fact the Soviet leaders are organizing the entire nation, man, woman, and child on a military basis, and boast that within a few years they can call out an army of ten million trained men. With this menace hovering near, it is small wonder htat central and western Europe are not inclined to disarm. Yet peculiarly enough, a great many of our professional pacifists seem strangely sympathetic with Soviet Russia. If they want to start a real demilitarizing movement let them begin by convincing Soviet Russia that now is the time for all good nations to disarm.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw—
and Some He Saw Not.

About Electing County Superintendent

I hear quite a lot about the matter of electing the County Superintendent of Education. That is all right. If the people want to do it that way it suits me. And from what I have seen and heard, I believe a majority of our people favor having the right to vote for the county superintendent. But while we are thinking about the superintendent business, we should not overlook the fact that it is the school business, our children, that we should be seeking to serve. Many of us, I fear, are fussing about non-essential matters in the school business, and overlooking the fundamental considerations. For instance, I know people who have been tearing their shirts for many years about voting for the superintendent, and have repeatedly voted against every measure designed to raise more money for our schools. That kind of a policy will not get us anywhere.

Suppose It Had Been a Bank Failure

Jasper Dennis and I were chatting over our regular morning cup of coffee at Matt's Tuesday. The strawberry business naturally drifted into our discussion. Mr. Dennis offered one very pungent remark which stuck in my ear. He said suppose, instead of our $150,000 strawberry crop, we had had in Chilton County a bank failure involving say a third or half that much money. How much would you have heard about it? The conclusion I reached is this: We are so naturally bent on making a song out of the unpleasant things, and passing hurriedly over the very things that we can well afford to say much about. The knock of the hammer seems to echo itself from place to place until its sound has traveled great distances. Pleasant sweet voices talking about lovely subjects are lost in the noises of the market place.

The Poppy Sale Next Saturday

The ladies of the Legion Auxiliary are getting their plans well perfected for conducting the Poppy Sale in Clanton next Saturday. This is the first event of this kind we have had in Clanton, although it has been a custom observed all over the country every since our boys returned from the battlefields of France twelve years ago. I hope our people will readily buy and wear every one of the poppies our women have to sell. By so doing we reaffirm to the soldier boys the spirit of love and sacrifice which we held in our hearts for them when they were in the dark shadows of Europe during 1917 and1918. You may give a penny or a dollar or ten dollars for your poppy. That is just with you. Whatever you give will go to help those boys who came back from the war maimed and disabled. The little flowers are made by the hands of those disabled veterans.

God's Estimate of Mankind

Rev. Bass, in his commencement sermon last Sunday, said he was reared in the deep South, and up to the time he went to college he thought no one could be a decent white man unless he were a Democrat. After he got into college he became a special friend of a young man from the North. When he found out that his friend was a Republican he exclaimed in amazement: Phillips, can it be possible that you are not a Democrat? His friend replied: Bass, can it be possible that you are not a Republican? And (God) hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth; that they should seek the Lord, if perhaps they might feel after him, and find him. Acts 18:26-27.

Republican Written in Capital Letters

It strikes me that the fellow who wrote a certain article in the Shelby County Reporter last week must be of about the same attitude as Dr. Bass had before he went to college. The article I refer to was reporting the incidents of a hearing in the legislature concerning a bill to make the superintendent of education of Shelby County elective. It stated that Percy M. Pitts, the REPUBLICAN representative of Chilton County, sponsored the bill before the legislative committee. The Reporter is Democratic and against the bill. I guess the Reporter has the idea that everything that bears the mark Republican is foredoomed to opposition and annihilation by the Democrats, and there fore it was fitting that all the "enlightened" should take their cue from the fact that Percy Pitts's political brand was written in capital letters. It is amusing some times to observe just how little "big" men can make themselves appear.

A Letter From Broadus

Monday morning The Man on the Corner was made happy to receive a letter from Broadus Connatser, written in Nashville Sunday night. It was a very pleasant letter from a very dear friend. A rather curious thing about the letter impressed me. Broadus wrote, and therefore I infer, is thinking about things other than baseball; bigger things, and deeper things. Albeit, he is making a success out of his baseball this year. Some day he will quit it and go into something that better fits his nature. He will be a big man some day, and I hope he settles down in Clanton for his career.

How Can You Gainsay This?

At the mass meeting last Saturday, Uncle Will Fox was called upon to express himself about the question of electing the County Superintendent of Education. He arose and spoke thusly:

"I think that an official who handles business for the people of a county ought to be willing for the people of that county to pass their judgment upon his fitness and qualifications for the job.

"When a county official knows that he must depend upon a majority of the people for his job, he will naturally be considerably concerned about the business of running his job the way the people want it run.

"Now, my friends, my knees are a little weak, and perhaps my head is weaker. I believe I will sit down."

Prolonged applause followed.

MT. PLEASANT 4-H CLUB

The Mt. Pleasant 4-H Club will hold a meeting next Friday night, May 29th. Every club member is urged to come. The club is planning to go to see each member's project soon.

FRIENDSHIP

Rev. J. Robert Bean preached here Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night. This is the first attempt that has been made for service on Saturday night in some time, but the crowd was very good. Rev. Bean intends to preach here every Saturday night before the fourth Sunday, as well as two services Sunday as usual.

Rev. A. D. Huett will preach here next Sunday night at 7:00 o'clock. Dewey is a home boy at Friendship, he having once had his membership at that church while he lived in the community, and it is hoped that the entire community will turn out to hear him next Sunday night.

The matter of a singing school at this place this summer was taken up last Sunday night, and it was decided that a school be made up for Prof. L. T. Grant. The exact date will be determined later. Prof. Grant taught a very successful school here last year, and the prospects now look better than they did even then. We are going to have a singing school this year, and everyone in reach who can is urged to throw your help and influence in that direction. Prof. Grant is one of the best teachers in the county, being able to teach anything that he might be called upon to teach.

A special called conference will be held at the church immediately following preaching on Saturday night before next fourth Sunday. It is hoped that as many members as possible will attend as some business of importance is to be attended to.

Willie Clackler has returned from New Hampshire, on account of an injury to his leg which will prevent him from working for several months. He was hurt a few days after his return to New Hampshire from the trip a little over a month ago when he came home with the dead body of his wife. He expects to remain here for the summer.

WEST CHILTON

Listen, the first thing this week is an announcement. We learn that with the consent of the trustees there will be a singing at Freeman School building on the first Sunday in June at 2:00 o'clock p. m., in the old books; and if agreeable it may continue monthly, on and on.

A funeral procession passed through West Chilton last week with the remains of Mr. Elam of Birmingham, going, we presume to Cox's Chapel, for burial. Mr. Elam was a son of the late T. L. Elam of Chilton.

The Elam family came from Wilcox County about 1867, and located on the Atchison place near Macedonia. They are all most excellent people.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard visited at W. R. Redding's Sunday.

Rev. Dyer visited his daughter at Tuscaloosa Sunday.

World depression. What a big term that is. Far bigger than the big drouth of last year. Who can tell how far reaching it will be, or when it will be lifted? The man in "Moral Echoes" may be right. We may be glad to come to "corn bread and bacon" yet.

Don't you remember "The Man in the Moon" was telling us in The Banner last week about the road map? Well, some were consulting that map a half century ago, and were thereby warned of the present time of stress. So they are forearmed and not surprised.

They read the works of different authors, and that is one way we learn things. Yes, read, read for yourselves. Think for yourselves.

We admit this is a time of stress, but a time also of greatest light. Is it due to our superior intelligence? No. But it is the due time for light. Read and learn.

IN MEMORY OF MARY LITTLE

On Monday morning, May 18, at 4 o'clock, the death angel winged its way to the home of Mr. Eddie Little, and took to the home above his dear wife. She was about 25 years old and a Christian. She was sick about one week, suffering with pneumonia.

She leaves a husband, mother, sister, and 2 children to mourn her loss; besides a host of friends. She was buried at Chestnut Creek cemetery, Tuesday, Rev. J. D. Hughes officiating, with Martin in charge.

MACEDONIA HOLINESS CHURCH

There will be an all day fifth Sunday meeting at the new Macedonia Holiness Church next Sunday. Everybody is invited. This is a meeting for everybody, sinners as well as saints. Come early, as we want to get in a full day in praise to the Lord. Bring dinner and spend the day.

There will also be a meeting on Thursday, May 28, for the purpose of cleaning off the church grounds and making arrangements to get some more benches for the church. Everybody come.—Mrs. Floyd Mahan.

W. T. Hand Discusses County Poor House

Editor Union-Banner:

In a recent publication by J. D. Bean, keeper of Chilton County Alms House, whose type or character I do not care to assail, I am charged with making false accusations knowingly and not seeking the truth, which calls for facts.

On my first visit to our almshouse about September, 1930, my suspicion was aroused while greeting old acquaintances. Answering my "how are you?" their usual reply was, "not much, but don't say I said anything." Their appearance and demeanor showed plainly that they were coerced. I made no comment.

I returned later and saw a meal, untouched, which had been served to Mr. Franklin on the porch. It consisted of thick white cornbread, cold cabbage and a glass of milk. I saw another meal served then in a pan by an attendant to Mr. Price, who was on a bed a few feet away. I could not tell what it was, it resembled dough. I saw no knife, fork, or spoon. Presently another person appeared before Mr. Price and propounded the question: "Do you get enough to eat here?" and repeated it. I cannot forget his face as he feebly looked up and said "I reckon." Asked again, he made the same answer. "Tell the man so," was then said looking at me. It was plain that this old man was overawed in his weakened condition. Neither he nor Mr. Franklin partook of their meal while I remained, about 15 minutes.

I then went through the main dining room where the evening meal had just been finished, to look for evidence of meat on the table, but found none, and apparently nothing other than had been served to Mr. Franklin.

I was told that the meal I saw was about an average for noon and evening, and for breakfast, they had "four biscuits" about the size of a dollar, a small thin piece of butter and stained water for coffee."

One informant said he had not seen an egg, or piece of fried meat since being there, over a year, that a small piece of beef was served about three weeks prior, and another about three weeks before that. Others said the last egg thay had to eat was Easter, 1929. Their principal food being cornbread, made with water, and cabbage. I learned later that they received green, and that only two cows were kept to supply milk and butter for about 25 inmates and Mr. Bean's family.

Hearing that some of the inmates would beg food at houses in the neighborhood, I called at the home of an old darky about two miles away, and was told by him that one of the inmates made regular visits to his home about once a week, and while there asked for something to eat, saying he was hungry and didn't get much to eat over yonder. The darky said, "I always sets him down to my table and puts the best I got before him."

I was informed that three inmates were abused for talking to me, and that J. D. Bean said, "The next time he caught me at the poorhouse, he would make my face look like a sifter's bottom." Thereafter, on the 14th of November I wrote to Mr. Shaver, an inmate, saying I would take eggs to Mr. Smith's home nearby for them if they could get them. No answer came, and on the 18th I went alone to the almshouse, but remained in my car in the public road. Mr. Bean and his wife came at once, and while threatening me, he attempted to open the door of my car, being restrained after firm warning; there were others nearby. He continued to threaten me and said "the next time he caught me on the poorhouse premises, me and you are going to have trouble." I said, "I want to see Mr. Shaver." He said, "he is not here." He then referred to a matter contained in my letter to Mr. Shaver. I left and have not been on the poorhouse premises since.

Mr. Bean invites criticism, but well knows the reluctance of any citizen of Chilton County to publish an adverse report. The fate of some subjected to slanderous publications which it seems has been a source of amusement and satisfaction to a large constituency for about 35 years, is too well known and any man is lothe to expose himself to these malicious attacks. However, I will not be deterred in my duty as I see it, and this consideration is insignificant when my conscience speaks.

I have not turned against the investigators for the State. No. They laid many affidavits before the authorities, describing the deplorable conditoins of abuse, assault and cruelty against an under-nourished pauperism. I saw copies of some of them from inmates, and in each case, affiant swore they did not get enough to eat. I was present when the affidavit was made, that Bean refused to let the inmates vote in 1930, affiant stating that Bean said he and Judge Reynolds had decided not to allow them to vote, two commissioners then being chosen.

One of the investigators stated to me that their report was unfavorable. A party with them said, they stated after leaving the almshouse, that "they were shocked, and that everything they had was substantiated ten-fold." I talked with the man who investigated, about July, 1930, on reported assault and insufficient food; he said "he thought his report was sufficient to get indictments."

Inaction by the State in certain matters of momentous consequences, seems to be exemplified by the following recent comment by one of our dailies, "Alabama's greatest sins in connection with the training school have been gross neglect, and timidity to correct its mistakes when laid bare before it."

I was told by several that Mr. Bean not only required inmates to labor on the poor farm, but his own farm as well, and that they received "only what we get to eat." That there is four bales of cotton, corn and other things raised on the poor farm each year, which goes to Mr. Bean, in addition to receiving $12 per month from the county for each inmate, and to say the least our poor are delivered with a price, and relegated to the workhouse.

This conduct, as well as obstructing suffrage rights is in conflict with and nullified by our Federal Constitution, which tolerates no form or semblance of peonage, regardless of our local law which says:

"No pauper shall be caused to work without a certificate of the county physician, that said work will not be injurious to such pauper," and which I consider a disgrace and vicious blot against the name of Alabama.

To infor mcertain individuals of a private matter, will state, that my financial statement made soon after closing my sawmill business, some years ago, showed a credit balance of more than $52,000.00 in cash, and its aquivalent in addition to other property. Will Mr. Bean state his profit from operation of our almshouse, which is the cause of our dissension?

I sent our poor three bushels of oranges, 18 each for 24 inmates, and was informed that they received only eight each, and failed to receive a total of 240.

Stress is laid on many favorable inspections, while everyone knows that these prearranged inspections amount to little or nothing.

There is no arrangement for caring for colored paupers; this is more than a scandal and disgrace.

I do not doubt Mr. Smith's statement of seeing cornbread and milk carried to the inmates for supper time after time, the whippings of Mr. Green, and denial of religious services. I see no remedy, the state having woefully failed, while the bars are against their friend and intercessor.

Yes, I was informed by reliable persons that the commissioners and Judge Reynolds spent most of the day December 23rd, 1930, at the almshouse, and took a paper sack of oranges and apples, and a notary public. That the judge went around and told these people he would send them away from here, and then asked them about their welfare. This was immediately following the State's investigation, and speaks for itself.

Words fail me to describe this diabolical and miserable situation. My friendship and tender feeling for the poor and needy, the friendless, the defenseless, prompts my action. I failed to induce leading citizens to come into the open and was forced to champion their cause alone.

Finally, to our commissioners, let me say, my foreign friends, in the name of mercy, pity, grevious affliction and fellow-feeling, hear the plea of the broken spirit that crieth out. Assert yourselves, shake off the frenzy manacles of any prevailing influence, or dominant force. Redeem your trust, allay the stigma, renew your obligation, and perform it with dispatch and dignity. That you may never feel the pangs of a guilty conscience for wounded grief, but ever cherish the thought of a well kept trust and rejoice that you were so honored, and have that distinction among the walks of men and be able to face your God.—W. T. Hand.

DAUGHTERS OF AMERICAN REVOLUTION SELECTS 300-YEAR-OLD LIVING MEMORIAL

Washington, D. C., May 25.—A three-hundred-year-old tree in a church burying ground at Falls Church, Virginia, has been selected by the Daughters of the American Revolution as the second living memorial of America's past to be preserved for posterity.

The National Society of the D. A. R. has embarked upon a plan of choosing one historic tree for preservation each year by means of a nation-wide referendum through its state chapters. The trees are saved by tre surgeons, whose services are donated by former Congressman Martin L. Davey, head of the Davey Institute of Tree Surgery.

The tre at Falls Church, a tulip poplar with a foliage spread of 75 feed, has looked down upon more than three centuries of American history. It was more than 100 years old when George Washington, vestryman of the church, rested in its shade. Crumbling tombstones, in desolate dignity, speak mutely of the death of all else that lived in pre-revolutionary days. The tree is the only living thing that was alive in the hamlet of Falls Church when Washington lived.

During the revolutionary war the church was a recruiting place for the company of Captain Charles Broadwater, a fellow vestryman of George Washington. Captain Henry Fairfax restored it just before the Mexican War, but in the Civil War it was used by Union soldiers, first as a hospital, then as a stable. All of its equipment was destroyed except the font, which pious hands had and saved.

In recent years the church has been restored and today it a replica of that in which Washington worshipped. Located on the Lee Highway six miles south of the Key Bridge in this city, it is a mecca for visitors who come every year from all parts of the nation.

TO MY FRIENDS IN SICKNESS, HEALTH AND MISFORTUNE

I'm sending you a few lines to press.
Desiring to my love express;
To have such friends, oh, what a treat,
The Clanton people can't be beat.

The people have been so sweet and nice,
To us their value has no price;
We shall remember them till we die,
And pray God we may meet them in the sky.

The nice shower from the W. M. U.
Came when we were awfully blue;
Lord help us always to be true,
Helping others bear their burdens too.

Thanks especially to Circle Three,
For their kind loving thoughts of me;
And hope in a better world we'll meet,
Where we can cast our burdens at Jesus's feet.

God help me to worthy be,
Of the many blesisng bestowed on me;
Grant we all by faith may see,
Our loving Savior on Calvary.

A little more than a year has passed,
When everybody thought I would breathe my last;
Many people said to God they did pray,
That He might see fit to let me stay.

I would not forget dear sister now,
Who often bathed my fevered brow;
And prayed God that I might live,
Great God to her, thy blessings give.

To my family one and all,
Oft on Jesus for thee I call;
And pray that in heaven we'll meet,
When our journey is complete.

How we love you, you may never know,
And pray God you may to the good world go;
God's blessings rest upon you all,
Until for you the father doth call.

Hope you'll pray that my life shall be,
So others may see Jesus in me;
While along this rugged road I trod,
That I may point others to the Lamb of God.

—Mrs. M. B. Arant.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our appreciation to all people for their kindness, for the many flowers, for the kind words they spoke to our sad hearts during the death of our son and husband. May God's richest blessings rest on each one is our prayer.—Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Culp, and Mrs. Ella Culp.

If it were as easy to accumulate money after forty as it is to get a waist line what a wonderful country this would be.

The Senior Class of Thorsby Institute will render a play, entitled "The Hoodoo," Thursday night, May 28th, at 7:30.

This is a comedy in three acts, having in all 22 characters. The scene of play is in a country home, where a wedding is about to take place. The nature of the play is as follows: Everything is going on nicely, everyone is having a good time, and the wedding is only three days off. Many of the wedding guests are arriving, and among them is an old professor, who brings a scarab, an Egyptian beetle, which he gives to Brighton Early, the bridegroom. Early did not follow the professor's instructions, and the scarab, as he had been warned, brought him bad luck. Then in turn three other mebers of the wedding party wear the scarab, and bad luck comes to them all; but in the end good luck returns, and two weddings take place instead of one.

All are invited to attend this play. Admission will be 15 and 25 cents.

SUPT. LAWRENCE DENIES CHARGES OF PERCY PITTS

Declares He Has Taken No Steps Opposing Local Bills

County Superintendent of Education, Buford Lawrence, in a clear cut statement this week, makes denial of charges of Representative Percy M. Pitts that he (Lawrence) has employed attorneys to work against the passage of local bills affecting the school administration of Chilton County.

Following is the statement of Superintendent Lawrence in full, as given to The Union-Banner Tuesday morning:

"Again I am forced to do the thing for which I have a perfect horror, and that is anything that favors a paper controversy.

"I understand that Mr. Percy M. Pitts made a statement at the mass meeting held at the courthouse on Saturday, May 23, and has told others since that I had employed certain attorneys to represent me in opposition to the local bills which he has introduced in the legislature of Alabama. This is altogether untrue and without foundation. I have not employed any one directly or indirectly and have paid no one directly or indirectly nor have I agreed to pay anyone and do not intend to.

"Sometime ago when Mr. Pitts came to me getting certain data relative to the terms of the different members of the County Board of Education and discussed this matter with me I told him then that so far as I was concerned that I was having nothing to do with it. I maintain that position yet. The other citizens of the county have a right to do as they please.

"I did state to him at the time that if the members of the County Board of Education were to be elected by districts that it seemed to me that the members of the County Court of Commissioners should be. I still feel that if one is good for the county the other is and I cannot understand why that four years ago Mr. Pitts was very active in fighting a bill that provided for the election of members of the Court of Commissioners by districts and now at this time is sponsoring a bill to have the members of the Board of Education elected by districts. But that is neither here nor there, if the people of the county wish to elect by district and to elect a county superintendent of education by popular election it is for them to decide, and I will submit, but I do resent being misrepresented in any matter whatever.

"Now I have made this statement because I have consulted some of my friends and I felt that the people of the county ought to know my attitude and I do not expect to annoy you with any further statement about this matter unless I am again forced to it by future developments, but remember that I am not a politician, have no desire to be, but wish to serve the best interest of the children of Chilton County.—B. Lawrence, County Superintendent of Education."

THIS IS SOME PLOWS

John Wyatt, the blacksmith of Clanton, says that he has sharpened 1,500 plows for farmers this spring, and he expects to run the total up to 2,500 before the cultivation season is over. Last year he sharpened a total of 2,700.

This would indicate that someone around Clanton is busy at the farming racket.

Matt Ware was carried back to a hospital in Birmingham Monday. Since having a surgical operation a month ago, from which he has not completely recovered, he has developed malaria, which is causing serious illness.

CHILTON COUNTY CLUB MEETS

Mr. J. Leonard Harris, of Birmingham, calls attention to a meeting of the Chilton County Club, of Birmingham, which will be held at the Robinwood Plunge at 7 o'clock this evening (Thursday). The place of meeting is two miles beyond Tarrant City on the Pinson Road.

He desires that publication be made of this event, and insists that any Chilton County people who can do so come to the meeting.

The Club is composed of a number of former Chilton County folks who live in the Birmingham District.

LEGION MEETING WAS LAST MONDAY NIGHT

The regular meeting of Chilton County Post of the American Legion was held at the courthouse Monday night. Attendance was fair.

A report on the fish fry revealed a deficit, and an order was passed asking each member of the Legion Post to pay 50 cents to pay off the balance. Many paid off on the spot. Members who were not present Monday night are asked to leave 50 cents with Joe Calloway when you are in town.

Plans for a Fourth of July entertainment were discussed. It was tentively agreed that the Post would get up a boxing match for the night of the Fourth, at the high school ball park.

Committees were appointed to make arrangements. Definite plans will be announced as soon as possible. The auxiliary held a meeting Monday night also and finished up all calculations concerning the poppy sale last Saturday. It was found that a nice sum of money was realized from the sale.

Music for the meeting Monday night was furnished by "Our Band". A couple of songs wer sung by the 4-year old son of Mr. J. M. Culp. His number particularly delighted the audience.

Representative John Hampton, of Morgan county, was present, and made a short talk.

The meeting was closed by singing "America," and prayer by Chaplain W. S. Cox.

The meeting on the first Monday night in July is important. New officers of the Post are to be elected, as well as delegates to the State Legion Convention at Talladega.

Reunion To Close With Big Parade

Every Fraternal Order In State Asked To Join In Event

The forty-first annual reunion of the United Confederate veterans will close with grand parade Friday morning, June 5, and it is the earnest desire of Joe King Stanley, chief of the fraternal division, that every fraternal order in Alabama that has a uniform unit, participate in this parade. The fraternal division is expected to be one of the outstanding features of the parade on account of the color of the uniform units will add to the line. Headquarters for this division have been established on the mezzanine floor of the Exchange Hotel, which headquarters is also a bureau of information for the American Legion as well, with Mr. Stanley in charge, and all fraternal units expecting to participate, are requested to notify Joe King Stanley, care Exchange Hotel, Montgomery, the approximate number that will attend. There will be ten sections in this grand parade, with the fraternal section as third and this section will form on North W. Wilkerson St (one block above the Jefferson Davis Hotel) and all orders must be in line by 10 o'clock. The fraternal section is expected to be headed by the "million dollar" Shrine Band of Yaarab Temple, Atlanta, and such organizations as the Shrine, Grotto, Knights Templar, Dokeys' Woodman of the World, Red Men, Pythian Sisters, Eastern Star, Woodman Circle, Pocahontas, Odd Fellows, Samaritans, Rebeccas and the many others will participate.

This is expected to be the last general reunion ever to be held by the heroes of 1861-65 as the "thin gray line" is getting thinner and thinner each year. Montgomery and Alabama are leaving no stones unturned to make it the best, and 100,000 people are expected to view this parade which will be filmed by every news reel company in the United States.

CRIPPLE CLINIC HERE FRIDAY THIS WEEK

The third clinic for cripples will be held in Clanton Friday of this week. It will be held according to arrangements planned by Mrs. C. E. Stapp, county child welfare worker, in conjunction with the Alabama Cripple Children's Society.

For the past two years the clinics held here have been pronounced very successful. Dr. Sherrill, of Birmingham, one of the best orthopedic specialists in Alabama, will be in charge of the clinic again this year.

Mrs. Stapp urges that all who know of cripple children in the county try to get them to come to the clinic Friday for free examination and recommendations for treatment. There is no costs attached to it. The clinic will be at the Clanton Baptist church.

Make applications to Superintendent Lawrence.

This appropriation will begin October 1, 1931, and continue each year thereafter, if the proposed bill is adopted as law.

To make additional funds available for erection, repair and equipment of rural schools, a bill has been introduced which provides an annual appropriation beginning October 1, 1931, of an amount of six hundred thousand dollars.

Public Meeting Called At Poor House

Commissioners Court Requests A Complete Investigation of Charges Made and Conditions Prevailing At Home of the County's Poor People

Editor Union-Banner:

There has recently appeared a series of articles relative to certain alleged conditions at the county poor house in the past few weeks, said articles being written by W. T. Hand and Oliver Smith and replies made by J. D. Bean, keeper of the poor house. Some allegations having been made by Mr. Hand and Mr. Smith against Mr. Bean for his management and conduct of the poor house, which accusations have been denied by Mr. Bean.

The Commissioners Court wishes to state that no charges or allegations whatever have been filed by anyone with the Court and it might also be said that the State on one or two occassions, through Dr. Andrews, has had official investigation at the poor house within the past few months and no reports derogatory to the conditions was made, and it might also be said that each Grand Jury, as required by law, has made its official investigation and the last Grand Jury made no adverse criticism of the conditions and management of the poor house.

However, in view of the fact of said alleged allegations and in justice to all parties concerned and in order that this matter might be clarified and these charges investigated impartially, the Commissioners Court issued an order that the entire Court meet at the premises of the county poor house on the 16 day of June, 1931, at 10 o'clock. And we invite any citizen who might be interested in this investigation and we especially invite and urge W. T. Hand and Mr. Oliver Smith to be present on this occassion, as the purpose of the meeting will be to interrogate the inmates of the poor house and the keeper of the poor house, and to investigate all conditions there impartially, and with a view for the best interest of the inmates and paupers of the county. We especially urge any party who might have evidence or witness to be present at that hour and present before court any and all evidence whether against or for Mr. Bean.

After this investigation the Court will take whatever course might be proper and authorized by law.

Yours very Truly,

L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.
J. E. COBB,
J. M. MIMS,
J. L. BURNETT,
A. P. VINSON,
Commissioners.

Concerning Death Of Williams Child

Statements Made By John M. Culp and Dr. V. J. Gragg

"Having heard some rumors of unfavorable nature since the death of the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Williams on the night of May 27th, and in fairness to all parties concerned, I wish to say that I was at the home of Mr. Williams in a short time after the child died; also that I helped to prepare the body for burial, and that I did not observe anything unusual about the body, nor was there anything occurred out of the ordinary when death comes into a home.—John M. Culp."

Another statement concerning the matter comes from Dr. V. J. Gragg, as follows.

I desire to correct an error that has gotten before the public. It has been generally reported that when I arrived at the home of Mr. R. A. Williams last Thursday morning, a few minutes after the death of his step-son, that he would not allow me to see him. That is untrue. I, myself, was the one who remarked that if he was already dead I could not do any good by going in, and turned and drove away without going in. This was of my own accord and not by direction or suggestion of Mr. Williams. I am writing this by request.—V. J. Gragg.

We have the Holy Communion at 11 a. m., and a special message.

At 8 o'clock Sunday night we are inviting the whole town to meet with us. If you are parents, come and bring your children. If you are a young man, or young lady, be sure to come. We are inviting the young people from the country around Clanton to be with us. Special music by the Leaguers. If you have ever done any courting, or ever expect to, you should be in this service.

We hold services for the colored people's Methodist church Sunday afternoon at 3:30.

PLANS FOR STATE WIDE CAMPAIGN REVIVAL MEETING

Evangelist Bob Jones Is Back of New Plan of Religious Activity

One of the most unique and far-reaching movements ever undertaken in the history of evangelism is now being planned for the state of Alabama. This movement is being sponsored by Rev. Bob Jones, native Alabamian and recognized as one of the best known evangelists in America.

"What we need in America today," says Bob Jones, "is an old-fashioned heaven-sent revival of the religion of Jesus Christ that will awaken in the hearts of the people a new devotion to His cause. There has never been a state-wide movement of this kind undertaken before. The time has come for a united effort on the part of the Christian forces that will include the entire state in a great spiritual awakening."

The plan as now being worked out, is to organize at least one meeting in every county in the state to be held for a period of three weeks next January. This time was selected so as not to conflict with local church meetings. This series of meetings is intended to strengthen the work of churches of all denominations.

Some of the most outstanding evangelists and gospel preachers of this and other states have been secured to conduct these meetings. Churches of all denominations are invited to cooperate in these meetings and local committees will be selected in each community to have charge of the conduct of the meetings.

W. G. Haymaker, of Winona Lake, Indiana, is now in Clanton making preliminary arrangements for the meeting to be held for the people of this section. "We are not asking any church or group to underwrite or guarantee any money even for expenses," Mr. Haymaker said when asked about this phase of the meeting. "All we ask is the proper spiritual backing and the earnest prayers of the people here. If the people will pray earnestly for a revival the Lord will send it."

It is planned to hold the meetings in the court house provided satisfactory arrangements can be made. Each Wednesday morning from now until next January has been set as the day and from 10 to 10:30 a. m., as the time for state-wide prayer meetings to be held for this revival. People in this section are asked to join in this state-wide Wednesday morning prayer meetings which are to be held in the homes.

WHEN YOU'RE INSIDE LOOKING OUT

THE second hand on the electric clock ticks off the last minute of the hour, the radio announcer leans closer to his microphone, the orchestra leader raises his hand, and, then,—as the engineer behind the window of the control room, gives the signal. . . . "Good evening, My friends," —and another major broadcast is on the air. Only the fortunate few have been privileged to witness a broadcast from the inner sanctum, where the engineer sits, with one eye glued to his sensitive meters and the other on the performers outside the window. The above picture was taken recently during a broadcast of the Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra. Just outside the window may be seen Edward Thorgersen, announcer, and back of him, B. A. Rolfe with a few of the musicians, who make up this popular orchestra of over fifty veteran instrumentalists, grouped at the microphones. It is a thrilling experience to watch the man at the control board as he listens, supercritically to the music which comes out a loudspeaker in his control room, just as it comes out of loud speakers in a million homes. He must maintain just the right balance of tone and volume, and guide the fluctuating pulse of the broadcast, while the production man, standing at his left, stop-watch in hand, sees that everything moves on pre-arranged schedule, so that no flaws will mar the entertainment that brings pleasure to a nation.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

IT IS NOT TOO LATE TO PLANT FEED CROPS

Auburn, Ala., June 1.—It is not too late to plant food and feed crops to mature this year. In fact much more planting remains to be done and the county agents are encouraging additional plantings, realizing that plantings to date have not been sufficient to supply the food and feed needs of the state next year.

A much bigger acreage in hay is needed. Soybeans and cowpeas are excellent legume hay crops. Cowpeas may be planted as late as July.

Additional plantings of corn may be made in June and July. The same is true of sweet potatoes.

In the garden, vegetable seed should be planted frequently during the summer months. At the same time frequent cultivations and fertilizations are needed. Fertile land, good seed, frequent plantings, frequent cultivations to control weeds and grass, and insect and disease control are essential to successful gardening.

Although the acreage now producing feed crops in Alabama is larger than last year and gardens are producing well, there is no reason for a let-up in this work. An abundant supply of feed for animals and food for the family is essential to low-cost production as well as better living on farms.

The county farm and home demonstration agents are giving specific instructions to those requesting information by additional feed and food crops, knowing that additional plantings are needed.

FARMERS SHOULD SAVE SEED OF AUSTRIAN PEAS

Auburn, Ala., June 1.—Where Austrian winter peas have not been cut for hay or turned under as a fertilizer, the seed should be allowed to ripen for harvest, is the suggestion made by J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Many acres in Alabama planted to Austrian winter peas, says Lowery, will produce 400 to 500 pounds of seed per acre, the harvesting of which will result in good economy for next year's planting.

Austrian winter peas for seed should be left in the field until the vines and pods are dry. Then they should be raked up without mowing and threshed. Threshing may be done with a grain thresher from which one or more concaves have been removed. If a threshing machine is not available, seed for home use may be beaten out with sticks.

Threshed seed should be dried thoroughly before being stored. If damp seed are stored they will heat and spoil. Seed should be spread on a sheet in the sun for one or more days after threshing.

NEWS IN BRIEF

With a faculty of 114 members and a large number of courses the 19th summer session of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute will begin June 8, continuing until August 22, being divided into two terms of six weeks each. Dean Zebulon Judd is director of the summer school.

C. R. Sweeney of Iowa has secured patents on a process for making synthetic lumber, using cornstalks as the principal raw material. He has assigned the patent rights to the Iowa State College at Ames, and that institution will continue the development of the process.

Of how and why to cultivate corn, J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, said: "Cultivate very shallow with weeders, harrows, and sweeps, just often enough to keep weeds and grass under absolute control. Weeds and grass compete with corn plants for water and plant food."

"The rural church conference at Auburn, June 21-26, is intended to assist those present in analyzing the rural church and its work in such a way as to increase its service and its usefulness to the people of the state. Many ministers and others interested in church work in the smaller towns and also cities are expected to attend."

The plan of S. R. McKelvie, member of the Federal Farm Board, presented at the world wheat conference in London, providing for restriction of production in each country, was rejected completely by Russia. On the other hand, the Soviet delegates announced that their country will have 105,000,000 acres in wheat this year and expect to produce 7,000,000 tons more than they produced a year ago.

FARM TREND UPWARD

Evidence that farmers have passed the worst of their depression is given in the fact that the purchasing power of agricultural products, which reached a low point in February, rose during both March and April, according to the Federal Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Rural standards of living, which have advanced in recent years along with city standards, radio, rural electrification, and other improvements, are affected less than city standards by business depression and similar difficulties, the bureau explains. The farmer has "slipped back" less than his urban brother during the period of stress out of which the nation is beginning to climb.

The fact that the farm offers a shelter from business depression is shown by the recent reversal of the usual decline in farm population, shown by department figures.

Even in the case of the farmer who has encountered financial difficulties because of the combination of slow business, low prices, and drought, and has had to give up nominal ownership of his farm, the actual standard of living changes little. The city dweller, in contrast, when he loses his job or becomes short of cash, must cut down sharply on expenditures for objects such as rent, motoring, clothing and even food. The farmer, while he may drive his automobile less for pleasure, keeps it because it is needed in his business, his food supply is practically unchanged, and even if he loses his farm ownership, he is usually able to remainn on the farm, the bureau is informed. All of which is interesting and encouraging. —Harrisburg, Pa., Telegraph.

POULTRYMEN ARE DRIVING DIARRHEA FROM STATE

Marked progress was made during the past year in the eradication of bacillary white diarrhea from Alabama poultry flocks, reports R. B. Jones, poultry inspector of the Department of Agriculture and Industries in his annual report.

"During the year 51,927 birds were tested for this disease and only 4.49 per cent were found infected," he said. "This is an improvement over previous years.

"At present there are 31 accredited hatcheries in the state with a capacity of 324,610 eggs. By accredited," he explained, "it is meant that the chicks produced are free of bacillary white diarrhea, one of the worst of the poultry diseases."

ALABAMA INCREASES ITS TRUCK CROP SHIPMENTS

Alabama farmers have this season increased their cabbage shipments by 416 cars and their strawberry shipments by 330 cars over the shipments from the state last year and continue to ship several cars daily, reports the Department of Agriculture and Industries.

The cabbage shipments to date this season amounts to 1,092 cars compared with 676 cars moved from the state last year. Eleven hundred cars of strawberries have been shipped from the state this year compared with 771 cars shipped from the state last season.

It is estimated by the department that the strawberries and cabbage have brought the farmers approximately $1,500,000.

To date this season over 5,000 cars of strawberries, cabbage, cucumbers, potatoes, snap and lima beans, and mixed vegetables have been shipped from the state bringing the farmers of the state more than $2,500,000. Truck crop shipping from the state will continue for several weeks.

FORTY YEARS OF COTTON PRODUCTION IN ALABAMA

By producing 1,307,800 bales of cotton in 1929, Alabama farmers produced 18.2 per cent more cotton than they did forty years earlier, when they produced 1,106,600 bales.

During the past 40 years North Alabama has increased its cotton production by 144.2 per cent and South Alabama by 7.8 per cent, whereas, the production in the blackbelt has decreased by 43.8 per cent and in the Piedmont section by 21.3 per cent. These figures were presented by F. W. Gist, federal and state statistician.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

During the past few weeks there has been an acceleratöin in the propaganda campaign to induce Uncle Sam to cancel the European debts. It is not fair to call these "War debts" for the reason that a great deal of the indebtedness, especially in the case of France, was contracted after the signing of the armistice. It may be that this quickening of the debt cancellation propaganda was to pave the way for the International Chamber of Commerce meeting in Washington, which it was anticipated would make a forceful drive for debt cancellation. If this was its purpose it failed miserably. So far as creating or furthering sentiment for debt cancellation the International Chamber of Commerce meeting was a complete dud. President Hoover himself took a great deal of the argument away from the cancellationists in the opening address when he called attention to the monumental sums which European nations were spending on armament and advised them to "reduce." It was a little embarrassing for European delegates to talk about our cancelling the debts when it had been pointed out to them in advance that they were piling up much greater burdens on their people in military preparations for the "next war."

As a matter of fact the "burden" of debt payments to America on the backs of European taxpayers is very small when compared with the burden of armament. Senator Shipstead, of Minnesota, ponited out recently that foreign governments pay their debts to the United States "with less than one half of one per cent of their national wealth, less than three per cent of their national budget, and less than 13 per cent of what they spend for their armaments for war." And the senator added that he had serious doubts as to the validity of the argument that we ought to cancel the debts in the interest of international "good will" for the reason that "if a man is only your friend on condition that you pay his bills, his friendship is of doubtful value."

It is doubtful if debt cancellation propaganda is making any great headway in the United States. It is not only the statesmen and politicians who are against it. The great majority of our far-seeing business men take the same attitude. Among these is Silas Strawn, prominent lawyer and business man of Chicago, who stated recently on his return from Europe: "Many of our European friends would like to have our government cancel, or at least reduce or postpone, the international debts, and reduce our tariff. I endeavored to point out to them while from their standpoint that might be a consummation devoutly to be wished, I did not think that the taxpayers of the United States would be very enthusiastic about assuming $11,000,000,000 in war debts, and releasing all other nations from their obligations, and at the same time taking off our tariff and letting our debtors compete with us on unequal terms while we were laying the taxes to liquidate our debts."

Propaganda for lower tariff and debt cancellation usually goes together because it is spread by those who have the interests of Europe rather than of America at heart. Mr. Strawn's remarks quoted above put the American case from the economic standpoint "in a nutshell," so to speak. It would not be good business for Uncle Sam to cancel the debts, nor would it be good ethics . It is to be remembered that cancelling the debts would not enable them to vanish into thin air. Someone would have to pay them and the some one in this case would be American taxpayers. One the other hand, there is no assurance that, even if we did agree to saddle the load on to our own taxpayers, that the European taxpayer would be relieved of any burden. The chances are that the money saved would go into increased military expenditure. The case at this time is clearly against the debt cancellationist in America.

No Thursday Closing

It appears that the practice of closing places of business for a half holiday Thursday afternoons during the summer has gone to seed in Clanton. For several years past the matter has been lessening in interest. Last year it was a very unsatisfactory measure, because a number of the business houses could not fully cooperate for various reasons which are not in question.

Last week the matter was taken up again, and before it had gotten half way started it struck some snags that could not be gotten around.

It is practically assured that there will be no Thursday half holidays in Clanton this summer. Some are willing to do it. Some are not. Unless all will, none will. Therefore, to finish this speel it remains only to put down the little dot which we sometimes call a period.

One of our international editors says that the Daughters of the American Revolution, standing for an adequate navy and against European entanglement, have been imposed upon by propogandists. But many Americans admire this patriotic organization for continuing faithful to our best traditions in spite of the flood of un-American propaganda it has had to contend with.

The world is spending annually for armaments five billion dollars. If America would only manifest a feeling of international brotherhood and cancel the war debts, Europe would then be able to spend several hundred million dollars more every year for the same purpose.

Mr. Taylor of the First National Bank of Chicago told the International Chamber of Commerce that governments cannot effectively or efficiently suspend the operation of economic laws, as witness the almost complete breakdown of economic conditions in Australia and New Zealand, where government ownership and operation have had their most universal application. We must not travel that path, he says. Government cooperation is imperative, but economic leadership must come from business.

When Thomas Mott Osborne was warden at Sing Sing, he considered that a term of imprisonment there was a period of schooling in character and citizenship. But some of us would rather get uor training outside.

One of our prominent editors thinks that the failure of the United States to build its navy up to treaty strength is a warning to other nations of our own folly instead of an example of our peaceful purpose.

Iowa ranks first in the production of corn, cats, horses, hogs and poultry, and first in the volume of farm loans and total farm products. The cream and milk sales of the state are greater than the total figures paid by all the Iowa manufacturers.

Calvin Coolidge says that our own people ought to have the first chance in our home markets ;that we can best promote foreign trade by first looking after our own prosperity and that the suggestion of lowering our tariff and wages, reducing our foreign debts, and thus increasing our domestic taxes, does not appeal to us as a sound method of improving foreign trade.

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

Hello, World! That greeting was borrowed from Bill Henderson of KWKH but we hope he won't mind our using it. We have to do something to attract attention now that we have had to submit to a reduction of our space.

We are simply up a tree as the saying goes for something of real interest to write about this week. The Sweeper just simply can't get his old thinker to work these days. However, we are certainly glad to see as much interest being taken in the girl scouts camp movement as has been evidenced by the number of those who are attending camp this week. This is good for the girls from every standpoint. Under the able management of the directors of the camp, the girls should return much the better for having attended and with a spirit that will manifest itself in a larger membership for the local troop and a bigger and better camp for next year.

The subject has become more or less monotonious, but we can't refrain from mentioning Mr. Heflin and his contest. Although there is little chance of Mr. Heflin succeeding in unseating Mr. Bankhead, he certainly has stirred up a considerable amount of "putridity in Peru." The powers that be in the old-line Democratic ranks are beginnnig to believe Mr. Heflin is really in earnest and that the Senate committee are listening to him, and some of them are looking for cover and safety. If nothing else comes of the contest, it is certainly going to bring to light some of the dastardly and fraudulent election practices of this grand old state of ours, practices which have been carried on from year to year in certain sections of the state ever since the days of reconstruction.

Those who have had a mania for running elections just any old way so long as they remained in power and could carry their point may well feel a bit qualmy over having these practices aired before the Senate committee. It was rather notable to learn that in one county even gas stove ovens were used for ballot boxes. The Sweeper wonders if the officials of that precinct figured they could more succesfully "roast" Tawm by using a stove oven for a ballot box? The way Mr. Heflin has the Democratic donky in Alabama hunting cover and respite reminds us of our own "hard-tail" when a nit fly is after him!

The Sweeper has always been Republican and naturally enjoys any discomfiture of the Alabama Democrats, even though caused by one of their own gang, so we say up and at 'em Tawm!

Been telling y ou folks that we have the best roads and road system in the state and now we have proof of it in a measure at least. The Sweeper has just learned that Judge Reynolds and the entire Commissioner's Court together with the county bridge foreman have been honored with an official invitation to attend the opening of the new Pensocalo Bay Bridge and Pensacola Beach on June 13th. The people of the county should be proud that our commissioners and probate judge and road system should be so honored. The celebration party will be composed of outstanding road and bridge men from most every state in the Union.

MORAL ECHOES

(By D. W. Haskew)

While sitting at my study window last Sunday morning I looked out and a car drove up in front of my church, and two young matrons got out. From the car they filled their arms with beautiful flowers and went into the auditorium of the church to decorate. As these two women were walking toward the church door, another large car passed the church building crowded with young and old, and carrying a large bundle of fishing poles. That crowd of gay picnicers flaunted defiance into the very face of the Holy Sanctuary. How different is human life. My heart swelled with pride as I looked upon those two splendid young women, with their bundles of flowers, doing their best to make God's house more beautiful because of their love and loyalty. God only knows how I felt toward those who rode by God's house in that defiant manner, showing to my Lord that they cared nothing for Him and nothing for His holy day. I will have to acknowledge that God is a lot better than I am. If I had as much authority and power as God has, and no more religion than I now have, these defiant fishing parties on the holy Sabbath would never be able to come "to the close of a perfect day." At the judgement which had you rather be—the two women who beautified God's house on the Sabbath, or that bunch who went fishing on God's holy day?

I knew a family in Southeast Alabama who had but few friends. It was not because the members of the family were not nice people. It was not because they were uncultured. They lost their friends because they kept a community nuisance. That nuisance was none other than a big billy goat. This goat was all the time jumping fences, eating flowers, and butting folks. They were asked to do away with the goat, but the family had rather lose their friends than to part with their goat. If you want to lose your friends there is no quicker way to do this than to keep a "community nuisance." This can be a drove of chickens let loose on the streets, a dog that prowls into other yards, a cat that constantly plays on the ukelele, a cow that lows all night, a joint where the ungodly gather, or it may be an amateur with a saxaphone. If you want to have a few friends, and then have them far away, just load yourself down with a community nuisance. Friends are better than goats, chickens, cats, cows, saxaphones, or even a "joint" where revenue pours in. You lose a priceless treasure when you lose a friend.

The other day I entered a store and there before me was a man who seemed very busy. He held in his hand a tape-line, and I soon observed that he was taking the measure of a man. He measured his arms, his back, his waist, and his legs. He made a record of all that he measured, and he kept up his measuring business until he was perfectly satisfied. When the fellow left the room, this busy man said: "I have that man's measure." Had it ever occurred to you that people are measuring you all the time. They put the tape-line of truth to your tongue, they measure the dimension of your head, they measure the size of your heart, they measure the waist of your finances, they measure the height of your character, they measure the reach of your influence. You may not know it, but people have your measure. Because people have your measure may be an answer to many of the question marks in your brain.

Standing by the corner in a drygoods store I was forced to listen to the merchant as he tried to sell a customer a suit of clothes. The buyer found what pleased him in quality, but the price went beyond his willingness to pay. He would not have a cheaper suit, and he jewed and jawed for the longest. Finally the merchant said to him: "Your trouble is that you want the best, and yet you are not willing to pay the price for its possession." I walked out of that store to write this. That is the trouble with seventy-five per cent of the world. We want the best, but we are not willing to pay the price. If we can jew and jaw the world until we are able to drive home a bargain, we pat ourselves on the back. If you want the best, be a man and pay the price. The counter of life is crowded full of choice goods, and they are for anyone who will pay the price.

"My little lady, what are you doing?" I asked of a little girl who was busy picking up feathers on a vacant lot by the sidewalk. "Brother Haskew, come here and let me show you," replied the child, as she led the way to her doll house. "See here, I am making me a bird." And then she started to sticking the gathered feathers into a ball of mud that was resting on a plank. She had turkey feathers, chicken feathers, goose feathers and bird feathers. I am here to tell you that the child made "some bird." Some of these "Scripture friends" will run all through the Bible and pick up this passage, that passage, and the other passage, and wrench them out of their bearing, and make for themselves a "theological bird." They put eagle feathers on a tomtit, and dove feathers on a buzzard. They put peacock feathers on the head and strut about on feathered legs, singing as they go: "Behold What a Bird am I!" Let me warn you people in Chilton County against the singing of a "theological bird," when that bird is a man-made bird, having goose feathers, turkey feathers, hen feathers and bird feathers. There is beauty and harmony in all of the "God-made theological birds."

Words of Wisdom

The Saturday Evening Post, in a recent well-worded, calm and deliberate editorial, points out a real danger from communist activities in the United States today. It shows that there is no reason for hysteria but that there is definite reason for curbing this menace within our own boundaries.

It believes in neither a fool's paradise type of indulgence on the one hand, nor violent suppression and reaction on the other. In concluding its comment, it says "It takes effort, even for a nation as great as this, to remain sound and whole."

He was a man of iron nerve; he forged his way ahead in spite of all obstacles; he stopped for nothing; he turned aside for no one. One day he bought a car, went out on the highway and met a truck. He turned aside. —Florida Times-Union.

President von Hindenburg attended a beer party in Berlin, marking the opening of the bock beer season, and never had to worry about losing the delegates from the southern states.—Dayton (O.) News.

Cooperating With Europe

Whatever one's opinions may be on the subject of armament limitation or reduction, as to the measure of its practicability or the pace at which we may reasonably hope to move in that direction, the President has done well to place the problem of armament expenditure promptly and emphatically before the conference of the international Chamber of Commerce. As was foretold the other day by Mr. Henning, we are to have a good deal of advice from our distinguished visitors as to how the world depression is to be relieved, and the outstanding proposals are all for relief at our expense. We are to cancel our war loans, we are to put our gold reserve at the command of some international committee in which we have one vote, we are to reduce our tariff so as to permit a more easy competition in our home market with our own industries, we are to invest where it will do the most good to Europe according to the opinion of some international agency, and we are to open our gates again so as to permit the unemployed of other countries to join our own.

We have been told frequently in recent years that we are chiefly responsible for conditions in Europe and for the restoration of world prosperity. We have heard little of the responsibility of the European governments and peoples for their own misfortunes. The persistent bellicosity of the wrangling European household, the perpetual war talk, the building up of armies and navies, the erection of trade barriers across economic lines of natural cooperation, the complication of financial and commercial policies with political and military considerations, the fostering of ancient rivalaries and rancors—for all these we find no signs of penitence. Uncle Sam is the stubborn malefactor and he must reform—of course for his own good.

In the presence of this admonition the President has done well to invite our monitors to look to their own household. It will have no appreciable effect upon them, but at least it may do something toward checking the tendency of so many of our supposedly practical captains of finance and industry who are impressed with the superiority of European judgment over our own. We hope it will brace up their American self-respect. There is nothing more mischievous in our international situation than the fact that the control of our international activities is largely under the influence if not completely in the control of men in New York and the East who suffer from snobbism and a social inferiority complex with respect to Europe. Constructive cooperation with other nations is desirable and even essential to our own greatest prosperity. But it should be founded on a clear headed regard for the rights and interests of the American people. Too many of our representatives at international conferences seem to feel that in complacently accepting a status inferior to the European members they acquire one superior to her Americans.—Chicago Tribune.

The MAN in the MOON

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

W. O. W. With A WOW!—

The District W. O. W. meeting in Clanton last week went over big. Although we didn't see near as many "choppers" here as we expected, yet those who were here made up in enthusiasm what they lacked in numbers. Some snappy drill work was put on, and, although they didn't fare so well in competitive drill, our own Clanton camp's team put on some of the snappiest of the whole lot. Their work was especially good, considering that they have had only two weeks' practice, while other teams have had four or five years' experience. Hats off to the whole W. O. W., with a special doff to the Clanton camp.

This Almshouse Business—

Inasmuch as nearly everybody else has had a "say" in regard to the county almshouse controversy which has been going on of late, I want to give the "lay of the land" as it looks from here. There is one thing certain about it—the lines of contention are so widely drawn that anyone so inclined will not find it much of a problem to find just who IS right. Conditions have been pictured in two distinctly different lights. If the charges which have been made are NOT true, they are of such vicious nature that the object or objects of them have every right to demand retraction, while if these charges ARE true, our officials should certainly see to it that adjustments are made at once. It is a "put up or shut up" proposition, and one that demands immediate official attention. Whose move is it?

Wolves In Sheep's Clothing—

A bill was introduced in the Alabama House of Representatives last week to allow the making of some kind of near beer, with the State collecting a tax on each gallon, such collections to be used toward the payment of teachers' salaries, and in so doing provide full school terms. The bill carried a provision for a referendum in August of this year. In the first place, we don't believe the financial condition of the State of Alabama is so bad that we must allow the sale of "near beer" in order to educate Alabama's boys and girls. Neither do we believe the citizens of the State think so little of their children that they will allow them educated under any such plan. If they do, then our pride is certainly at low ebb. Too, from here such a bill looks like an attempt to take advantage of our people's desire to see their children educated in order to sink an entering wedge in our prohi system on the part of the "wet" element. God forbid that our schools and the children that go to make them shall be made pawns with which to defeat that system, which has proved itself so valuable.

Strange as it Seems—

Just noticed a little article in Saturday's morning paper which is good enough to make Mr. Ripley's "Strange As It Seems" feature. It states that a life preserver from the Titanic, which struck an iceberg and sank in the north Atlantic April 15, 1912, carrying 1,503 people to a watery grave, has just been washed ashore at New York. The strange part of the whole affair is that the life ring finally reached the port for which it set out, even if it was over 19 years doing it.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw—
and Some He Saw Not.

Monday afternoon. Frank Massey sitting in an easy chair in front of Daddy Fox's store. Thought to myself, that's a fine place to sit and write for a few minutes—if Frank will let me have the chair. He did, and here I am very comfortably situated to tell you something about nothing. I shall never forget the address of Roe Fulkerson, at Miami, on the subject "Something for Nothing." That is different from something about nothing. Oh yes, a lot of difference.

Before I struck the first scent for this race along comes Dief and wants to know something about berries. He has gotten the strawberries out of the way in good style. Now he is thinking of huckleberries. You know, the kind that grow wild in the woods. Somebody asked Dief the other day about selling a car load of huckleberries. He thinks for huckleberries, that would be something like Gullahorn's pepper. And a car load is a big lot of huckleberries. I am convinced that they are available, all right. What about people in this county picking a car load of them? Do you think it can be done? Do you think folks would be interested in doing it, say at a price of two thousand dollars a car load? If you know anything about the huckleberry situation, get in touch with Dief.

I hear the sound of hammers as they are wielded by workmen on the jail. The job is moving along steadily, if a bit slow. When you observe how hard it is to pick holes in the old rock walls, it is no wonder the job is slow. Now and then someone looks over the scene and declares that it would have been better to have dynamited the old jail and made a clean place to build a new one. That is problematical, you might say; perhaps a problem that no one will ever take the trouble to figure out in detail. What's the use anyhow? We will have a jail again in a few weeks, and then we will not have to go away off to Montgomery to get in the calaboose.

Congratulations to the Monroe County High School Band that furnished music for the Woodmen blow out last week. They were good. No need of making any apology for them just because they are high school boys. That brings me to think that we are going to have some merry music makers at our county high school before many months, if they keep up the pace they have set the past session. I don't really know whether it is a band or an orchestra. It makes music, though, and that is sufficient. A few public appearances have already proven that our boys and girls will soon be ready to furnish music for any occasion that may come along.

Among the most joyful youngsters I ever saw was the girl scouts Monday morning as they were getting away to camp for a week on Lake Mitchell. Regaled in every kind of outing clothes from blue overalls to varicolored beach pajamas, the whole crowd was boiling over with thrills. Mell Martin and Dr. Upchurch have turned their camp over to the girls for the week. I don't know whether there will be any camp left or not when the girls get through with it. But a couple of camp houses would be a small price to pay for the fun the girls will have.

None the less thrilled were the boy scouts leaving Monday morning to go to Montgomery where they will spend the week helping to keep the Confederate Reunion straight. Red Wagoner told the boys he wanted them to show him the way out of town when he comes down there Friday. Shorty Marcus, Lay Dam Scout, assured Red they would not only show him the way our of town, but would show him some things in town before showing him out.

I have decided this is not such a good place to be. It is too close to the office. Twice already I have been called back to my own dugout across the street by a bill collector. On the first of the month the only safe place to be is on Weogufka about the Fred Perkins place. Bill collectors are just another one of the necessary evils which we must endure, I reckon.

Summer picnics are coming into style. The annual Memorial Day celebration of the rural mail carriers last Saturday started it off. Soon the Fourth of July will be along, with much ado in the picnic and barbecue business. The American Legion is planning something at Clanton for the Fourth. It will perhaps be a barbecue in the late afternoon, followed by a boxing match at night. Plans were discussed Monday night, and committees appointed. More about it later.

This is Cotton Week. Merchants, manufacturers, and all classes of business men are urging us to wear cotton garments in order to boost the consumption of cotton, and thereby help the price of the staple. That is a good idea. But it doesn't mean much to the fellow who has been wearing cotton all his life. It appears to me that the cool weather that has been prevailing here of late will help the price of cotton. Cool weather added to what the boll weevil can do ought to serve effectively to keep the production of cotton down some.

Uncle Jack Gentry of Cane Creek is not worrying about cotton. He has quit growing it. He said when he quit cotton a few years ago he was head over heels in debt, and getting worse all the time. Now he has come out of debt without cotton, and is getting along better all the time. Many other farmers should try his plan of living at home and boarding at the same place.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. ANNIE CULP

Last Wednesday, May 20, the reaper, whose name is death, visited us and carried from our midst our dear grandmother, Mrs. Annie Culp.

She was apparently well only a few minutes before God called her home; although she had been subject to spells with her heart for over a year.

Dear loved ones, let's weep not for grandmother, for we know that she has gone to dwell with God and the angels. We can imagine the beauty of heaven with its streets of gold and gates of pearl; but she does not have to imagine, she knows in reality the beauty of heaven in all its glory.

Grandmother is resting in Jesus' bosom and happy while we are left here in this sinful world. And it is our duty to shun sin and seek the things that are rightous so that we may go to dwell with grandmother after we depart from this earthly world.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her aged mother, Mrs. A. M. Ledbetter, one brother, Mr. Crawford Ledbetter, of Tallassee; nine children, Mrs. C. W. Blackwell, Mrs. M. H. Headley, and Mrs. S. L. Broadhead of Clanton Route 7; Mrs. John Moore of Plantersville; Mrs. S. F. Milstead, and Clifton Culp, of Selma; and Messrs. Allen, Thomas, and O. L. Culp of Birmingham; beside nineteen grandchildren and a host of friends.

It was hard to give her up but God, in His wisdom had a better home for her above, where she'll know no more suffering and sorrow. Grandmother was fifty-nine years old. She was laid to rest in Pleasant Grove cemetery, May 21, where she had been a member for the greater part of her life. Casady of Montgomery was in charge.—A Granddaughter.

BETHSALEM SUNDAY SCHOOL

Our Sunday school was called to order Sunday morning at 10 o'clock by our Superintendent, Mr. C. L. Wilkins.

First we sang a few songs and then a passage of scripture was read. We had a good lesson, one of the subjects for discussion was, "The meaning of Gethsemane."

We are sorry to know that some of our active members are still on the sick list, may the Lord be with them.

Next Sunday afternoon the Sunday school convention will meet wih us. Let us not forget our Sunday school at 10 o'clock. We invite everyone to come and bring someone with you. Come and join us in our worship. We need your help.

Next Sunday our theme for discussion is, " Loves' Supreme Sacrifice." Let everyone come and discuss this subject together.

MOUNTAIN SPRINGS

Sunday we had with us our pastor, who rendered us a very nice sermon, and was greatly enjoyed by all who were present.

Our revival meeting will begin on the third Saturday in July. Our helper will be Bro. Dobson from Eclectic.

Our Sunday school and Christian Endeavor Society is getting along very nicely. Hope we will have better attendance than we have been having for a few meetings.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Coggins were visiting their mother, Mrs. Belle Coggins, and family lately.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Coggins visited their brother, Royal Coggins, and family, Sunday.

There are some few on the sick list of this community. Hope them a speedy recovery.

Everybody attend church next Sunday.

IN MEMORY

On last Wednesday night, May 27, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Williams and carried their little son, L. C., home to rest.

L. C. was thirteen years old. He united with Mt. Nebo Church about two years ago.

Dear mother, brothers and sisters, weep not for this dear one, for God in His infinite wisdom knew that this world was too full of sin and sinful temptation for him to stay here. He is sharing the joys of heaven, and we should put our trust in God, so that we can go dwell with him,when God calls us.

L. C.'s suffering was short, He was sick only a few hours before God took him home.

He leaves to mourn his loss his mother, Mrs. R. A. Williams; three sisters, Ruth, Victoria, and Mary Williams; and one brother, S. A. Williams; all at home. Ten half brothers and sisters, Mrs. Allie Jones, Mrs. Harmon Culp, Mrs. Lee Smith, Messrs. Eddie and Leonard Williams of Clanton, Ala., Mr. Horace Williams, of Birmingham; and Allen, Ruby, Annie Mae Williams, and Cecil Bridges, at home; besides a host of friends and relatives.

He was laid to rest in Liberty Hill cemetery Thursday, Williams and Gipson Officiating.

Hon. J. Osmond Middleton of Birmingham was a visitor to Clanton last Saturday.

Maybe the reason there are so many tammany politicians with soiled records is due to the fear of a water famine in New York during the past year.

An estate valued at $160,000 was disposed of in New York in a will which contained but twenty-two words. And the strange part is that it was made by a woman.

FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES

The following letter of Mr. W. T. Hand was published in the Birmingham News Tuesday, and is reprinted in The Union-Banner at the request of Mr. Hand:

To the Editor The News:

Referring to the Chilton County Almshouse, and statements of the probate judge and almshouse keeper denying the sale of our poor, and in order to make my position clear, will state:

According to my investigation and information, inmates of our almshouse are required to labor on the poor farm (the proceeds of which accrue to the keeper) and on the farm of the keeper as well, and as stated, "we receive only what we get to eat."

In addition, the keeper receives $12 per month from the county for food and clothing for each inmate, and to say the least, our poor are delivered with a price and relegated to the workhouse. I was also informed that religious services, also suffrage rights, have been denied them.

This practice is contrary to the fundamental principles laid down in our federal constitution, which denies the keeper the right to work inmates of the institution for personal or private gain.—W. T. HAND, Jemison, Ala.

GREEN FEED FOR POULTRY IS NEED

Auburn, Ala., June 1.—Green feed is an essential part of the poultry ration and the best way to obtain green feed is to produce it at home. Continuing on this subject, H. R. Bailey, extension poultryman at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute of Auburn, said that nutritional troubles (similar to roup) which are common are caused by a lack of vitamin A in the ration. This vitamin is found in green feed. Hence the disease can be prevented by including plenty of green feed in the ration, he added.

Although green feed can be grown the entire year in every county of the state, poultrymen are frequently confronted with a shortage of this feed, due largely to the failure on their part to make provisions for such feed, Mr. Bailey said.

Soybeans are an excellent summer green feed in Alabama. Although it is better to plant them in April or May, they may be planted in June. The Laredo variety is recommended because it produces fine stems and has a long growing period. The plants should become six to eight inches before grazed by poultry. Cowpeas may be used as a green crop, although chickens do not relish them as a rule.

"When conditions are such," continued Mr. Bailey, "that the growing of sufficient green feed is difficult, it is necessary to supply some substitute in its place. Alfalfa meal mixed in with the laying mash is the most common substitute used. The amount used should be in excess of 10 per cent of the ration used. A good grade of alfalfa hay fed in small racks is also good.

"Sprouted oats make a good but rather expensive green feed. When used they should be fed when the sprout is from one-half to one inch in length. Feed about one gallon of germinated oats to each 100 hens daily."

They are turning out a divorce every five minutes in Reno which must be almost as good as Henry Ford's production figures up at Dearborn.

The World Chamber of Commerce, checked in at Washington, passed resolutions and then checked out again, and so far as anyone can see the world is going on about the same old way.

Having deflated the poor Russian peasant by inflating the currency until it takes a bale of it to buy anything, the soviet government is now further deflating the peasant by doubling the cost of everything he buys. Maybe you think that isn't a system—for the fellow on top.

OVER-PRODUCTION

There is extensive over-production of talk about over-production. The theory is much exploited that the machine age has created a capacity for production it is impossible to absorb. This is discussed as a permanent condition, and many sage conclusions are drawn from it.

The country is suffering most, not from over-production, but from under-consumption. That under-consumption exists not merely by reason of unemployment, but because timid people with money, alarmed by the gloomy prognostications of the professional alarmists, have been led to believe that the present depression is permanent, just as many have so believed during previous industrial depressions. If this under-consumption for which there is not reason but fear should cease, the endless chain of production and consumption would start, and industry would soon be at an end of its troubles.

There is no fixed limit to the American power of consumption. The power of one American is equal to that of four Europeans or ten Asiatics. Such growth of consuming power indicates that it may continue to increase indefinitely.

Considering all the rioting he has been through in the last ten years, King Alphonso, if he comes to America, ought to be able to qualify for a job as umpire.

JUDGES NAMED TO PICK ALABAMA WINNERS FOR SOUTH AMERICAN TRIP

Three prominent Alabamians have been chosen as judges to select two fertilizer dealers in the Chilean Nitrate Dealer's Contest, to represent this state on a tour of South America.

The judges are Dr. J. S. Wittmeier, president of the First National Bank, Oneonta; F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician; and W. C. Lassetter, managing editor of The Progressive Farmer and Southern Ruralist.

The contest, the first of its kind ever conducted in this country, was started in February as a means of encouraging dealers to develop their trade. Contestants will file a report of their efforts with the judges June 15 and the winners will be announced July 1.

In addition to the two trips, the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Educational Bureau, which is sponsoring the contest, will award five cash prizes—two of $100 each and three of $50 each.

The Alabama dealers selected to make the trip will join similar winners from Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia, and will sail from New York July 18.

Highlights of the trip will include stops at the Panama Canal, visits to Lima, capital of Peru and Santiago, capital of Chile, and a tour of the nitrate fields and refining plants in Northern Chile.

Lesson for June 7

JESUS CRUCIFIED

GOLDEN TEXT—But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 23:33-46.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Death on the Cross.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Taking the World's Guilt.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What We Owe to the Lord Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Love's Supreme Sacrifice.

I. The Place of Crucifixion (v. 33).

They led Jesus away to Calvary, a hill north of Jerusalem resembling a skull. Calvary is the Latin word and Golgotha is the Hebrew. This is a most significant name for the place where man's redemption was accomplished. The skull is an apt picture of man's condition as the result of sin—life and intelligence gone, leaving only the dark empty cavern which once contained them. Jesus was not crucified in the city for he was to suffer without the gate (Heb. 13:12).

II. His Companions on the Cross (v. 33).

Two malefactors were crucified with him. This was in fulfillment of the Scripture. "He was numbered among the transgressors" (Isa. 53:12). He was sinless, but became sin for us.

III. His Forgiving Love (v. 34).

He cried, "Father forgive them." He not only had in mind the soldiers who acted for the government, but the Jews who in their blindness were ignorant of the enormity of their crime.

IV. The World Revealed (vv. 34-43).

Jesus Christ on the cross is the supreme touchstone of human life. It is at the cross that the world's heart is revealed. Take a cross section of the world at any time since Christ was crucified, and representatives of the various classes therein were found around Jesus on the cross. In a real sense the cross is the judgment of this world (John 12:31).

1. The Covetous (v. 34). They gambled for his seamless robe right under the cross where he was dying. This represents those whose primary interest in Christ is a means to get gain. If they had had eyes to see they could have beheld a robe of righteousness being provided in his death to cover their sinful nakedness.

2. The indifferent (v. 35). "The people stood beholding." They gazed upon him with indifference. The great mass of the world still gazes upon the Crucified with stolid indifference.

3. The scoffers (vv. 35-39).

a. The rulers reviled him for his claim to be the Savior (v. 35). They wanted a savior but not a crucified savior. Many today are religious but have only contempt for a salvation which centers in an atonement made by blood. They uttered a great truth when they said, "He saved others, let him save himself." He could not save himself and others, because God's plan was to save others by giving himself.

b. The soldiers reviled him for claiming to be a king (vv. 36, 37). The title "King of the Jews" had been placed over him in bitter irony, but it was true, for by right of the Davidic Covenant he shall one day be King over Israel (II Sam. 7:8-16). Through his death he came into the place of Lordship over all who will acknowledge him. The fact that the superscription was in Greek, Hebrew, and Latin shows that he was to be King over all the world.

c. The impenitent malefactor (v. 39). This brutal man joined in reviling the Savior, even though he personally was under condemnation.

4. The penitent malefactor (vv. 40-43). This conscious sinner who discerned the heart of the Savior prayed for mercy. He saw that the dying man was the forgiving God. The fact that he acknowledged his sin as against God showed that he was penitent. His request for Christ to remember him when he came into his kingdom shows that he recognized that the One who was dying on the cross was making atonement for sin and that he would one day come to reign as King. The salvation of this penitent thief was immediate. Christ said, "Today shalt thou be with me in paradise."

V. The Death of Christ (vv. 44-46.)

So shocking was the crime that nature herself threw around the Son of God a shroud to hide him from the godless crowd. Darkness was upon the land at noonday. When the price of sin had been paid, he cried with a loud voice, showing that he still had vitality, that his death was not through exhaustion but by his will.

NATURE'S PRODUCTS PREVENT PELLAGRA

Auburn, Ala., June 1.—Prof. W. D. Salmon, who as research professor of animal nutrition at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, has attained national recognition of his studies of vitamins, is not in sympathy with the continuous purchase of prepared products for the cure of pellagra. "Instead of continuing indefinitely the purchase of yeast, we should produce our own pellagra preventatives in a more palatable form and probably at cheaper prices," he said.

The statement of Prof. Salmon was made in reply to an inquiry and his reply has a very practical value.

"While I am in sympathy with the use of yeast as an emergency measure," he continued, "I do not think that we, in the South, are stressing sufficiently the use of protective diets composed of fresh lean meat, milk, eggs, and the green leafy vegetables like collards, turnip greens, mustard, etc. Protection against pellagra shoulud be our goal rather than attempts at doubtful cures. Our southern farms are potentially able to furnish all the protection against pellagra that our people need without resorting to the use of imported products from the factories of other sections."

The recommendation by Prof. Salmon is in line with standard recommendations for "living at home and boarding at the same place." It is based upon the fact that fruits and vegetables produced by nature with the help of man on his own farm are conducive to health.

HUETT REUNION

On last Sunday, May 31, 1931, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Huett were made very happy when all the children, with one exception, gathered to spend the day in an old time reunion.

The morning was spent by the family in talking, laughing, and living over the good old days long since gone by. It is a great thing to lay down the worries for one day and take a general review of the past. How tender are the memories of childhood.

At noon a bountiful dinner was served, which everyone enjoyed very much.

Those being present were Mr. A. L. Patterson and family of Ensley; Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Huett, and daughter, of Howard College, Birmingham; Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Eiland and family of Montgomery; Mrs. J. W. Cagle, of Mitchell Dam; R. C. Morris and family of Enterprise; Mrs. T. E. Wyatt and daughter, Inez, of Clanton; Mr. I. D. Huett and family of Coopers; Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Billingsley, of Enterprise, and Marvin Huett, who is still at home.

We are indeed grateful for the divine providence of God, which has kept the chain unbroken for the past year, and we are prayerfully looking forward to next year, in the hope that we may all be permitted to meet again.—A. D. Huett.

We see by the financial page that call for money has been reduced to one per cent. Well, we call it and call it and still it doesn't come home.

Mr. Car Owner

Here is what Race Drivers with Life and Victory at Stake have decided about Tires

FOR twenty-one years the Indianapolis two and a half mile circular brick track, surrounded by a concrete wall to keep the cars from dashing off, has been the crucible where at white heat automobiles and tires have been tested. Thousands of men have risked, and some have sacrificed, their lives, and manufacturers have spent millions of dollars to the end of making better automobiles and better tires.

Louis Schneider and mechanician on Saturday won this race in a heavy 8 cylinder car. He made an average speed of 96.629 miles per hour—on the straightaways and in passing cars he touched 140 miles and better. He drove on 6.00-20 Firestone High Speed Tires with racing treads. He had no tire trouble.

He used Firestone Tires because Firestone experts and engineers have through twenty-one years taken this race as a challenge to tire making. From this race they have developed these vital improvements which have given to Firestone Tires the world leadership in safety, mileage and endurance.

1. Gum-Dipping. Tires had to be stronger and able to stand the heat of a hot red-brick track at high speed. Firestone met this by developing and perfecting the dipping of cords through a rubber solution to insulate each fiber of every cord to overcome heat and give the cord greater strength—and 53% greater flexibility. This is the Patented Gum-Dipping Process used in the making of every Firestone Tire.

2. The Balloon Tire was developed by Firestone to permit greater speed with comfort and safety by increasing road grip and absorbing shocks. It was made possible by the added strength and flexibility given by Gum-Dipping. In the 1925 race, some of the drivers tried the then new Firestone Balloons. The others stuck to high-pressure tires. Peter de Paolo on Firestone Balloons made a world's record. All the prize winners came in on Firestone Balloons—Now the balloon tire is everywhere the standard.

3. Double Cord Breaker. The higher-powered cars and the step-up in speed demanded still more tire toughness. At one hundred miles an hour, the circumference of a tire increases by more than 10%, and this, added to the centrifugal force, tends to throw off the tire treads. Firestone met this by developing the Patented Double Cord Breaker which gives a 56% stronger bond between the tread and the tire body and also gives a 26% greater protection against punctures and blowouts.

These are some of the great lessons that Firestone has learned on this racing track. And so the men whose lives and fortunes depend on knowing tires always buy Firestone Patented Gum-Dipped Double Cord Breaker High-Speed Tires.

There were 72 entries. Of these, 40 survived the elimination trials—and every one of them was on Firestone Tires. And every tire was bought and paid for.

We give you the benefit of all the lessons Firestone has learned from these races. You can get from us all the strength and safety in tires that the racing drivers buy.

—Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires hold all world's records on road and track for safety, mileage, speed and endurance.

—for twelve consecutive years they have won the 500-mile Indianapolis Endurance Race.

—were on the winning cars in the Pike's Peak Race where a slip meant death.

—were on the G.M.C. Truck, carrying a two-ton load, that hung up the coast-to-coast endurance record.

—were on the Studebaker car which on a board track in Atlantic City in 1928 went 30,000 miles in 26,326 minutes.

—on 125 buses of the Washington Electric & Railway Company, ran 3,674,266 bus miles during 1930 with only 13 tire delays.

Oregon Cow Sets A New National Record

Breaking the national senior 3-year-old record of the Jersey breed for butterfat production in a 365-day official test, Rinda's Rosaire's Tessie, a purebred Jersey cow owned by John Kopplin, of Gaston, Oregon, recently produced 1,042.81 pounds of butterfat, 15,592 pounds, or more than seven tons, of milk in a year.

Her yield is the equivalent of 1,303 pounds of butter, 7,252 quarts of milk produced in 365 days. Estimated at 13 cents per quart this amount of milk is worth $942.76.

By her remarkable performance as a producer she returns to Oregon a national Jersey championship won by a Massachusetts Jersey cow, Ida Clifton's Ethel, from an Oregon Jersey in 1929. Ida Clifton's Ethel broke both the Jersey milk and butterfat production records for senior 3-year-old cows in a 365-day test made in the herd of W. D. Howard, Milford, Mass., by yielding 1,030.79 pounds of butterfat, 18,151 pounds of milk but now loses the butterfat production championship to Rinda's Rosaire's Tessie.

In addition to winning this championship Rinda's Rosaire's Tessie qualifies for the medal of merit highest medal award of the American Jersey Cattle Club, and a silver medal with her exceptional butterfat yield. She was 3 years and 11 months of age when started on test and during the year her production was checked by seven different supervisors from the state agricultural colleges of Oregon and Idaho.

Rinda's Rosaire's Tessie was bred by Mrs. A. Fick, Woodburn, Oregon, and sold to Mr. Kopplin in 1929. Mr. Kopplin has been a Jersey breeder for many years and now owns a herd of about 30 pure-bred Jerseys. Recently several cows in his herd have made high butterfat yields in 365-day official tests, one producing 797 pounds, while a third produced 777 pounds. Mr. Kopplin operates his own farm of 153 acres near Gatson, Oregon, and in addition a farm of 117 acres owned jointly with his brother.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

On last Sunday the family of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hand met at the old home place near Clanton to join with their mother, Mrs. R. C. Hand, in the celebration of her 62nd birthday.

It was a day very much enjoyed, and long to be remembered by those who were there. The entire day was spent in eating, talking, and having a good time.

At noon a very bountiful dinner was spread, and every child and grandchild enjoyed it profoundly.

Those present were Mr. Henry Hand and family, Mr. J. C. Foshee and family, Mr. T. C. Foshee and Family, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Arant, Miss Nora Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hand, all of Clanton; Mr. A. D. Huett and family of Birmingham, spent the afternoon with the family.

A very enjoyable day was spent and we sincerely hope that one year hence we may be together again for the same occasion.—R. C. Hand.

BRIEF NEWS ITEMS

During the fall, winter, and early spring 3,579 hogs were sold by Coffee County farmers at 14 sales. They weighed 607,287 pounds and brought to the growers more than $35,000, as reported by W. M. Ray, county agent.

A substantial increase in hog production in Alabama this year over 1930 is reported by the county demonstration agents. The increase per county is estimated from a few per cent to as much as 200 per cent. In Bibb County, where a good crop of corn was made on the Cahaba River last year, County Agent T. P. Lee estimates a 200 per cent increase in hogs.

The exportation of American cotton is increasing. Exports to Japan to date this season total 963,839 bales compared with 891,718 bales at this time last season; shipments to China 284,879 bales compared with 184,090 bales; and to India 65,532 bales compared with none last season, an apparent shift by the Far East to the more abundant and cheaper American growth.

From May 26 to May 29 the first short course in arboriculture (ornamental forestry) was held at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Professor John W. Hyde had invited all who are interested in the ornamental use of trees on streets, highways, boulevards, or in parks to attend the short course.

Two refrigerator cars containing 60,000 gallons of orange juice squeezed from 2,500,000 oranges, were shipped recently from the Tampa, Fla., plant of the National Juice Company to New York, New Haven, Bufallo, Erie, and Cleveland. These cities were selected for experimental distribution of the juice on milk routes. It was packed in half pint and quart containers and delivered in milk wagons and trucks equipped for icing.

Lamar and Claud Calloway spent a few days last week in Havana, Florida.

How One Woman Lost 102 Lbs. of Fat

Almost Unbelievable— Nevertheless True

Dear Friends:

You advertise Kruschen Salts for reducing, so I finally tried them and when I started I weighed 219 pounds and when I took them for a year and 3 weeks, I lost exactly 102 pounds.

I am always telling my friends about the wonderful salts. I am always advertising them.

I took 2 bottles every month for a year and 3 weeks. it amounted to $25 for reducing 102 pounds but it was worth it.

If I can be of any help to you let me know.

Yours truly, Miss Nellie Simpson, 1903 Wayne Street, Swissvale, Pa., Oct. 31, 1930.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

Walter S. Gifford

College students, if they are ambitious and need to make their way in the world, begin to hunt jobs in the spring before their graduation. Walter S. Gifford was in this class. He decided, in his senior year at Harvard, that he wanted to work for the General Electric company.

He sought no friends to find an opening for him. Instead he sat down and wrote a letter applying for a job. He directed the envelope to the Western Electric company by mistake. He received an application blank from that company in reply. While embarrassed by his error in writing a letter to General Electric, and then sending it in an envelope addressed to Western Electric, he forgot about it when he was hired as a clerk by the latter company. His pay was $10 a week.

His letter of application might well serve as a model to young men today who are seeking to get their start in the business world. He wrote, in part:

"It is my wish to enter some good business as soon as possible after I leave here. Now if there is only some position (no matter what, provided there will be a fair chance for a rise if it is deserved) in the General Electric company, I should like to try it and would endeavor to suit.

"The fact that for two years out here, I studied a great deal on the mechanical side (mathematics, chemistry, etc.) may help as to the kind of a position I could fill. I began with the intention of becoming a mining engineer but for several reasons have abandoned it.

"If you wish any references, etc., I think I could get them, for, of course, you know nothing about what sort of a fellow I am."

Walter S. Gifford was born in Salem, Mass., in 1885. He wrote his letter of application in 1904, the year he was graduated from Harvard. His early education was received in the public schools of his native city. He was a bright student and was able to enter high school when he was eleven years old. He completed his course at Harvard in three years.

The future head of the American Telephone and Telegraph company was not a very husky and robust lad. When his companions were playing baseball, football and other games he was generally off getting his exercise and recreation by collecting butterflies and other insects. He had a notable collection when he was a high school pupil. They were all catalogued under their Latin names.

His mother had been a school teacher before her marriage. While she had other children, she was able to devote much time to teaching her son Walter. The lad's memory was not of the best when he was a schoolboy and as a result he learned early to dig out the facts. He was able to remember them by not attempting to clutter his mind with non-essential details.

It was an excellent lesson for the youngster to learn. Perhaps much of his success in the business world can be laid to his ability to eliminate unimportant details and get down to the bed rock of a proposition.

His college course was a success. It didn't give him an inflated idea of his knowledge or ability, as his letter of application for his first job shows. He had learned that a man has to begin at the bottom to be of real value to himself or to a business. He was willing, as he wrote, to take anything, as long as it offered an opportunity for advancement if he made good.

He could have gone to work in a Salem bank when he was graduated. His father would have obtained him a position but the youngster had other Ideas. He wanted to stand on his own feet. He did so when he took the $10 a week job with the Western Electric company.

His first job called for him to make the trip to Chicago. He borrowed money to pay his fare rather than to accept it from his father. He was determined to make his own way from the very outset of his business career.

Wages of $10 a week didn't go very far even in 1904. Young Gifford managed to make it do somehow. He lived at Hull House in Chicago, where he had comfortable and congenial surroundings at little expense. Needless to say, on his meager wages, he had little chance to do anything but work.

He rose from a pay roll clerk to a position as assistant treasurer in a short time with a good increase in salary. It wasn't long before he was chief statistician of the American Telephone and Telegraph company. In that position he attracted the attention of Theodore N. Vail, then head of the concern, and gained further promotion.

When Mr. Vail retired, the man, who as a college boy had made the mistake of misdirecting his letter of application for a job, was made the head of one of the world's greatest utility organizations.

SUTLIVE-GERALD WEDDING

A very pretty wedding was that of Miss Ruth Gerald of Thorsby, and Mr. Vinson Sutlive of Blakely, Ga.

The ceremony took place at the Congregational church Saturday evening with Rev. J. E. Each, pastor of the church, officiating. An altar of smilax and ferns was arranged, interspersed with cut flowers in pastel shades and lighted with ivory candles in branches candelabra.

Preceding the ceremony, a musical program was rendered by Mrs. C. R. Foss, organist, Miss Esther Johnson and Miss Kathryn Foss, soprano, and Mrs. Grady Broadhead of Clanton, violinist.

Mrs. Leonard Moody of Birmingham, matron of honor, wore pink silk and carried a bouquet of garden flowers. Miss Odie Lee Arthur, bridesmaid, wore yellow silk and carried a bouquet of garden flowers. Each bouquet was tied with tulle in the prevailing color scheme.

Following the matron of honor to the altar were two little flower girls, Marjorie Morgan and Helen Louise Mead, who were daintily dressed in frocks of pink and yellow organdie.

The best man was Mr. William Bondehamer of Blakely, Ga., and the groomsman was Mr. Rascoe Maddox of Thorsby.

The bride entered with her brother, Mr. L. F. Gerald, of Clanton, Alabama. Her costume was of white silk, a princess model with train forming at the waist line. She wore a tulle veil with bandeau of orange blossoms and lillies of the valley. The bride's bouquet was formed of brides roses and lilies of the valley.

After the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. H. M. Gerald, at which the bridal party, relatives and out of town guests were present.

Upon their return from a short trip into Georgia, Mr. and Mrs. Sutlive will be at home in Birmingham for the summer.

The bride is a native of Thorsby, a graduate of Thorsby Institute and Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., and has taught school for several years.

Mr. Sutlive is a successful teacher at Thorsby Institute, Thorsby, Alabama.

Among the out of town guests were Mrs. L. E. Moody of Decatur, Ala., and Mrs. P. W. Horn and son, Leroy, of Birmingham, Mr. French, Miss Owen, Mrs. Chapman, and several other members of the staff of the Birmingham News and Age-Herald, Mr. Yancey Kelley of Andalusia, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Gerald of Clanton, Lawrence Gerald and Celia Gerald of Clanton, Mrs. Grady Broadhead and Hal Broadhead of Clanton, Mr. William Bodenhamer of Blakely, Ga., and Misses Agnes and Mary Ella Gerald of Washington, D. C.

Following the wedding rehearsal on Friday night, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Gerald of Clanton entertained members of the bridal party, relatives and friends. Several musical selections were rendered. Since the announcement of her marriage, the bride has been the honoree of a number of social events.

Mrs. L. E. Moody of Decatur is the guest of Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald for a few days, coming to Thorsby to attend the Sutlive-Gerald wedding.

Mrs. L. E. Thornburgh and son, Conway, are spending a couple of weeks in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Meade and Helen Louise, with Mr. and Mrs. Carl Chambus and little Betty, spent Wednesday in Birmingham.

T. T. THORSON DEAD

Mr. C. R. Foss, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Reagan, Mrs. Bosworth and Mrs. Karl R. Peterson motored to Decatur Sunday, to attend the funeral of Mr. T. T. Thorson, who was one of the promoters and pioneers of Thorsby, some thirty-five years ago. He moved to Decatur about twenty-five years ago and was in excellent health, although 74 years of age, and met with an accident while painting his house, having mounted a step-ladder which slipped and fell, throwing him against the brick work at the base of the house in such a way as to fracture his skull.

He leaves a widow and four sons, Justin, Eugene, Roy, and Milton, all of whom except Eugene attended the funeral, which was held Sunday, May 31, in the German Lutheran Church, where he and his family attended services. The funeral service was conducted in English. There were many floral offerings.

Rev. Carl O. Linquist of San Francisco, California, will preach in English at 10:45 a. m. in Thorsby Lutheran Church Sunday, June 7.

There will be preaching morning and evening, Sunday, June 7 in Thorsby Congregational Church, by the pastor, Rev. J. E. Each.

On Thursday afternoon of this week, the Congregational Ladies Aid Society will be held at the home of Mrs. Martin Petersen. About 2 p. m. cars will be at the hardware store to convey those who have no other means of going out there.

Rev. E. W. Butler and Miss Marguerite Davison went to Phoenix City, Alabama Sunday to attend dedication services of a Congregational church.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Howard with their daughter, Ella, and Mrs. Howard's mother, Mrs. Husby, left Tuesday morning for New Albany, Ind., where they will be joined by their son, Lloyd, who will accompany them to visit relatives in Illinois, Minnesota, Iowa, South and North Dakota, and Wyoming. They will probably be absent from home about two months.

Miss Lona Thompson of Clanton spent the week end as guest of Mrs. B. D. Thompson.

Miss Bertha Littleton of Birmingham was a weekend visitor.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Mixon had as their guest Sunday Mr. Mixon's brother, Dwight L. Mixon, of Montgomery.

Miss Virginia Bice, of Palatka, Fla., arrived Wednesday to spend the summer with her grandmother, Mrs. T. W. Robinson,

Miss Jennye Robinson attended a sorority luncheon in Birmingham last week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Williams have returned to their home in Thorsby, bringing their daughters Martha and Charlene, also Mr. Williams's mother, Mary Williams, who several weeks ago suffered a paralytic stroke and is confined to her bed, although improving slowly. When stricken Mrs. Williams was visiting her sister, Mrs. S. A. McLeod, at Ohatchie, Ala., who, in turn, is now visiting her at the Williams home. Other guests of Mr. and Mrs. Williams during the week end were Mr. and Mrs. Thomason and baby boy, Loy, of Lay Dam and Mrs. Gladys Flummer-Waters, Mr. Williams's brother, Dan, of Atlanta, his cousin, Prof. Omer Carmichael, of New York, and a nephew from Auburn.

FIRE AT THORSBY

For the fourth time in the history of Thorsby, the hill top north of town has been the scene of conflagration. At an early hour last Sunday morning, fire was seen under way at the planing mill and lumber yard of Adolphus Gentry. With no adequate fire fighting apparatus or water to use with one, there was its work of destruction, which was nothing that could be done, but watch all embracing of everything combustible that pertained to the business.

The loss may roughly estimated at $7,500, with insurance of $4,000. During the fire great anxiety was felt in the homes near the scene, as live embers a plenty were carried quite a distance by the wind. Fortunately none landed where they could set new fires.

STRAWBERRY CROP

A compilation of the report of the manager, J. M. Smith, shows that 180 growers produced for the 1931 strawberry crop, including both carload and express shipments, 89 cars by freight, and about two cars by express. Each carload figured at 315 crates of 24 quart cups each, makes 28,665 crates; and 687,800 cups at 2c each for picking makes $13,757.20.

The total amount received for the crop was $81,168.32, making an average for each grower of $450.00.

Owing to lack of accurate measurments of each patch, it is not possible to give acreage required to produce the crop. Among the largest growers were Archie Robinson, W. A. Honeycutt, W. L. Smith, R. T. Collins E. C. Cox, A. F. Mims, W. J. Bean and others who closely followed. Some of the growers brought in some of the largest strawberries ever to be grown here and as a whole the entire crop was considerably above the average in size and quality.

While many did well Mr. W. J. Bean stands out as an instance of what can be done. In addition to being one of the largest producers of strawberries he has an acre of dewberries, expected to produce around 200 crates, which will probably bring several hundred dollars, which together with his chicken business will probably give him an income for the first six months of this year an income of upwards of $2,000. In addition to this he will produce larger crops per acre than usual on account of extra fertility of the soil he has prepared for corn and cotton.

Mr. Clinton Harper of Montgomery visited in Thorsby last Saturday night and took in the class day exercises at Thorsby Institute.

Mrs. G. F. Harper spent a few days in Birmingham last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Davenport spent Tuesday night and Wednesday in Birmingham.

Miss Hittie Davenport of Birmingham spent the week end in Thorsby with her parents.

Mrs. A. Amundson and daughter left Thursday morning for their home in Evanstown, Ill.

Mrs. Wallace Ray and a Miss Retherford of Birmingham were Sunday visitors at the home of Mrs. Clyde Meade.

Mrs. Alma Bean of Clanton hospital also spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Meade.

Mrs. Russell C. Peterson and mother, Mrs. Bean, are very ill with the measles.

Mrs. Leonard Thornburgh and Conway are spending two weeks vacation with friends in Birmingham.

Mrs. Peterson has an acute attack of appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Marcus were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Marcus Sunday night.

Miss Edna Childress spent the week end in Clanton visiting Miss Clara and Glennie Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Soberg had as their guests for the week end their sons, Edwin, of Chicago, and Arnold of Birmingham, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Morgan of Wylam.

During this week the office will be open as usual during school time, after this week and until further notice, at 8 a. m., and probably till noon.

The senior play last Thursday night was greeted by a full house, and all the parts were so well carried out that it was universally considered very well done.

Commencement exercises were very pleasing and impressive. The address by Rev. F. E. Jenkins was unusual in character and scope, dealing with material, mental, and spiritual attributes of a human being, and emphasizing the fact that being made in the image of God and endowed with his spirit we are capable of use as his instruments in carrying out his plans for the development of mankind.

The community dinner, on the campus was well attended and there were many visitors from out of town.

MRS. GERTRUDE YEARGAN IS SUICIDE VICTIM

Mrs. Gertrude Yeargan, of Oxford, mother of three young children, was found dead with a pistol by her side in the home of her brother-in-law, L. M. Yeargan, in Sylacauga, Tuesday morning.

Coroner R. Heine, of Talledga, returned a verdict of suicide.

Relatives stated that she had been despondent over the loss of one of her children, who died recently. They also declared she had been in a nervous condition as a result of having been awakened one night to find a negro burglar standing near her bedside in her home in Oxford.

She came to Sylacauga with her children to visit her brother-in-law and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Yeargan, presumably in an effort to overcome her grief for the child and her nervousness. She had been here only a few days.

Mrs. Yeargan arose with the other members of the family and helped with the housework. A few minutes later she retired to her room. Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Yeargan and the three children were in the yard. Perry Yeargan, son of L. M. Yeargan, was in an adjacent room dressing.

Hearing the report of the pistol the others rushed to the room, but found that both doors had been locked. When one of the doors was broken down, they entered and found her lying on the floor near a desk where the pistol had been kept. The pistol was underneath her body. The shot entered the center of her forehead and came out the back of the head.

The immediate survivors are her husband, E. R. Yeargan, and three small children. She is a sister-in-law of A. Q. Yeargan of Talladega. The three Yeargan brothers are agents of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in the three towns.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Yeargan had been living in a house in Oxford in which a man named Sanderson committed suicide last fall. Sanderson, a railroad man, was despondent over having lost his position. They resided in Talladega until about two years ago when they removed to Anniston.—Sylacauga Advance.

W. H. Raybon and daughter, Ruby, spent the week end with his son, Roy Raybon, and family in Birmingham. Mrs. W. H. Raybon returned with them after spending two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Rily Raybon.

Mrs. Martha J. Primm left Friday night for an extended visit with her children and grandchildren in Birmingham.

Oscar Bean and others went to Greenville Sunday to see Mr. C. A. Peterson, at the L. V. Stabler Infirmary there. They report Mr. Peterson as somewhat depressed, but say the doctor thinks he is improving and will probably be able to come home in a few weeks.

Friday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock Mrs. M. A. Wright and Miss Jessie Mims honored Miss Ruth Martin with a miscellaneous shower at the home of the latter. The home was beautifully decorated with gladiolas, sweet peas, and larkspur. Miss Lois Thompson sang "I Love You Truly." In a floral contest Mrs. R. R. Franklin won the prize. Mrs. S. J. Davenport gave a reading. Afterwards an ice course, carrying out the color scheme of pink and white, was served. There were 48 present.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Scott had as their guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Nichols of Decatur, Miss Mattie Scott of Birmingham, Misses Crowe and Robinson, and W. B. Scott of Montgomery.

BODY TAKEN UP AFTER BURIAL

Doctors Found Boy Was Not Killed By Being Hit On the Head

The body of L. C. Williams, the thirteen-year old step-son of Mr. R. A. Williams, was taken up from the grave at Liberty Hill cemetery last Thursday morning for an examination to determine if he had died from being hit on the head.

Coroner Mell Martin was in charge of the investigation. The examination was conducted by Dr. N. S. Johnson and Dr. V. J. Gragg. After the examination was completed testimony was given by the two doctors before the coroner's jury, each of them stating that nothing was found to indicate that the boy died from being hit on the head.

The boy died somewhat unexpectedly at the home of his step-father on the night of Wednesday, May 27. He was buried at Liberty Hill Thursday, May 28th. After burial it became rumored in the community that Mr. Williams had hit the boy over the head with a hoe handle. It was to determine whether or not there were any grounds for these rumors that the body was taken up for examination.

CHILTON COUNTY SINGING CONVENTION AT COOPERS SUNDAY

The spring session of the Chilton County Singing Convention met in regular order at Chestnut Creek church, Coopers, last Sonday. Services were called to order at 10 o'clock by county chairman, Prof. W. M. Devaughn, followed with the opening prayer by Rev. J. S. Hand. A program committee was appointed by the chairman, and the following directors sung before noon: I. D. Huett, Archie Devaughn, N. A. Smith, Akins I. Collins, O. L. Devaughn and L. T. Grant.

At eleven o'clock there was preaching by the pastor, Rev. J. Starling Hand. This sermon was very pointed and thoroughly enjoyed by the congregation. This brought the program up to the noon hour, when an intermission of one and one-half hours was given for dinner.

The house was called back to order at 1:30 by the chairman. Those directing in the afternoon were: W. L. Sanders, A. M. Jones, A. O. Boswell, Everett Devaughn, Lee J. Grant J. B. Hammonds, R. T. Grant. Wm. Jones, L. T. Grant, Willie Mims, W. M. Devaughn, G. C. Weldon, H. G. Carter, J. W. Cagle, T. E. Wyatt, and J. E. Varner. Two or three quartets and one special number were sung.

Executive Committee Appointed

The president, vice-president and secretary of the convention got together and appointed an executive committee, whose duty it is to get a home and date for the fall session of the convention. The committee consists of A. H. Glasscock, chairman J. R. Robinson, Willie L. Mims, G. C. Weldon, and J. W. Lowery. Any member of this committee will receive applications from communities wishing to have the convention in September, and they will meet some time in the future and decide which will be selected. So, any place wishing to have the convention in the fall will please see one of these committeemen as early as possible and make proper arrangements.—T. E. Wyatt, secretary.

WILL GO TO BAY BRIDGE OPENING

Officials and Citizens Will Take In Event At Pensacola

A party of Clanton and Chilton County citizens and officials, composed of Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Hon. J. L. Burnett, Hon. A. P. Vinson, Hon. S. M. Pate, Omar L. Reynolds, Attorney, Messrs. William Walker, W. F. DeShazo, D. O. Manning and Guy DeShazo will leave early next Friday morning for Pensacola, where they will be the guests of the city of Pensacola and the Pensacola Bridge Corporation during the celebration of the official opening of the new two million dollar Casino at Pensacola Beach.

The party will make the trip by automobile and will go by way of Montgomery, following the Mobile highway to Flomaton, from which point the remainder of the route will be through Florida. The writer has not learned just what route the judge and the Commissioners will take returning, but we understand that Mr. Walker, Mr. Will and Guy will return by Robertsdale in Baldwin county, visiting several former Chilton county families while there. We have just learned that Mr. DeShazo and Guy will stop over at Atmore to look over some property there which they are considering purchasing in that locality.

It is expected that the trip will last some four or five days and that the party will have the opportunity of witnessing some novel entertainments any view some of the best sections of southern Alabama and western Florida.

CLANTON METHODIST CHURCH

Do we need churches in Clanton and in Chilton County? Your answer is NO, when you sit at home on the Sabbath. Last Sunday the "Sitting bunch" were in the majority by not less than three fourths. Not more than one out of every four went to church in Clanton last Sunday. Folks I am telling you that these htings ought not to be.

Do better next Sunday by taking your family and attendthe church of your choice. We have Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. and preaching at 11 a.m. Then we have our night services at 8 o'clock.

The subject for the morning and the night hour will be: "The Reigning Redeemer." These two messages link into each other, and you should hear them both.

At ten-thirty Sunday morning the Sunday school will have a general assembly in the auditorium of the church, and at that time the pastor will sneak ten minutes to the children. Do not miss this message.

Pitts Writes About Two Local School Bills

County Representative Replies To Letter of Superintendent Buford Lawrence Relative To Proposed Local Laws In the Legislature of Alabama

If my friend, Buford Lawrence, can convince the people of Chilton County that two local lawyers, of Clanton, Alabama, who are supposed to be of different political faith from that of our county superintendent, will spend hours and days seeking to defeat a bill making his office elective by popular vote of the people, without charges directly or indirectly for their services—then, I will say it is quite unusual.

One of these attorneys has been acting as your attorney for some time and he informed me several months ago personally that he would oppose the local bill, making your office elective.

These certain lawyers he refers to were instrumental in having a petition carried around to members of the Democratic Executive Committee of Chilton County, and having them separately and severally rescind their recommendations to Senator Duncan favoring this bill. The same attorneys made trips to Montgomery to see the Senator and presented him with the petition recalling their former recommendation.

Two of these members of the Democratic Executive Committee of this county came to me recommending these local bills with the Dr. N. S. Johnson, their chairman, from an open meeting of the Executive committee. I am advised that the chairman was never asked to rescind his recommendation, and the petition was never presented to him.

You stated to me personally last week you were "consientiously opposed" to the election of the County Superintendent of Education by a popular vote. Beg to advise that if you were not conscientiously opposed, or otherwise opposed, yours would be an exceptional case, especially since you are holding an appointive office.

Don't get excited Bro. Lawrence, about electing the County Board of Education by districts, instead of the County as a whole, which in my judgment, is the fair and equitable thing to do. This also applies to members of the County Commissioners Court. For your information I was requested to elect the County Board of Education by districts, and since that time many have requested that the same thing be done for the Commissioners, and let each member be elected by the district he is to serve.

If Senator Duncan will pass the two educational bills on through the Senate, I will gladly have the same law apply to our County Commissioners. Suppose you possibly saw in the same issue of the Union-Banner that your letter was published in, a bill advertised for this purpose. If you recall the bills I fought and defeated through the help of my friends in the 1927 Legislature, they were so drawn in dividing the districts that our Democratic friends thought they had a wonderful chance to elect a majority of the Board. Also in the 1927 bill, they sought to take the chairmanship of the Commisioners Court out of the hands of the probate judge. In other words, in the present bills we elect our members by districts, as they are now and heretofore been designated.

The local educational bills providing for the election of the county superentendent of education by direct vote of the people and the one designated to elect the members of the County Board of Education by districts they serve, have already been passed through the House of Representatives by me without a dissenting vote, and in dong this I have fulfilled my promise to the people of Chilton County. These bills have been sent to the State Senate for action.

In view of the fact that the Hon. J. G. Duncan, Jr., our Senator from this district is passing similar bills through the Senate, for both the other counties comprising this Senatorial District, and further his attention having been called to the fact that a large majority of the people of this county, regardless of their political faith desire the passage of this bill, I can not believe that he will listen to a minority group and defeat the bill in the senate. The facts, about sixty-five per cent of the counties have seen fit to pass similar bills.

I regret that you are so conscientiously constructed that you are opposed to giving the people the right to elect their County Superintendent of Education by direct vote. I am willing at all time to risk their judgment, and am constrained to believe that if you succeed yourself, after the expiration of your appointment by the County Board you will have to submit your election to the voters of Chilton County.

I trust that you are not conscientiously opposed to a bill that we recently passed, whereby, each school district will in the future have the right to elect by the vote of each school district their school trustees without the assistance of your department in making the selection.

May I close by asking you two questions which I desire you to answer for the benefit of the people of Chilton County, which are as follows:

State whether or not you are personally, conscientiously or otherwise opposed to the election of the County Superintendent of Education of Chilton County by the direct vote of the people.

State wheather or not you have talked to, or discussed with the Hon. L. F. Gerald the proposed local bill making the County Superintendent of Education of Chilton County elective by the vote of the people, within the last twelve months. Respectfully yours, Percy M. Pitts.

Important Insurance Information For Veterans of the World War

Information to the effect that Form 579 (Insurance Demand) had to be filed before July 3, 1931, and that the filing of this form made it unnecessary to file suit on the claims before that time, may have been in error. Shortly after the War most of the men who are now claiming insurance executed Form 526, which was a claim for all benefits arising from the War Risk Insurance Act. Under the regulations prevailing at that time, upon receipt of Form 526 the veteran's case was rated for insurance and compensation purposes, and if the rating was less than permanent total this amounted to a denial of his insurance claim, and within six months thereafter, unless appealed, constituted final agreement.

A case is now pending in the district court of the Southern District of California involving this specific point. If it be held by the court in that case that Form 526 was a demand for insurance and that disagreement existed on the denial of insurance based on Form 526, then suit must be filed in all insurance claims before the 3rd day of July 1931. If it be held that Form 526 was not an insurance demand, then the present system in operation by the Veterans Bureau (Form 579) is the proper method of procedure. But the California case will not be settled before the 3rd of July, and it may easily be that after that date it will be too late to file suit. The only safe way to proceed is to have suit filed before the 3rd of July 1931 and then it is impossible to be wrong regardless of the decision in thhe California case.

Under the law, the Veterans Bureau shall not waive this point. Even should the Veterans Bureau agree not to plead the statue of limitations, the Attorney General of the United States could instruct the District Attorney to make that defense, and the effect on the veteran would be exactly the same. This does not apply to you if you filed your claim for compensation after June 7, 1924.

All veterans who have claims pending for insurance, or who contemplate filing suit, and who filed claims prior to June 7, 1924, should take the foregoing information and get in touch with their attorneys at once.—W. M. Weston, State Service Commissioner, 924 Martin Building, Birmingham, Alabama.

FIRST COTTON SQUARES

A. C. Patterson, of Fairview, brought in a few stalks of Cotton Saturday, on which there were quite a number of small squares. It indicated that cotton blooms are only a few days ahead. Then will come the bolls and soon the bales. The weather of the past few days has been very favorable to growth and progress of the cotton plants.

Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Marcus and daughter, Louise, went to Slema last Sunday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Marcus. At noon they enjoyed a picnic dinner in the park.

RETURN FROM FLORIDA-CUBA TRIP

Jesse Baker, J. W. Cagle, and T. E. Wyatt returned last Wednesday night from a nine-day trip through Florida and to Havana, Cuba. On the trip they traveled 2,000 miles by automobile 320 miles by train and 200 miles by steamboat. Two days and three nights were spent in Havana, Cuba, the most of two days on the Gulf enroute, and the rest of the time sightseeing all over Florida. Going to Miami the trip was made down the east coast via Jacksonville, St. Augustine, Daytona Beach, and Palm Beach. The return was made through Tamiami trail to Ft. Myers, thence to Lake Wales, Orlando, Ocala and Gainsville.

At Gainsville the rest of the party was picked up—Misses Ethel Cagle, Zelma Glenn and Katie Myrtle Glenn, who had spent the time with friends and relatives in that city.

In Miami the party visited Mr. and Mrs. John I. Varner, former residents of Coosa County and who have a number of friends and relatives in this county. They are related to the J. W. E. Gulledge family and to Cleve and Charley Wyatt. They visited another friend in Miami, Mr. Herbert Maass, a newspaper man, who showed them the city, also the beach and Coral Gables. They also stopped at Ft. Myers and paid a short but pleasant visit to Mr. J. C. Bowen. Mr. Bowen sent his kindest regards to all his friends in Clanton and Chilton County. He said he hoped that he and Mrs. Bowen would be able to visit Clanton some time in the near future.

The entire trip was made without a single mishap to any of the party. Everybody had a splendid time and will be telling their friends of the many strange things they saw for the next several years to come.

OUR BERRY CROP WORTH $140,373

Total of 53,820 Crates Were Shipped Out Of This County

County Agent C. E. Stapp has compiled figures on the sale and shipment of strawberries from Chilton County this year. The final tally shows that a total return of $140,373.58 was realized from the sale of 53,820 crates.

Thorsby, the oldest berry shipping association in the county in the arf association in the county, led the precession with 28,339 crates, whicn sold for $79,932.91, according to figures given out by Mr. Stapp.

The Thorsby correspondent of The Union-Banner last week reported that Thorsby shipments totalled 28,665 crates which sold for $81,168.32.

We do not know why there is a variance in the figures, as both come from the records of the Thorsby association.

Next to Thorsby was the Clanton association, which marketed 13,715 crates, which sold for a total of $137,995.20.

Shipments from Jemison were close to Clanton in volume—11,766 crates, which sold for a total of $32,445.47.

Taking the strawberry situation as a whole, it may be truthfully said that the growers in Chilton County came out satisfactorily on their crop this year.

CENTRAL SINGERS WILL MEET AT WALNUT CREEK SUNDAY

The Central Singing Society will meet in regular session at Walnut Creek next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. This is the first regular session of the society since the first Sunday in May at Concord, and it is hoped that all singers will fall in line and let's get going again as we were before we vacated for the all day singings.—Secretary.

THE PILOT CLUB

The Pilot Club of Clanton had a most interesting meeting Tuesday evening, June 3rd. Twenty three members have begun to get the Pilot inspiration.

The convention of Pilot International to be held in Pensacola on June 22, 23 and 24 was discussed and several are planning to make the trip to the convention. Plans were also started for the next meeting which will be June 16th, when the charter will be presented to this new club by the International president, Mrs. Virginia B. Bangeley, of Montgomery, and Mrs. Margaret Ormond, of Selma.

Selma Pilot Club sponsored the formation of the Clanton club which will be the baby club at the convention with Phoenix, Arizona as its sister. The Phoenix club has only been organized about a month.

PREACHED AT FRIENDSHIP

On the fifth Sunday night in May the congregation at Friendship had the pleasure of listening to a well delivered sermon by Rev. A. Dewey Huett of Howard College. Several who heard this sermon expressed themselves as being mighty well pleased with the remarks by this young preacher.

Also quite a crowd of folks were present last Sunday night to hear a sermon-lecture by Mr. H. F. McCary of Friendship community. For the past several decades Mr. McCary has been closely identified with church work, and upon several occasions has lectured on church and Bible subjects. He is indeed a well read Bible student, and we understand, contemplates entering the ministry. The matter of investigation and recommendation will be taken up by the presbytery of the church in the near future.

Preaching services will be held at the church Saturday night before the fourth Sunday, as well two services Sunday by the pastor. Conference will be held following the Saturday night service. The public has a cordial invitation to attend any or all of these services.

Jack Shaw of Jemison, manager of the Jemison Fruit Growers Association, was in Clanton Tuesday attending to some business matters.

MANY ATTENDED CRIPPLE CLINIC

Forty-Five People Examined For Physical Defects

The clinic for cripples was well attended Friday at the Baptist church in Clanton with Dr. John D. Sherrill examining 45 people during the day. Of the 45 people, 36 were children and 9 were grown ups. There were 12 from adjoining counties with 2 from Coosa County 1 from Autauga, 7 from Shelby, 1 from Bibb and 1 from Elmore County.

There were many whom the doctor recommended only observation in order to give the defected part more time to develop or to become sounder, while others needed a certain type of shoe and possibly a shoe built up to certain parts to prevent flat foot, the breaking down of the arch, etc. Others were recommended for braces and some were in need of operations. Some came limping, some on crutches, some in braces, some with arms in swings and some were brought in the arms of others. It is a wonderful opportunity for Chilton County people to have a specialist of Dr. Sherill's type to be within reach at least once a year. Chilton County has many crippled adults who would not be crippled today had a clinic been available when they were young.

The Pilot Club of Clanton served sandwiches and the Kiwanis Club served ice cream at the lunch hour.

RESOLUTION

At a meeting of the legislative committee of the Alabama Educational Association held in Montgomery, on Saturday, June 6, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, because of the present urgent educational needs that confront Alabama, the legislative committee of the Alabama Educational Association views with genuine alarm any measure that would reduce the money now available for education in Alabama; and

Whereas, this position of the committee was expressed in the first paragraph of the Unified Educational Program adopted April 12, which reads as follows:

That all moneys appropriated for educatitnal purposes prior to the meeting of the present legislature remain intact; and (for complete unified educational program, see attached sheet).

Whereas, those elected to political office last November pledged themselves to preserve inviolate the present Educational Trust Fund; and

Whereas, educational progress in Alabama is already jeopardized by the general reduction of tax values throughout the state and by the outstanding obligations of the state treasury; and

Whereas, thus far no measures have meen passed providing for any additional educational revenue; now therefore,

Be it resolved, that the Legislative Committee of the Alabama Educational Association unalterably opposes any bill or bills calling for a reduction in the present Educational Trust Fund; and

Be it further resolved, that the Legislative Committee does not oppose any constructive readjustment of the taxing system of the state that has for its object a more equitable distribution of tax burdens throughout the state and a more nearly adequate support of the educational system of Alabama.

Adopted this the sixth day of June, 1931.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF MRS. MARY LITTLE

On Monday Morning May 18, 1931 the death Angel visited the home of Mr. Edward Little and took away his beloved wife to that great beyond where there will be no more pain nor sorrow. Oh how we all miss her more than human tongues can tell, but we have to be submissive to God's will. Our loss is heaven's gain. It makes our hearts so sad to think how good and kind she was to every one, and we had to give her up in the bloom of life, but all was done for her that loving hands could do. She requested before she died that we thank her many good friends and loved ones for their kindness and good treatment during her illness. She said that she would not live to thank them herself. I am sure she was more than welcome for all that was done for her. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband and two children a mother and father and one sister and many friends and relatives. —A cousin that loved her.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans
By J. V. Fitzgerald

Walter C. Teagle

It was nearing commencement time at Cornell. The seniors were making their plans as to what they would do in the world that seemed so far removed from the campus on the hills overlooking the little up-state city of Ithaca. Walter C. Teagle was included in the group that was about to go out into the "cold, cold world," to follow the words of a popular undergraduate song.

He received word that his professor of chemistry would like to talk to him. Young Teagle had specialized in chemistry during his college course. He was what his fellow students called a "shark" in the subject. Naturally he was a prime favorite with the head of the department.

He answered the summons promptly. The professor urged him to return to Cornell the following year to work for a Ph. D. degree. The educator offered him an instructorship in chemistry and held out high hopes that his prize pupil would eventually be promoted to a full professorship.

The salary of an instructor of chemistry was $600 a year. Young Teagle was highly gratified at the offer. He saw his way clear to work and study under the most pleasant conditions. A useful, if not a highly lucrative, career stretched before him.

The young man wrote home to his father, a leader in the oil industry in Cleveland, telling him the good news. The letter indicated that he would like to return to Cornell and to make teaching his life work perhaps. His father, in reply, ordered him to report at home as soon as possible, making no comment on the offer of a career that was evidently rather pleasing to his son.

The elder Teagle didn't mince words as to his opinion of the proposition when his boy arrived home. He pointed out that he had been allowing Walter $1,200 a year while he was getting his education at Cornell. He added that he didn't feel inclined to make up the difference between that amount and the $600 of an instructor's pay.

Moreover, the father couldn't see any real promising future ahead for his son in a teaching career. Furthermore he needed the boy in his oil business. So the young man was ordered to get a new suit of overalls and stand ready to use them as his working clothes until he knew the oil business at the bottom.

Walter Teagle was born in Cleveland in 1878 and knew a thing or two about oil even before he went to Cornell. As a youngster he spent much time around his father's refinery. He had served an apprenticeship, from time to time, at firing stills and unloading coal, for he was a powerfully built and strong lad.

He wasted no time in college as is shown by the fact that he completed a four-year course in three and stood high in his classes. He wrote the thesis for his degree on the subject of oil. That was a natural enough topic for him to select, considering the business his father was in, and that his maternal grandfather, Morris B. Clark, was a partner of the senior John D. Rockefeller in the grain business and was later interested with him in oil ventures.

The first job at which his father put the recent college graduate was at firing a still. The pay was 19 cents an hour. The young man earned every penny of it by the sweat of his brow. Weighing over 200 pounds and standing 6 feet 3 inches, he could hold his own with any man on the shift. He didn't remain a laborer long. He knew too much about the industry to waste much time in such a job.

He inherited his liking for the business from his father. His progress was rapid as soon as his parent convinced him that the industry offered him much more than a teaching career. But the days as a laborer must have been trying, for all that, to the young man who had been a leader in the student life at Cornell with no hard work to do beyond studying his books and working on his experiments. Fortunately, he had the physique to stand up under his gruelling task.

He realized, once he went to work, that there was more to getting oil than merely putting down a well. He knew that it took wide knowledge to determine on a likely location for finding the crude product, that refining and transportation were problems requiring much study and wide experience.

He made up his mind to know the industry from the bottom up. His father's concern merged with the Republic company shortly after the young man entered the business. He was made a traveling auditor. While on this job he reached a country station and found the agent gone. He hitched up the horses and made the deliveries until a new representative arrived.

After three years with the Republic he became a Standard Oil man. He marketed the company's products abroad and was so successful that he was promoted to more responsible positions, finally being elected president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

If the teaching profession lost a distinguished member big business gained an outstanding leader when Walter Teagle's father persuaded him against becoming a Cornell instructor.

A NEW DISCOVERY TO MAKE THE STRAIGHT HAIR WAVE

DeMabel Beauty Shop Has Put in the Famous Parisian Lotion

LaGerardine is a lotion and treatment which trains straight hair to be naturally wavy. It is the result of a patient experimenting that has been conducted in Europe for the last 20 years to find a method of waving satisfactorily to the enormous number of women whose hair does not respond well to permanents or marcels, and also to those women who do not enjoy the application of sticky preparations for wave settings.

LaGerardine method was discovered by M. and Madame Gerard, famous Parisian scalp specialists. For eleven years their Salon at 47 rue des Mathurins of Paris has been patronized by an ever-increasing number of chic Parisiennes and foreign travelers, who sought the lustrious, soft lasting natural wave which LaGerardine treatments impart to the hair.

At the insistence of an American patron, M. and Madame Gerard brought their method to America and proved that even stubborn cases would yield to faithful, persistent efforts, and that over 75,000 heads of straight hair have been naturally Wavy. Today we can invite you to your own satisfaction the simple truth of this amazing statement. Now you can test LaGerardine as the smart set of Paris have tested it—by actual use. And with your own eyes see the hair that used to be straight as a string, become more and more wavy with each LaGerardine treatment. The possibility of a beautiful soft natural wave lies in each head of hair. You have only to follow instructions and repeat the treatments faithfully.

Mothers, who want curly heads should start thaining the child's hair early. LaGerardine is perfectly safe, even on babies hair. You will delight in the beauty of children's hair treated with LaGerardine. For permanent waving it is the ideal setting lotion because it does not leave the hair stiff like regular setting but makes the hair soft and alive, deep and lustrious. It is very benficial to hair of any type or color. It contains no alcohol, no grease, nothing sticky, nothing to stiffen the hair or clog the pores of the scalp. To recondition hair that has been dried out by the sun, or burned through hear or solutions, LaGerardine penetrates the scales of the outer shaft and by softening the inner shaft installs new life. Its effects on dry and brittle hair is very much the same as a good tissue cream on dry and lifeless skin. Although it softens the hair immediately, it does not contain any of the present day known hair softeners. There is no amonia, peroxide, borax or any other ingredient in LaGerardine which can be injurious. It is a product of nature and contains only distillations of plant life.

One American lady writes the following: "My hair is so soft and fine that marcels and finger waves never stayed in for more than two or three days. Finally I gave up trying to have it waved, and wore it straight. When I heard of the wonders LaGerardine was accomplishing for other girls, I was thrilled—and eag to try it. In just a few days my ha had a glorious sheen—at the end the third week the short hairs arou my face begun to curl in soft te drills, and now—tree months lat my whole head of hair is a series soft, deep waves. On a rainy day hair is softer and livelier than ev even a shampoo or a dip in the po holds no horror for me now.

Ask DeMabel about this great di covery. It can be bought for hom use to set permanents, fingerwave or to give yourself treatments make your straight stringy hair cur

STRAWBERRY CROP HELPED BY FORESTS

Montgomery, Ala., June 8.—Alabama's strawberry crop depends largely upon the state's forest products for its growth and distribution, points out Colonel Page S. Bunker, state forester. Berries are packed in baskets made from black gum and pine veneer, and placed in crates made in Alabama mills from these and other local species.

Another very important forest product used in strawberry production is pine straw, says Colonel Bunker. This material is used for bedding the strawberry plants, and also acts as a mulch and keeps the berries free from sand and grit.

Hardwood leaves in addition to pine straw are frequently used by strawberry growers in lieu of commercial fertilizers during the current depression while money is so scarce. The material is placed in compost piles and allowed to decay. It forms a valuable fertilizer and also has a favorable influence on the structure of many soil. When the woods are burned, there naturally is found little pine straw or leaf material. As a consequence in most of the strawberry producing communities the local citizens take care to see that the woods are not burned.

ALABAMA FARMERS LIVING AT HOME

Alabama farmer are this year following a live at home program and producing more feed and food crops, according to the figures released by the Department of Agriculture and Industries showing that state farmers have already shipped over 6,000 cars of truck crops this season and are harvesting one of the best oat crops in the state in many years.

It is estimated that over $2,000,000 have been placed in ciriulation in Alabama during the past eight weeks in return for the truck crops shipped from the state. The 6,000 cars moved this season compare with 7,465 cars shipped from Alabama last year.

The shipments to date this season include 1,134 cars of strawberries, 1,044 cars of cabbage, 3,400 cars of Irish potatoes, 298 cars of cucumbers and many cars of beans and mixed vegetables. Watermelon and sweet potatoe and ireen corn shipping is just starting.

The oat crop is one of the best produced in the state in recent years. This crop is supplementing the short feed crop of last year, and is enabling farmers to feed their work stock without a big outlay of money for feed.

Baldwin County poultrymen, through their poultry association, have placed 2,000 cases of eggs in cold storage. Through the state farm bureau they received current market prices at the time the eggs were stored, said E. E. Hale, county agent.

What is the effect of modern Ultra Violet Rays upon tobacco? Dr. E. E. Free, one of America's well-known scientists, who was retained by us to study Lucky Strike's manufacturing process, addressing the Illuminating Engineering Society, said:

STATE HAS 670 FARMS WITH OVER 1,000 ACRES

There are 670 farms in Alabama with over 1,000 acres or more according to preliminary figures released by the United States Census Bureau. This is nearly 200 less than were in the state in 1920 when 880 farms were reported with 1,000 or more acres.

ALABAMA FARM FACTS

Hale County farmers are receiving $25,000 monthly, or $300,000 annually, from the sale of milk and cream. County Agent J. L. Lawson said that they are making dairying a part of general farming.

Chambers County farmers have named Thursday of each week as a day for assembling and selling poultry yand eggs on the cooperative plan through the county farm bureau. LaFayette, the county seat, is headquarters. County Agent H. C. Heath insisted in making sales.

Hairy vetch and Austrian winter peas planted last fall for soil improvement were specially good this spring, according to H. C. Appleton, county agent. Greene County farmers have planted corn, cotton, and other crops on land where winter legumes were turned under.

Unusually large yields of hay were harvested in Covington County this spring from a mixture of oats and Austrian winter peas, as reported by W. T. Cheney, county agent. One farmer harvested more than 10 tons of hay from 6 acres, and others were equally as good, Mr. Cheney said.

W. M. Ray, county agent, reports that 293 Coffee County farmers received drouth loans this spring totaling $45,250, an average of $154 per loan.

STATE GAINS BUSINESS FROM LOUISIANA SUGAR REFINERIES

The state of Alabama is profiting by the operations of sugar refineries in Louisiana, large quantities of cotton bags made by Alabama mills and Alabama produced coal and lime, being used.

Interesting information on the business transacted in Alabama, much of it being handled through the port of Mobile, was shown recently in a report made public by Godchaux Sugars, Inc., of New Orleans. The report shows dealings with firms in this state during 1930.

Alabama produces no sugar itself, but is reaping rich harvests from the New Orleans company, the report proves.

The one refinery of Godchaux Sugars, Inc., of New Orleans, used in 1930 alone cotton bags manufactured by Alabama mills, valued at $187,111.46. The refinery is located at Reserve, Louisiana, and the cotton bags were used in packing the finished product.

It is shown that during 1930 over 1,500 tons of North Alabama coal and over 400 tons of North Alabama lime, with high value, were used by the Reserve refinery. In addition many thousands of dollars worth of machinery and parts, manufactured in the foundries of Birmingham were purchased for the Reserve unit.

Benefits to the port of Mobile are shown also in the report of Godchaux. Over 100,000 bags of sugar, destined for Alabama sections, were shipped through Alabama's port. The Mississippi-Warrior river barge service was used, the amount handled being equivalent to 250 train carloads and is reported to have been equal to the total shipments of any foreign refinery through the port during the same period.

Importance of the business of Godchaux to the port of Alabama is shown by the fact that import duties, totaling $604,000, were paid on raw sugars which were shipped into Alabama after being refined at the Godchaux plant.

The report of its Alabama operations shows that railroads were also used for direct shipments from the refinery, as well as in conjunction with water hauls. In the handling of products into Alabama the company uses Alabama labor, industries and raw materials.

The Gorchaux refinery employs about 3,000 southerners in its entire operations, which range from the planting of the cane, to the distributing of the refined sugar. The Godchaux refinery at Reserve began its operations 80 years ago and has grown in size until in 1931 it produces 2,000,000 pounds of refined sugar in 24 hours, and is one of the largest in the United States. All of the sugar is refined under United States sanitation laws.

The Godchaux refinery is one of several sugar refineries in the South, which is cooperating with Alabama industries, it is stated. They are receiving in return, increased support from the sugar users in Alabama.

Godchaux sugar is sold in Clanton through A. R. Taylor, broker, and is distributed through Taylor Wholesale Grocery Company.

OUR FLAG IS 154 YEARS OLD

June 14, Flag Day, will this year direct the thoughts of every good America to the future as well as to the past. The patriotic citizen will be reminded that June 14, 1931, marks the 154th anniversary of the day when the Continental Congress passed the resolution officially establishing, as the emblem of the United States, a flag "of thirteen stripes alternate red and white," and "that the union be 13 stars white in a blue field representing a new constellation."

But every patriot will also look forward to next year, when Flag Day will take on a still deeper meaning as one of the key days in the ten months' nation-wide celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington. According to the plans of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, every American, in every state and city of the country, will then be encouraged to honor the flag with appropriate ceremonies and with a new devotion, linked as it is with the life and labors of George Washington.

Historians may regard as unsupported by fact the story of Betsy Ross' stitching the first American flag, but no one disputes the fact that the legend has become part and parcel of American folklore. In any case it is known that Washington had an intense personal interest in the creation of a national flag, and may have had a part in its design. And no one disputes the fact that he accomplished more than any other American in giving that flag a meaning and in unfurling it over a strong and united nation. In 1932 it will be the country's privilege to render new honors to George Washington's memory, and new loyalty to this immortal symbol of his greatness.

Meanwhile, this year, it is well to recall some of the great dates in the flag's history. Its first display by the Continental Army was on August 3, 1777, at Fort Stanwix, the present city of Rome, N. Y., during an attack by the British. It was first carried into battle by George Washington's troops at Brandywine on September 11, 1777. It was first saluted by the British at the surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga on October 17, 1777.

Preacher Finds God In Federal Penitentiary

W. E. Robinson Returns To His Flock Atop Shades Mountain; Was Charged With Theft of 35 Cents

(By Marie Parks in The Birmingham Post)

"I pray that some will try to see,
In me the thing that's better."

Sunday morning in a little frame Baptist church, atop Shades mountain, a man just returned from prison stood in the pulpit where he used to preach and pleaded with tears in his eyes for a chance to "come back."

"I'm a stronger man—mentally, morally and physically. I found God in the jail house. He's with us in the alleys as well as on the hilltop. My faith was tried in the penitentiary, but I passed the test."

His voice breaking with emotion, William E. Robinson, urged "if any of you get hungry, get up and go home. I'm so full of things I want to say to you that I can't stop."

But no one went home.

Women sobbed openly and men blinked their eyes and blew their noses as Robinson told his story.

Sitting on the rude, home-made pews with the congregation were Robinson's wife and one son and daughter, with mingled emotions of joy and sorrow.

"I went to the pen on a charge of stealing 35 cents from the U. S. mail. While I've been gone my children were forced to drop out of school, my family has been living on charity and not knowing where their next meal would come from.

To Become Evangelist

"But, I'm back now to care for them and to carry on the work of the Lord. In prison I saw a vast field for service. I'm going into the evangelistic field to reach the unfortunate man."

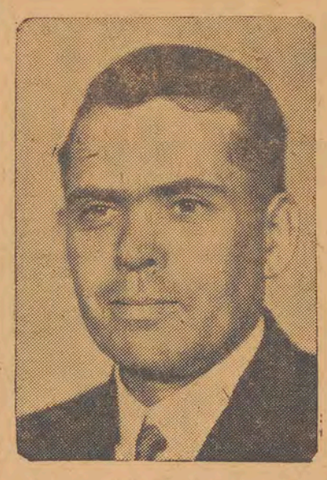
Robinson was convicted last August of stealing 35 cents from the mails, while he was employed at the postoffice. He was sentenced to Atlanta penitentiary for a period of from one to 10 years.

When arrested he was working on a thesis for his diploma from Howard College. He was then part time pastor of Shades Mountain Baptist church. His entire congregation believed him innocent and told him their pulpit would always be open to him.

Reunion Is Held

Services Sunday morning and night were a reunion between him and the people who remained loyal. One after one, they filed by to clasp his hand when services were over. He and his family were taken home to dinner by one of the church members.

"I'm going to start work again on my thesis immediately, if Howard College will give me a diploma. I'm going to appeal to the Baptist pastors to take me into the evangelistic field. I did no wrong, althongh my explanations were not accepted and the stigma of prison was put upon me. But it's the Christian spirit to give a man a chance, and I'm going to start anew."



Robinson's sentence was shortened to nine months, because of good behavior. He reached Birmingham Saturday. While in the penitentiary he conducted religious services as well as performed manual labor. He was at Atlanta for two months and Prison Camp No 8 for seven months.

"I heard profanity from morning to night in prison. I heard preachers, deacons and stewards blaspheme God and humanity. I thank the Lord that He gave me strength not to become embittered.

"Now that I've cast off prison uniform, I'm going to devote my life to men who have bene unfortunate."

Robinson and his family are living at 6230 First Avenue.—Marie Parks, in The Birmingham Post.

BACK HOME

From pulpit to prison and back again is the experience of W. E. Robinson, above.

Robinson was sentenced to federal penitentiary at Atlanta last August on a charge of embezzling 35 cents from U. S. mails, while employed at the postoffice. He returned to Birmingham Saturday and preached Sunday to his former congregation.

SINGING SCHOOL BEING WORKED UP FOR FRIENDSHIP CHURCH

Some weeks ago it was decided that Prof. L. T. Grant teach a singing school at Friendship this summer. It has been definitely planned that the school begin on Monday, July 6th, and continue for a term of eighteen days through Saturday, July 25th. The contract is now in possession of Mr. Dudley Collins, so anyone wishing to enroll may see either Mr. Collins, Prof. Grant at Coopers, or T. E. Wyatt at Clanton. Already some outside people have expressed themselves as being interested, so it is expected that there will be several students from other communities to attend. The tuition will be cheaper than last year, in view of the scarcity of money and depressed conditions.

FROM CALERA, ALABAMA

Editor Union-Banner:

Our legislators are having a fine time, getting eight dollars a day, work or play, and play most of the time. All they are doing, or half of them, is trying to keep the other half from raising taxes. So, I suggest that those who are trying to raise taxes be sent home and paid sixteen dollars a day to stay there, and charge it to Miller for not keeping his campaign pledge.

I think Miller might get the Mayor's job at Calera, as the present mayor has resigned, and if he will manage to have all the bootleggers caught, and whiskey joints closed, he will get almost enough to pay the bill charged against him.—A Reader.

FINE PICTURES ON PROGRAM

The Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton has booked for a showing this summer a number of the biggest talking pictures out. Folks of this community should be especially interested in these fine programs.

The Wadesonian is a nice comfortable place and deserves the support of the public.

JIM BARRETT DIED AT MONTGOMERY SATURDAY

Jim Barrett of Verbena died at a Montgomery hospital last Saturday night following a lingering illness of several months. He had been in the hospital for quite a while before he died.

Mr. Barrett was about 45 years of age. For several years he had been working as a guard at Kilby Prison; was a man of high ideals and was held with the highest esteem by his fellow men.

The remains were buried at Verbena Monday afternoon, Rev. J. D. Hughes officiating. He leaves a wife, a Miss Hatchett before her marriage, two daughters and three sons. Both Mr. and Mrs. Barrett were natives of Coosa County but had been living in Verbena for a number of years.

CAN YOU BEAT THIS?

G. O. Foshee is bidding for the prize on Irish potato growing. He got a vine out of his patch Wednesday that had 27 potatoes on the roots and 38 on the vine above the ground. This will do to put with Ben Duke's tater that had taters on the roots and tomatoes on the vine.

BETHSALEM SUNDAY SCHOOL

Our Sunday school is still progressing nicely. We have some new members almost every Sunday. So let us take courage and work harder for our Master. Come one and all next Sunday at 10 o'clock and let's have a good lesson, and don't let the all day singings hinder you. You can come to Sunday school and then go to the singings. Let us try to make our Sunday school one of the best.

We still have some sick people in our community. We hope they will soon be able to come to Sunday school.

Don't forget Sunday school next Sunday morning. Come and bring someone with you.

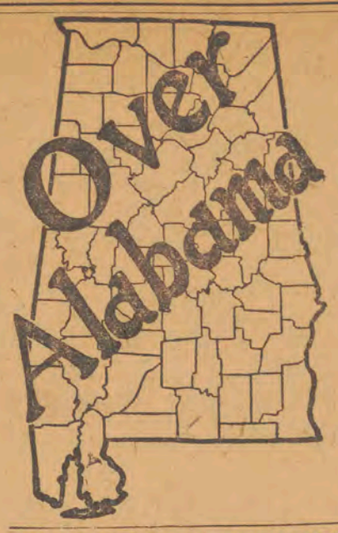
Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Thompson, Lillian and Ethel Mae Thompson, and Lanier Moore spent Sunday in Tuscaloosa.

Mrs. Fenn Jones and her sister, Mrs. Rudolph, of Birmingham, returned Monday afternoon from a fishing trip of several days on the coast near Pensacola.



NEW SALEM

For the next few months we are going to have preaching on the first Sunday and on Saturday night before. We invite the public to come and worship with us. Our pastor, Rev. Zac Appleton, always has a wonderful sermon to deliver for us. Our Sunday school is progressing nicely, and we are planning to start our B. Y. P. U. up again. So everyone come and help us out.

Mrs. T. A. Maddox of New Salem community is improving nicely in the Norwood Hospital, where she has undergone an operation. It is the hope of the family to have her home with them within a week or so.

Everyone will rejoice with the family to see her home again, for in the eyes of the writer of this we can think of none who has been missed as she has. She has not only been missed at home, but at church and from the community as a whole. Again we say, we will rejoice with the family to see her home again.

Lamar Calloway, medical student of the University of Alabama, spent the past two weeks at home in Clanton. He has gone to Duke University, at Durham, N. C., for summer school.

CLANTON DRUG COMPANY IS HANDLING FINE BABY FOOD

Pediatricians for years have been advising the use of various combinations of food stuffs to supplement the milk diet which, after a while becomes insufficient to supply the elements needed for a growing baby.

By laboratory control methods Clapp's Approved Baby Products are produced so standardized in value that the products are as uniform as those prepared on prescription.

Mothers find that Clapp's foods are immensely liked by the babies themselves, and that as they are easily carried and ready to serve except for diluting and heating, they save an unbelievable amount of time and solve the feeding problems while travelling as readily as they do at home.

When a mother is saved twenty-four to thirty hours of time a week which she would have spent in the kitchen, if she prepared her own materials, it means that she has that much more time for other necessary care of the baby. The most important of these is getting the baby out in the fresh air and sunshine without which no baby can advance normally. Any lessening of the countless duties that devolve on the mother of every baby, makes a less nervous mother and consequently a less nervous baby.

Clapp's original baby foods are sold in Clanton only by Clanton Drug Company, G. W. Moore, proprietor.

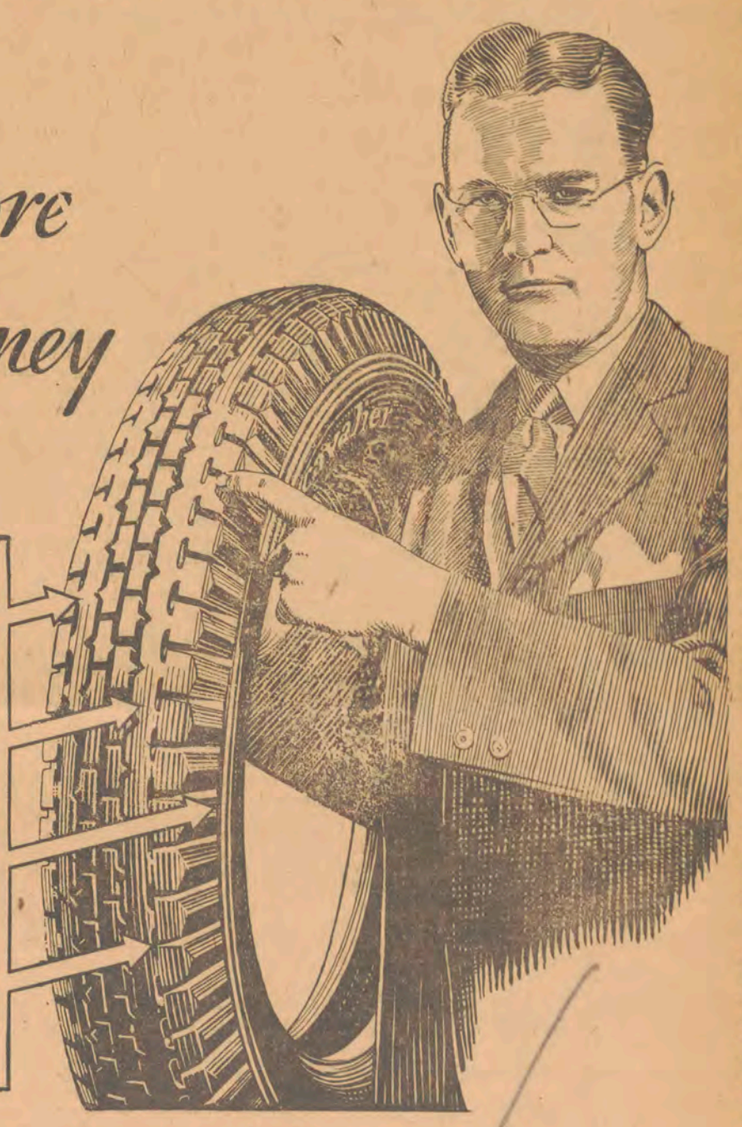
Maryland Woman Happy Now--- Loses 55 Lbs.



Edith J. Marriott, of Baltimore, Md., writes: "Last winter I weighed 200 pounds and was very much ashamed. I bought a bottle of Kruschen Salts which gave such wonderful results I bought more. After 4 bottles I weigh 145 pounds and all my friends say, 'How slender you've gotten—how did you do it?' I say only 4 words—thanks to Kruschen Salts."

A generous bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but 85 cents at Alred Drug Company, or any drug store in America—take one half teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—cut out pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—that will help Kruschen take off your fat.

Take Kruschen every morning—it's the little daily dose that does it—if not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

The propagandists are at it again. Announcement is made of another nationwide campaign to create sentiment for getting Uncle Sam in the League Court. The announcement comes from New York in the shape of a statement from Philip C. Nash, director of the League of Nations Association. One of the purposes of the campaign, according to newspaper stories, will be to secure petitions which are to be sent to Washington in an effort to flood the Senate into believing that there is a great demand throughout the nation, from the rank and file of the people for American entrance into the League Court. It is stated that the drive will be made in an effort to get the League Court issue settled in the Senate by February 1, 1932. But reason is given for fixing this date, but it is evident of course that the internationalists do not want the issue to go into the next campaign. For in spite of their efforts to propagandize the Senate into believing the people are demanding the League Court, they know full well that if the issue should get into the campaign the internationalists would get as decisive a beating as they have on previous occasions.

One significant newspaper statement credits Mr. Nash with declaring that as soon as Uncle Sam gets in the World Court another drive will be started to get him in the League of Nations. This ought to be interesting information for those Americans who seem to believe that we could get into the League Court without involving ourselves in the League. The fact is that internationalists are fanatical in their devotion to their doctrine and will stop at nothing, if given free reign, short of involving the United States thoroughly in European and world troubles.

In the meantime it is interesting to note an editorial in a recent issue of the London Chronicle, an influential English newspaper which sets out that continuing in the eLague of Nations will be the ruination of Great Britain. It is a fact that anti-League sentiment has been growing steadily in Great Britain during the past few years, as the English begin to see that they would be better off if they paid less attention to European jealousies nad more to their own well being. The Chronicle editorial says in part: "The truth concerning the League of Nations has been hidden from the people of this country (England) for years by a conspiracy of bluffs and hypocrisy working upon the susceptibilities of decent trusting people."

Summing up the situation in Europe today the London paper continues:

"Geneva says nothing and does nothing because it has become a branch of the French foreign office.

"It is 13 years since the end of the war and 12 since the foundation of the League of Nations. What is Europe's condition at the end of that period?

"1. Italy, bellicouse, suspicious and aggressive, is increasing and strengthening her army and navy.

"2. Germany is apprehensive of French domination and is determined to become the master of Central Europe again.

"3. Jugoslavia, backed by France, is increasing her army in barely disguised hostility toward Italy.

"4. Poland, supported by France, is maintaining a swollen, powelful army, menacing Germany and her smaller neighbors.

"5. The Balkan states are restive in mutual hostility, in the grip of France and fear.

"6. Austria-Hungary, dismembered by the treaty of Versailles, is hostile to her neighbors and stifled by France and her allies."

Commenting on England's duty, this British editorial says:

"The Deaily Express affirms and re-affirms that the League has become an instrument of war, with Geneva the meeting place of international intrigue.

"Britain must turn from Europe. Her colonies and young expanding dominions offer a heritage of opportunity such as no nation has possessed in history."

The American people do not want to become entangled in the European mess and the Senate should realize this and doubtless will. Our law-making bodies will have enough to do in looking after affairs at home for the next year or two, without involving the country in European politics.

Heflin's Formal Statement

Former Senator J. Thomas Heflin today issued a formal statement on his contest of the election of Senator John H. Bankhead of Jasper, to the Senate last November in which he renewed his charges of "lavish and corrupt use of money, intimidation of voters" and other irregularities.

The former senator charged that Senater Bankhead in his statement from Washington "is trying to get away from the real issue of this contest which is, 'was Mr. Bankhead honestly, fairly and legally elected by the qualified voters of Alabama in an election where they were free from interference, intimidation and coercion to select the candidate of their choice for senator?' "

Former Senator Heflin said, "the United States Senate thought enough of the charges that I made of the lavish and corrupt use of money, intimidation of voters, of forged poll tax receipts, of voting illegal voters, of burning ballots since the election, and of fraud and corruption practiced in many ways to order an investigation of the Senatorial election in Alabama. I am proceeding to prove these things day by day as the ballots are opened and their contents examined.—Montgomery Advertiser.

One of our former millionaire friends says that one of the prettiest figures he ever looked at was not in the Ziegfeld chorus, but was United States Steel at 200.

Big Business Speaks

In urging lowering of the tariff barriers, and the admission of a larger quantity of foreign competitive goods to the displacement of that amount of goods turned out by American capital and labor, leaders of the United States Chamber of Commerce voice well-known demands of big business—that is internationalized manufacturing and banking.

Certain branches of big business would profit by this proceeding. International banking would be promoted. The big manufacturing concerns which have branched out abroad, not only with selling agencies but in the erection of plants, would be helped. American independent enterprise and labor, would of course be harmed. We live in an age when demands for legislation are made by powerful groups with regard entirely to their own profit, and with little or no concern for the general welfare of the American people.

The consuming power of Europe is one-fourth per capita that of the United States. That of Asia is one-tenth. The average consuming power of the entire world outside the United States is probably not more than one-sixth per capita that of the United States. Moreover in the rest of the world, especially in Europe, mass production has been established, with wages no higher than before the World War, hence, with no increase in consuming power. In the United States wages have risen more than one-half since before the World War, with consequent increase in consuming power. The claim that under such circumstances the United States stands to gain by yielding its markets to competitors wielding a weapon of cheapness secured through the low wage system, in order that we may take the chance of gaining larger sales in foreign markets increasingly glutted with goods because consuming power falls far short of keeping up with productive capacity, has no weight if applied to the general welfare of American industry or the American people.

Big business ought to begin to learn the folly of seeking its own ends without regard to the welfare of the American people. Its demand for low tariffs or no tariffs in order that its foreign adventures may be prospered, has already created widespread distress in certain industries, notably the oil and lumber industries, and this depression and unemployment has cost these same big interests' billions where its foreign enterprises have yielded only millions. The seventeen and a half billions American capitalists have invested for quick profits at great risk abroad, are of small consequence as compared with the remaining 95 per cent of American wealth. The 995 per cent should not be sacrificed for the 5 per cent.

Lowering of the American tariff, and the admission of larger quantities of foreign goods, would not lower a foreign tariff or create a market for a dollar's worth of American products in foreign lands. What it would do would be to stimulate American investments in cheap labor markets abroad, to increase the glut of goods for which there can be no outlet there until consuming power is increased through better pay for workers. The present big drive for lowering of the tariff, which big business is carrying on through the metropolitan press, is intended to promote the profits of a few big bankers and industrialists at the sacrifice of the producing and consuming power of the United States.

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

It is indeed a long lane that has no turns. Here we have been sweeping and dusting around the office for some months and looking forward to vacation time. Vacations have been the order around the shop for some time now. The Man on the Corner went down to Miami to keep the Kiwanians in line; the shop foreman has been on a tour of Florida and to Havana; The Man in the Moon has had a ride on a Star, and now it is our turn to go see the "sights."

The boss has just recently bought us a brand new broom and we have been doing a good job with it, so we can stand it over in the corner for a few days rest—and unless the "devil" gets more industrious than usual, there will not be much sweeping for several days. The remuneration we get for writing this column is not of sufficient magnitude to warrant our going to Havana or even Miami, but we are going to Florida just the same.

We are Pensacola bound to lend our assistance to the citizens of that fair city in celebrating the opening of the new Pensacola Bay bridge and million dollar casino on Pensacola Beach on Friday and Saturday of this week. You know The Sweeper has learned that Judge Reynolds and some of the commissioners are going down and we are going to keep them out of trouble with those Florida fish!

So, dear readers, if there is no Cinder Pile next week, just lay it to the fact that The Sweeper got too familiar with that well-known Florida "moonshine," and failed to get back in time to write this column.

However if we are able to return in time, we hope to give you some of the highlights of the trip to the beautiful city of Pensacola and the celebration in connection with the bridge opening. Fortunately, The Sweeper has an official invitation to the "doings" and thereby feels reasonably well assured of something good to eat while there, and some really good entertainment. The activities begin at 1:30, Friday afternoon and there is to be something doing every minute, almost, on through Saturday.

The Sweeper has made several trips to Pensacola in the past and we admire the city more each time we visit it. There has been some talk in the past of moving the Florida state capitol from Tallahassee to Orlando, and if this is ever done, we would certainly like to see a substantial movement to have Alabama acquire that section of western Florida which lies west of the Chattahoochee River. This would give our state two sizable seaport towns and a considerable increase in seacoast mileage. Such an arrangement would certainly make for better convenience for all parties concerned and add materially to the wealth of Alabama without detracting from that of Florida to a very appreciable extent.

Things seem to be kinda quiet right now. The almshouse controversy has simmered down awaiting the public investigation; the Heflin contest has dropped out of sight temporarily while the senate committee looks for facts and ballots that are missing; Governor Miller and the state senate are in a dead-lock over the gas tax and Spain still don't know just where they are as yet with their new republic, so until something breaks there is nothing much to do but sweep along and get ready for that Florida vacation and what we hope will be a swell time.—The Sweeper.

A Poke Below the Belt

We had thought surely the day was past when Alabama lawmakers would seek to enact laws obviously designed to gouge the Alabama Power Company. But such a bill has appeared at the present session. It is a measure which would prohibit the Alabama Power Company from selling electrical appliances.

We agree with the Shelby County Reporter, which declares "such a bill is altogether unfair, and ought to be defeated."

Alabama Power Company has served this State in many ways during the past decade. It has brought industrial development of untold value to our commercial life. The electrical service that has been made possible through this company is the greatest boon that has ever come to Alabama. The selling of electrical appliances is nothing more than a natural and legitimate step on the part of the power company to further and more effectively serve the people of Alabama.

The Alabama Power Company is big enough to take care of itself, and it is human enough to understand common folks. It is a business that operates upon sound policies. To say that the company shall not sell electrical appliances to people who want to buy from them is utter folly. And for a legislature to so restrict a legitimate and important business organization would be on its face a shameful exhibition of littleness on the part of such lawmakers.

We do not believe the legislature of Alabama will waste any time with even a serious consideration of such a measure.

Need More Tea Parties

In its issue of May 9, the Saturday Evening Post rendered a real public service to the people of the United States in its straight-from-the-shoulder editorial criticizing the orgy of spending by members of legislative and tax disbursing bodies.

It pointed out that spending other people's money is a favorite pastime of politicians and that when they have cleaned out everything and everybody, they do not stop but simply hunt for new ways to jack up old taxes or to find new things to tax. The people have stopped their wild spending but the politicians are still on a tax-disbursing spree.

"Ways and methods of spending and financing that would meet with the severest reprobation in the case of an individual, are considered perfectly sound procedure by the politicians," said the Post.

"Reckless and prodigal private and public spending have exactly the same finish. The public-improvement-vote-buying legislator is worse for the country than fire and pestilence."

It likens a majority of our public improvements to yachts, where the unkeep is worse than the first cost. Such improvements bring a swarm of public servants who must be paid out of new taxes.

It cites England, Germany and Russia, where paternalism and actual confiscation of property have caused tax loads and destruction of wealth which can and will wreck any government.

Thorsby Institute

Rambling through the files of the Banner of 25 years ago, we came upon a story of the organization of Thorsby Institute. In view of the prominent place which this school has come to occupy in the educational life of Chilton County and of Alabama today, we think it worthy of reprinting again the story of how the school was originally organized. The following appeared in The Banner of June 7, 1906.

"A new educational institution which has solid backing and will probably become one of the important schools of Chilton County, has been projected by some of the leading citizens of Thorsby and other parties who are prominent in educational and religious work. At their meeting in Thorsby on June 4 it was resolved to incorporate a board of nine trustees to establish an institution to promote education in English and classical branches of learning and in the arts and crafts, to be maintained under Christian, but non-sectarian influences, said institution to be located at Thorsby, and known as Thorsby Institute.

"The incorporators are Rev. G. E. Bates, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church, Birmingham; Rev. J. P. Morgan, president Methodist Protestant Annual Conference of Alabama, Fort Deposit; Rev. A. T. Clarke, Fort Payne, Ala.,; L. V. Stabler, Adam Horn, S. E. Norton, I. S. Gerald, J. R. Parnell, and G. C. Michelson, Thorsby, Rev. Geo. Bates was chosen president of the Board; S. E. Norton, secretary; Adam Horn, treasurer.

"The normal school building has been bought by these parties and school will open not later than October 1st, 1906. The trustees are now looking for an experienced and able educator to act as principal of the school. A mass meeting of the citizens of Thorsby to take measures in regard to assistance and patronage for the school is called for Wednesday night, June 6."

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

Nature's Odds and Ends—

Here a while back when everybody had the "Strange as it seems" fever, I had a few good ones in the way of names, etc., and among them all was one which stated that on a farm near Clanton was a peach tree with two limbs, on one of which grows apples while on the other the fruit is plums, and that at the same time there would be green apples and red plums, but no peaches. Most of the fellows turned thumbs down on me for telling that. But this week Mr. Ben Duke of Route 4 has brought in a plant which he said grew in his field; it looks like an Irish potato plant, the limbs bear fruit which looks like a cross between a tomato and a crab apple, and root of the plant has a good crop of Irish potatoes on it. It is on display at Mr. Stapp's office, and Mr. Duke said he had plenty more like it.

If you are one of those who like to juggle with figures, this ought to interest you. What would you suppose the above number would represent? You wouldn't guess in a year, so here goes. There were 119,624,909,000 cigarets smoked by the people of the United States alone during the year 1930; that's saying nothing of the rest of the world; think what the total of the world would reach. The length of a cigaret is about two and three-quarter inches; then placed end to end the whole amount of cigarets smoked in the United States last year would make a cigaret the length of which would be 258,971,499,000 inches, or 21,580,958,312.5 feet, approximately 4,080,862 miles, and would reach around the world more than 163 times. At the usual cost of 20 for 15 cents, these smokes sold for $887,186,817.50, far over three-quarters of a billion dollars, besides extra taxes, etc., which might have been paid on them. Remember, that was for cigarets alone, to say nothing of pipes, pipe tobacco, chewing tobacco, cigars, snuff, and any other way tobacco might be put up for sale. No wonder people of other countries are not surprised when they hear an American utter the American expression—"Watch my smoke!"

Out Of Place—

We are surely a wise-cracking people. I was hurrying down the street one day this week to pay a bill—and that's not a wise-crack, either—when a smart aleck hailed me from across the street; when he had my ear pulled right jam up to his "mike" he said: "Say, young fellow, you want to be particular where you go and how you get there." I racked my brain, trying to think where he might have seen me (where I shouldn't have been) but coudn't dig up anything wrong. After quite a bit of deep thought, I inquired his meaning. And it's a good thing no brick-bats were close; he teetered back on his heels and took a good laugh at the look on my face—I suppose—and cracked this one: "I was standing around here yesterday afternoon, when you passed, and somebody said 'There's a man out of place—there goes the Man in the Moon and he's riding in a Star'." No friends lost—I don't like that guy, any way.

His War Record

I was listening in by radio to the "doings" at the U. C. V. reunion at Montgomery one morning last week, along with one of our good old timers. The speaker was praising the South and her sons to the skies. Noting a faint sound of some kind, I turned to find tears streaming down the old fellow's cheeks. I asked if he was a veteran of the Civil War. "No," he said, "but I'm proud of my war record." I suppose I looked bewildered, so he explained. "My father was a soldier in Johnson's army in the Civil War, while I made a living for mother and the children (I was too young), helped all I could in the Spanish-American scrap (too old for that one), and sent my sons to France in the World War." Not such a bad war record, at that.

Here and There—

"Uncle Jim" Mims taking a squint at the new jail; Deputy Loss Robinson with a still on his shoulder; two transport trucks blocking the street (as usual); two bill collectors exchanging accounts; "Red" Wagoner and Bob Alred arguing baseball (where's "Pal" Pyron?); "Jelly" Bean, the barber, taking his sun bath and beauty nap; Leonard Gentry, with somebody's "washing"; Vachel Lindsey taking the afternoon off; Chief Boockholdt whistling at somebody (no response); the boss, with a serious expression on his face. Quick get-away!—Man in the Moon.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw—
and Some He Saw Not.

Wish We Had A Public Park

As the summer season comes upon us, the hot days and nights when it is so nice to be out in the open, I wish that Clanton had a public park where the children and grown folks might go and play, swim, and lounge in the cool shade. Going around over the country, one finds such playgrounds in many of the small cities. Every time I see a park place I wish that we had one in Clanton. Seems to me it would be much more delightful than spinning up and down the highway with a gas buggy.

Godchaux Sugars

Godchaux is a new name in my vocabulary. Strange I never heard of it until last week, especially since it is found that the operations of Godchaux is contributing so much to the trade balances of the industries of Alabama. Mr. Hubert Foster, representing Godchaux Sugars, of New Orleans, was here last week. He sells three to five car loads of sugar in Clanton each month, through A. R. Taylor, broker, and Taylor Grocery Co., distributors. Elsewhere in this paper is an interesting story about the operation of the Godchaux refinery. This concern is using millions of dollars worth of Alabama industrial products every year. As a fact of reciprocity in trade, it would seem a good idea for Alabama people to use Godchaux sugars, because Godchaux is helping to keep Alabama industries moving.

One Which I Saw Not

At the request of Mell Martin, I shall attempt to record here something about one of the sights which I saw not. We were coming in from the Kiwanis meeting at the Girls Scout camp last Thursday night. Mell was in his car just behind me. I failed to see anything out of the ordinary on the way in. But Mell did not fail to see it. I suppose it was another case of "Eyes and No Eyes," Next morning he asked me if I saw what was going on at Concord as I came in. I told him no, which was the truth. He assured me that I had missed something that no man could afford to miss. When he began to speel it off to me about pink lemonade, streaked ice cream, and five-story cakes, I began to wish I had taken some interest in things along the road. Finally I got him to tell me what it was he was talking about. It was a B. Y. P. U. sociable picnic. He stopped and joined the crowd, and declares he had the most enjoyable time of his sweet young life.

President Lincoln and General Lee

Lincoln and Lee, two of the greatest men and contemporary characters in the history of the United States, are always subjects of interest where their names are mentioned. One of our modern literary lights has arrived at the conclusion that Lincoln was insane because at times he told smutty stories. By that way of reasoning, one would conclude that there are a great many insane men in the world. Which reminds me of a story about General Lee. The Confederate army commander was with a group of his staff members. As they sat together one of the men began to cast his eyes about and said: Well, fellows, there are no ladies present. I want to tell you a joke I heard the other day. General Lee raised his hand and said: There are gentlemen present, sir. And the joke was not told.

Waste Paper on the Streets

It was interesting, if not altogether pleasing, last Sunday morning to stand on the corner and watch the vast scatteration of waste paper as it was whipped about the vicinity of the courthouse crossing by a brisk wind. Here, there, everywhere was paper, ugly, good for nothing; only making a bad looking scene in the heart of Clanton's business district. Somebody let that paper loose, and the wind did the rest. It would be nice if everybody would take the thought and trouble to see that waste paper is not left so it can get away and make our town ugly.

Invitation to Bob Jones

The Commissioners of Chilton County have passed a resolution asking Evangelist Bob Jones to come here next January and conduct the proposed revival meeting which will be a part of the state-wide revival campaign being sponsored by him. Bob Jones has held meetings here in the past. Almost everybody knows him. One thing is sure, if he comes here for a three weeks meeting, it will be some meeting. If Bob can't run the devil out of Clanton in three weeks, we may as well consider that the old dickens is a permanent citizen for all tmie.

Uncle John Hayes Here

Uncle John Hayes, of Jemison, was a visitor to Clanton Tuesday. He says he continues to go to the old time singings over the country, and is enjoying them right along. Next Sunday he will be at Mt. Zion, where the old timers will hold forth for the entire day. Also Mr. Hayes expresses an interest in the county almshouse discussion. He is working on a plan to submit to the commissioners court, which he believes will be a far better system of operating the almshouse than that which is now in force.

$2,107 Profit On Strawberries

Final figures on the returns from strawberries sold by O. O. Roper and Son from their 5 1-2 acre patch this year are as follows: Gross sales of berries amounted to $3,528. Expenses including everything were $1,421. Net profit was $2,107.

The Strangest Argument

It is interesting to reflect that the strangest argument against the adoption of unqualified anti-gun laws by either the states or the federal government, is the crime situation itself. In many of the great cities in which crime flourishes and is a leading "industry," anti-gun laws are already in effect. Some of them are extremely strict. But only the law-abiding citizen feels the weight of the restriction. It seems not exaggerating to say that anti-gun laws actually deprive the law-abiding of protection to their homes or places of business.

What is needed is correction for the unlawful use of firearms and not restriction of the vast bulk of citizens who use guns only for a safeguard or for sport. This would leave the good citizen with his constitutional right to protection for himself and his family.

Those zealots who are always soap-boxing in favor of unqualified anti-gun laws might do well to think this over if their real object is the reduction of crime and safety for society.

Mr. M. W. Blue Writes From Tekamah, Neb.

Editor Union-Banner:

It has been two months since I left Clanton, and nearly a month since I got home. I haven't forgotten my promise to write to The Union-Banner, but on getting home there were so many things to see to, and so many places to go that we hardly had time to write or think but now things have gotten about normal, I will fulfill my promise.

Let me say first, I find the same complaint here that I heard all the way around, hard times and disappointment in prices. Prices on grain and live stock are cut to half they were one year ago. I am saying this so the people of the South will know they are not the only ones who are hard hit. However we have plenty to eat, and our last year's clothes will wear for a while yet, so we are going right along with the rest of the big army.

Now, before I go any farther, I want to thank the good people of Clanton for the surprise package that was handed us the morning we left, and also make confession. Our surprise package consisted of 12 or 15 letters, numbered from one to 15, one to be read each day as we were traveling on our way home. Now here is where the confession comes in. After we read the first one I began to burn to know what was in the rest, and who wrote them. I did not say anything to my wife, but I soon saw she was in the same fix. I don't just remember which one spoke first, but we both agreed there never would be a better time to read them all than right then, so we did.

Now, good folks, don't think that was the only time the surprise package was read, as we had the privilege of not only reading them many times since, but read than to our friends; and while I am writing they are right before me on the desk. It was a real surprise package, and came all the way from our good boarding place on down the line to the barber shop. Tho good compliments and advice we will always remember and wish I could write you all individually, but cannot at this time, but accept our thanks.

It was not only the surprise package we got that brings good and happy thoughts from Clanton, but all the good people we met and got acquainted with.

We spent three weeks in Washington visiting and taking in some of the sights. My son and family from India, whom I had not seen for 8 years, with my other son, who is there teaching, gave me a chance to be with all my family, from which we had been so widely separated.

Then we stopped at my old home in Northern Indiana, and took a drink from the old spring house at the foot of the hill. My memories went back 71 years as I remember I was 2 years old and wore checkered apron when I first remembered the old spring. Most of my old comrades are gone from there, gone where I will soon have to go.

We got home the first of May, just six months from the time we left. Two of my old neighbors had passed away, others had been sick and in the hospital, otherwise everything looks good, and seems good to get home. Crops and fruit have a good start and bid fair for a good yield.

When I was in the South many people asked me if all the people in my country weren't rich, when they all get big crops and no expense for fertilizer; and I don't think I gave a good answer, but I ran across a clipping in our local paper that answers it quite fully, so I am asking the editor to coppy it. It follows:

"Please find check on account, I wish to inform you that the present shattered condition of my bank account makes it impossible for me to send you my check in full in response to your request. My present financial condition is due to the effect of the federal laws, state laws, by-laws, county laws, corporation laws, brothers-in-law, mothers-in-law and outlaws that have been hoisted upon an unsuspecting public. Through these various laws I have been held down, held up, sat on, walked on, flattened, squeezed and broken until I do not know what I am, where I am, or why I am.

"These laws compel me to pay a merchant's tax, capital tax, income tax, corporation tax, real estate tax, motor car tax, property tax, gas tax, light tax, water tax, cigarette tax, school tax, syntax, liquor tax and carpet tax.

"In addition to these laws I am requested and required to contribute to every society and organization that the mind of man can invent. Give to the Society of St. John the Baptist, the Woman's Relief, Navy League, the Children's Home, the Pro-Freeman's Benefit, the Dorcas Society, the Y. M. C. A., the Gold-Digger's Home; also to every hospital and charitable institution in town, the Red Cross, the Black Cross, the White Cross, the Purple Cross, the Flaming Cross and the Double Cross.

"The government has governed my business so that I do not know who owns it. I am suspected, expected, inspected, disrespected, examined, re-examined, informed, commanded and compelled until all I know is that I am supposed to provide an inexhaustible supply of money for every known and unknown need, desire or hope of the human race, and because I refuse to donate to all and then go out and beg, borrow or steal the money to give away, I am cussed, discussed, talked to, talked about, lied about, held up, held down, robbed until I am just ruined.

"The only reason that I am clinging to life at all is to see what is coming next.

"Without personal disrespect, I submit my above conclusions, hoping it may not find you afflicted the same."

I don't know whether I can get money enough to get to Clanton next fall or not. If I can you will have to put up with me another winter. I would be glad to hear from any of the Clanton people. Sincerely, M. W. Blue, Tekamah, Nebraska.

OUR TARIFFS AND THEIRS

Those who followed the proceedings at the recent meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce must have been struck with the repeated intimation that the United States was responsible for the present world-wide economic depression. To escape from it the United States was urged to alter its fiscal policies, to cancel the European debts, to lower its tariff walls.

Americans listened to these suggestions with extraordinary patience and humility. It is possible that the men from the eastern seaboard, accustomed as they are to looking Europeward for guidance, set the fashion in assuming an air of guilt. Fortunately, their sense of inferiority is not shared by the bulk of their countrymen.

America was settled by men and women who came from the less privileged classes of European society. They were hardy and adventurous and they valued the freedom to make of themselves what they could. They won political independence in large part to free themselves from Old World notions of class and station. The country grew up in the belief that no material comfort, no position in life was too good for any man to have to aspire to.

The result has been, of course, a high level of general well-being in this country. In spite of present difficulties our people in the main are more comfortable, less broken with heavy labor, more free to pursue their own ambitions and desires than the people of any other country in the world. It would be absurd to pretend that the millennium is about to dawn over the United States, but it would be absurd, also, to pretend that the people of any other country have achieved so high a standard of living or know a comparable freedom in achieving their own ambitions.

Europe complains about our tariff walls which obviously have not deprived our people of material comforts, but says little or nothing about the tariffs which European countries maintain against our goods. If Europeans are to be spared the necessity for soul-crushing labor they must come to America for the means of avoiding it. The European peasant will wait long before his own country produces an automobile cheap enough for him to buy. In America the demand of common men for such comforts has been recognized and met. If the European peasant's wife and children are to be spared the necessity of back-breaking work in the fields, American farm machinery is ready to do the work. To the extent that Europe bans our goods, Europe is condemning her citizens to hard labor. Our tariff serves no such purpose.

The Europe which seeks to bar out our material satisfactions for the common man is even Zealous to prevent the lower classes from glimpsing American life in the movies. The fear is that the head of the European workingman will be turned. He, too, will want a comfortable house to live in, a telephone, a vacuum cleaner, an automobile, a radio and well-cut clothes. If he is to be kept in his place he must not know too much about American life.

American labor-saving and comfort-making machines and devices are the hope of a better day for the common man in Europe and the Orient. It is the misfortune of the lower classes in Europe that their betters have forbidden them to enjoy what America has to offer them. It is the misfortune of the Orient that political unrest in India and China has rendered trade unusually hazardous. But America can hardly be blamed for these narrowings of our influence for good.—Chicago Tribune.

Lesson for June 14

THE RESURRECTION AND THE ASCENSION

GOLDEN TEXT—Who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea, rather, that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who maketh intercession for us.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:25-51.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Living Now.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Living Now.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Our Living Lord.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of the Resurrection.

The resurrection of Christ is one of the foundation truths of Christianity. It is the grand proof that Christ was what he claimed to be—the Messiah, the Son of God (Matt. 12:39, 40; John 2:19-21).

I. The Empty Tomb (vv. 1-12).

Luke does not enter into a description of the manner of the resurrection of Christ or offer any proof of the fact other than that the tomb was empty. He does, however, indicate the process by which the disciples had become convinced of its reality.

1. The testimony of the men in shining apparel (vv. 4-6). The women who had come to the sepulcher bringing spices found the stone rolled away and the sepulcher empty. While they were in a state of perplexity these men in shining garments informed them that Jesus had arisen.

2. The report of the women to the disciples (vv. 7-11). The women believed the announcement made to them because they found that it was in agreement with what Jesus had prophesied. They immediately reported the fact of the empty tomb to the disciples.

3. Peter investigating (v. 12). Peter was so impressed with the news brought by the women concerning the empty tomb that he ran to see whether the report was true. He was convinced that the tomb was empty, but was perplexed over the matter. If he had believed the words of the Lord his personal investigation would have cleared the matter in his mind.

II. Two Discouraged Disciples (vv. 13-35).

1. The walk to Emmaus (vv. 13-15). Emmaus was seven and a half miles northwest of Jerusalem. The topic of conversation was the tragedy of the cross and the resurrection rumors. So little had the Lord's teaching about his resurrection impressed the disciples that the reports which the women brought were to them as idle tales.

2. An unrecognized companion (vv. 16-24).

a. Who he was (v. 15). While they reasoned together on the wonderful events of the last few days, Jesus joined them. Even when he questioned them concerning their sadness they did not recognize him.

b. His question (v. 17). Perceiving their sadness and perplexity he sought to help them by calling forth an expression of their grief.

c. Their answer (vv. 18-24). His question so surprised them that they thought him a stranger in Jerusalem, for the condemnation and crucifixion were so recent and notorious that no one that had lived in Jerusalem could be ignorant of them.

3. The Scriptures opened (vv. 25-31).

a. His rebuke (vv. 25-30). Jesus did not rebuke them for not believing the strange stories they had heard, but for ignorance and lack of confidence in the Old Testament Scriptures, the very center and heart of which have to do with the death and resurrection of Christ.

b. Jesus recognized (vv. 31-35). While sitting at meat with the disciples they perceived him as the Lord when they saw him bless the bread and distribute it. They were so filled with joy over this revelation that they hastened to Jerusalem to tell the other disciples of his resurrection.

III. Jesus Stands in the Midst of the Eleven (vv. 36-47).

1. He said, "Peace be unto you" (vv. 36, 37). Instead of receiving peace from him, they were terrified and affrighted.

2. He showed them his hands and his feet (vv. 38-40). He gave them tangible evidence that he was not a mere spirit.

3. He ate before them (vv. 41-45).

4. He commissioned them to evangelize the world (vv. 46-49). They were to testify concerning his shed blood and resurrection and on this ground they were to preach repentance and remission of sins to all nations.

IV. Jesus Ascends Into Heaven (vv. 50, 51).

Having given them the parting message to evangelize the world, he ascended into heaven.

Tom Hand Still After Poor House System

"I Only Wish For Our Poor the Best There Is In Life"

Editor Union-Banner:

I feel constrained to again refer to matters concerning our Chilton County Almshouse, and prefer to reduce some of my remarks to affidavit form, copy of which follows:

State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me, A. A. Conway, a notary public, in and for said county, personally appeared W. T. Hand, who being duly sworn deposes and says. While discussing the Chilton County almhouse with Dr. Glenn Andrews, State Prison Inspector, at Montgomery, over long distance telephone, on or about June 2, 1931, said Andrews stated, they were not favorable nor very unfavorable, and said if you will come down here you can see them. Whereupon on June 4, 1931, I went to Montgomery for that purpose arriving in his office about 10:45. He failed to show the affidavits to me and refused to allow me to see them, notwithstanding my persistence while reminding him of his promise, which caused my trip. He said that his agents didn't find the conditions as shown by Mr. Harrison and others from the Attorney Genral's office, but found conditions very good.—W. T. Hand.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this the 5th day of June 1931, Arnold A. Conway, Notary Public.

Referred to the Governor and Attorney General for the Harrison affidavit, my inquiry revealed that they had been destroyed.

May the following letter tend to add credence to the above statements, my reputation for truth having been assailed.

Mr. Geo. M. Reynolds, Chairman of the Board, Continental & Commercial National Bank, Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Mr. Reynolds: I take this means of introducing to you W. T. Hand, who has been well and favorably known to me for the past thirty-five years. During the time I have had many transactions with him, all of which have been handled in a most satisfactory way.

He is thoroughly straight and reliable, and you can accept his word without question. I commend him to you as worthy of your best treatment and any courtesies or favors extended him, will be appreciated by the officers of this bank.—Yours very truly, Tom O. Smith, vice-president, Birmingham Trust & Savings Co.

Relative to the court's inquiry set for June 16th, I will not enter any complaint against the conduct of the almshouse from the 2nd, date on court's order for hearing, to the 16th inclusive. Everyone knows that conditions there could have been readily ascertained by anyone in authority and promptly remedied.

My latest information is, that new clothing is being distributed, grub is getting better, chickens have died, inmates are chopping cotton under orders, that religious services were recently held, the first in about nine months. That an inmate, J. R. Allen, age 47, a small cripple dwarf, bent and shrunk, from infantile paralysis, one arm and leg perished, and supported by crutches, was on June 4, 1931, personally ordered by Mrs. C. E. Stapp, child welfare agent, to appear in Clanton on the 5th for physical examination. Conveyed by the keeper, the inspection showed "fit for work, and he was informed by Mr. Gentry that he would notify Mr. Allen through Mrs. Stapp, when he found a job for him. His allowance of snuff being cut off about a month ago.

My interest in the household of the poor, is inspired from the best motives I possess. Well do I recollect the enthusiasm and delight exhibited by father, L. T. Hand, who was instrumental in securing and building the first home in Chilton County for the poor about one mile north of Jemison, some 41 years ago. I have no personal grievance in this matter. I only wish for our poor the best there is in life, attended by adequate nursing and medical attention. My investigation does not show that any Commissioner ever saw a meal served or that the inmates have had any soap "to wash our face and hands with," and if permitted I will be glad to supply this necessary article.

May I not add more to this sad picture?—W. T. Hand.

Prayer Meetings For State-Wide Revival

"Every spiritual awakening that has swept this and other nations of the world from Pentecost to the present time, has come in answer to prayer," said Bob Jones recently in discussing plans for the state-wide revival campaign to be held in every section of Alabama for three weeks next January.

"The most vital and important thing just now is to get the people all over the state to pray earnestly for this state-wide revival. If the people will lift their hearts to God in earnest prevailing prayer, He will hear from heaven and will send a great spiritual awakening that will include the entire state.

In order that people everywhere might be in prayer at the same time for the same purpose, we have set Wednesday of each week as the day and 10 to 10:30 a.m., as the time for state-wide cottage prayer meetings to be held each week until the medieval meetings begin. These half-hour prayer meetings are to be informal group meetings with just one purpose, definite prayer for a revival. Prayer meetings are now being held in many sections of the state and we hope to have at least 10,000 prayer meetings organized between now and next January.

Will you be one to start such a meeting and invite your neighbors and friends to join you in your homes for this half-hour of prayer? Remember the time, each Wednesday morning from 10 to 10:30. Make this the keynote of your prayers, "Lord send a revival and let it begin in me."

Anyone in Clanton or Chilton County who will start one of these Wednesday prayer meetings is asked to notify Mrs. C. Reese Mullins, at Clanton, who is Chairman for the Cottage Prayer Meetings in Chilton County. It is hoped that scores of people in this section of the state will join in these Wednesday prayer meetings.

The Wednesday morning prayer meetings are just one phase of the most unique plan ever undertaken in the history of evangelism. The Christian people of Alabama are being asked to unite in a great state-wide revival to be held in all sections of the state for three weeks next January. This section is to be included in this movement and people of all denominations are being asked to cooperate.

The thinking people everywhere agree that the greatest need of the hour is a turning to God in repentance, confession and faith. If the people of Alabama will do this, there would not only be a revival of religion of the only true sort, but a revival of prosperity as well.

TOMATO-POTATO FREAK

Mother Nature seems to be starting in rather early this year in turning out her list of freakish plants. They are beginning to come in right along now.

One days last week Mr. Ben Duke of Clanton Route 4 brought to The Union-Banner office a plant, the limbs of which bore several green tomatoes, while on the roots were several good size Irish potatoes. His plant was put on display at Mr. Stapp's office.

Not long after Mr. Duke's display reached the Union-Banner office, Mr. Willie Snider of Jackson's Chapel community, brought in another of the same kind.

Mr. R. H. Hamilton brought in a purple top turnip which weighed 8 and a quarter pounds, the biggest turnip to date.

Charles Moore, medical student at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, was at home a few days the past week. He has gone to the University of Alabama for the summer.

LEGION PLAN FOR FOURTH OF JULY

Boxing Bouts and Wrestling Matches Will Be At Ball Park

A committee of Chilton County Post of the American Legion is at work upon arrangements for boxing bouts and wrestling matches to be staged at the high school ball park on the Fourth of July.

Max Schalder, a promoter and referee, of Birmingham, has been engaged by the committee to outline plans and secure a number of boxers and wrestiers for the occasion.

Mr. Schalder was in Clanton last Saturday in conference with the local committee, and he was able to assure some very interesting engagements. He said: "You boys can go ahead and tell the sports fans of this section that we are going to give them something really worth while. I have already arranged with some of the best semi-professional and amateur boxers and wrestlers of Birmingham to appear here on this program. Before the day arrives I will have others lined up.

"We are going to have a couple of good boxing matches," he said, "and in addition to that we will have two or three wrestling matches, of the new kind where nothing is barred."

The local committee on arrangements plans to build the elevated ring in the center of the ball park, with a limited number of ringside seats. In addition to ringside customers there will be a general admission plan whereby everybody who desires may enter and witness the performance.

By next week it is hoped that full details will be arranged so that definite announcement of all plans can be made.

The Legion invites everybody to get ready and make preparations to come, assuring you that there will be ample entertainment for all who enjoy seeing a good boxing or wrestling match.

ALL DAY SINGING AT COLLINS CHAPEL SUNDAY

Mr. Akins I. Collins asks The Union-Banner to re-inform the people of the county and elsewhere that next Sunday, the third Sunday in June, is the time for the annual all day singing at Collins Chapel. This is always a big affair at the Chapel, and next Sunday bids fair to be still bigger than ever before. The new church is finished this year, giving much more room, and there are numerous other conveniences. So, it is expected that the singing Sunday will be unusually good from every standpoint.

Mr. Collins says that the McDonald quartet of Birmingham will be there; also the Hensons of the Morris-Henson Music Company, as well as other prominent singers. The people of Collins Chapel community invite everybody to come and spend the day with them. Bring your dinner along as well as your song books, they say, and let's have one more grand day at old Collins Chapel.

GOLF CLUB HERE

A movement has been started to organize a golf club in Clanton, with a limited membership of 20. If the plan goes through a course will be built and maintained near town. It is said that a number of suitable places are available.

Mr. Jensen, a specialist in the construction of golf courses has been here assisting in perfecting the organization, and will have charge of constructing the course.

As soon as the required number of members has been signed up, officers of the club will be elected and the organization made permanent.

Among the golf fans who are taking the lead in the movement are Maurice Lande, Bob Sumner, John Page, Otto Jones, Coos Neighbors, and Dewey Rockett.

PITTS-ORR ENGAGEMENT

The Birmingham News of last Sunday carried the announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Mr. William Gray Orr and Miss Elie Merle Pitts, as follows:

"Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Pitts of Ensley announce the engagement of their daughter, Elie Merle, to Mr. William Gray Orr, of Mountain Brook, the wedding to be July 16."

Mr. Orr formerly lived in Clanton with his mother, Mrs. M. R. Orr, at the Exchange Hotel.

COMES HOME FROM HOT SPRINGS HOSPITAL

On February 21st this year, Mr. and Mrs. Crayton Norris left Hot Springs, Arkansas for home, or at least to visit the home of the former's parents, Rev. and Mrs. E. A. Norris, of Verbena Route 2. The destination was reached Monday of this week, nearly four months from the time they set out.

Only a few miles out of Hot Springs Mr. Norris's Ford car was struck by a large car and torn into jiblets, and Mr. Norris's leg was badly broken up. He was carried back to Hot Springs and placed in a hospital where he has been whiling the hours away for the past fifteen weeks. Mrs. Norris came out with only a small scratch on the hand.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Norris are proud to see them again. Although yet walking on crutches, it is hoped that Mr. Norris will be completely recovered in a few more weeks.

CRUMP-ASHBURN WEDDING IN TAMPA, FLORIDA JUNE 10

Miss Elizabeth Moore Crump was married to Mr. David Ashburn, Jr., in Tampa, Fla., on June 10th. The ceremony was performed in the Presbyterian church of that city.

Miss Crump is the charming young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Crump, formerly of Birmingham and Clanton but now of Tampa, Fla., and grand daughter of Prof. and Mrs. J. W. Moore of this place. Mr. Ashburn is an employee of the First National Bank of Tampa. Immediately after the marriage the young couple took up housekeeping in their home in the city.

The young bride has a number of friends in Clanton among the younger set. She will be remembebred as having visited her grand parents as well as her aunt, Mrs. Roland W. Taylor, here last summer. All will join in wishing for her and Mr. Ashburn a long and happy life together.

Education Committe Favor Rural Schools

In Making Reports Upon Important Bills Before Legislature

In a joint meeting of education committees of the Senate and House last Thursday, educational bills appropriating $900,000 additional to the equalization fund, $600,000 to the rural school building and equipment fund, and $500,000 to a new fund for school transportation received a favorable vote from the committees.

This open meeting was held in an auditorium of the Jefferson Davis Hotel and was attended by more than three hundred leaders in public education, school board members, district trustees, and members of the American Legion. Dr. A. F. Harman, State Superintendent of Education, made a stirring appeal that the interests of children be placed ahead of any other, and that pledges of the Democratic party be redeemed. The most inspiring feature of the session, however, came when legionnaires who fought for Alabama in Western France, arose in this meeting and told in no uncertain terms of their desire to see the rising generation properly cared for.

Secretary of State Pete Jarman, Col. W. E. Persons, Captain Bill Bloom, and Captain Hargrave Van de Graff represented the Legion group as speakers and brought out some wild cheering from all present as they told what they think should be done for better citizenship in Alabama and as they demanded that "children be first and not corporations, officials, or departments."

Report of Investigation Made At County Poor House Tuesday

Commissioners Reach Conclusion That Recent Discussion and Criticism of Condition Was Founded Only Upon Prejudices of Two Men

Testimony Taken From Several Witnesses in Presence of Several Citizens Who Assembled in Response to Invitation of Commissioners Court.

Investigation of conditions at the County Poor House under supervision of the Commissioners Court of Chilton County was held Tuesday, according to announcement previously made by the court. In response to the invitation of the court for the public to attend and witness the investigation, quite a number of citizens were present.

The conditions of the poor house, as well as the care and treatment of the inmates was gone into thoroughly. Dr. Glenn Andrews, state prison inspector, was present in person. He read a report made to the Governor of Alabama, covering an investigation that was made by a representative of his department on June 8th.

After the investigation had been completed and all testimony heard, it was the opinion of the Commissioners Court that all of the recent criticism and discussion of conditions at the poor house had been brought about by the prejudice of two men.

Dr. S. C. Wood testified at the hearing Tuesday. He stated that he has been rendering medical attention to inmates of the poor house for nine years, and that "the food supply and sanitation is very much better under the administration of J. D. Bean than the others who preceeded him" as keepers of the poor house. He stated that he had found that the inmates have wholesome food, well prepared, and that the inmates of the poor house, in his judgment, live under conditoins better or equally as good as the average home in Chilton County. Dr. Wood stated he has seen "Grits, oatmeal, milk, butter, cornbread, biscuits, beef, beef soup, and various vegetables" served to the inmates of the poor house. He stated that no inmate has complained to him of being physically mistreated.

J. H. Teel, an inmate of the poor house, testified. He said "every morning we have biscuit and coffee, butter and syrup. Some mornings we have a scrambled egg and oatmeal; about five biscuits." For dinner he said "we have Irish potatoes, cabbage, or beans, cornbread, and a glass of water if we want it." For supper he said "we have corn bread and butter milk, and if there were any cold vegetables left over from dinner, we have that, and rice." He said he knew nothing about whippings going on at the poor house; that he has had plenty of clothing; that his bed is all right; plenty of fuel to make fires.

In regard to the whipping questions Alice Newton testified that he (supposedly meaning J. D. Bean) last July was a couple of years ago "came into my room and beat me with a stick, and he said I'll beat hell out of you. He beat me around in the room, and I decided he meant to kill me, and I stayed away for a couple of nights." The testimony of Alice Newton further says "My mind wasn't good," and "that is the only time he ever said anything to me." She stated she had no other complaint to make; that her bed is good; her clothing is all right; no complaint to make about the food. "My mind was bad then," she said, and "I got better after I got through with those shots."

Isaac Newton, an inmate, testified in regard to the whipping of his wife. He said when Dr. Wood was treating his wife, giving her shots, she ran away to keep from taking them. Her mind was bad, he said. She kept on running away, according to his testimony, and Mr. Bean gave her a little thrashing, hoping it would cause her to stay at the home and take her medicine. He said her mind got better after the treatment.

The testimony of Isaac Newton also dealt with the racket between Mr. Bean and Gip. He said "only one time he gave Gip one lick, and I'll be plain with you, me and him both had our hands full. We had to control him. He got to where he was dangerous. Mr. Bean was trying to control him and keep him down. He attacked me once with an axe. I mean Gip attacked me."

When asked if Lloyd Bean did not knock Gip down three times, Isaac Newton said "yes Gip attacked Lloyd two or thre times, and Lloyd had to do something with him." Getting back to his wife's case, Newton said "on one occasion I remember when my wife ran off I went down in the field after her. Mr. Bean went with me. I had to threaten her with my knife to get her to come back with me. One day my wife jumped on me and gave me a rollocking when I was coming from the kitchen with food."

Newton asserted in his testimony that Mr. Bean and his wife have been mighty good to the inmates, and that "we have had religious services since Mr. Bean has been here.

J. A. Shaver, an inmate, testified that his objections to the food were that "we don't have enough of it." He said he had no objections to any treatment, only the quantity of food.

Ellen Coodey, who lives three miles from the poor house, testified that one day she had been to Clanton and as she passed the poor house Mrs. Newton came out to ask her for some snuff and tobacco, and that Mrs. Bean hollered at her (Mrs. Newton) say "Get back in the house, yon nasty, stinking thing." The witness said Mr. Oliver Smith "came after me and brought me over here today."

Mrs. J. O. Smith testified that she saw Lloyd Bean knock Gip down three times. She also stated that inmates of the almshouse come to her home and say they are starving to death.

Oliver Smith, former keeper of the poor house said "the statement I want to make is just what I published in the paper;" that he saw J. D. Bean whip; and he saw Lloyd Bean knock Gip down. He said the state of his feelings toward Mr. and Mrs. Bean are bad. The witness told how he and J. D. Bean got into a fight some time back, because Bean's cows got in his field and ate up his cane patch. He said "I wrote in the paper charging that the bread and food was cold and badly prepared. I have not been on the premises since I had a fight with Mr. Bean last spring, 1930. However, I have passed near the poor house in the public road, which is some 25 yards from the house, and saw the food being carried from the houses to the inmates, and that is as near as I have been to the food, even though I wrote a letter describing the same. Before we had the fuss I was on the premises and could see that the bread was cold. I haven't been on the premises since we had the fight until today." He stated that he came today at the invitation of the Commissioner Court; that Bean paid him what he asked for the ribbon cane the cows ate up.

Bill Lawson, a negro, testified that he helped Mr. Bean bury one of the women of the poor house, stating "Mr. Bean got me to help bury her, and I really in a way thought it my duty, and since that they replied to me it was against the administration of a negro to help bury a white lady, and I toted the back end of the corpse." Continuing Lawson said "and through by Mr. John Allen on a Sunday when I was out there in a room with him he told me that they had killed a chicken with gout on his leg, something about that long, and said they could not eat it by no satisfaction."

J. R. Allen, an inmate of the poor house testified as to the food furnished the inmates. He said it is enough food, owing to how hungry a fellow is. He said "one day last week I was walking through the yard with a pair of ragged overalls on, and Mrs. Bean says if you have got any more overalls, put them on, and carry them to Mrs. Smith and get her to patch them for you, and I told her I ought to as nobody was doing my patching."

J. D. Bean, keeper of the poor house, testified that he has never whipped, beat or flogged any of the inmates. He said some of the inmates are childish and weak minded and hard to get along with, on account of their age. He said none of the inmates ever gave him any trouble until after the difficulty he had with Mr. Oliver Smith.

T. A. Maddox, former County Commissioner, testified that he lives seven-tenths of a mile from the poor house; that he had been officially responsible for looking after the poor house when he was commissioner; and that he has observed condi-

Boy Scouts Having Fine Summer Camp

Clanton Troop Represented By Twelve Boys At Spring Villa

Opelika., Ala., June 16.—"Everybody is happy and having a great time." This is a true statement spoken of the scouts at Camp Villa, the Boy Scout Camp of the Central Alabama area. Campers of last year and new campers, 60 of them, are having a wonderful time in camp. Dr. says this is twice the number ever to attend the camp at one time.

Camp director, John J. Sigwald and assistant director, E. J. Harris, of West Palm Beach, Fla., with the junior staff are working hard to put over one of the best camps in the Council's hostory.

Instructors from Alabama Polytechnic Institute go out to Camp each morning and instruct in Merit Badges.

Parents of scouts and friend of scouting are urged to visit the camp on visiting days, Thursdays and Sundays, and witness the fine instruction and outing the scouts are having.

An outstanding feature of the first week's encampment will be when the scout camp plays host to all the Mayors of Alabama, at their convention convening at that time. The scouts will give a water demonstration following their barbecue.

Improvements this year include the new Kiwanis mess hall, the bath house with showers given by the Rotary Club, as well as a drinking fountain, an infield to the baseball diamond and a sink and stove, the gift of the Opelika Jaycees. Along with the fine swimming pool and cabins, the camp is better equipped to carry on an extensive camping program.

ARTHUR CHILTON DISTRICT ATT'Y

Montgomery Lawyer Gets Appointment To Succeed Grady Reynolds

Announcement came from Washington last Friday that Arthur Chilton, Montgomery lawyer, had been appointed United States District Attorney at Montgomery, to succeed Grady Reynolds. It is expected that the new appointee will take over the affairs of the office about July 1st. Russell Kent, Washington correspondent of the Montgomery Advertiser, predicts a hot political battle when the name of Chilton gets to the United States for confirmation. He writes:

Sharp conflict over confirmation of the appointment of Arthur B. Chilton as United States Attorney for the Middle Alabama District is certain to mark the Senate session next Winter.

In giving Chilton a recess appointment Friday, President Hoover did two things; first, affording recognition to a 1928 Hoovercrat, and, second, pleasing former Senator Tom Heflin.

Chilton will succeed Grady Reynolds.

Incidentally, this succession will emphasize a split in the Republican ranks in Alabama, as Reynolds's father, who is probate Judge of Chilton County, has not been on close political terms with Republican National Committeeman Oliver D. Street. Street endorsed Chilton for the district attorneyship.

Heflin has been trying for months to get Chilton into the office. He and Horace Wilkinson went to the White House in behalf of Chilton early in December.

Senator John H. Bankhead, whose election is being contested by Heflin with the warm approval of the Republican cohorts in Washington and elsewhere, is opposed to Chilton holding the office of district attorney. Regardless of whether he is seated before Chilton's nomination is placed before the Senate next December or the election contest drags on beyond that time, Bankhead is in a position to cause Chilton much trouble.

Chilton served on Tom Heflin's imposing staff, presumably at the expense of the Federal taxpayers, for a brief period a month ago in connection with recounting the ballots from the Alabama senatorial election.

REV. JONES ANNOUNCES REVIVAL MEETINGS

Rev. J. W. Jones, of Thorsby, announces revival meetings during the month of July, as follows:

At Jemison, beginning July 5th, and continuing for a period of ten days. At this meeting with the pastor will be Rev. I. W. Myers, of Vinemont.

At Samaria beginning July 19, and continuing for one week. The pastor, Rev. Jones, will conduct the services at Samaria, unassisted.

At Thorsby Baptist Church beginning July 26th. The pastor will have with him in this meeting, Rev. F. M. Barnes, pastor of the Clayton Street Baptist Church, of Montgomery.

28 ARRESTS MADE

Chief Deputy James Gillespie announces that from the 1st through the 15th of June there has been a total of twenty-eight arrests made by Sheriff W. H. Gillespie and his force of deputies. Twenty of these were for violating the prohibition law; two for driving car while intoxicated; one for assault with weapon; three for manufacturing liquor; and two for assault and battery. Bonds for the violators ranged in amounts from $200 to $500. Some have been released on bond and some still remain in the Montgomery jail where they were carried when arrested. Seven of the violators were negroes.

In the operations during these two weeks two distilling outfits were destroyed—one a 35-gallon capacity and the other a 250-gallon capacity. Both stills were in operation; two men were arrested at the time the stills were destroyed, and two other men who ran away were later taken into custody. At both stills about 300 gallons of beer were destroyed and about 5 gallons of whiskey.

Together with the arrests for violating the prohibition laws two Ford automobiles were seized for confiscation.

ATTENTION, BAPTISTS OF CHILTON COUNTY AND UNITY ASS'N

Begin today to plan to attend the Missions and Methods Institute which will be held in Clanton for three days beginning June 30.

Men, don't dismiss it as a woman's affair. It is for men. W. M. S. members don't think you are the only ones who ought to go. It is for all children and young people. Pastors, please do not think this lets you out, it is especially for pastors.

Everybody is invited. A program is being planned that will be interesting and valuable to all. The very best speakers are being secured. Dr. Dawson will be here to deliver an address each day. Some fine missionaries will be secured. Mrs. F. A. Vernon, vice president of the Eastern District; Mrs. L. H. Dawson, district young people's leader; Miss Kathleen Hagood, state young peoples secretary; Rev. John Cunningham, state R. A. Counselor; and many others.

Baptist boys, begin to practice up on base ball, too. Some of those R. A. chapters from Billingsley, Maplesville, Marbury, or Clanton will beat you, if you don't look out. Mulberry or Sardis will make it hard for you too. There will be fun and play for the young folks as well as information and inspiration.

The superintendents of Chilton and Unity W. M. U. urge all pastors to begin to talk up these meetings, as well as to plan to come themselves. They begin each morning at ten o'clock and will last through the day. There will be no night sessions, but Clanton will gladly entertain all who will stay each night.

Plan to attend each day and bring all the family and the neighbors.—Mrs. S. J. Ezell, Superintendent of Unity W. M. U.

An apple a day will keep the doctor away provided that you don't take it in the form of applejack.

Cheer up, in a few weeks more all of the state legislatures will have adjourned for a period of two years.

OBITUARY

On Saturday, April 18, Mrs. Bessie Durbin Harris, wife of Grover C. Harris, rural carrier on Route No. 3, died at Memorial Hospital in Montgomery, Ala.

Mrs. Harris was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Durbin, of Fairview community, Chilton County.

She is survived by her husband, G. C. Harris, County President R. L. C. A., a son, Grover C. Harris, Jr., and a daughter, Elizabeth.

Mrs. Harris was a devotedly religious woman, uniting with the church when quite young. She was a member of Clanton Baptist Church, and was active in conducting Sunbeam work, beginners department, and W. M. U. work. Also, she was Past Worthy Matron Order Eastern Star.

Her health failed about five years ago, and she spent a great deal of time in hospitals.

A good woman has gone to her reward.

Therefore, be it resolved, that we bow in humble submission to Him who doeth all things well.

Resolved further, that a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of our Association, a copy be sent the family, the national rural letter carrier, and each of the county papers. Respectfully submitted.—G. H. Caffey, Q. C. Meroney.

It is said that Mr. Mellon may advocate a national gas tax. Just think how much money we could raise in Congress from this!

Now is the time for you to build that "house by the side of the road" you have waited so long for. Construction costs haven't been so cheap in a long time.

It seems that in New York or Chicago if you want to know how good a policeman is you consult his banker.—Dayton (Ohio) News.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp. County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

GENERAL CONDITIONS OF THE FARMS IMPROVED

General conditions on the farms of Alabama on June 1 were notably better than at the same time last year, according to a report issued by F. W. Gist, agricultural statictician for the state and federal departments of agriculture.

The condition of winter wheat was 81 per cent of normal cost, indicating an acre-yield of 12 bushels. This is the best yield of wheat obtained in Alabama for several years, and while the acreage grown to wheat is very small, it is gratifying to know that wheat does not yield well in the state, a larger yield in fact than in many of the states of large acreage.

The condition of oats on June 1 was 85 per cent of normal, indicting an acre yield of 24 bushels, which is also above the average yield for Alabama. Sufficient moisture and cool May have contributed to this good yield, and the crop is of good stalk with unusually heavy heads. The acreage is larger than for some years, and the crop will materially supplement the short feed crop of last year.

Hay condition is better than last year at this time, 79 against 72, but about the acreage of past years, while pasture conditions are in somewhat the same relation to previous years.

The condition of early Irish potatoes was 83 per cent of normal, compared with 83 last year when we had an average of 77.

We have another good peach crop, the condition being 77 compared with the same figure last year and an average of 65. The total crop is forecast at 1,292,000 bushels this year.

Fifty-six per cent of the cows were being milked on June 1, compared with 61 per cent last year, while the yield of milk per cow milked was 1.63 gallons this year compared with 1.59 last year.

Egg production was 45 per 100 hens, compared with 43 a year ago, and there were 219 young chicks per 100 hens against 251 last year.

Farm labor was reported plentiful, the ratio between supply and demand being 155 this year against 114 last June. This indicated that farmers are doing their work to save cash expenditures.

ROOSTERS CAUSE BAD EGGS DURING SUMMER

Auburn, Ala., June 16.—Either selling, killing, or penning roosters during hot weather when eggs are not used for hatching is recommended by H. R. Bailey, extension poultryman at Auburn. If this is done by every poultrymen in Alabama, loss totalling well into the hundreds of thousads of dollars will annually be saved, he said.

"The rooster does not increase egg production," continued Mr. Bailey. "He merely fertilizes the germ of the egg. The hot days have the same effect on the egg as the hen or the incubator. Heat is the great enemy of eggs—both fertile and infertile. When the blood ring forms in a fertile egg it is unsuited for food or market purposes.

"If proper conditions are made, the egg is as nearly a perfect food product as one can find. To have this good egg, the hens must be well fed, the nests kept clean, and the eggs gathered twice daily and stored in a cool, clean place. The customer gladly pays an increased price for such an egg but gives a sigh of disgust if the eggs come to him dirty and partly decayed."

If trooster is an ordinary bird he should be killed or sold with a view to buying one of better breeding before the next hatching season. If the breeding is what is wanted he should be penned.

Each year bad eggs come to the market in large numbers during the hot weather, especially mid-summer. They are caused by allowing the rooster to run with the laying flock after the hatching season is over; by gathering eggs only once a day, and by storing them in a warm place poorly vetilated, and marketing infrequently or only when a case has been filled.

IMPROVED MARKETS NEWS FOR ALABAMA FARMERS

Inauguration of a plan that will save the state of Alabama $8,336 annually and give Alabama farmers an improved market news service over WSFA, Montgomery, WAPI, Birmingham, and WODX, Mobile, after July 1st was announced Monday by Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture and industries.

The $8,336 saving will be effected by the department discontinuation of the leased wire from Montgomery to Birmingham and used daily for the broadcast of the market news over WSFA ann WAPI. Commissioner Storrs made it plain that discontinuing the wire will in no way destroy the market news service, but will instaed improve it.

At present all the markets and crops of the state are broadcast from Montgomery studios of WAPI and WSFA. Since South Alabama farmers are interested in citrus fruit and truck crop quotations, central Alabama farmers in hay, hog, cattle, and cotton and other qhotations of different crops to that of South Alabama and the farmers of north Alabama is still another group of products, it is considered a waste of time and effort to broadcast all the markets over all the stations.

After July 1st only the markets of interest to the section in which the station is located will be given over the station. This will be announced from the studios of each station.

Where the deparment is at present spending $8,336 annually or $728 per month for leased wire to get the market news to WAPI, in the future it will use telegraph service which is estimated will cost less than $500 per year, Mr. Storrs said.

BRIEF NEWS ITEMS

In 1921 Alabama had, according to the census, 256,099 farms; 237,631 in 1925; and 257,396 in 1930.

The American Federation of Labor estimates that a combination of wage cuts, part-time employment, and unemployment has cost American workers more than $2,500,000,000 in wages to date in 1931.

James A. Ferrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation and chairman of the National Foreign Trade Council, recently expressed a conviction that our worst experiences are behind us and that we are gradually entering upon a period of increasing trade activity.

The Federal census reported the values of Alabama farm lands and buildings in 1920 to be $543,657,755 against $504,756,249, in 1930. This was a substantial decline in values. The value of implements and machinery on Alabama farms was $34,366,217 in 1920 and $33,699,496 in 1930,, according to the census.

The U. S. Department of agriculture says that the general level of farm prices on May 15 was at 86 per cent of the pre-war level, or 38 points below a year ago and the lowest since 1910. The tendency of practically all major farm products was downward from April 15 to May 15, the report said.

A press dispatch from Brussels says that there is great demand for grapefruit in Belgium with prospects that large plantings would be made by American growers. The dispatch mentions accidental discovery of the fact that grapefruit has received the medical palm as a fat reducer. It mentions that in horse racing circles jockeys wishing to reduce, have abandoned Turkish baths and India rubber belts in favor of grapefruit before breakfast.

Prosperity may be just around the corner but the trouble is there is a gasoline filling station right on the corner.

Some people see calamity in a bumper wheat crop this year, but so far as we are concerned, we have never been able to see how the average farmer could make any money out of a crop failure.

THE BOY SCOUTS

(By Sereno G. Norton)

The Union-Banner is privileged to publish this week a letter from Mr. Sereno G. Norton, to his father, S. E. Norton, of Thorsby, dealing with the subject of Boy Scout Work.

We commend the statements of the writer of this letter particularly to all adult readers of this paper. Every grown person should have a hearty interest in Boy Scout Work. As stated by Mr. Norton, it is a movement of incalcuable value to the rising generation. Every person should grasp every opportunity to help and encourage the work of Boy Scouts.

The letter of Mr. Norton is as follows:

Dear Father:

Your letetr inquiring what I think of scouting is very interesting.

I have been connected with this work almost continuously, in some capacity, since 1912, when I organized the first troop in Thorsby. My present duties are chairman of Troop 2 Committee, and member of Brunswick District Committee in charge of troop organization.

I could tell you numberless instances of what I have seen scouting do for boys, but I think the most valuable single contribution to boy life is the development of initiative, leadership and a definite aim in life. Since it is the one organization to which a boy is admitted at his own request, and in which his continuance depends on his own efforts, the development of these characteristics is natural. In school or Sunday school he is sent, mostly does as he is told, because it is the easiest way, and comes out very little nearer to being master of his soul, than when he went in.

I could give you data on the effect of the movement on good citizenship. A recent comprehensive survey of jails and prisons throughout the country found not a single prisoner who had been a scout. I could mention cases of usefulness, where lives have been saved or lost persons rescued, through the training that some scout put to use at the proper time, in fact, I could fill pages with specified instances of the value of this training. But back of it all, we who are familiar with the movement recognize something in a scout which is fine, and dependable; something which is seldom seen in outsiders.

Our schools develop boys mentally, our Sunday schools, morally (when they can get the boys), but scouting makes men and citizens of them; men fitted to take positions of leadership in their communities and unafraid of life at it's best.

An example of the fundamental worth of scouting is the grip it has on men who are in it. Once having taken part in scout work, either as scoutmaster, committeeman, or executive and by personal contact having gotten the spirit of the thing, very few men can drop it. If they are temporarily inactive, you always find them ready to pitch in again, when a scouting job is found for them.

If by any means in your power, you can bring scouting to boys who have not experienced it, you will have given them something incalculably fine.—Yours, Sereno.

Hoover Blames Pessimism for Decline in Trade Conditions

Calls Upon People of America to Cast Aside Fear and Everyone Work Together For Better Times

Indianapolis, June 15.—President Hoover tonight called upon the Nation to banish all fears and pessimism so that America may ride out of the business depression on a broad highway, paved with courage and confidence.

Speaking before the Indiana Republican Editorial Association, he said this is "opr immediate paramount task as a people." In addition he saw as the transdecendant momentary need, a larger degree of confidence among our business agencies, a confidence not only confined to mere words.

The chief executive vigorously defended the administration's policies in dealing with depression, praised the efforts of industry and organized labor to minimize its unfortunate results, and said the underlying forces of recovery are asserting themselves.

The things the federal government is doing, he described as follows:

"We have assured the country from panic and its hurricane of bankruptcy by coordinated action between the treasury, Federal Reserve System, the banks, the farm loan and farm board system.

"We have steadily urged the maintenance of wages and salaries.

"We have reserved the traditional policy in depressions of reducing expenditures on construction work. We are maintaining a steady expansion of ultimatly needed construction work in cooperation with state, municipalities and industries.

"We have sustained the people in 21 states who have suffered disaster from the drouth.

"We are giving aid and support to farmers in marketing their crops.

Through the tariff we are saving our farmers and workmen from being overcome with goods from foreign countries.

"We are holding down taxation by exclusion of every possible governmental expenditure not absolutely essential or needed to increase employment or assistance to the farmers.

"We are maintaining and will maintain systematic voluntary organization in the community and in aid of employment and care of distress.

"We propose to go forward with these major activities.

From each previous depression, Mr. Hoover said, the nation has emerged with a valuabble lesson learned.

"From this one," he added, "we shall gain stiffened and economic discipline, a greater knowlege upon which we must build a better safeguarded system. We have come out of each previous depression into a period of prosperity greater than ever before. We shall do so this time."

Out of the troubled times, he said, the country will emerge determined to examine searchingly the banking system which allowed wasteful speculation; a taxation system which intensified dumping of securities on a falling marketing system which lends itself to illigitimate speculation.

Analyzing the depression, he said its major causes rooted back into the World War or otherwise recovery would have taken place long ago, in spite of this country's contributing erorts in the way of wild speculation, loose and extravagant business methods, and unprecedented drouth.

With the whole world plunged into hard times as a result of inheritances from the war, mounting armament, and huge taxes, it was inevitable, he added, that this country would be involved.

Marvelous resources in land, mines mills and man-power combined with good harvest prospects, were the underlying forces of recovery which, he said, would heal the economic wound.

Congratulating leaders of industry and labor on cooperation to maintain the American living standard, Mr. Hoover asserted that never in history had there been so little social disorder in times of depression. This, he said, was the result of the general efforts to maintain industrial peace and is a permanent gain in national solidarity.

He outlined expansion of useful public works, establishment of widespread Federal employment agencies, and maintenance of the tariff as the greatest contributions the Federal Government can make to recovery without resorting to doles, Federal operation of business, or a general lowering of the living standard.

Noting proposals that recovery could be expidited by revising the tariff, Mr. Hoover vigorously asserted nothing could so prolong the depression as a session of Congress devoted to this purpose.

'We shall have full faith and confidence in those mighty resources, those intellectual and spiritual forces which have impelled this nation to a success never before known to history of the world," he concluded.

"Far from being impaired, these forces were never stronger than at this moment. Under the guidance of divine providence they will return to us a greater and more wholesome prosperity than we have ever known before."

Campaign Has Nothing to do With the Bob Jones College

Relative To State-Wide Revival In January Next

Emphatically denying rumors that the proposed state-wide revival meetings for next January are in any way connected with Bob Jones College, Rev. Jones has sent the following letter to all committees who have been enlisted in connection with the meetings:

I understand that certain rumors are current in your section to the effect that the proposed state-wide evangelistic campaign for next January is intended to promote the interest of the Bob Jones College, to raise money for the college, and to "sell" the institution to the people of the State of Alabama. Let me say the following:

The Bob Jones College stands for the old time religion and will naturally be interested in the success of the evangelistic campaign. However, this campaign is not sponsored by the Bob Jones College, and as far as I know, the name of the institution will never be mentioned in connection with the campaign. We do not expect the college to profit in any way. I am sponsoring the campaign personally. I am doing it without money and without price, and without hope of reward in this world. I am requesting each evangelist to send a small percentage of his free-will offering to headquarters in Montgomery to take care of the advanced money I am now putting up for the salary and expenses of Mr. Haymaker, and other expenses. If there isn't enough money from this percentage to take care of the money advanced, I will take care of it personally. If there is more than enough money I will return it to the evangelist.

I happen to know practically all the evangelists in this country, and my connections are interdenominational. I am simply using what connections I have to try to persuade the communities to have a revival during January, 1932, and I am offering to assist them in securing the right type man to lead the campaign.

The campaign is non-political. It is intended for just one thing—to win people to Jesus Christ. That is all.

It is not our intention to force the campaign on any community. I would not think of asking an evangelist to go to a community where all the leaders of the churches are unfriendly. As a matter of fact, as things now stand, so many communities want the meetings that the indications are we will have a hard time securing enough successful men to lead the campaign.

I am happy to know that many of the people of your community desire to share in the blessing I believe the Lord has in store for Alabama.

If your community prefers to get its own evangelist or leader and prefers to have its own meeting and direct its own campaign, we shall be very glad to get out of the way altogether. However, knowing the evangelists as I do and knowing the type of each community, I believe I can be of real service. We all know that the country needs a great revival. Mr. Haymaker tells me that he found a real desire for a revival in your community and I sincerely trust that the power of God may be manifest in a wonderful way.

This letter is being mimeographed and sent to all the names of the committees from your community. You will be glad to know that the people, not only in Alabama, but throughout the country are praying for a great revival in Alabama next January. Hundreds of cottage prayer meetings are being held every Wednesday morning and thousands of people are praying daily for a great revival. May God bless you personally, and may we all be big enough to get rid of all our little prejudices and unite in just this one thing of bringing thousands of people to the Lord Jesus Christ during the month of January, 1932.—Yours sincerely, Bob Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Truell Smith of Haynes were visitors to friends at Mitchell Dam and Clanton last week end. They spent Saturday fishing on Lake Mitchell.

GEORGE WASHINGTON HAD TO OVERCOME BOYISH OBSTACLES

It is an old story that George Washington, master of Mount Vernon, Commander-in-Chief of the Revolutionary Army, and first president of the United States, was one of the richest men of his time. That is the George Washington as pictured to American schoolboys in their history books. Most Boys and many of their elders, will be surprised, and perhaps inspired, by the reminder that as a boy George Washisgton was poor. Not only that, he had little schooling, aid very early had to buckle down and pnepase to eahn his own living.

The Division of Information and Publication of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission has been at pains to revive some of these forgotten facts of Washington's life, at a time when he was young enough to be called George.

His father, Augustine Washington, was a fairly rich man, as men were rated in those days. That is, he owned many acres of good Virginia land, but like nearly all others of his kind, he was, property poor. In line with the custom of the time, Augustine Washington, at his death, left the bulk of his property to his eldest son. Thus the estate passed into the hands of George's half-brother, Lawrence, fourteen years his senior.

George himself, a devoted son, willingly accepted for the best whatever his father had devised. His half-brother Lawrence, came into possession of the now-famous estate on the Potomac known as Mount Vernon. His other half-brother Augustine inherited "Wakefield," the place where George himself was born. To George was left the farm at Fredericksburg, but subject to his mother's control as long as he remained a minor. The widow Washington had also some property of her own in the neighborhood, but she had little money. George was but eleven years old when his father died. There were five other children. And working the farm meant hard work and close management for Mary Bell Washington.

Fortunately for herself and for George, she was a shrewd and able woman. Much of George's character is thought to have come to him from his mother.

How One Woman Lost 47 Lbs.

IN THREE MONTHS AND FEELS YEARS YOUNGER

Mrs. S. A. Solomon of New Bern, N. C., lost 47 pounds in 3 months with Kruschen Salts. She reduced from 217 to 170 pounds. She feels much stronger, years younger and pains in sides, back and abdomen that bothered her for years are all gone. She says she not only feels better but looks better as all her friends tell her.

"I shall never be without Kruschen Salts, will never cease taking my daily dose and more than glad to highly recommend it for the great good that is in it."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but 85 cents at Alred Drug Company, and druggists the world over. Take one half teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast.

Attention to diet will help—cut out pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—the Kruschen way is the safe way to lose fat. Try one bottle and if not joyfully satisfied—money back.

THORSBY SECTION

Troop No. 43, Thorsby, Ala., such is the designation on the charter received last week from National Headquarter, New York. With it came certificates of enrollment for five members of the troop committee, one scoutmaster and two assistant scoutmasters, also nine Boy Scouts, making a group of seventeen men and boys of Thorsby as a nucleus or a starter, in this nationwide organization, devoted chiefly to training in good citizenship.

By courtesy of the Masonic Order in Thorsby, the boys are permitted to use the vacant store in the Masonic building, as their place of meeting, each Friday at 7:30. By Thorsby Institute, which sponsors the troop, comfortable seats have been provided. On Friday of this week at 6:00 p.m., arrangements have been made to give examinations for new scouts designated as "tenderfoot."

Last Friday night the troop was visited by Mr. C. E. Stapp, Chilton County Farm Agent, who has much to do with boy scout organizations, and Mr. Calloway, scoutmaster of the Clanton troop. Both gave talks that were very interesting, and revealed an opportunity to our boys to spend a week in the district scout camp near Opelika, under trained leaders in all scout activities. This is something much desired and needed by every Boy Scout and it is hoped that they will grasp the opportunity to learn what all scouts should know, and that their parents will appreciate the benefits to be derived from it, and encourage the boys to go, as it is not very expensive. The camp will be available for Thorsby and Clanton Scouts June 22nd to 29th all next week. Details of information are expected for the meeting on Friday night of this week.

There will be a singing service at the Congregational church after the Christian Endeavor meeting.

Mis Marian Fairbank, who is in the Baptist Hospital at Birmingham, is reported to be on the road to recovery.

Mrs. Martha J. Primm returned to her home in Thorsby Saturday, after visiting her grandchildren and children in Birmingham, and elsewhere, for about three weeks. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. E. N. Brown of Tuskegee, Alabama.

Mr. and Mrs. Spurgeon Calloway, Mrs. Mack Gray and Mrs. R. R. Franklin and Peggy Mims, returned Sunday night after a week's tour in the southwest. They visited many places of interest in Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, covering upwards of 2,100 biles enroute.

At Shreveport, they visited the radio station of W. K. Henderson, where he broadcasts his daily news. This station is the personal property of Mr. Henderson and is well equipped for the purpose of broadcasting.

At Vicksburg they visited the National Cemetery, where thousands of Confederate soldiers who lost their lives in the Civil War lie, buried amid beautiful and well kept environment. They stopped at Fort Worth and Dallas, here they ascended to the 36th floor of a skyscraper, and could feel the swaying of the building in the wind.

They were much interested in the great wheat fields of Louisiana, where great pumps are employed to supply water for flooding the fields. In another section of the same state they saw thousands of acres of sugar cane fields, in the territory that supplies the great sugar mills at New Orleans, which they discovered to be a large and beautiful city, but with no high buildings.

Coming back along the waterfront of the Gulf on first class highways, they saw for the first time the vast expanse of the ocean, with shipping and commerce under way in one of the busiest sections of this country. The whole scene and the trip affording a panorama they will never forget.

Mrs. J. C. Harrell of New Orleans and Mrs. L. M. Holt of Mobile are visiting Mrs. Clyde Sims for a week, before Mr. and Mrs. Sims leave for Shreveport, La.

Will Hayes Against Local County Bills

I guess you will be surprised to get a letter from me but I would appreciate you publishing my views on the Chilton County local bills that are before the legislature.

As a tax payer of Chilton County, I object to the bills. I feel that those who handle the affairs of the entire county ought to be elected by the people all over the county. One Commissioner has, or can have, as much to do with the affairs of the entire county as another and he should have the right, therefore it does not look right to me for a small group in one district of the county, say one-twelfth or one-fifteenth of the voters of the county to designate one-fourth of the governing part of the county and on the other hand the larger district, say the Fourth, which has I would guess, most ½ of the voters in the county living in it and probably most one-half of the roads in it, just electing one-fourth of the governing force of the county in a financial way. It does not look nor sound like Democracy to me.

Practically the same thing will apply to the election of the chool board by districts, as outlined by said bills.

So far as electing the County Superintendent of Education by popular vote is concerned, the way I see it, the County Superintendent is a clerk of the school board, or an agent through which the board does business, the board being responsible for the acts of the superintendent, just as the commissioners do through their clerk, road overseer or truck driver, so if we elect one, why not the other? I do not think it right.

We used to elect one man to superintend our schools and we left it all to him, now instead of electing one man we elect five men to run and manage our school business and give them authority to select a man or woman competent to assist and advise them and that is the Superintendent. The Superintendent is not a member of the school board. He never has a right to vote on any question or matter that comes before the board and has no say-so about the affairs of the board, unless it suits the board. I believe the members of the school board should be elected by the entire county and choose whom they desire as their clerk or county superintendent so long as they meet the qualifications set up by the state.

It appears to me we would be electing two agencies to do the same work, each independent of the other. I think a bill to elect the County Superintendent should also abolish the school board of the county for it appears to me it might happen that the two agencies for the self same purpose and they being entirely separate and distinct agencies responsible to the people for their acts and not to each other, might work a disadvantage to the best interest of the schools and to the children, which interest is the main object after all and not the satisfaction of some men or some set of men.

I hope the people will take these few thoughts and ideas for what they are worth and consider them seriously. I wish to state further that I believe in the people and that they should elect all their governing officers by all the people. Yours very truly, W. H. Hayes.

ABOUT BOY SCOUTS

Telegram just received from John J. Sigwald, regional manager of boy scouts, with headquarters at Opelika, Ala., says in reference to taking boy scouts at their training camp near Opelika:

"We can accomodate six boys from your Thorsby Troop, from noon Saturday, June 20, to Saturday morning, June 27th. The total cost while here will be $5.50. Thorsby scouts who can go should see Mr. Norton at once as he is trying to arrange for transportation both ways at lowest cost possible.

The Vacation Day Bible School at Thorsby is now well under way at the public school building, with Misses Alta Each, Hazel Maddox and Lois Thompson. There were 48 children in attendance. At the night meeting in the Baptist Church, 70 were present, where Mr. T. J. York, a prominent layman Bible teacher is conducting the meetings for this week, and giving very interesting addresses on stewardship. The morning meetings begin at 8 a. m. and the night meetings at 7:30. Everybody who can should attend these meetings.

MOTHERS DAY LETTER FROM ERNEST JONES

My Dear Mother:

Will write you a few lines as I haven't anything else I can do. Just now everything is so wet, it sure has been raining here for the last day or two, and I don't think the weather is settled yet, although the sun is shining.

Well, I guess you all are done planting there. I haven't got but about 5 acres of cotton planted, and may have that to plant over, and still have about 10 acres more to plant; and I'm not through planting corn yet. I will have a pretty good sized crop this time, but I have got something that is able to pull a plow and go on.

Mother, I know you were proud to see Calvin come home, and tell him I said for him not to fool me, but be sure to come to stay about a week if he can. He may not get much to eat, but surely he can stand it a few days if we do all the time; and I will try to meet him at Carrollton any time he will let me know.

Well, Mother, I haven't heard from you since I wrote, but I think next Sunday is Mothers Day. That is the reason I'm writing at this time. Not because I don't think of mother only on Mothers Day, but I am glad that some one had the thought to institute such a day, to remind us of the many things mother did for us.

Mother, I can look back now and see the things that you did for me that I was not worthy of, or thankful for; but I want to thank you for them now. Some things come to my mind that I had long ago forgotten, but they come now with such force that it makes me heartsick. I can remember, Mother, and see you too, but you might not know that I heard when you used to kneel in the kitchen by the old cupboard and pray for us all, and God has answered your prayers, too, in that He has been with you and with the rest of the boys and girls, but all of them might not know it.

He is with them just the same. You might not have known that I heard your prayers, Mother, but many a night I have heard you when all the rest were gone to bed; but those pleading words came to me, and I haven't forgotten them. Although your prayers were in secret, God will reward you openly, as His word says if not here then hereafter.

I went to a Memorial Service last Sunday and sure heard some good preaching. I heard the same man preach just a year ago, I may have written you about it, but anyway, it was good. Mother, we expect to have prayer meeting here at our home again Saturday night. We will remember you.

Well, Mother, I can't be with you Sunday, can't place any roses in your hand, or any kisses on your cheeks, although I know I owe them, God will carry our love and prayers, one to the other. Tell the boys who are there to remember Mothers Day and stay with her that day, and give her the love she so much deserves. Would to God that I could be there, but I can't be at this time. Not forgetting my dear old Daddy, but wishing him much improvement in health. —I remain your loving son and brother, Ernest Jones, Roopville, Ga.

WEST CHILTON

Very dry in this locality. Crops small, oat crop is unusually good. Gardens needing rain very much.

Rev. Lawrence filled his appointment at Macedonia Sunday, and delivered a good sermon. Several visitors were present, viz. Rev. Freeman of Randolph, Mr. McDaniel, superintendent of education of Autauga County, D. H. Hodgens and son of Thorsby, Mr. Rasco and son of Pleasant Grove.

The singing at Freeman last Sunday afternoon was good and well attended. Nearly all the local singers were present and several visitors, viz. Rev. Scott, John Esken, Uncle John Hayes, Commissioner Cobb and Mrs. Holsomback. There will be singing there again on the afternoon of the first Sunday in July in the old book.

Manley Atchison of Clanton was here Sunday among his old friends and relatives.

Mr. Pratt Crumpton, Mr. Gore and son, L. D., and Vance Atchison went down Six Mile fishing Saturday night, going down as far as the Southern Railroad. They had very good success.

Our people are not complaining about hard times like they are in some places. Over in Texas there is much complaint. Many causes set forth. Many solutions and remedies or panaceas suggested. It may be that all human solutions will prove to be only panaceas. Occasionally some one suggests there is no permanent relief for us only in the Redeemer's coming Kingdom. Here in Alabama, we are staggering under a burden of taxation. Tax reduction would be welcome, but will we ever get it?

Rev. Mr. Dyer has gone to Tuscaloosa to take a teacher's course.

Mr. Rasco and family were visitors at Mr. Pratt Crumpton's Sunday.

E. H. Waldrop went to Boothton Saturday.

We will have to give the internationalists credit for one thin: up to this time they haven't suggested that Uncle Sam ought to finance all the revolutions in Europe, although they have wanted him to finance about everything.

DEATH OF JOE BLACKMON

The death angel visited the home of Mrs. E. D. W. Shirley on June 9th, and bore the spirit of our kind and loving father and grandfather, age 85 years, to the great beyond.

Mr. Joe Blackmon had to mourn his loss, seven children, four girls and three boys—Mrs. Della Shirley of Lomax; Mrs. Lizzie Blackmon of Montevallo Route 2; Mrs. Mable Farr, Birmingham; Mrs. Urre Howell, Columbiana; Mr. Andrew Blackmon, Talladega; Mr. Ellis Blackmon, Goodwater; Mr. E. G. Blackmon, Siluria; several grand children and great grandchildren, and a host of friends and other relatives.

Oh, it was so hard to give him up, but the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away. Blessed be the name of the Lord. We feel assured that our loss was Heaven's gain, as he told us he was ready to go.

Mr. Blackmon was carried back to his old home place near Columbiana by Mr. Hawkins, undertaker of Anniston. Funeral services were held by Elder Tucker, Rev. Ezell and Rev. Woolley.

ELIZABETH YVONNE BOWLES

On the afternoon of June the 2nd, about 4:30 o'clock, the angel of death visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Bowles and carried their little girl home to rest.

She was two months old, and had been sick only a few days with pneumonia. Dear loved ones, weep not for Yvonne, for we know that she has gone to dwell with God and the angels in Heaven. It was hard to give her up, but God, in His wisdom, knew best, and took her out of the sins and sorrow of this world.

She was laid to rest in Bethsalem cemetery Wednesday.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

Ralph Modjeski

Few of us are fortunate enough to make our early dreams come true.

But Ralph Modjeski has done so. The world's foremost bridge builder, holder of the John Fritz gold medal, the highest honor that the engineers of the United States can confer on a member of their profession, dreamed, as a lad of fifteen, of becoming a great engineer. He sacrificed one career that held high promise and overcame an initial failure to achieve his ambition.

This genius in the construction field was born in Cracow, Poland, in 1861. He was the son of Mme. Helena Modjeska, famous tragedienne. His father was a director of theatrical companies. As a lad he traveled with his parents through the country sections. Often the troupe made its journey in wagons.

It was hard but an enjoyable and instructive life. Young Ralph, like so many children of theatrical folks, was a juvenile actor of ability. He played children's roles in either German or Polish in his father's companies.

He was taught by tutors while traveling about the country. He didn't enter school until he was over nine. Then he took up his studies in Cracow. There he became a piano pupil of Cazimir Hofmann, father of Josef Hofmann. Young Modjeski possessed such high musical talent that friends of the family were certain he would become as famous a pianist as his mother was on the dramatic stage.

But when Madame Modjeska came to this country in 1876 and brought her son with her, Ralph was thinking of other things than music. While he did not neglect his piano practice, he was beginning to think in terms of construction and to dream his dreams of becoming an engineer. The artist in music was making way for the artist in steel.

The newcomers to America lived in Hoboken for a time because expenses were less there. Then they went to California and bought a farm. They knew nothing of agriculture. Their savings dwindled fast. Their first income from the venture was obtained when Ralph lasooed a neighbor's calf that had gone astray. His reward amounted to three dollars.

Madame Modjeska learned English. She made her American debut in San Francisco to which she and Ralph moved. There he, too, quickly learned the language of his adopted land. All the while his mother insisted that he continue with his music. He practiced much while he was acting as advance agent for Madame Modjeska on her first tour of the United States in the year 1877.

But his dreams were becoming more insistent. While he liked the life of travel, the atmosphere of the theater, the company of artists, there was something lacking. His own career as a musician seemed promising enough yet he finally cast it aside to take up the profession of engineering.

He sailed for France in 1878 to study for the entrance examinations to the famous Ecole des Ponts et Chaussees (School of Bridges and Roads). He worked hard on his books. Still he failed in the examinations and didn't qualify for entrance. It was a bitter disappointment to the youngster.

Out of that failure grew a determination to conquer the task he had set for himself. He stuck to his books, definitely deciding to pass up a musical career for that of engineering—one of the hardest and most exacting of the professions. His perseverence was rewarded. When next he tried the examinations he stood fourth on the list. Before the end of the year he reached the top of his class in scholarship. He maintained that standing throughout his course.

Graduating with honors from the Ecole des Ponts et Chaussees, he was a marked young man in the engineering profession from the outset of his career as a bridge builder. He has lived up to his early promise and today is rated as one of the greatest engineers in the world.

It is estimated that Ralph Modjeski had been the directing genius back of almost $200,000,000 worth of bridges. The structures he has designed span mighty rivers in many parts of the world.

The Ambassador bridge, connecting Michigan and Ontario, Canada, the greatest suspension bridge in the world, is a monument to his ability.

He built the Dalaware River bridge, supervised part of the construction of the Manhattan bridge and the Quebec bridge over the St. Lawrence. With these and many other great structures to his credit, Ralph Modjeski has accomplished what so many of us fail to do. He has, indeed, made his dreams come true to the great benefit of the traveling public.

POULTRY

SUMMER CULLING

(By Prof. A. G. Phillips)

In the year 1931, it is very practical that all poultry keepers practice rapid culling of their laying flock, beginning in June. When egg prices are low and poultry meat a reasonable price, it is profitable to sell every laying hen as soon as she ceases laying. A non-layer in June or July is a loss, regardless of the price of eggs or the cost of feed. She has been a poor layer and will never be any different in months to come.

Poultry meat prices are higher in 1931, in proportion to feed and egg prices than they were in 1930. These will become lower as the fall months approach. It is, therefore, economical to sell unsatisfactory birds now so that money may be available to buy egg mash for the better birds to keep up summer production, or to buy mash for growing pullets. In many flocks it will be practical to eliminate about 25 per cent of the birds in June, this figure increasing to about 50 per cent by September or late August.

Many farmers are faced with the problem of financing the growing of pullets. With a short chick crop in 1931, there is indication that the pullet crop will be short this fall and that those who have pullets ready to lay in October, will be able to profit handsomely from the eggs which are produced. When the pullet crop is short, prices of fresh eggs should be higher. All of this means that it will pay to push pullets with good feeding and management so they are ready to lay in late September or early October. In order to do this, growing pullets must not be denied mash or stinted in the quantity which they are fed.

It is economical to keep mash and grain in hoppers in front of the pullets through the entire summer so they may have opportunity to consume all they desire. It may even pay to feed a wet mash in the late summer months when consumption may diminish due to the hot weather.

The sale of poor or non-laying hens now will provide money with which to finance the expense of growing the pullets. Every state experiment station has available printed bulletins or circulars describing the correct way to cull or eliminate the undesirable birds.

Egg production, good or bad, can be determined by examining the physical condition of the birds, and a little experience in following the directions given in the state experiment station bulletins will enable any poultry keeper to cull his birds with reasonable accuracy.

RIPE FIGS ON JUNE 15

Among the several odd specimens nature has turned out so far this year is a cup of ripe figs which were brought in Tuesday morning, fully a month ahead of the usual ripening time for this fruit. The crop of which these were a part came on the tree ahead of the leaves, the mild spring weather failing to kill them off. These figs grew on a tree on the farm of J. J. Mims, two and a half miles southeast of town. Mr. Frank Massey of Route 4 reports ripe figs on his farm, too.

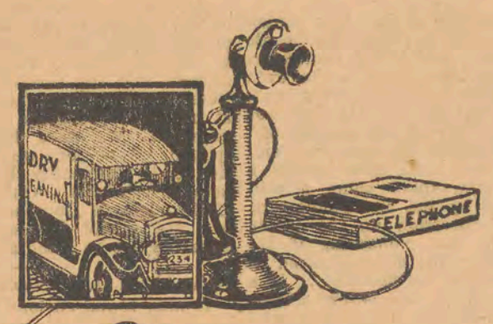
W. F. MADDOX

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you please allow me to say a few things through your paper in reference to the life and death of Mr. William Maddox, who was the son of Mr. William Maddox, and was born April 25th, 1852, and died June 6th, 1931? His body was laid to rest in the Pates Chapel cemetery, on the 7th day of June, with Martin, undertaker, in charge.

Mr. Maddox was married to Miss Sallie J. Childress, daughter of Joel Childress, in 1873, and he united with Pleasant Grove Baptist Church during the seventies, and continued a faithful member until death.

Mr. Maddox leaves to mourn his departure his wife and eight children, six boys and two girls; also two sisters, 42 grand children, and 24 great grand children.



Mr. Maddox was a man that was esteemed very high by all who knew him, because of his honesty, truthfulness, and correct dealing with his fellow man. He will be greatly missed by his friends, but our loss is His eternal gain, and we hope for him a part in the first resurrection, upon such the second death hath no power.

I have known Mr. Maddox from his boyhood days, and I officiated when he was received into the church, also at his funeral, and consider it a high honor to lead people to Christ and to perform such duties for them as is taught in the Bible.

May God bless the dear relatives is my prayer.—R. M. Honeycutt.

A Problem, Not a Debate—There seems to be quite general agreement now that there has been a business depression. There is still an amazing amount of magazine and conversational discussion as to whether it has been as bad or worse than depressions in the past. That is an interesting point, academically.

The important point, however, is that there is a problem before society—the problem of eliminating or controlling the business cycle so that extreme inflation and deflation will not follow each other around so persistently, like squirrels in a cage.

What matter whether the problem is harder or easier than other problems? Let's get together and make an honest attempt to solve it.—Munice Evening Press.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

In a sensibly optimistic statement the other day President James A. Farrell, of the United States Steel Corporation, said in part:

"The large increase in the deposits in our savings banks, to mention but one favorable symptom, shows that we possess within ourselves the power to speed revival of business at home. Much of the delay in the return to buying activity is due to lack of confidence in the future. Discussions which lead to nowhere have tended to excite fears and apprehensions which have no solid foundation in the facts which testify to the unimpaired economic strength and sound business structure of our country.

"If we could solve our own problems, we should avoid controversies that can have no immediate and practical effects upon American trade. Our recovery is not wholly conditional upon the solution of problems in other lands. We possess within ourselves the power to lead the world trade recovery. This power, to be effective, must be directed to the solution of our domestic situation. If we would aid the world, our efforts must begin at home."

The Chicago Tribune recently quoted an executive head of one of the greatest industries of the country as saying:

"We hear a great deal about conditions abroad. As a matter of fact, speaking for myself, the situation abroad is not as bad as it is painted. It is bad, to be sure, but all the world is leaning upon the United States. If we concentrate on the United States and lean more on our own country we can stimulate business in this country without waiting for the recovery in Europe. The capacity of our country to overcome present business troubles has not been applied to the fullest extent. The more resolute and successful our efforts to discover remedies within our own shores, the greater the likelihood of a favorable reaction and more speedy recovery in other countries. We are capable of greater effort and enterprise in making our domestic market a more efficient stabilizer of American industry."

Here are some facts well worth digesting. Since the depression in which we are plunged at present is world-wide, too many people seem to have the opinion that the United States cannot recover until the world at large recovers. The fact is that Uncle Sam ought, and will be the leader in the recovery and Europe is now anxiously waiting for the first sign that things are getting better in the United States. We have the same people, the same national industry and potential consuming power that we had three or four years ago. The difference is that then we were riding on a wave of foolish, illogical optimism, while at present we are in the trough of a wave of pessimism which is equally as foolish. Many of the people who two years ago were stating that a new era had come and that values would continue to mount higher and higher without interruption, are now just as sure that we are in the worst depression in the world's history and that things will never get better.

This habit of looking toward Europe and thinking that our recovery must come from there has given rise to all sorts of panaceas. It has brought new waves of propaganda for debt cancellation, for reducing the tariff, and for joining the League Court and the League of Nations. As a matter of fact, while foreign trade is highly desirable and necessary yet it is not to be forgotten that we consume ninety per cent of what we produce at home. Why not, therefore, quit looking across the Atlantic and devote a little more time to getting our own houses in order first? If we do this, if we look after our own interests, and our own people, seeking to iron out the wrinkles at home, it won't be long until some real improvement may come in the United States. And shortly following that there should be some improvement in Europe, too. Even those internationalists who seem to put the welfare of Europe above that of America ought to be shrewd enough to see that in the present world-wide depression they can best help Europe by assisting Uncle Sam to get on his feet where he can begin to consume more of the things which Europe sends us.

THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY

The appointment of Arthur Chilton to succeed Grady Reynolds, as United States District Attorney, at Montgomery, has created a considerable stir in political circles of Alabama.

All of the different political groups have shown an interest in the matter. And it is more than likely that interest in the question will get keener as we approach the time when Mr. Chilton's name will go to United States Senate for confirmation.

The Pollywog group is of course, tickled pink, as the saying goes. This, because Arthur Chilton himself, is one of the chiefest of the Pollywog chiefs in Alabama. Naturally his political associates are feeling a bit chesty that one of their number was able to sidestep dyed-in-the-wool Republicans and smother the influence of simon pure Democrats, and reach all the way to Washington and take a fat juicy plum right out of the hand of the President of the United States.

Many Republicans of Alabama are more or less irritated at the action of the president in setting aside many Republican aspirants and taking the Pollywog, Chilton.

Speaking from the standpoint of the regular Democratic ranks in Alabama, the Montgomery Advertiser is very laconic, asserting that,

"After an honorable record of seven years as United States District Attorney, Grady Reynolds is displaced.

"Mr. Reynolds is not displaced because he has not been a faithful and capable public official, not because he has been anything but a lifelong Republican. He is booted out because Oliver Street and Tom Heflin had a debt to pay. He, a Republican in good standing, is booted out to make way for a Hoovercrat and a Pollywog—and an ardent Klansman of other days. It was Mr. Hoover's opportunity to reward bigotry for the aid it gave him in Alabama in 1928, and he took it."

Whatever else it may mean, the appointment of Arthur Chilton indicates to us that Oliver D. Street, Republican National Committeeman in Alabama, now has everything all ready to answer the first roll call at the next Republican Convention with "Twelve Votes for Herbert Hoover."

WORKING AGAINST ACCIDENTS

The loss of life caused by automobile accidents—32,500 in 1930—is well known. It is estimated that there are 35 non-fatal serious injuries due to automobiles, to each fatality.

According to Harry Tucker, professor of highway engineering at North Carolina State College, specific measures for eliminating accidents can be directed along the following lines: Elimination of highway and railroad grade crossings; separation of grades for the most important highways as well as for streets; better highway design; further improvement in safety features of cars; more rigid control of pedestrain traffic; fixing the responsibility upon the individual motorist.

The Massachusetts experiment with compulsory insurance has not been a success, according to Eliot Wadsworth, chairman of the committee on insurance of the house of representatives of that state. He says that "the compulsory law has failed in providing what is most essential, namely, a motive to make drivers of automobiles more careful and considerate."

A financial responsibility law with a demerit rating similar to the law in force in Connecticut which provides for penalties in the form of 10, 25, and 50 per cent increases in the insurance rates for drivers who have accidents, and a 10 per cent reduction for a good record, is being looked upon with more favor. Under such a law the person having an accident would have to pay his legal liability or be refused the right to drive.

A number of states have at different times considered the Massachusetts' compulsory insurance idea but, profiting by its experience, have not taken the jump.

Swanky—G. K. Chesterton says American villages have no picturesque public inns. Perhaps not, but we've got to admit they have filling stations that look like the Taj Mahal.—Macon (Ga.) Telegraph.

Now science promises weather predictions 25 years ahead, thus allowing ample time to start drought relief.—Akron (O.) Beacon-Journal.

The pickup of the automobile business noted in March and April has extended into May, which indicates that a lot of people still must have enough money to make the down payment.

The MAN in the MOON

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

Gone Are The Days—Once upon a time about the only use we had for air was to breathe. Not so, now. I must admit that is ONE mighty good use we make of it yet, but it lacks lots of being the only one. nowadays we burn it, ride on it, ride in it, use it with our radio receivers to send messages, music and what not through or over, take fertilizer from it, and many other uses. Somebody says we heat it and shoot it at each other at times. Ever think of that?

The Announcer—And now, friends, there will be a brief pause for station announcements. You have just been listening to two bass duets—"The Almshouse Blues," in afterbeat style, by two of our stellar performers, with accompaniment in the chorus by our well-known Commissioners Court, was the first. The other was "The School Bill Stomp," also in afterbeat style, with a beautiful official background. We hope you liked them both.

"Jackie, My Boy"—Local baseball fans, who, of course, follow our baseball representatives in the big time leagues of the national sport, got quite a thrill out of the rumor a few days ago that Jack Hayes was involved in a trade with Tony Lazzeri and "Bump" Hadley which might send Hayes and Hadley to the New York "Yankees" for Lazzeri and some cash. A few of the fellows allowed as how it MIGHT be true because of the fact that Miller Huggins, former manager of the "Yankees," always did want Hayes, and the "Yankee" owners know as well as anyone else that Miller Huggins was nobody's fool when it came to judging baseball talent. There was another rumor a short time back, though, that the New York owners had made Washington a bid for Hayes, only to find that he was not for sale at that time at any price, and it is a pretty safe bet that they still feel pretty near the same way about it. At that time Huggins was manager of the New York "Yankees" and Stanley Harris was manager of the Washington "Senators." Huggins had this to say of Jack Hayes: "Hayes, in my estimation, is one of the most promising young infielders to break into either of the major leagues in years." Harris said: "Jackie isn't the heaviest hitter I ever saw, nor is he the most consistent, but I'd as soon have him at the bat on a squeeze play as anybody I can think of, and he handles himself like a veteran afield. He's a heady young player, and has a very bright future in the baseball world in store for him." As to the trade mentioned, you can bet that no matter who he may be playing for, local fans will be pulling for him and his club every day. We believe in Jack Hayes! And how!

"Connie," Too—And while I'm on this baseball line, I might mention the fact that another Chilton County boy is making them sit up and take notice in a way most convincing. Broadus M. "Connie" Connatser of the New Orleans "Pelicans," in the Southern League, is making quite a sensational success of first-basing for that club this year. His playing is keeping the veteran "Zeke" Bonura on the bench, and, as Amos or Andy would say, "That's sump'n!"

Things I'd Like To Know—How do they manage to catch those big strings of fish I see 'em bringing in? How long before our new jail will be finished (not that I want to get in)? Why don't somebody rent that pretty new building just opposite Dief's Service Station? It's one of the prettiest places in Clanton; Where does the light go when it goes out? Some gink says that's a dark secret; When will all the Model "T" Fords wear out?; Who broke the lock on the hen house door?

Strange Things—I have just noted where a cashier, faced by a bank robber who demanded all his cash, talked Mr. Robber into accepting a $10 bill and going on his way; farmers of the nation should pick that cashier up and hire him to represent them in conference with buyers of their crops. I note also where a railroad company has been refused permission to cut rates for hauling cotton, because it might interfere with the "fair competition" laws; strange—passing strange. And, now, good folks, here's the best one I've heard up to and including now, and I'll give you all next week to figure it out (and suggestions highly appreciated)—Why do we say a black berry is green when it is red?—The Man in the Moon.

The public is being warned that in certain parts of the country persons purporting to be "life insurance experts" are indulging in a systematic campaign of "twisting." In other words, such a person will approach a life insurance policyholder with a proposition that he drop a present policy and take in its place another form of contract in some other company, presumably for the sake of saving money.

Don't be misled by such alluring tales. No policyholder in any established legal reserve life insurance company can drop or exchange an existing legal reserve policy without loss to him. The person who recommends such a change is doing it solely for personal profit.

If you are approached by such a "twister," you will be protecting yourself by communicating immediately with your company or the insurance commissioner of your state. "Twisting" is prohibited by law in many states because it is harmful to the interest of the policyholder.

A WARNING WORTH HEEDING

Senator Borah of Idaho, nationally known for his progressive policies, has issued a public warning that the federal government is building a bureaucracy, which will demand permanent increases in expenditures and taxation unless stopped by "angry public opinion."

"Angry public opinion" will have to express itself in other ways than merely oral fault-finding with public officials, state legislatures and congress.

The people have a check on taxation within their own hands. They can vote against men and measures that they know have increased or will increase taxes unnecessarily. If the people fail to recognize their power and obligation in this matter and fail to support men who are working to hold down taxes and fail to vote against measures that they know will increase taxes, they will have only themselves to blame for a back-breaking load of taxation that they will have to pay annually if public levies continue to increase as they have during the past decade, out of all proportion to growth in population and wealth.

WHY DODGE THE ISSUE

There can be no argument over the fact that prosperity of the railroads is essential to prosperity of the nation as a whole.

While there are other large and necessary methods of transporting passengers and freight, the railroads are the backbone of the whole transportation structure. Another fact that cannot be argued is that income must be sufficient to pay wages, interest on stocks and bonds, taxes and upkeep.

Railroad revenues are not at the present time, and have not been for some time past, large enough to properly cover these expenses in spite of rigorous economy.

Therefore, there seems to be one of several things left to do—increase freight and passenger traffic at present rates, or increase transportation rates, or reduce quality of service, or further cut operating expenses by reducing wages from the presidents and higher executive officers right down the line, or combine a little of all four alternatives.

Drastic action will be necessary if the roads remain solvent and continue to render our nation the best and most efficient railroad service the world has even known.

Back in the nineties the children used to start out at midnight to find father and tow him in. Now they start out at midnight just to spend the evening.

MORAL ECHOES

(By D. W. Haskew)

While I was waiting at the bus station in Montgomery I saw two young men tangle up in a boyish frolic. One of the youngsters got the best of the other, and to get even with his companion in frolic, the young man, on the bottom, ripped out an oath that was awful to hear. The boy on top crawled off, and calling his companion by name, he said: "You had better look out, there comes a lady." Sure enough, there came a well dressed lady right by the two youngsters. I saw from the expression on the young man's face that he was wondering if the lady heard his oath. He never glanced at me to see if I enjoyed his profanity. If a thing is not decent to be said before a lady, it is not decent to be said before a gentleman. Profanity never fails to insult any man who is a real gentleman. Any man who can enjoy or even condone profanity and vulgarity, must have a rotten spot about him.

The other day I was walking along the street and I came to where four or five rotten apples had been spattered on the cement. The fruit was no good, and the owner of it threw it into the street. It not only made an unsightly place, but it was very dangerous for pedestrians. The moisture and slime of the apple made the cement like soap, and the most careful traveler could have fallen and been injured. It occurred to me that "Rotten Things," whether they be apples or humans, are dangerous things to have on our streets. If I should express my opinion as to which of the two, apples or humans, are the most dangerous when they are on our streets while they are decaying, I would say that a human is always worse. When a bone is broken, it will knit and heal, but when a soul is made to fall with the foul, that soul rarely ever comes back to its former place. You had better stay clear of the places where rotten apples have been spattered on cement, and you had better stay clear of these places where rotten human beings reside.

I stopped with a friend on the sidewalk, and glancing down the street a short distance I saw quite a gathering of boys between the ages of six and ten. I inquired of my friend: "Why are so many boys gathered there?" His reply was, "They meet at that place to smoke and use bad language." Then this friend of mine added: "I do not understand what parents mean by allowing boys of that age to roam over town and gather in such squads and company as that." Can you answer that question? When I was a boy we had a good dog. He did not rove about at night, and knew nothing about how to kill sheep, but that dog took up with a dog that knew all these tricks. Before we knew it, our neighbor came to us saying, "Your dog is killing my sheep." We could not believe it. It was a fact however, and that dog had to die. Your boy may be all right, but you had better look out when he starts to taking up with boys who smoke and curse. I am wondering if there are not parents in Clanton, parents in Chilton County, who would be horrified if some one should come to you and tell the truth on your boy. Just remember that your boy is in danger when he takes up with boys who are wise to the tricks.

And it came to pass that a certain preacher had his umbrella taken from the front door of his church. On the following Sunday he announced that in all probability someone had taken his property without thinking, and that he woulud be glad if they would return it. He waited two more Sabbaths, and his umbrella did not come home. Becoming desperate the parson announced: "I am sure that I know who took my umbrella, and unless it is returned before next Sunday, I shall be forced to call the name of the guilty party. To save you embarrassment, if you will come to my back yard tonight, or any time during the coming week, and throw that umbrella over the fence to me, I will say nothing about it." On Monday morning the parson went out into his back yard and counted 37 umbrellas scattered about over the yard. All that week there was a shower of umbrellas falling over has back fence. Let me kindly ask—Will you not look through your house and see if you can find something, an umbrella, a plate, a book, or something else, that you have borrowed. If so, this is a mighty good time to carry it back home.

I have a pair of overalls and an old shirt that I treasure very much. I can put them on and if I get paint on them, or if I get down in the dust and dirt with them. It is nobody's business. They belong to me, and I have mastered them so that I can put them to any kind of service. I have a nice blue serge suit, and when the time comes to wear it, I am not so free. That nice suit owns me. If it says for me to stay clear of fresh paint, I must do it. If it says for me to stand up and shun the dust, I must do that. The most of us have a few things that we own, but there are many things that own us. A business is nothing but a thing, but many of our business men are owned soul and body by business. If business says for you to stay away from church, you never go. I see people who are owned by their cars. Things own them. It is all right to own things, but when things own you, it is time to be alarmed.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw—
and Some He Saw Not.

Saturday morning. On the corner. A big five-gallon jug. Corn cob stopper. I paused to contemplate. Wondered about the contents. Looked around to see how far away the Sheriff was. From somebody close by came these words: Just as well go on; there is nothing in it but vinegar. Looked to see who was speaking. Found it was Fred Calloway. Never found out who the jug belonged to. I guess Walter will do that later, maybe, perhaps, and so forth and so on.

Of Interest to the Schools.

I was invited by Superintendent Lawrence last Friday to go with him to Montgomery in the interest of the schools of the State. We found assembled there a group of the leaders in Alabama's educational affairs. At a meeting in the Jefferson Davis Hotel, a citizens committee was formed to work in the interest of educational progress in Alabama. The group consisted of State school officials, county school officials, trustees, and men from various professions. It was decided that the entire group would ask for an audience with Governor Miller, and give him assurance that the citizens committee was ready to back him up in his program to take nothing from the schools.

The Visit to the Governor.

We went to see the Governor. About eighty in number, we filed into Mr. Miller's private office. He arose and greeted us with a fine cordiality. The spokesman for the citizens told the Governor briefly what we were up to. Then the Governor, standing at his desk, proceeded to limber up to the question. We were delighted to hear the splendid expressions which our Chief Executive made concerning the public school business of Alabama. One thing is apparent. If the plans of Governor Miller are carried out, the school business of Alabama will certainly not be made any worse.

What About Our Schools, Anyway?

It may sound curious to say that if Governor Miller's plans are carried out, our school business will not be any worse. That is a fact, and a very noticeable fact, since it happens to be true just now that the views of many who are pressing their claims with the legislature would plunge our school business into further disturbance and lack of funds, if they should carry their views into the enactment of certain laws. That is why it is reassuring to hear our Governor say that he wants to see our schools maintained as good as they are, even if made no better.

Better Schools, If Possible.

But Governor Miller does not propose merely to assure as good schools as in the past. He wants to see better conditions for our rural schools. He does not want taxes raised. He wants to raise more tax money by causing wealth and property that has been escaping taxation to bear its just portion of our State's obligations. That sounds good to me. I have always believed that the trouble with our tax business was lack of equalization of the tax obligation, and a vest loss of tax revenues by property escaping taxation altogether.

A Noteworthy Comparison

Dr. Glenn Andrews, State Prison Inspector of Alabama, was present at the public investigation of the Chilton County Almshouse Tuesday. As he read his reports upon conditions of the institution, a citizen of Chilton County asked him this question:

"Dr. Andrews, how does our county almshouse compare with similar institutions in other counties of the State?"

Dr. Andrews made this reply: "It is better than some of them, and compares favorably with any of them."

This is a noteworthy comparison. Dr. Andrews keeps thoroughly acquainted with all county almshouses in the State. He is able to make comparisons that mean something. And you may rest assured that when he says our almshouse is "better than some, and compares favorably with any of them," he has found that there is ample reason for making that statement.

I Wonder What He Thought.

Ex-Probate Judge Honeycutt was sitting in a chair in front of the courthouse Tuesday afternoon. I went over and sat down close to him, thinking perhaps he would get into conversation with someone and say something of interest. I sat there several minutes. Many came in and out by him. Greetings were exchanged with handshakes. But no conversations ensued. I was impressed with the manner in which the former judge sat calm and composed, gazing steadily out across the street. How I wished he would say what he was thinking. No doubt his thoughts were of other days, thirty-odd years ago when he was Probate Judge, and was perhaps the most sought-after man in the county. Surely it would have been interesting to hear him talk about those days. But he didn't, and I went on my way, reflecting upon the vast store of interesting personal and political experiences that will pass from the annals of mortal men when Judge Honeycutt comes to the end of his earthly abode.

PRORATION AND OIL PRICES

At the present time there is a certain amount of opposition to the proration plan of oil production on the ground that it has not maintained a stable price level for crude oil, and hence has failed of its purpose.

Proration is not, and should not, be a means for fixing prices. Its primary purpose, which benefits both the public and producers, is to secure for each person with an interest in an old field, a ratable share of the market outlet for that field and state. This reduces operating costs with consequent savings to oil companies and purchasing public alike, and likewise does away with the waste that always results from uneconomic, unregulated competition in developing natural resources.

It is claimed that proration in no way interferes with the natural free play of supply and demand in the control of price. The best illustration of this is the tremendous decline in retail prices of gasoline occurring in many states in the last few months. One of the states where prices have taken a decisive drop—California—is likewise a state where proration is in effect in important pools.

Proration is an effort to give all producers equality in a field and keep production of oil from going far beyond the point of consumption. This amounts to a valuable public service—there is no room for waste of invaluable oil resources.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS—By John Hix

(WNU Service.)

Railroads
our most regulated industry

The railroads of the United States are operating under stricter and MORE regulatory measures than any other major industry in the world.

Such regulations cover, among others, and under penalties for violation, the building, buying, leasing and discontinuance of lines; issuance of stocks and bonds; making of rates as shown through published tariffs; changes in wages and working conditions; maintenance of rolling stock up to prescribed standards; care of live stock in transit; maintenance of ticket offices and stations—and even the amount of money which the railroads are permitted to earn.

Comparison of these regulations with those under which common-carrier buses and trucks are permitted to operate over public highways in direct competition with the railroads reveals a startling unfairness, in which the public is vitally and individually concerned. Here are a few interesting facts:

Railroad service must be maintained whether operating and traffic conditions are favorable or not—no such requirement governs buses and trucks. Railroads must adhere strictly to their published rates (the cost of publishing tariffs on this railroad in 1930 was $564,508). Motor carriers charge whatever they please and change their rates at option. They are governed by no Interstate regulations whatsoever.

Railroad employes work under certain standards of wages and hours as required by law—motor carrier employes work under no such regulations; and their employers are free to establish any basic day and to pay any compensation they desire.

Railroads pay heavy taxes (about $1,000,000 a day) in support of town, city, county, state, federal and school activities, and in addition maintain their own roadways. Taxes paid by motor carriers are inadequate, and in some instances they pay practically nothing. Moreover, they operate over the highways which the railroads help to maintain.

¶ Such competition is grossly unfair. It is seriously cutting down railroad earnings and impairing railroad credit, with consequent injury to the railroads and to the public.

¶ The solution of America's transportation problem today is a fair and equitable adjustment of taxation and regulation so that every form of transportation may compete for the Nation's travel and traffic on an equal footing. That is all the railroads ask. The railroads built this nation—they must continue to be the backbone of its transportation system. Give them a square deal.

The Railroads Must Earn To Spend

Lesson for June 21

THE SIN OF CAUSING OTHERS TO STUMBLE
(Temperance Lesson)

GOLDEN TEXT—It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak.

LESSON TEXT—Romans 14:13-23.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Helping Others (Health Emphasis).

JUNIOR TOPIC—My Responsibility for Others (Health Emphasis).

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Abstaining for the Sake of Others.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Liquor Traffic a Stumbling-block.

This lesson sets forth fraternal duties in matters of conscience. The background for these obligations is found in the fact that there were some in the church at Rome who were very conscientious with reference to eating flesh. Others were without these scruples. They ate what was set before them without question. Then there were some who had particular regard for fast days and holy days, as the Sabbath, etc. There were still others who had made no distinction, regarding every day alike. It is readily seen in this light how differences and disputes would arise. The sure preventive of strife under such circumstances is Christian love and forebearance. The biblical unit embracing this discussion covers chapters 14:1 to 15:13. It will be seen that it is taken from the practical portion of the Epistle. These practical exhortations are based upon the great truths of saving grace set forth in the doctrinal portion of Romans.

I. Neither Party Is to Sit in Judgment Upon the Other (Rom. 14:1-13).

This instruction applies to things indifferent in themselves. It would be a mistake to apply these principles to such actions as are inherently wrong. Concerning things which are morally indifferent, passing judgment on another is wrong because:

1. Each man is responsible to God alone (v. 4). Each man belongs to God.

2. Each man must decide for himself what is right for him to do (vv. 5, 6). Touching matters indifferent in themselves, an action which is right for one may be sinful for another.

3. Each man lives not to himself, but unto the Lord (vv. 7-9). The one joined to Jesus Christ is to be governed by the Spirit of Christ.

4. Each man must give an account of himself to God (vv. 10-13).

a. Each one must stand before the judgment seat of Christ (v. 10).

b. Account must be rendered unto God (v. 12). Nothing can be concealed from him, for he is omniscient.

II. A Stumbling Block Should Not Be Placed in the Way of Another (Rom. 14:14-23).

A properly enlightened Christian may have perfect liberty to act in a given way as far as he himself is concerned, but the exercise of his liberty may become an occasion of stumbling to another. The urgent reasons for abridgment of liberties are:

1. We may destroy the weak brother for whom Christ died (v. 15). If it was worth while for Christ to die for a man surely it is worth while that the Christian should deny himself some privilege for his brother's sake.

2. We should not allow our good to be evil spoken of (vv. 16-18). Liberty in Christ is a precious thing which only love knows how to use. That one is in the Kingdom of God and, therefore, ruled by the Holy Spirit is proved by daily living the love life which is characterized as follows:

a. Righteousness, honesty and integrity in all things.

b. Living in peace with each other.

c. Joy in the Holy Ghost. The Holy Ghost is represented as the "oil of gladness" (Heb. 1:9).

3. We should follow after things that make for peace and edify one another (v. 19). To ignore the conscientious scruples of a weak brother is to destroy the work of God—to pull down the gracious work which God is doing in him.

4. We should exercise our faith in God and abstain from things which offend the weak brother (vv. 21-23).

III. We Should Please Our Neighbor and Not Ourselves (Rom. 15:1-13).

The infirmities of the weak are real burdens which are to be borne by the strong.

1. Because of Christ's example (vv. 1-3). He is our supreme pattern. His supreme thought and purpose was to help and save others.

2. Because of the Scripture testimony (vv. 4-13). The Old Testament Scriptures abound with examples of self-denying sacrifices for the good of others, having their culmination of meaning in the action of Christ.

THE POOR HOUSE

tions of things since he was commissioner; and that in his opinion Mr. J. D. Bean has taken as good or better care of these people than anyone else has before him.

Mr. Tom Hand, who has been doing the most of the criticism of conditions at the poor house, was not present at the open hearing Tuesday, notwithstanding he was informed of the meting by Judge Reynolds, and invited to be present and state his objections to the Commissioners Court.

The poor house was examined on June 8th by a representative of Dr. Andrews, state prison inspector. This report, which is published below, was transmitted to the Governor by Dr. Andrews. The report was also read by Dr. Andrews at the hearing Tuesday.

REPORT OF INSPECTION

Montgomery, Ala., June 11, 1931.
Hon. E. M. Miller,
Governor of Alabama,
State Capitol.
Dear Sir:

On June 8th the Chilton County almshouse was inspected, and the following report is respectfully submitted:

Thirteen white women and eleven white men were inmates at the time of the inspection.

One woman died recently. Gip McQueen, an inmate, had run away. It was reported that he had been returned to the institution several times, but the members of the Court of Commissioners had determined they would let him remain away, or return of his own accord. He is feeble minded, and repeated efforts to have him accepted at Tuscaloosa had failed, so it was stated.

Workmen were engaged in installing water at the time of the inspection. It is to be placed at the door of each cottage, and connected with the bath rooms in the recently erected hospital unit.

It was advised that connections for hot and cold water be provided for the kitchen, which was taken under consideration by the member of the Board of Revenue who is supervising the work under way.

The rooms of the inmates, with the exception of one, were found to be clean, the beds clean, well supplied with bedding and good mattresses, and all free from bed bugs. The inmates were well clothed and clean personally.

Several of the inmates are hospital cases requiring close attention. All of these should be provided with either moisture proof mattresses, or other means of keeping their beds dry and clean. This will aid materially in the care of the patients.

A practical nurse is to be placed in charge of the patients and rooms generally, so soon as one that is competent can be had, so the Judge of Probated stated.

An employed cook should also be in charge of the cooking under the supervision of the wife of the keeper.

The county physician has examined several of the patients and in a written statement permits them to do certain work of a light nature, including assisting with the cooking.

The food supplies on hand were adequate, varied and suitable. Milk and butter is produced at this time and served to the patients.

Fresh vegetables are available from the farm and garden, and are being used daily.

The inmates stated that they had ample meals and that the food was changed from day to day.

It is advised that all the mattresses be supplied with slips made of unbleached domestic and securely fastened on. These slips can be removed when necessary and washed, and the mattresses thus protected, and its usefulness prolonged indefinitely.

All surplus clothing and bedding should be removed from the rooms, properly marked, and kept stored in the room recently built for this purpose. All nails were directed to be removed from the walls, and no clothing permitted to be hung about the rooms.

Where clothing has become too worn to be of use it should be destroyed, unless that which can be salvaged, is washed and stored for use as cloths in case of sickness.

The pantry in the kitchen purposed for the groceries should have additional shelf space, and only the groceries and supplies kept therein.

Tin cans or properly constructed bins should be used to store all articles of food.

All the inmates should be required to bathe at regular intervals, or as often as is necessary to keep them clean, and fresh clothing supplied from the store room, the soiled clothing being placed in the room designated for such.

Provision has been made for these regulations to be carried out, and it is only a matter of supervision to see that it is done.

An ice box of adequate dimensions was in course of construction at the time of the inspection.

Window shades should be provided for all windows.

All refuse and debris that will accumulate about the premises should be removed when necessary and burned, or otherwise destroyed, in order that it could not be brought back by some patients who wander about the grounds.

The patients should be restrained from going over the neighborhood without knowledge of the keeper or his wife. Several of them are of such mental status as to render their roamings about disagreeable to the community, and also they run the risk of injury from the traffic on the roads.

Later the investigation was discussed with the Judge of Probate, who stated it was the purpose of the board to have the institution placed in a comfortable condition, and to provide quarters for the negro patients as soon as the new building could be occupied.—Respectfully yours, Glenn Audrews, State Prison Inspector.

Filed in office this June 16, 1931.
Judge of Probate.

J. D. EVANS FETED AT BIRTHDAY PARTY

A clipping from a Winston Salem, N. C. newspaper, in a prominent place on the society page, tells in a most elaborate manner the account of a birthday party given in honor of J. D. Evans, on his twenty-first birthday, by a friend of his, who, according to the write up spared little in making the celebration one of the main social events of the younger social set of Winston Salem, last week.

DIEF VISITED AT GOODYEAR PLANT

Saw Giant Zeppelin Being Built By Goodyear For U. S. Navy

Last week Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer made a trip to Pennsylvania carrying his wife and children for a visit of several weeks with friends and relatives at their old home. The trip was made in the faithful Ford car, which Dief says kept schedule time all the way to their destination.

One day was spent in Akron, where the party took in the plants of the Goodyear Tire Company. The high spot of the visit to Goodyear was the privilege of seeing the giant navy dirigible, which is being built for the United States Navy.

Dief took down some notes about the big airship and brought them back with him, expressly for the purpose of telling his friends some of the astounding facts about the biggest airship in the world.

It is 785 feet long and 132 feet in diameter. It takes 6,500,000 cubic feet of gas to inflate this monster. It has a gross lifting capacity of 403,000 pounds. It is propelled by eight engines with a total of 4,480 horsepower. It has a speed of 84 miles per hour, and can travel 10,580 miles at 50 miles per hour without refueling.

The big ship will be equipped to carry navy airplanes, being able to navigate the air with five airships hanging underneath it. On top of the dirigible will be landing place for small aircraft. It will be inflated by non-inflammable gas.

Dief and his family visited the hangar where the big ship is being built. The hangar which houses the zeppelin is big enough for ten football teams to play in it at one time. Each of the doors to the building weighs 600 tons. It involves an expense of $100 to open and close one of these gigantic doors.

The name of the big ship is the U. S. Akron. It is the first of three such machines that will be built by Goodyear for the United States Navy. It will cost over a million dollars, and will be ready for navigation of the air about the first of September.

From Akron the Diefenderfer party proceeded on to Pittsburgh, and ninety miles beyond, where Mrs. Diefenderfer and the children will visit for several days. Dief returned home by railway train, arriving here Tuesday morning.

KIWANIS CLUB ON OUTING FRI. NIGHT

Will Make Trip On Barge Up the River From Mitchell Dam

Members of the Clanton Kiwanis Club and their guests will go to Mitchell Dam Friday night, where they will be the guests of Kiwanian John Hollis.

This meeting will take the place of the regular Thursday noon luncheon, and the greater part of the program for Friday night will take place on a large boat, while the party is taking a ride up the river.

Members of the club will bring their wives, or other guests, and lunch will be served on the boat. Col. R. H. Mangum, Birmingham, will be present and give the gathering an interesting talk. Billy Smith has charge of the program for Friday night.

At the luncheon last Thursday, C. E. Stapp had charge of the program, and had as guests of the club, several of the members of the Boys Calf Club of Chilton County, and F. W. Burns, livestock specialist of Auburn. Several of the club boys told the club how they judged purebred stock and the things they are learning as memers of the Calf Club. Mr. Burns also spoke, telling of the aims of the Calf Clubs over the State.

J. D. TIPPETT TAKES CHARGE OF POWELL PRESSING SHOP

Last week Mr. J. Dudley Tippett took charge of the Powell Pressing Shop, the oldest concern of its kind in Chilton County. Mr. Tippett is a hustling business man, and will no doubt do well with the business which he has undertaken.

Mr. Tippett and his helpers purpose working Clanton on Mondays. On each Tuesday they will pick up trade in Thorsby, Jemison and Maplesville. Mitchell Dam, Verbena and Coopers will be worked on Wednesdays.

Mr. Tippett says that he is going after the pressing business, and asks for at least a part of your trade in this line. He is trying to make an honest living, and any business you throw his way will be appreciated.

Mrs. M. C. Wallace of Meridian, Miss., arrived Sunday to spend the summer with her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Thompson.

Giant Zeppelin Was Built For Sensational Wreck In "Madam Satan"

"C. B. P-55," the very latest thing in giant zeppelins, is to make its appearance at the Wadesonian in Clanton on Monday and Tuesday, June 29 and 30.

This notice does not say that the great aerial craft will appear overhead. In fact its appearances will be entirely confined to the Wadesonian Theatre, where it will be seen in exciting sequences of "Madam Satan," Cecil B. De Mille's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy with music.

The C. B. P-55 is in proportionate length approximately 750 feet long, big enough to allow hundreds to dance aboard it at a masked ball, interrupted by the tearing loose of the ship from its mast, and its sensational "crack-up" in mid-air. The guests descend from the craft in parachutes, swung in holes along the top of an outside deck.

It is aboard the "C. B. P-55" that "Madam Satan" makes her tempestuous entrance into the life of Bob Brooks, and into this plot of modern times and ultra-modern romance.

The story is by Jeanie MacPherson, with dialogue by Gladys Unger and Elsie Janis. Dance numbers were directed by Leroy Prinz with Theodore Kosloff dancing "Electricity" in Ballet Mechanique."

The featured players are Kay Johnson, Reginald Denny, Roland Young, Lillian Roth.

Eight lilting musical numbers are provided by Herbert Stothart and Clifford Grey; Jack King and Elsie Janis. Abe Lyman's band is seen and heard in the Zep sequence.

If Cotton Stays Cheap We Will Get Rich

Some Facts and Figures That Paint A Rosy Picture of Chilton County Farm Diversification Againsst the World-Wide Gloom of Business Depression.

Chilton County's accomplishments in diversified farming has spread to the four corners of Alabama, and even into adjoining states of the South. Every day people who travel the southern territory are coming through here and expressing their ratification at the sound condition of business in our county as compared with other places to which they go. Farm leaders and experts in many places are looking this way with admiration of our system and yearning to learn how we have done it.

A few days ago Judge Reynolds had a letter from Hon. Jos. O. Thompson, asking for some concrete examples, actual figures, about how our farmers have profited from their diversified farm operations, particularly with strawberries.

In reply to his inquiry, Judge Reynolds went out and secured records from some of the farmers, showing what they have actually spent on their berry acreage this year, what their returns and net earnings amounted to. Figures were given to Mr. Thompson in a letter of June 19th.

Judge Reynolds was kind enough to give us a copy of his letter, and we are glad to publish some extracts from it, as follows:

He says, in 1925 I sold R. O. Little, at Jemison forty acres of land for $2,388, to be paid in eight payments. He set out one acre in strawberries, which he has increased to three acres. He has met all payments on his place, and has paid some of the payments in advance of the date they were due. Now he only owes one more payment of $324 due in 1932.

Mr. Little had three acres in strawberries this year. He received $1,450 after five per cent had been deducted for commission of the association in marketing the crop. His entire expenses were $476.36, leaving him net profit on three acres $973.64. Mr. Little is 44 years old, has a wife, one boy eight and one boy ten. He now has 12 acres in cotton and 15 acres in food crops. He was a land renter when he bought the place. He has had no advantages over the average farmer in similar circumstances.

W. J. Bean, who now lives three miles east of Thorsby had two and a half acres in strawberries. He received $1,226.78 after five per cent was deducted for the association. After paying all expenses his net receipts were $844.97 on two and a half acres. Mr. Bean also has one acre in dewberries, from which he will have a clear profit of around $300.

O. O. Roper, of Clanton, had five acres in strawberries. He received after five per cent was deducted for the association, $3,557.65. After all expenses were deducted, he had a net profit of $2,089.75 from the five acres.

Arthur Honeycutt of Thorsby had one and a half acres in strawberries. After all expenses were deducted he received a net profit of $1,000.

J. D. Cleckler, of Thorsby, had one and three-fourths acres in Irish potatoes. His net profit was $165.

Judge Reynolds concludes his letter to Mr. Thompson by saying truck farming has helped us very much during these distressing times. times. We have six banks in Chilton County, and they are all doing well. If cotton remains cheap, we will get rich.

Final Decision Reached In Poor House Matter

Signed Statement Gives Out Conclusions of Commissioners Court After Complete Study and Investigation of All Charges Recently Made About Conditions At Poor House.

In pursuance to an order made by the Commissioners Court at its last session, the entire Commissioners Court assembled at the almshouse of Chilton County, and notice of said meeting having been published in both county papers and also registered notices having been sent to certain parties, who had made complaints against the management of the almshouse and also the court having requested Dr. Glenn Andrews, state jail inspector, to be present, and Dr. Andrews being present the court, in the presence of quite a number of citizens, proceeded to hear testimony relative to the said complaint. Dr. Andrews read a report of an inspection made of the almshouse on June 9, 1931, which report was published last week in The Union-Banner.

Dr. Andrews also stated that the almshouse of Chilton County would compare favorably with other almshouses in the state and possibly better than the average institution.

Mr. J. O. Smith, one of the alleged complainants, against conditions at the almshouse, was present, but Mr. W. T. Hand, another alleged complaintant was absent. The court proceeded to hear all charges and accusations against the management of the almshouse and J. D. Bean, its keeper, and the court concluded that the charges were frivilous and the result of prejudice of certain parties against the keeper, J. D. Bean. The court also concluded that some dissatsifaction had been caused among the inmates by outside interference and stirring up of trouble among the inmates, and the court here would like to request all of the people of the county to visit and inspect at any and all times the almshouse and to encourage and assist its keeper in any way possible, but on the other hand, they respectfully ask the people of the county not to stir up trouble and dissension among the inmates, as against each other or its keeper.

The court might state that there have been several examinations by the state authorities prior to the one herein above set forth and certain suggestions made, which the court has in each instance followed. Also the last grand jury, which met in March of 1931, made no criticism whatever of the almshouse or its keeper; but stated in substance that the same was being managed as well as could be under the circumstances. This grand jury was composed of eighteen citizens of this county.

The Commissioners Court has also visited and thoroughly inspected the almshouse, as a body, on two occasions recently, and found that it is being managed well, and also the court has elected one of its members, as has been the custom of the court for a number of years, to take specific charge of the almshouse, its keeper, and management.

Dr. S. C. Wood, who was examined at the above investigation, stated that the conditions were better now and had been under Mr. Bean's administration, than at any time within his experience as physician at the almshouse, which office he has held for nine years.

In concluding, the Commissioners Court wishes to state that the county has sufficient funds in the treasury with which to make any improvements or furnish necessities for the inmates of the almshouse, but the court believes that these people are being as well cared for as the average citizen of the County and they do not think it necessary and wise to expend the peoples' money further than this and that the Commissioners Court is directly responsible for the management of the almshouse, and that if any citizen knows of any complaint now or in the future, that they will please file the same with the court and they may rest assured that the court will investigate the matter thoroughly and make every change that the court might deem proper under the circumstances.

Judge of Probate.
J. E. COBB,
J. M. MIMS,
J. L. BURNETTE,
A. P. VINSON,
Commissioners.

In a statement given out Monday at the same time the above conclusion of the court was released, Judge Reynolds stated that the Commissioners Court has passed an order requiring that no inmate may leave the almshouse to go to other places for any length of time without securing a permit from the keeper. This order, Judge Reynolds said, is according to law and the suggestion of Dr. Andrews, state prison inspector.

The order further provides that in case the application for permission to go away is denied the inmate by the keeper, the inmate may apply to the Probate Judge or the Commissioners Court.

"THE PASSION PLAY" TO BE AT HIGH SCHOOL FRIDAY NIGHT

"The Passion Play,' sometimes characterized as the play of all plays, is to be shown in Clanton at the high school building, under auspices of the Methodist church of Clanton, Friday night of this week, beginning at 8 o'clock p.m. This is a magnificent and colossal play and when you see it you will feel as though you had traveled through Bavaria to witness the original production.

This is a motion picture production and is the adaptation of the world-famous version as presented in Oberammergau, portraying Christ, his disciples, Pilate, King Herod and all the ancient characters. There are 500 Roman soldiers and civilians in the production. The picture is reproduced in beautiful colors.

Don't fail to see this picture, which is a treat of a lifetime. You may never have the chance to see it again if you live an ordinary lifetime yet. Remember, it is Friday night of this week.

LETTER FROM MR. AND MRS. JAMES B. HUTCHINSON TO MRS. W. R. BLOW

Birmingham, Ala., June 22, 1931.

My Dear Mrs. Blow

This is to express from both Mrs. Hutchinson and myself to you both our most sincere and heartfelt sympathy in your great loss and deep sorrow.

You have lost a loving and devoted son in his glorious prime and that while sorrow as a mother is the greatest of all and almost unbearable, still we can assure you that we feel that Chilton County has lost one of its loyal and upright young men just budding into manhood. O'Neall was a good, kind and honest boy, and as a mother you had every reason to be proud of him.

We were shocked when the hospital phoned at about ten o'clock this morning of his tragic passing on. We cannot tell you how sorry we were to learn of your son's death and we can say nothing to make your lot and grief easier, but we want you to know we deeply sympathize with you.

You have this comfort, however, in his passing through that he was spared to you for the length of time he was. That his mission here on earth ended, he has gone in death on an adventure far more beautiful than of life on earth.

"His toils are past, his work done,
And he is fully blest;
He fought the fight, the victory won,
And entered into rest."

Again expressing our deep sympathy to you and entire famly, we are, sincerely and sympathetically, Captain and Mrs. James B. Hutchinson.

MEMORY OF MRS. EDDIE LITTLE

On May the 18th, at 4 o'clock in the morning, the death angel visited the home of Eddie Little and carried away a loving wife and mother. It was very sad to see Mary, as we all call her, go, but after very patient suffering for a week, God saw fit to call her to realms beyond, where all is joy and peace, and happiness.

Just in the bloom of life, at the age of 25, God saw fit to call her home. Although it is sad, we know that God knows best, and doeth all things well, so we, as friends and loved ones, must be submissive to His will, and prepare ourselves to meet Mary in the home above, where there will be no parting, no tears, or sadness.

To know Mary was to love her. She was ever ready to do her duty in the community in which she was reared and lived until the messenger from God bode her come home. She became a member of Chestnut Creek Baptist Church when very young, and in Chestnut Creek cemetery she was laid to rest on May 19th, Rev. J. D. Hughes officiating, with J. Mell Martin in charge.

Preceding her to the grave are her father and only brother. Living to mourn her loss are her husband, Eddie Little, two children, Cecil, nine; and Janette, four; her mother, Mrs. Gatsy Vinson; one sister, Mrs. M. V. Wright and a host of friends.

Weep not dear loved ones, just remember there is consolation to be found by trusting in God. We know that the vacant place cannot be filled, but let us console ourselves in the fact that some day God will make all things well.—A Friend.

Lesson for June 28

REVIEW: JESUS THE WORLD'S SAVIOR: SUFFERING AND SOVEREIGNTY

GOLDEN TEXT—For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus the Savior.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Savior.

Since the lessons of the quarter center in one Supreme Person and have one transcendent theme, Jesus Christ the world's Savior, the best method of review for senior and adult classes will be to refresh the mind with the principal facts and leading teachings of each lesson. The following suggestions are offered:

Lesson for April 5.

Jesus taught humility to the disciples by the parable of how guests bidden to a wedding should seat themselves. The humble man will take the lowest place. Those who choose the lowest places in life have a chance of promotion.

Lesson for April 12.

The younger son, becoming tired of the restraints of home, demanded of the father the portion of goods which he would inherit. The father acceded to his request, and after his life of profligacy joyfully received him back into his home. This act portrays the forgiving mercy of God.

Lesson for April 19.

The story of the rich man and Lazarus gives us a look into two worlds. In this world the rich man lived in luxury while Lazarus begged at his door. In the other world their positions are reversed.

Lesson for April 26.

Prayer is an obligation on the part of the believer. It is essential to spiritual life. All true prayer is accompanied with becoming humility.

Lesson for May 3.

Zacchaeus brushed aside all difficulties in order to see Jesus. The soul which earnestly seeks Jesus shall never be disappointed. Zacchaeus proved the reality of his conversion by making restitution. He was saved instantly upon receiving Jesus Christ.

Lesson for May 10.

The Parable of the Pounds was spoken to correct the misapprehension of the disciples as to the immediate establishment of the kingdom. While the kingdom awaits establishment, it is incumbent upon the believer to use faithfully the gifts left in his hands by the Lord. While the size of the gift is a matter of sovereign choice on the part of the Lord, fidelity in its use is demanded. There is a time of reckoning coming.

Lesson for May 17.

Christ's entry into Jerusalem was his official offering of himself as the promised Messiah. His coming was in exact fulfillment of prophecy. Christ's driving out of the temple the money changers demonstrated his authority over the temple and its service.

Lesson for May 24.

Jesus knowing that the hour of his death was near, instructed the disciples to make preparation for the Passover, that he might have fellowship with them in this ordinance before his crucifixion. In connection with the Passover Feast, he instituted the Feast of the New Covenant. The bread was symbolic of his broken body. The cup was a symbol of his atoning blood shed on Calvary.

Lesson for May 31.

Jesus' indescribable agony in the garden shows us what it cost the sinless Son of God to identify himself with a sinning race. The load of sin was so revolting that the face of the loving Father was turned from his beloved Son.

Lesson for June 7.

The story of the crucifixion of Jesus presents the greatest tragedy of all history. The sinless Son of God suffering for a sinning race should move all sinners gladly to accept salvation at his hand.

Lesson for June 14.

The resurrection of Jesus Christ is one of the foundation truths of Christianity. It is the supreme proof that Christ was what he claimed to be and is the unmistakable evidence that his offering on Calvary's cross was accepted by God. The empty tomb is the supreme and grand proof of the deity of the Son of God and of his vicarious sacrifice.

Lesson for June 21.

Disputes and misunderstandings are bound to arise even among those who are members of Christ's body. Those who have been vitally united to him will be scrupulously careful lest they cause to stumble those for whom Christ died.

Never Fear

Never fear when the Lord bids you go down to the way "which is desert." The moment you set your foot in the wilderness you are the Lord's guest, and he ever keeps his table right royally furnished.—Guy Mark Pearse.

Interest in the Bible

What other book beside the Bible could be heard in public assemblies from year to year, with an attention that never tires, and an interest that never cloys?—Robert Hall.

Mr. P. G. Marcus spent Monday in Birmingham.

JUDSON'S NEW PRESIDENT

It again becomes my happy privilege to present to the people of Alabama a new president of Judson College—Dr. L. G. Cleverdon, who goes into office on July 1st, succeeding Dr. Harry Clark who resigned to accept the position of superintendent of city schools in his old home at Knoxville, Tenn.

It is a happy and fortunate thing for Judson and the educational interests of Alabama that we have Dr. Cleverdon to follow in the footsteps and carry on the great work which Dr. Clark has inaugurated.

Dr. Cleverdon is a man of genial and gracious personality and appearance, of unexcelled scholarly attainment, of brilliant mind, and a platform speaker whose charm and eloquence grips and holds the attention of young and old alike.

While he has not been in Alabama for a number of years, still we find pride in the fact that he was born and reared in this state, and because of his pride in and love for Alabama he has declined flattering offers elsewhere in order that he might return and cast his lot with the people of his home state.

He is thirty-six years old, and to the vigor, the dash and the charm of youth is added a wisdom that has come to him by reason of his years of experience as a college executive and teacher and as a leader in the various departments of our young people's work. He knows the problems of the young and because of this knowledge and of his sympathetic understanding heart, he is especially attractive to those of college age, and I predict that no man has ever come into the educational field of Alabama who has exercised a greater influence or had a stronger hold upon the love and confidence of the student life with which they have come in contact than will Dr. Cleverdon, and I also predict for Judson under his administration a greater student body and a more outstanding position in the educational life of Alabama than she has ever known in the past.

Dr. Cleverdon has a charming family, consisting of his gracious wife and three children, who will add much to the college life of Judson.

I believe that Judson today has a stronger grip upon the hearts of the people of this state, of all denominations, than she has ever had before. They have come to realize that Judson offers a superior service in education and in character building to the end that parents and students alike are turning to her in ever increasing numbers.

I bespeak for Dr. Cleverdon the undivided support of our people and the hearty cooperation of the educational and Christian forces throughout Alabama and the South.—Hugh Mallory.

VERBENA 4-H CLUB MEETS

IN MEMORY OF LEON JONES

The one who was so dear to our hearts has gone,
The voice we loved is stilled;
The place made vacant in his home and ours,
Can never more be filled.

Oh, thy sweet voice is hushed,
Thy warm true heart is still;
And on thy bright and happy face,
Is resting death's cold chill.

Oh dear, that, the hope so sweet,
That in Heaven we soon shall meet;
There was an angel band in Heaven,
That was not quite complete,
So God called our dear brother,
husband and son,
To fill that vacant seat.

Through all sorrow in life,
He'd smile a smile of heavenly birth;
And when the angels called him home,
He smiled farewell to earth.

Sweet be thy silent slumber,
You no more our sorrow and trouble know;
We miss you from your home and ours,
Dear, we miss you from your place.

We miss your kind and loving hand,
Your true, and sweetest care;
Oh dear, our homes are dark and lonely without you,
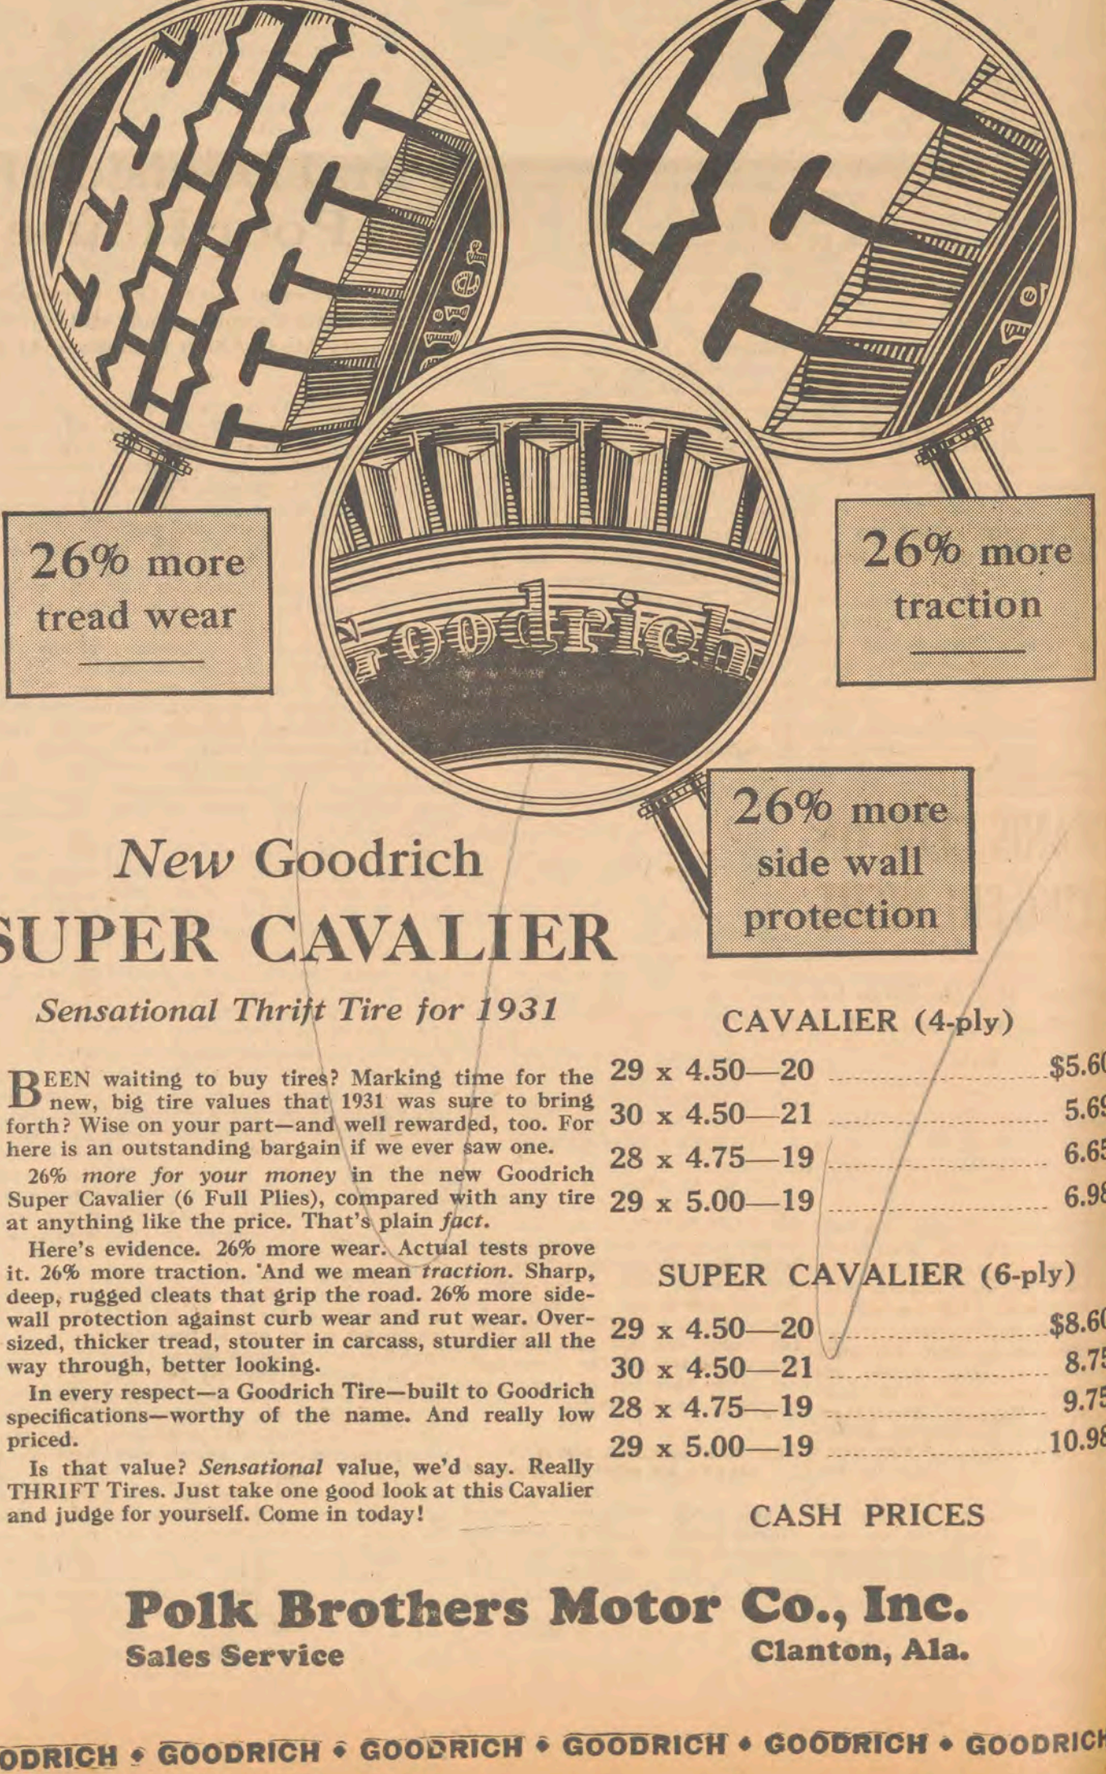
We miss you everywhere.
—Mrs. W. T. Patterson.

Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, says that the new Canadian tariff will only affect about four per cent of our exports to Canada. This will be sad news to a lot of our blatant free traders.

Speaking personally, the trouble is, that most of our intangible assets are so intangible at this time we can hardly locate them.



The reason the movies are displacing the legitimate stage is that the movie actors can play in a hundred different cities at the same time but they have to be fed only in Hollywood. And they travel in tin cans instead of drawing rooms.

If prices keep on declining maybe you will yet live to see the day when you can again buy a crock of beans in the palace Restaurant on Main Street for a nickel.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

PLENTY OF PEACHES IN SIGHT THIS YEAR

Plenty of peaches are in sight for Alabama and the entire country this year.

F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician for the State and Federal Departments of Agriculture reports that on June 1 the peach crop for Alabama was forecast at 1,292,000 bushels this year. "There is another good peach crop in the State, the condition being 77 compared with the same figures last year and an average of 65," he said.

According to statistics released by the United States Department of Agriculture there will be an abundant peach crop in most all sections of the country.

A crop of 78,000,000 was indicated by June 1. This would be a 46 per cent increase over last year's short crop," the department said.

Almost 19,000,000 bushels are credited to the 10 southern states, compared with 10,000,000 bushels in 1930. Most of the western states, except California and Oregon, will likely have many more peaches than last season. New York expects a lighter crop than in 1930, but most of the other eastern and central states will have greatly increased production of this fruit. Illinois and Arkansas look for heavy crops, compared with practically no peaches in 1930.

RECORD POTATO CROP PRODUCED

Alabama farmers this year shipped the largest Irish potato crop and the second largest strawberry crop produced in the State within the last decade.

This was announced by Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture and industries, who said that 4,500 cars of potatoes have been shipped from the State this season, compared with 2,709 cars last season or an annual average of 1,990 cars during the past 10 years. The previous record crop moved from the State was in 1928 when 3,131 cars were shipped. This year's movements surpasses the previous record by over 1,200 cars.

Commissioner Storrs released figures showing that the record strawberry movement from Alabama was in 1929, when the farmers of the State moved 1,354 cars. This year's shipments amount to 1,138 cars, which compared with an annual average during the past 10 years of 687.3 cars.

Statistics compiled by the Department of Agriculture show that over 7,200 cars of potatoes, cabbage, strawberries and cucumbers have been shipped from the State this season and that other major crops including green corn, sweet potatoes, watermelons, peaches and others are just beginning to move or will begin within the next few days. The carlot truck shipments from the State have already exceeded that or 1929 or 1930.

It is estimated that over 3,000,000 have been placed in circulation in Alabama within the past two months in return for truck crops shipped from the State.

WHY AND WHEN TO CULTIVATE CROPS

Auburn, Ala., June 22.—Each year as crops grow and summer weather wears along farmers become concerned about when to discontinue the cultivation of crops, or when to lay-by. Their goal is to cultivate enough and at the right time for best results.

The agricultural experiment station at Auburn has issued specific information about how to cultivate and when to discontinue cultivation. On the cultivation of corn, for example, J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist at Auburn, said: "Cultivate very shallow with weeders, harrows, and sweeps, just enough to keep weeds and grass under absolute control. Weeds and grass compete with corn plants for water and plant food."

On the cultivation of cotton he said: "Cultivate shallow and often enough to keep down weeds and grass. Weeds and grass compete with the cotton plants for water and food."

These statements are based upon experimental work not only in Alabama but in many other states, showing that the main objective of cultivation is to control weeds and grass and that cultivation which does the best job of controlling grass and weeds with minimum damage to the crop being cultivated is the best kind of cultivation.

Consequently, cultivation may be discontinued as soon as not needed for the control of grass and weeds. Attention is called to the fact that cultivation can be harmful as well as beneficial. It is harmful when it destroys roots of the plants being cultivated, thereby curtailing the normal functioning of the roots of plants, which is necessary to maximum growth and production.

A $300,000,000-nitrate government-producing company, called Cosach, is now functioning in Chile. Natural nitrates in that country are being produced and marketed through this organization which is backed by the Chilean government.

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

When you visit your physician for your periodic health examination, one of the very first things he asks you to do is to open your mouth wide, and to say "Ah." He is examining the delicate lining of your throat. "Ah!" There is not a man or woman who could even make this simple sound, if in the throat there were no Adam's Apple. For your Adam's Apple is your larynx—the voice box containing your vocal chords. And what a delicate piece of Nature's handiwork the Adam's Apple is. A slight cold—even a tiny particle lodged in the throat—and our voice often grows husky. In acute cases, we may even lose our voice for several days. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants—Reach for a LUCKY instead—remember, LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that through its exclusive "TOASTING" process expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. No wonder 20,679 American physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating. LUCKIES are always kind to your throat. And so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple."

POULTRY CARS NET GROWERS $260,000.00

Auburn, Ala., June 22.—During the winter and early spring of 1931 Alabama farmers and poultrymen shipped cooperatively 105 cars of poultry for which the growers were paid $260,000. These cars were operated in 57 of the 67 counties of the state and 38,000 farmers participated in the selling, as reported by J. B. Sylvest, extension marketing specialist of Auburn.

The 1931 figures compare with 31 cars in 1930, participated in by 34,000 farmers who received $230,000. In 1929 the total was 100 cars sold by 36,000 farmers for $285,000; and in 1928, which marked the beginning of this method of selling poultry in Alabama, 43 cars were sold by 15,000 farmers for $120,000.

These sales were made by the county farm bureaus through the state farm bureau at Montgomery. The county farm and home demonstration agents asissted in arranging and conducting the sales and Mr. Sylvest assisted in obtaining the best markets.

"This method of selling," said Mr. Sylvest, "paid to the growers at the car doors the market price for their poultry. Cars were operated on a schedule announced in advance in order that those having poultry for sale might sell it. If a carload was not obtained at one station the car was moved to another and another until it was filled. Most of them were shipped to the big markets of the North and East.

"This method of selling has stimulated poultry production and has been beneficial to merchants and professional men, as well as to farmers, because of the distribution of cash when sales were made."

SOIL EROSION COSTS $200,000,000 YEARLY

Soil erosion cost farmers of the United States $200,000,000 annually reports the Department of Agriculture which stated that "translated into terms of the average cost to individual farmers erosion cost $33 a year."

DROUGHT RETARDS TIMBER

Montgomery, Ala., June 22.—The amount of new wood being added to young timber through annual growth is less than usual on account of the spring and early summer drought, says Colonel Page S. Bunker, state forester. Thus 1931 promises to be a repetition of 1930 when the same conditions prevailed, according to Colonel Bunker. Most of the new wood is added during this time of the year, and insufficient rainfall can be charged up with greatly reduced annual increment to the volume of growing timber.

Of the past eighteen months only three have been up to normal in rainfall, according to the United States weather statistics. The loss to timber growers is not only comprised in the lessened growth per annum but also in the unusually heightened fire hazard that exists during such prolonged dry periods. The business depression which has been reflected in decreased receipts in the state forestry funds adds to the timber growers' difficulties, since the field work of the State Commission of Forestry carried on in cooperation with the farmers and other residents has necessarily been greatly curtailed. However, timber yields have the advantage over most soil crops in that the product can be left standing in the forest if business conditions do not warrant its marketing, and in the meanwhile it increases steadily both in quantity and in volume.

Dr. Chas. F. Pabst, dermatologist, Brooklyn, N. Y., has issued his annual warning against dangers of over-exposure to summer tan. He said that illness from sunburn causes an annual loss of 200,000 working days with a money value of $1,400,000.

The purchasing agents for a big manufacturer of automobile tires says that in 1913 the cost per 1,000 miles per tire was $18 as compared to 80 cents in 1931. He declared that no other commodity has dropped in price equivalent to this. At the same time a tire manufacturer declared that the business is unprofitable.

A PLAN FOR POOR HOUSE

Jemison, Ala., June 20, 1931.
Editor Union-Banner:

I wish to say to the people of Chilton County that I visited the almshouse of Mobile and was greatly pleased with their manner of its administration; being under the supervision of an employee. This I have advocated, and I believe this would be the plan for our almshouse in Chilton County. I have several petitions asking our commissioners to place our almshouse on that plan. My petition reads as follows:

We, the undersigned citizens and taxpayers of Chilton County, respectfully petition your honorable court to place our almshouse in charge of a suitable employee, under your direct supervision government, by such rules and regulations as will best serve their welfare.

After being advised to get the plan of Mobile, I held my petition out. I have a letter from Judge Williams of Mobile saying that I shall have the information.—Your respectfully, J. W. Hays.

Dear Friends:

I believe if I were to give anyone advice as to when and where of an operation, I would say, "Try Birmingham in May, when people's flowers are in bloom, and tneir hearts are full of kindness." So many, many friends and acquaintenances called to see me, sent me flowers, or wrote me notes, at the hospital, that it was quite impossible to be lonely.

During the days on which I could not see visitors, I know there were some who called, whose names I did not get, and I remember at least two bunches of flowers with which I somehow failed to connect any name. This little note is written in the hope that those good friends may see it or hear it, and know how grateful I was although obviously, it is impossible to thank them personally.—Gratefully, Marian Fairbank.

BAKER 4-H CLUB

The Baker 4-H Club will meet next Thursday night, July 2nd, at the Baker schoolhouse. It seems that there has been some misunderstanding about the time we meet. It is the first Thursday night in each month. We had a real interesting meeting the last time that we met. We discussed some interesteing things. Our leader suggested that we make high points of the most interesting things we see on the farms, such as live stock, good pastures, good orchards corn, cotton and oats, well terraced land, nice homes, good barns, or anything concerning the farm, and make a report of the most interesting thing that you saw and why you think so. And the three making the highest points would carry them to Auburn this summer.

We are planning to see each member's project soon. Also planning a picnic in the near future, so come on boys and let's make our clug the best club. Don't forget the time we meet, July 2nd.—Maurice Thornton, secretary.

VERMONT COMMUNITY CLUB

The Community Club met Saturday night with a very good crowd.

It was decided that we would meet every first and third Saturday night until the rush of work is over. We also talked about the play we are planning to give in the near future, entitled "Little Miss Jack." Everybody watch the paper for the date. If you miss this play you will miss a lot of fun.

We want to get all of the members to come back to the meeting.

We are planning on a picnic in a short while. The members who are absent three times will not be allowed to take part in the picnic; so everybody come and take part in the meeting next first Saturday night.—Meldie Sanson.

Well, the good old days may be gone forever but cotton dresses are coming back into style and that ought to help some.

Of course the modern filling station is an artistic improvement but we still long once in awhile for the sound of the old village blacksmith's hammer, and the odor of burned leather instead of gasoline.

The trouble with going back home fishing nowadays is that the old creek isn't half as wide as it used to be.

Publishers are said to have decided that the fellow who borrows a book and doesn't return it ought to be called "booksneaf." This is all right but you have to have a cold in your head to pronounce it properly.

The trouble with these modern Latin-American revolutions is that they usually fail to develop a George Washington.

It is said that the prohibition department will seek to get college graduates for enforcement officers. Well, it would probably make the average bootlegger feel a little better to be arrested by an officer with a Harvard diploma.

That deficit of a billion dollars with which Uncle Sam is threatened sounds like a big sum until you happen to remember that the racketeering industry in the United States takes in three billions a year.

One kind of business which doesn't seem to be much affected by the depression is "monkey-business."

Well the pessimist is now having his day to lead the parade, and perhaps we shouldn't begrudge him the opportunity, because he has had very few chances to strut in America.

In view of the fact that Canada already had a per capita tariff higher than ours it is a little difficult to get excited over Pat Harrison's charge that the new Canadian tariff is "retaliation."

Nothing can make an ardent free trader quite so happy as to have some other government raise its tariff schedules affecting the exports of the United States.

Tex Guinan and her girls who are trying to make a landing in Europe seem to fit the old description of "all dressed up and no place to go."

According to dispatches from Finland, American Reds who went to Russia to get jobs are dissatisfied and anxious to get back home. Evidently communizing in Russia is not as profitable as it is in the United States.

Ambassador Dawes says that our diplomacy is easy on the brain but hard on the feet. Does he mean to infer that some of our diplomats don't use their gray matter enough?

If some of our modern pacifists had been at Valley Forge with Geo. Washington they would have advised him to run up the white flag and quit, because armed resistance is "inexcusable."

A New York tenant shot his landlord in a row over the rent. He has been taken to a place where he will get free rent for a while.

Being in love has its drawbacks—especially during the green onion season.

The way some of our correspondents are playing up the soviet leaders as super-men reminds us of what they said about the Prussians back in 1915.

Most of us have learned one thing about securities: buying 'em high and selling 'em low is no way to make money.

If Freddy Libbey really wants to disarm the world why doesn't he go to Europe and tell the boys over there to junk their armament because the League of Nations will see to it that there will be no more fighting?

The So-Called Room Tax
The so-called room tax is nothing more nor less than a minimum charge which uses the number of rooms in the building served as basis by which the minimum charge is determined. It means in actual practice that the fellow with the large house, and therefore the larger potential power requirements, pays a larger minimum price than the small fellow with the smaller requirements.
In Alabama these utility rates are fixed by the Alabama Public Service Commission after full hearing from both the utility and the public, and represent the mature judgment of the members of that Commission based upon the evidence submitted. Big Pensacola Bridge Opening was a Gala Event

FIVE HUNDRED GUESTS ARE ENTERTAINED AT DINNER

Motorcade Through City is Feature of Friday's Entertainment for the Out-of-Town Visitors

PARADE AND ADDRESS OF GOV. CARLTON ON SATURDAY BILL

Music by Army and Navy Bands and Army and Navy Unit Demonstrations; Boat Races on Program

(By Guy H. de Shazo)

Recalling memories of the days when Andrew Jackson, better known as "Old Hickory," found himself at Roe Buck's Point on Santa Rosa Peninsula wishing for a bridge on which to cross the placid waters of Pensacola Bay to the city beyond, the citizens of the city of Pensacola, officials of the Pensacola Bridge Corporation, the Pensacola Beach Corporation and offocials of the Naval Air Station and Fort Barancas put their heads together and pulled off one of the biggest and best celebrations the writer has ever had the pleasure of attending, in connection with the opening of the new $2,500,000.00 bridge which now spans the bay at the same point where "Old Hickory" felt the need of such a structure.

Breakfast at Greenville

After leaving Clanton at 4:30 Friday morning the writer and the other members of the Chilton County delegation went via the Mobile highway, stopping in Greenville for breakfast. Here we found a short sector of road under construction and had to make a detour of two or three miles. The road was found to be in excellent shape to Castleberry where we again detoured to Brewton. This particular section has been opened to traffic since we made the trip. The Mobile road was left at Flomaton from which place we traveled through Florida the balance of the way to Pensacola, passing through McDavid, Molino, Cottage Hill, Gonzalez and Ensley. The route here also carried us through Cantonement which is near Barrineau Park, the home of a former well known and popular Clanton lady who before her marriage was Miss Gamma Middleton.

A distance of 236 miles was covered in a little less than seven hours, and upon arriving in Pensacola we found the city all bedecked with flags and bunting and in a high state of excitement. Every effort was being made to make the huge throng of visitors comfortable, feel welcome, and imbue them with the spirit of the festive occasion. The Chilton County delegation was fortunate in that they had reservations for hotel accomodations, since every hotel room in the city was taken early in the day.

When we had gotten settled down in our rooms and refreshed, we began nosing around to find out the lay of the land. We were directed to the Frisco depot, where a huge motorcade was formed, taking every invited guest on an inspection tour of the city which included a trip through the huge naval air station and the army fort, Fort Baranacas. Here at Baranacas there was considerable ado in connection with quartering a new consignment of C. M. T. C. who had just arrived for elementary instruction in defending our Uncle Sam. The party also enjoyed a special privilege by being allowed to visit certain parts of the naval air station which is denied the usual visitor to that place. It was very interesting and instructive to see just how this station is managed, the way they handle the planes, launch them, etc. After viewing the enormity of this station, which by the way is the largest station of the kind in the United States, one has difficulty in comprehending the magnitude of the war activities of these United States.

From Fort Barancas the motorcade traversed part of the business section of the city, through Bay View Park and over the beautiful Scenic Highway and across the new bridge to the Casino on Santa Rosa Island. Laying aside all other things of interest which were seen by those who were fortunate enough to be included in this motorcade, the elegance and beauty of this new bridge would well repay anyone for their time and trouble to see. It is of reinforced concrete construction, being supported by reinforced concrete piles which range in length from 60 to 100 feet. There are 293 spans totaling 3 miles in length with about one mile of causeway approaches. The cost of this was $2,500.000.00. The accompanying photos will give some idea of its size, beauty and construction. The photo of the Casino which also accompanied this article does not begin to do justice to the elegance of the $150,000.00 building and development on Pensacola beach. The bath house has lockers for the accommodation of 500 patrons at a time; the dining room will seat 300 and the dance floor will accomodate 100 couples. There is also being constructed at the Casino a fishing pier which will reach 1,200 feet out into the gulf, affording fishing in 22-foot water. This pier is of steel girder construction erected on creosote piles. The Casino also boasts of its own radio broadcasting station which has been installed in colaboration with the naval and army operations at Pensacola.

Friday afternoon marked the preopening celebration featuring a stag party and shore dinner at the Casino, where about 500 invited guests were entertained in an elaborate manner. Drinks and other refreshments were served throughout the afternoon by members of the Pensacola Post, American Legion with Julius F. Wernicke, Post Commander, in charge. No effort was spared to see that every guest had the time of his life. Swimming, fishing, boating and every mode of entertainment were provided gratis to the guests. Open house was held and visitors made themselves very much at home.

At seven o'clock dinner was announced and the party filed into the beautifully appointed dining room where covers were laid for 500. A delicious five-course dinner was served consisting of shrimp cocktail, green olives, celery, salted nuts, pompano with creole dressing, creamed potatoes, boiled corn, string beans, vegetable salad, hot rolls, orange ice, cake and demitasse. The tables were decorated with cut flowers and lighted cathedral tapers and favors consisted of a descriptive booklet and program of the official opening ceremonies for the next day, a Florida-made cigar tied with green ribbon, a bag of sand from the beach and two postcard views of the bridge. Music was furnished throughout the meal by the Casino's own radio station by means of a series of amplifiers and speakers throughout the building.

At the conclusion of the meal, various speakers including Pensacola officials, officials of the Pensacola Bridge Corporation, the Beach corporation, offciers from the Naval and Army forts and newspaper men of the city and others were heard in a series of short talks.

The official opening of the bridge took place on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock when little Patricia Ruth Patterson, assisted by Julius F. Wernicke, Jr., and O. H. L. Wernicke, 2nd., broke a silver cord formally opening the bridge to public traffic.

This part of the program was preceded by a large parade which formed downtown and moved through the city to the bridge and was made up of police, Army band, army troops, which by the way, included a battery of machine gun men who demonstrated their "typewriters," navy units, American Legion Fifie and Drum Corps, Boy Scoups, Girl Scouts, other war organizations, bridge officials and guests in committee cars, civic organizations, labor unions and individual cars Julius F. Wernicke was grand marshall of the parade and Gov. Doyle E. Carlton and the entire membership of the state legislature of Florida were also in the parade.

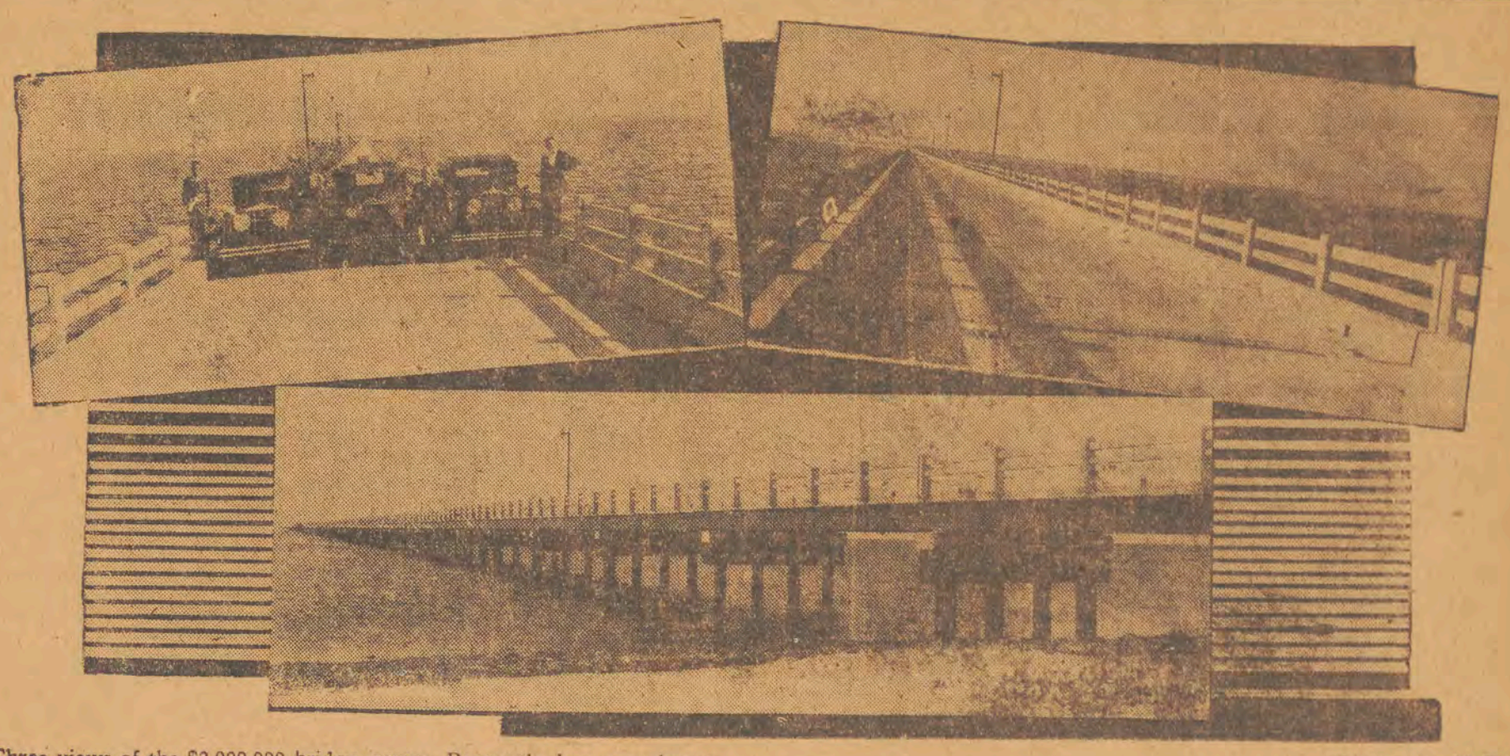
The dedication ceremony at the Casino following the opening of the bridge was featured by addresses by Gov. Carlton, Major Gen. Lytle Brown, Chief of Eng. U. S. Army; Rear Admiral T. P. Magruder, Com. 8th Naval Dist. U. S. Navy. J. E. D. Yonge was master of ceremonies and music was furnished by various naval and army bands from the Pensacola bases.

The afternoon was given over to an elaborate boat racing regata on Santa Rosa Sound with Commodore R. G. Patterson of the Pensacola Yacht Club awarding the prizes.

Officials of the two corporations governing the operation of the new bridge and casino, and the citizens of Pensacola may feel well assured that they left nothing undone which would have added to the occasion. It was truly an epochal event, and one which will mark the beginning of an era of added prosperity and convenience to Pensacola and all of west Florida.

Return via Baldwin

The writer and three other members of the party returned via Baldwin County and looked in on the truck shipping activities of that section. Foley, Summerdale, Robertsdale and Loxley were visited and conditions of truck and other crops noted as well as nature of farm lands and their desirability considered. After arriving back home and making a resume of the country seen on the entire trip, the writer finds that Robertsdale in Baldwin County is the best all-around section we saw. There seemed to be a better spirit of cooperation and a more general inclination to be up and doing among the residents than at any other place.



The entire section over which we traveled was in the throes of an extended drouth, which in the trucking section of south Baldwin had cut the "cuke" crop short. There had been a bumper crop of "spuds" which is about disposed of. Roasting corn was just getting ready to cut with small shipments being made.

A total of 560 miles were traveled crossing 11 counties in Alabama and one in Florida, and we saw signs of rain in only one narrow strip of about 2 miles, and only enough there to lay the dust. However, during the time elapsing between the trip and this writing, there has been rain in most of the territory covered, which will liven the crops and assure a fair crop in most instances.

After the party left Autauga County on the trip down, no cotton was seen till we reached Escambia and Monroe counties on the return. Some fields were seen in southern Monroe with cotton knee high and blooming. In these sections where such large acreages of cotton are planted, the writer is at a loss to understand how the farmers manage to raise sufficient food and feed to carry them over from year to year. We often wonder why certain sections persist in adhering to the one crop system of cotton when other money crops can be raised equally as well and most times with less effort and with much greater assurance of a fair return.

Go where you may, see all sorts of good places, meet many new people, find lots of places which seem to have exceedingly good advantages in some line, you will always return to Chilton feeling that everything considered, we have the best country in the world.

RESOLUTION

To the Worshipful Master, Wardens and Brethren of Verbena Lodge No. 754, A. F. and A. M.:

Dear Brethren:

With bowed heads and hearts of sadness we again acknowledge the work and wisdom of the Supreme Grand Master in removing from our midst by death our beloved brother, James E. Barrett, who departed this life on the 7th day of June, 1931.

Brother Barrett was born in Coosa County, Alabama, on the 6th day of March, 1884. He was reared, educated, and married in the county of his birth.

He joined the Baptist Church in Coosa County at the age of twenty-one years, and remained an active, consistent member of this branch of the Christian church until his death.

He was united in marriage with Miss Maud Hatchett in Coosa County on the 22nd day of November, 1905. To this union were born eight children. He is survived by his wife and the following six children: Bertha, Ralph, Clyde, Evelyn, Josephine, and James, Jr. He moved to Verbena, Chilton County, Alabama, in 1930, where he lived until his death.

He was made a Mason at Proctor Lodge, No. 571 in Coosa County in 1920, and transferred his membership to Verbena Lodge No. 754 on the 5th day of June, 1922.

Brother Barrett was a man of strong convictions and fearless in defense of what he conceived to be right. He was kind, generous, and interested in every move for the upbuilding of his community. He was a worthy and valuable friend and a kind and loving husband and father.

Now, therefore, as God in His allwise providence has seen fit to call our most worthy and beloved brother from his labors on earth to that Lodge Triumphant, be it resolved:

First, that in the death of Brother Barrett, this lodge has lost a faithful and loyal member and this community a worthy and valuable citizen.

Second, that our heart-felt sympathy is hereby extended to his bereaved family and friends, and though his face we see no more, we shall ever cherish his memory.

Third, that a blank page in our record be inscribed to his memory and that these resolutions be spread upon our minutes and a copy thereof furnished his family under the seal of this lodge and that a copy be published in the Chilton County papers.

Most humbly submitted, J. C. Pattillo, Q. C. Meroney, J. S. Hubbard, Committee.

You will find anything you want at Fox's. Come and see!

AN ARMADA OF PEACE

Commenting on the armada of army airplanes which was recently concentrated at Dayton, and was seen by millions of people throughout the country, an exchange sapiently remarks: "The sole purpose of this force is to destroy life and property."

The sole purpose of this air force, on the contrary, is to prevent the destruction of life and property by any country's air force which might be used against this country. In a world which is still, despite the persistence of pacifists in presuming to the contrary, armed for war, it is possible that the United States may be attacked, and to fail to provide the means of repelling such an attack would be criminal negligence.

The danger of war continues, but the danger that the United States will conduct an aggressive war, that it will attack any other nation, common sense people know is non-extent. The people of this country desire no additional territory, and have no ambition for the spoils of war, as was proved by the refusal of our government to accept any territory or indemnities after the World War.

There has been much silly gabble about the vast cost of the recent air maneuvers of the army. The truth is that since these same planes are constantly being flown for training purposes, the additional cost of making these journeys centering on Dayton was insignificant. It is impossible for army authorities to learn how to handle effectively great masses of airplanes without experimenting along this line. This demonstration was something more than an "air circus." It was an efficient manifestation of air power which reduces the possibility that any foreign power will care to attack the United States. It contributed to the prospect of peace rather than of war. It was one of the many experiments undertaken by the army air force to advance civil aviation, which is helping to bring the world closer together.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

While the free traders have been declaring with ill-concealed satisfaction that the recent rise in the Canadian tariff is a blow at American industry and a retaliation for the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill enacted a year ago, it is rather significant that requests for higher duties in the United States have been sponsored recently, in part at least through statesmen connected with the Democratic party, some of whose leaders are now trying to recommit it to the free trade program.

The new Canadian tariff schedules need occasion no great surprise. The Conservative party, now in power in Canada, has always been in favor of a protective tariff for exactly the same reasons that the protectionists give in the United States. The party believes that the best way to protect the Canadian farmer and business man, to say nothing of the Canadian standard of living, is through a protective tariff. It is to be remembered too that Canadians were already paying a proportionately greater tariff than Americans, before these new rates were put into effect, which makes the argument about retaliation seem a little far fetched.

But to return to conditions in the United States. There is little doubt that the textile industry has been benefitted by the rates in the Smoot-Hawley tariff law. And now the copper interests of Arizona have come forward seeking a tariff on Arizona, and have employed a distinguished Democratic statesman of the state to plead their cause.

But there is another sign of the times even more significant in light of the recent free trade barrage which has deluged the country. John J. O'Mara, president of the Boot and Shoe Workers Union, recently appeared before the U. S. Tariff Commission, painting a picture of runinos competition through cheap labor abroad and asking for a higher tariff on shoes. Representative Connery, of Massachusetts, a Democratic statesman, in no uncertain terms backed up this plea for a higher tariff on shoes.

According to the American Labor Banner, President O'Mara painted an astonishing picture of the shoe industry in Czenchoslovakia, where shoes, through low wage scales are produced at 28 cents per pair, labor cost, as against a labor cost of from 90 cents to $1.10 per pair for the same class of shoes in the United States. As the duty paid on the foreign shoes imported to America is but 40 cents per pair, it is easy to see how the foreign unfair competition is crippling the American shoe industry. The actual cost of the foreign shoes was ascertained according to Mr. O'Mara, by sending an experienced shoe worker to Europe to make a thorough investigation.

In conclusion Mr. O'Mara says that the American distributors on these foreign shoes get a profit of fifty per cent, while the distributor of American shoes gets a profit of 33 per cent, which may explain why some distributors in America are so incensed against our "iniquitous tariff" on behalf of the dear people when as a matter of fact they get a bigger profit from the "dear people" by selling them foreign-made shoes produced by cheap labor to the detriment of American capital and labor.

Another industry which needs protection badly is the oil industry and the independent oil operators will demand a tariff on their product at the next session of Congress. It is evident that the free traders will not have the floor to themselves when Congress meets in December.

MAKING THE BEST OF IT

It was Mark Tapley, was it not, who was never so happy as when miserable? That may be poor philosophy but it is far better to feel like that than to feel miserable because one feels miserable, if you get what we mean. We prefer the midwestern Nebraska farmer's philosophy. Instead of complaining because his corn is worth only 38 cents per bushel, he is rejoicing it is better to have cribs full of 38-cent corn than to see corn $2 a bushel and not an ear of corn on the place. Doubtless a bit of self analysis would reveal the fact that most of us are unhappy because we are unable to get all we want, rather than because we haven't all we really need. The best method of securing happiness, after all is said and done, is to make the best of what we have.—Omaha World-Herald.

More Pay for Shorter Sessions—Senators and congressmen are said to feel strongly that their salaries ought to be raised from the present $10,000 to $15,000. The country will easily agree to the 50 per cent increase in pay if the senators and congressmen will agree to a 50 per cent reduction in the length of their sessions.—New York Times.

Has A Rasping Sound—Lime Beane says the noise made by the fault-finders is sometimes mistaken for the voice of the people.—Toledo Blade.

Terrible Thought—What wakes us up in the middle of the night in a cold sweat is fear of what the archaeologists of a few thousands of years hence will dig up as evidence of present day "culture."—Arkansas Gazette.

Many of Us—The wealth of the average American has been placed at $2,977, indicating that quite a few average Americans have been short-changed.—Miami News.

INTERNATIONAL ISSUE

Western America should stand squarely behind the proposal to call a conference to find a means of helping the silver mining industry.

Mining destiny is, to a large degree, Western destiny. In several states mining is unequaley as employer, taxpayer and buyer of commodities and services. In a number of others it is among the leaders. And the metal depression is directly reflected in the working and living standards of almost all citizens.

Uncertain silver value is acting as a barrier to stimulated international trade, particularly with those countries which have not adopted the gold standard. Here is an important economic problem that demands decisive and scientific action.

Stick to the Ship, Lads—Today's cheer leader: Dr. David Friday, noted economist and investment trust manager, says low prices and depleted stocks will increase industrial output 25 per cent by December.—Washington Post.

"What has become of the old-time really funny circus clown?" asks a writer. What has become of everything funny?—Dayton (Ohio) Journal.

THE LITTLE FELLOW LOSES

The small country printer is the principal sufferer from government sale of stamped, return-addressed envelopes.

Government envelopes with return addresses printed on them, are sold at the same unit price whether the purchaser takes five hundred or a million. The loss sustained by the government on small orders is made up by high profits on quantity orders. As a result, private envelope manufacturing concerns can furnish the large consumer printed envelopes at less than the government's figures.

But the small printer is powerless. He would be the natural recipient of the five hundred or one thousand lot orders that large manufacturers would not bother with. It is this kind of business that government competition takes away from him. The government is using all the advantages of its credit and purchasing power, conferred on it by the people, and encroaching on the livelihood of some of its citizens.

Those politicians who are now busy telling us how to bring back prosperity might take time to reflect that one way to bring prosperity to the country printer would be to give him a chance to pursue his business without government competition.

The MAN in the MOON

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

A License to Drive—A bill has been introduced in the Alabama legislature to force drivers of automobiles to secure a license to drive. Not a bad idea, and, then, again, it may not be such a hot idea, after all. When we think of the fact that automobile accidents in 1930 caused 32,500 deaths and 960,000 injured in the United States, it would seem that any kind of safety measure would help. Yet, if such a law should pass, about the same old set of drivers we now have would be licensed, and they're not such a safe bunch.

Telling Us How—I suppose about all our readers are aware of the fact that the State of Alabama will electrocute eight Scottsboro negroes in the near future. Strange to say all kinds of objections have been filed by reds, bolsheviks, communists, and what have you, from the north and east, even though these men were convicted of bad crimes in the regular courts. Even members of communistic societies in foreign countries have taken up the fight to save them. It seems to me that these busy-bodies might do better with their time and money than to spend it trying to tell us how to run our affairs. For one thing, they might first look about them and try to help solve their own criminal problems, instead of trying to cover so much territory, inasmuch as conditions in their neck-o'-th'-woods are in worse shape than ours. Come to think of it, I believe I have heard something about a guy clearing up the beams before going mote hunting.

Chewing Gum and Cotton—Mr. Wrigley, of chewing gum fame, has announced that he has plans to buy a quantity of cotton in Dixie (about 4 per cent of our crop) and take it off the market, thereby helping the Southern farmer that much. It seems to me that several of the big shots in the business world might well follow Mr. Wrigley's example. A right big-hearted move, I think. His factories produce an article which does not require our product, yet he realizes that he owes our South something in return for the business we have given him, and takes this means of paying his due. Where are all those lily boys who have been telling us that all the North wanted was our trade, and money? If a few of Dixie's own "money-eyed interests" would do as much as this "Yankee" institution, maybe our conditions would clear up a bit. What do you think about it?

Good Times Coming—Roger Babson, nationally known statistician and business forecaster, was quoted all over the country last Wednesday, in his statement that the business depression had hit the bottom, and was now on the upward trend. Mr. Babson has been forecasting conditions in the business world for some time and has a good "batting average" of it all, having accurately forecast the great market crash of the early part of 1929. Such cheering news, coming as it does from such a reliable source, gives us all just reason to believe that we really must have an era of better conditions coming. Here's hoping he knows what he is talking about this time, any way.

Wrong Numbers—It is a national joke that a certain per cent of your telephone calls will result in wrong numbers. It is no wonder, when we come to consider our daily number of telephone calls. Listen to this! I notice where there are 155,000 operators in the United States, who handle about 65,067,000 calls daily. Out of this number, these operators would have to be mighty good to get ALL of such a multitude of calls put through correctly.

Beauty Hints—John Held, Jr., internationally known beauty expert, says that the girlies are becoming larger and better looking all the time. Well, it has been said many times that "you get what you pay for," and we know, too, that it takes much more nowadays to keep the dear things up, so I suppose it is nothing but right that they should improve in some way. Sounds like an auto ad, though, this "bigger and better looking" line.

Legal Tender—I always thought that if I could just get enough money to pay my debts, no matter what kind of money it might be, I would be in good shape. It seems this is not the case, however. Imagine my surprise, one day last week, to find that pennies and nickels are not legal tender for the payment of debts for more than 25 cents, and the same is true of dimes, except that the limit is set at $10. Strange—passing strange! Now, wouldn't it be just too bad to have a million dollars all in pennies, nickels and dimes, and be unable to find anybody who would take it in payment of debts? Yeah! Just too bad! But don't be misled. If anybody is caught in such a predicament, don't be disheartened. Try them out on a few of the boys. They MIGHT take them.—The Man in the Moon.

A RISKY EXPERIMENT

West Virginia is going to carry its own insurance on all state buildings. In other words the fire risk will be shifted from insurance companies to the taxpayers.

It is a risky process to pursue in guarding public property against fire loss. Any one of a number of state buildings, if burned, would cost the taxpayers more than insurance premiums for a considerale period of time.

The sad part of it is that when states carry their own insurance, sufficient funds are not built up to cover emergencies and when a loss occurs there is no provision for repayment or rebuilding. It all must come out of the pockets of the taxpayers, exactly as an uninsured private fire must come out of the pockets of the individual. Fire insurance at low rates is made possible by a great "spread" of risk.

West Virginia estimates that its fire loss for the next two-year period on $20,000,000 worth of previously insured property, will be $2,192. Let us hope, for the sake of the taxpayers, that the unexpected does not happen.

Definition—A state highway is a maginificent stretch of road lying between two detour signs.—Life.

Back to the Country—We are now informed that the trend of population is from the cities and towns back to the country. For nearly two years the struggle for existence in our centers of population has been a hard and bitter one, so it is natural that people should turn toward the farms, where the meals are fairly regular even if there it not so much excitement and jazz.—Omaha Daily Journal-Stockman.

THE REPUBLICAN DILEMMA

In most cases fortunate is the party with a president in office who has served only one term, for that party has its candidate and its platform, the administration record. The Republican party is in this position for the campaign of 1932 but it is doubtful if even the most sanguine Republican feels cheered at the prospect. The party which rode the crest of "Coolidge Prosperity" is now draining the dregs of "Hoover Prosperity" in a wan hope that business will recover before the presidential year.

There are men in the party who feel that by shelving Hoover as the candidate the Grand Old Party might weather the storm, but the older and wiser heads realize that it is sink or swim with Hoover.

For a party to fail to renominate a man who has served only one term in the White House is an open acknowledgement of failure on the part of that party, a repudiation of its own record. Apparently the only thing for the Republicans to do is to hope for a break in the depression and make the best of a bad situation.

Students of politics know that Hoover is no more responsible for the present depression than was Coolidge responsible for the past prosperity, but the voters are hard-headed. Prospects for a Republican victory in 1932 seem to rest entirely on two things—business and the Democrats.—Tuscaloosa Warrior.

HOOVER AND HARDING

No matter what differences of opinion may have existed between some of the citizens of this country and the late Warren G. Harding, and no matter what opinions may be held with respect to the capacity of the late Ohio statesman to hold the high office to which he was elected, President Hoover's references to the betrayals of Mr. Harding by friends he had trusted with high office will appeal to the sympathies of the country.

That Mr. Harding was betrayed by his trusted friends, as the result of plottings by what was known as "the Ohio gang," seems to be an uncontrovertible fact of history, and these betrayals fell upon him as a great shadow, for he knew exposures would come to dim his place in the great line of American presidents. Coming in the closing hours of his time, when he had no chance to set himself right with countrymen who had conferred upon him the greatest honor within the power to bestow, it was indeed a hard blow, a blow Warren Harding, noted for his gentleness, seems not to have deserved at all.

The American people have been exceptionally fortunate in the men elected to the presidency. Scandal may have come close to the doors of the White House at times as the result of political intrigue; but it has not left its mark permanently upon the name of any man who has held that high position in our scheme of government. True, some of our presidents have at times been accused of things not creditable to them; but time and the light of truth have sponged the national slate of these injustices, and it is not unsafe to assume that Warren Harding's name finally will be cleared of the taint put upon it by the machinations of unfaithful and treacherous friends he had unwisely trusted.

Mr. Hoover, part of the Harding organi- this desirable outcome by his address at Mazation, may have contributed something to rion during the Harding memorial service.—Alabama Journal.

In conclusion, it says: "Our greatest need right now is fewer cocktail parties and more tea parties—of the Boston kind."

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

Well, folks, here we are back on the old job again after a very pleasant and enjoyable vacation. The water was fine down at Pensacola and the girls were finer, so you may draw your own conclusions as to the quality of the time we had while down there.

We were under the impression that we would be able to keep the rest of the Chilton County bunch pretty well rounded up while attending the celebration, but we had reckoned a little too fast and without them. We couldn't keep the Judge and Omar out of the ocean and we couldn't get Sam Pate in! Upon being invited to take a swim in the surf Sam said nothing doing! He had his weekly bath before he left home and he did not care to get tangled up with those big fish and possibly sharks.

Lonza Burnette spent most of his time watching the horse racing and trying to find a drink of water (imagine a fellow wanting to drink water in Florida!) when he was not trying to find out when we were going to eat.

Duncan Manning and Mr. Walker got separated from the crowd and nearly missed the free ride over town—if they had missed this they both would have been sick—Manning got sick anyway. Manning also wondered where all the street lights were, as he thought the town was too dark after sundown.

The only trouble The Sweeper had was trying to find which spoon and fork to use at the banquet Friday night. There were large forks, small forks, large spoons, small spoons and demitasse spoons. We think we got them all mixed up, but we enjoyed the eats just the same whether we ate the shrimp cocktail with the demitasse spoon or with the salad fork. Boy, that was some feed those fellows served up and say, they had real ten-cent cigars which must be an indication that times are picking up.

And talking about refreshments—we have never seen so much free lunch in all our life. Plenty of free drinks, sandwiches and all the fixings.

The Sweeper will say without reservation that when Pensacola starts to pitch a party, they step high, wide, and handsome. Those boys certainly know their entertainment. And what a bridge and beach development they are going to have when it is all finished. The citizens of Pensacola are proud and justly so, of the fulfillment of a dream of a century in the spanning of Pensacola Bay with such a fine bridge as it now has.

Unfortunately for us, we were too busy at other things to do any salt water fishing while we were on the Gulf. We were told they were "biting" pretty good. We are going to beg off from the boss again before long and go back and fish just as much as we please—if we can dig up the license fee.

A Combination of Birthdays

Albert Davis, at Alred Drug Company, relates an unusual story about birthdays in his family. Saturday, May 9th, was his mother's birthday. Sunday, May 10 was Mothers Day. Monday, May 11th, was his father's birthday. There is only one day difference between the ages of his father and mother. The combination of birthdays was celebrated by a family gathering last month on Mothers Day, Sunday, May 10th.

I have heard of persons who enjoy the other fellow's automobile, succeed on somebody else's reputation, or fail because of somebody else's faults. But it was something entirely new when I heard Robert Alred say the other day that he was enjoying Uncle Hance's vacation. How can such a thing be when Hance had the vacation in Oklahoma and Bob was at the drug store taking care of his job and Hance's too? I give you this as a little problem in psychology to figure on in your idle moments. But don't ask Bob to give you any help on it.

Danger, Keep Out

A sign hanging in the door of the Chilton County jail says "Danger, Keep Out." It struck me as a peculiar circumstance, to think that it would be necessary to warn people to keep out of jail. Then on second thought, I agreed that it is a very timely warning. People have been warned in many ways to keep out of jail. Yet they persist in getting in all the time. Chilton County is right now spending thousands of dollars building a fine new jail, just because folks are so foolish and thoughtless that they will not heed the ever present warning to keep out. I think it would be a good idea to make this sign a permanent part of our jail.

Run Out the Lobbyists

Ever since I was in the legislature in 1923, I have had a perfect horror for that devilish and aggrevating thing called a lobbyist. Only a week or so ago I visited the present legislature and found that lobbyists were so thick on the floor of the house one could scarcely find a legislator. The same day I was there the patience of the house members broke, and the lobbyists were thrown out without ceremony. I was glad to see the House so assert itself. Lobbyists have been the greatest impediment to the peaceful and orderly progresses of our legislative bodies. I hope the Alabama lawmakers will continue to keep them swept out of their way.

Tuesday the Longest Day

Tuesday of this week was the longest day of the year. The sun rose Tuesday morning at 4:39 and set at 6:55, giving us 14 hours and 16 minutes of sunshine. On that day the sun was at its farthest point northward for this year. Each day it will drop a bit to the southward, until we come to the shortest day of the year, December 22.

Occasional Rains Help

Scattering showers over central Alabama during the past week have served to abate the extreme heat somewhat, and have been a great blessing to growing crops. However, some places have not yet had the refreshing showers. There was a big rain in the northern and western part of the county Sunday. Quite a bit of wind was reported from Isabella community. Bill Veazey's chicken house was blown off the foundation.

Berney Cobb Here Tuesday

Berney Cobb, of Center Hill, near Jemison, was in Clanton Tuesday. He was passing around among his friends inviting them to come to the all day singing at Center Hill next Sunday.

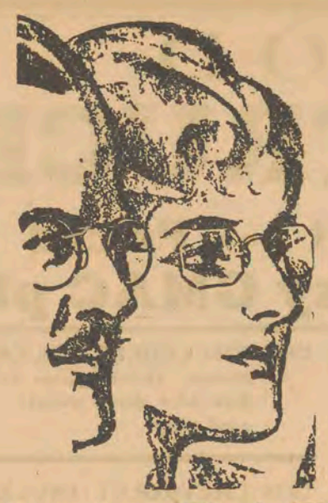
Boss Miller Coming Through

The many friends of Boss Miller, mail carrier on Route 4, were anxious about his condition last week when it was learned that he had to be rushed off to a hospital, suffering with a ruptured appendix. We are gratified now to learn that he has passed the crisis following his operation, and is well on the road to recovery. Mr. Miller has been in bad physical condition for some time. He has been working too hard. As the old saying goes, he has been burning the candle at both ends. He has been carrying the mail in the day time, and milking cows at night. It is a rare thing that we find a man who works too much. But that is the trouble with Boss Miller.

Strawerries, Peaches, Melons

Chilton County farmers have sold a $150,000 crop of strawberries. Several carloads of fine peaches have gone to market already, and more to go. In a few weeks the watermelon crop will be moving. This will amount to several carloads. Really it looks like our people will come into a better situation if cotton remains so low in price that it will not be attractive as a money crop.

Talk of Oil in Autauga



We hear in Clanton that there is much talk of oil wells in Autauga County, in the neighborhood of Prattville. With the drouth of last year and the failure of all the banks in Autauga County this year, it seems to me that it would be a mighty fine time to uncover some oil wells, gold mines, or something in Autauga. Maybe, as close as we are, we could get some of the benefits to go with our strawberries, peaches and watermelons.

Bob Mangum to Speak

Col. Bob Mangum is programmed to speak to the Kiwanis Club of Clanton at an outing on Mitchell Lake Friday night. Mr. Mangum is well known about here as a speaker. In fact he is recognized as an orator. I remember some years ago, when the Democratic campaign committee of Alabama wanted somebody to come to Chilton County and eat up a few Republican campaign orators, they always went over to Selma and engaged the services of Bob Mangum. I imagine Mr. Mangum has found, as most men do, that politics has lost its charm. He no longer attends to political campaign jobs. He is manager of publicity for Alabama Power Company, and preaches the doctrine of peace, progress, and presperity for our great commonwealth.

Did you ever stop to figure up what would happen to the wheat market if every family in America would consume an extra loaf of bread per day for a week, and if each family which could afford it would pass on an extra loaf to one family which couldn't afford it?

POULTRY

DISEASE RESISTANCE

(By Prof. H. D. Monroe)

I sometimes wonder if we are not paying too much attention to sanitary conditions in rearing chicks and not thinking enough about the chicks themselves. Sanitation or clean conditions in rearing chicks without a question is a very important factor in successful poultry raising, but building resistance to disease in the chick is also very important.

When we see a flock of chicks under the most strict sanitary conditions, even to the extent of wire floors and the keeper changing his shoes to enter the brooder house, dying with coccidiosis, and on the next farm a flock in filth doing well, we should stop and think.

In all animal life, disease resistance is more important than any other thing. We build resistance by having a strong, healthy animal rather than keeping the animal away from the thousands of germs that cause the many diseases. A hothouse plant is delicate.

In our poultry flocks let us try to raise strong, healthy "roughnecks" that don't know there is such a thing as coccidiosis. Raise chicks that can resist coccidiosis rather than try to keep the disease away from the chicks.

Crowded conditions, hot stuffy brooder houses, lack of green feed and to rapid growth are the causes of low vitality. A chick with low vitality has no resistance to the eight or more kinds of coccidiosis that it surely will come in contact with before it grows up.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

John J. Raskob

The boys in Lockport, N. Y., snickered, back in 1900, when they heard that John J. Raskob had put a price of $1,000 a year on his services as a stenographer and secretary. Why that, as they figured it out, was more than $83 a month. Young professional men were lucky to be making as much money in Lockport in those days.

If no man is a prophet in his own country neither is the youngster, with whom we play as a lad, generally conceded to have money making traits or capabilities above our own. That was the case in Lockport when it became known that Johnny Raskob had written to the owner of an Ohio city street railway company for a job as secretary, estimating his value at a figure that seemed absurd to those with whom he had been raised.

But John Raskob got the job and at his own price. The man who hired him was Pierre S. Du Pont, then owner of the traction system in Lorain, Ohio. Lockport residents thought that the youth was lucky in landing such a plum.

Before he left Lockport young Raskob had been making $50 a month. He had asked for a raise to $10 a week. When this was refused him he decided that his talents were not appreciated. He made up his mind to seek fields in which he would receive better rewards.

So he wrote to a friend, a young draughtsman, Sterling H. Bunnell by name, asking him if there was any opening for him in Lorain. He received a reply that Pierre S. Du Pont was seeking the right sort of a young man to act as his secretary and aid in the street railway business.

When John Raskob told his friends that he had applied for the job and had asked for a salary of $1,000 a year they thought at first that he was fooling. When they were convinced by the earnest young man that he actually had asked for such pay they were certain that he wouldn't get a reply even. But they were wrong and John Raskob was right. He invariably has been on financial matters ever since.

The boy who surprised his Lockport companions in the matter of getting such a big salary was born in that up-state New York city in 1879. His father, a solid and substantial citizen, was in the tobacco business.

John was an average student in school. His quick smile and pleasant manner made him popular. He early showed a liking for business and an aptitude for figures. His father died when John was in high school. Mrs. Raskob was left with four children.

The future chairman of the finance committee of General Motors didn't try to complete his education by working in his spare time. He decided that the sooner he got a real job the better. He realized that he needed special equipment to get ahead in the business world.

He left high school and took a commercial course in stenography and bookkeeping. He buckled down to his studies and soon qualified to take dictation and to keep a set of books. He got a job at $5 a week. That was considered fair wages for a beginner in Lockport in those days.

After six months he asked for an increase to $7.50 a week. His employer agreed to give it to him, but it was some months before the raise materialized. Following two years' work during which he became an expert stenographer, an excellent typist and a first class bookkeeper, he asked for $10 a week. His employer didn't think the youngster was worth such wages to him.

That was the turning point in John Raskob's life. He wrote to Pierre Du Pont and went to work for him in 1900. The next year he represented his employer as treasurer of a street car line in Dallas, Texas. His salary had been raised to $3,000 a year, proving to skeptical Lockport friends that he hadn't thought too well of his earning capacity after all.

He went to Wilmington, Del., in 1902, as assistant treasurer of the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours company. Later he became treasurer and then vice president of the big chemical concern. Mr. Du Pont joined him in buying General Motors stock and John Raskob soon became the directing financial genius of that vast corporation and one of the country's outstanding business leaders.

Nordics and Latins

By Nordic nations is meant the northern nations, the Norse people, such as those of Norway, Sweden and Denmark. Of course, there are no purely Latin peoples, but the nations containing a large Latin element in blood, law, and language are the Italians, the Spanish and the French. These are the leading Latin nations, but in fact they are of mixed blood, like the English-speaking people. There is considerable intermarriage between northern and Latin peoples but it cannot be said to be common.

LAWLEY NEWS

Mrs. J. V. Mount, who is teacher of the Intermediates in Sunday school here, entertained her class at a picnic Saturday at the "old swimming hole" on Oakmulgee Creek near Collins bridge. Many games were played, after which they went into the creek for a few hours swim. At noon they enjoyed a bountiful lunch in the grove in front of Mrs. Mount's home. In the afternoon then enjoyed the stunts given by some of the boys, and ice cream and different kinds of cold drinks. Late in the afternoon they decided to do some personal service work by carrying to all the sick of the community ice cream. This day will live always in the memory of the Intermediate boys and girls.

Mrs. Mount, with her generous hospitality seems to know just how to win the love and admiration of her class.

Mr. Horton Walker, who has been teaching at Clanton high school, and sister, Miss Allie Walker, who has spent the past winter in West Palm Beach, Fla., were here visiting their sister, Mrs. Perry Hicks, last Saturday.

Quite a few people from here attended the singing at Collins Chapel last Sunday, and reported it as a great success.

Misses Alvis and Lurline Latham spent Saturday and Sunday in Tuscaloosa with friends.

Mr. Pervis Hicks who is employed by the Southern R. R. Co., is at home for a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lum Hicks.

Miss Olivia Latham is attending school at the University for a few weeks. She will teach next year at Maplesville.

Little Mattie Lee Cost, daughter of Mr. Will Cost, fell and broke her arm a few days ago. We hope she will soon be able to use it again.

Rehobeth Church now has a standard Sunday school with Mr. Albert Wilson as superintendent. Also a full graded W. M. S., and by September will be A-1, with Mrs. Perry Hicks as president.

We are working for a standard B. Y. P. U. now. Rev. John W. Dean is really a pastor to the church.

Mrs. John C. Page and Peggy went to Decatur Friday. Upon their return they were accompanied by Miss Mary Lusk of Tennessee, who will spend several days visiting in the Page home.

REV. BEAN ANNOUNCES SUBJECTS FOR SUNDAY

"If I Preach the Gospel, Tell Others; If Not, Tell Me"

The Union-Banner has an announcement from Rev. J. Robert Bean of Bessemer, pastor at Friendship Church. Rev. Bean says: "If it is the Lord's will I will use the following subjects at Friendship next Saturday night and Sunday. Saturday evening at 7:30 my subject will be 'Fellowship.' Sunday at 11 a. m., 'Nakedness.' Sunday evening at 7:30, 'Some Prophecies and their Fulfillment'."

The public has a cordial invitation to hear Rev. Bean discuss these subjects. Following preaching Saturday night a short conference will be held.

BETHSALEM SUNDAY SCHOOL

Our Sunday School was called to order by the superintendent, W. L. Wilkins.

We had a rather large crowd present. Our pastor Rev. W. P. Lowery, was present. He made an interesting lesson for the older people's group.

Just after the classes assembled back into the auditorium, a special song was given by Mable Wilkins and Mrs. L. M. Billingsley, "Yield not to Temptation." After this song, Rev. Lowery delivered a fine sermon. He also delivered a fine sermon Saturday.

Our revival begins Saturday before the third Sunday in July. Let us all pray that we may have a glorious revival.

Next Sunday night we are going to organize a B. Y. P. U. We extend to you an invitation to come and help us in the work.

Don't forget our Sunday school next Sunday at 10 o'clock, be there on time.

We will also have our regular singing service Sunday afternoon. We invite all lovers of music to come and be with us. Don't forget your book.—Reporter.

Popwell, and Marshall Burkhalter, each singing two songs. Organists for the afternoon were: Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Billingsley and Mrs. F. I. Popwell.

KAMPLAIN RESIGNS AS PASTOR AT VERBENA

Rev. W. H. Kamplain, last Sundayd, turned in his resignation as pastor of the Verbena Baptist church, which pulpit he has filled for the past two years.

This resignation comes as a result of Rev. Kamplain, a few weeks ago, being chosen as pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, Montgomery, which church he is to give his full time to.

The people of Verbena and Chilton county regret the loss of Rev. Kamplain. He is a very able preacher, and during his pastorate at Verbena, has won many friends over the entire county.

BICE BELIEVES IN TEMPERANCE, NOT PROHIBITION

Editor Union-Baner:

I want to say a few things about the prohibition law, and I hope you will publish it. The Bible does not justify such a law. It does teach temperance, and I believe in temperance. But after searching the Siriptures I do not find anything in them that justifies the present prohibition laws and the manner of so-called prohibition enforcement.

Our modern kind of prohibition laws and attempts at enforcement of the same has created more criminals than ever were before. It has made grafters, liars, murderers, thieves, false witnesses, adulterers. It has been the breeder of every kind of sin you can think of. It has filled our penitentiaries to overflowing, and made widows and orphans by the wholesale.

Does the Bible justify the shooting down and killing of men? Does it force men to do or not to do things. It gives warning and tells us the punishment if we do certain things.

I have been a strong prohibition worker, and voted for it. I have never violated the prohibition law. I do not drink, and have never bought a drop of wild cat liquor. I do not use tobacco in any form. I believe in and practice temperance.

Who threw a stone at the women when Christ said let him that is without blame cast the first stone? Who, then, is clear of guilt and can condemn you if you take a drink of liquor?

They tell us that presidents drink, judges drink, sheriffs drink, solicitors drink, lawyers drink, jurys drink, and that women and boys and girls drink. Of course there are exceptions to this, and I take it such statements are made in a general way without reference to any particular persons.

I am opposed to the present prohibition law and the way it is benig enforced. I do not believe in preachers and societies trying to put politics into the churches. Let them preach the gospel of temperance like Christ did.

You may overpower the American people, but you can never force them to do anything. You must win them by love and not by force. Jesus says come unto me and I will give you rest. Love your neighbor as yourself. Do unto others as you would have them do unto you. Keep my commandments. He does not tell us not to drink wine or liquor. It is a personal matter. You can have religion if you choose.

Jesus said it is not that which goeth in that defileth a man, but that which proceedeth out from the heart. The Bible says take a little wine for your stomach's sake, and your infirmities. God had the people ot put strong wine on the sacrifices they were to offer to him. Numbers 28 and 29.

Jesus came to save siners and not the righteous. Why should the Federal Government try to enforce one law above another. I believe each state can enforce its own laws without aid or intereference from the Fideral Government. Yours for temperance, but away with prohibition. —J. Bice, Birmingham, Ala.

Dr. Arthur Johnson has returned home after an absence of two weeks on a vacation.

J. Osmond Middleton of Birmingham was a visitor to Clanton last Saturday and Sunday.

REV. R. L. BONNER HERE FROM TEXAS

Rev. R. L. Bonner of Anna, Texas was here with his family the latter part of last week. They spent the night with Prof. and Mrs. John M. Parrish last Friday night.

Four or five years ago Rev. Bonner lived at Thorsby and besides being pastor there and at Jemison also pastored the church at Concord for a couple of years. After leaving here Rev. Bonner went to Fort Worth, Texas, where he attended the Southwestern Baptist Seminary. After graduating from there last year he went to Anna, a small town 40 miles north of Dallas, and took charge of a church there.

The Bonners are on a visit to their relatives at Tuscaloosa, where Rev. Bonner preached Sunday at the Southside Baptist church. They also visited relatives in Birmingham.

In conversation with The Union-Banner man Saturday, Rev. Bonner asked us to say hello and good wishes for him to all of his friends and old acquaintances over the county. He would have liked to see all of them but could not spare the time.

On last Tuesday morning, June 16, the death angel took away our beloved brother. RURAL CHURCH IS NOT DYING

Membership of Rural Churches Increasing Instead of Decreasing

Auburn, Ala., June 30.—Speaking before the recent Rural Church Conference at Auburn Dr. L. E. Barton, secretary-treasurer of the Baptist State Executive Board pictured the rural church as an institution which which is growing and improving in the service which it is rendering rather than an institution that is "dying" as is frequently heard.

Using statistics on the Baptist church only but concluding that they are similar to other denomnations the speaker declared that "the rural church in the South is neither dead nor moribund." During the last decade Baptist rural churches in the South had a membership increase of 550,000 and enrollment in Baptist Sunday schools during the same period increased faster than membership grew.

The speaker stated also that young people's unions of this denomination added during the decade 100,000 new workers and trebled their young people's organization. Rural churches of this denomination are contributing more financially than they were at the beginning of the decade, he said.

"The rural churches," he continued, "are not our weakness but rather our strength. They are not our menace, but our might; not our grave, but our gold mine of opportunity. The rural church furnishes the most potential field for service known to the religious life of our time. Greater possibilities are couched here than elsewhere. The sturdy common sense of rural people, their simple straightforward methods of thought and manner of life, the radiant, happy youth who are alert and eager for training, the earnest faith of the rural churches in the Scriptures and things spiritual and eternal, all conspire to constitute Christianity's largest field of conquest."

REV. LOCKHART ATTENDS RURAL CHURCH CONFERENCE

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me space to say a few words in regard to the Rural Church Conference which was held at Auburn. It was one of the greatest meetings that I have ever attended. I left home Monday, purposed to return Monday night, but the meeting was so inspiring that we decided to stay over until Thursday.

I went with our county agent, C. E. Stapp, accompanied by J. S. Easterling. I went upon a special request of our county agent. I don't think I have ever seen as many ministers together before. We took an interesting walk of about two hours over the farm. I learned something of chickens and cattle that I had never dreamed of. One of the most outstanding things which I think of just now is that dead hens have been known to lay, and that silos for preserving feed can be had by the average farmer. They just dig a vat in the ground and apply the feed with wonderful results.

We had a nice shower at Auburn Tuesday. I will not write any more at this time, but will write more later. Will close by saying that I have learned to appreciate my county agent more by attending this meeting.—M. Lockhart.

ANNUAL SINGING AT CANE CREEK

The annual singing at Cane Creek last Sunday was a great success. It seemed to be enjoyed by everybody. We had a large number of singers and some real directors, which we sure enjoyed listening to.

The following are the directors for the day: Jasper Oaks, W. G. Culp, F. J. Little, Andrew Blow, O. L. Devaughn, Akin I. Collins, Willie Mims, S. L. Baker, Johnnie Miner, Marion Easterling, O. R. Robinson, M. Lockhart, J. W. Clackler, E. L. Powell, E. C. Traywick, Fonza Clackler, Posy Clackler, A. H. Glasscock and S. V. Miller. Among the organists were Miss Lillie Mae Weldon, Mrs. Annie Robinson, Marion Easterling and W. G. Culp.

We thank all the singers who helped us make this singing such great success, ad hope that you all can meet with us one year from this date.—W. L. Sanders.

GINA EUDORA SMITH DEAD

Mrs. Gina Eudora Smith, age 69 years, died Monday at her home at Thorsby. She was the wife of Manly Smith. Burial was at Collins Chapel Tuesday.

BUSY BUT NOT MUCH BUSINESS

Deputy Sheriff James Gillespie says the law enforcement officers of the county have been busy for the last two weeks, but haven't done very much business.

In his report of activities since the 15th of June, it is given out that seven have been committed to jail on charges as follows: One each for petit larceny, reckless driving, desertion, and possession of a still; three have been put in jail for violating the prohibition law.

Three have been arrested and made bond for violating the prohibition law; and two have been arrested and made bond for assault and battery.

Bill Clack returned from Birmingham Tuesday where he had been for examination by the medical department of the United States Veterans Bureau.

Mr. C. Williams of Pletcher was a visitor to Clanton Wednesday. He reports that it is extremely dry in his vicinity, having been five weeks since there was a rain.

PRIZES FOR CLUB BOYS

To stimulate interest in the planting of vetch and Austrian peas by the farmers of Chilton County, Mr. C. E. Stapp, County Farm agent has announced that he will award prizes to clubs and club boys who assist in securing orders for seed from the farmers.

A cash prize of $15 will be awarded to the organized 4-H Club that wins high score, and a cash prize of $5 will go to the individual club member who wins high score.

The basis determining the winner will be this: Fifty points will be given for each order of seed, and 50 points for each 100 pounds of seed sold.

The contest will end on August 15, and the awards will be made at the end of the planting season.

Any club or club member who desires any fsrther information about the contest may secure full details by applying to County Agent Stapp.

Farm Values Raised By Winter Legumes

Alabama Farmers Make Over $500,000 Annually By Planting Legumes

Auburn, Ala., June 29.—Alabama farmers are now producing annually nitrogen worth well over one-half million dollars by planting winter legume seed in the fall. J. C. Lowery, agronomist for the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, estimates that winter legumes planted in the fall of 1929 added to the soil the following spring nitrogen worth $587,050, and the 1930 planting which was plowed into the soil in the spring of 1931, was about the same as that of 1929.

"And a bigger acreage is expected to be planted in the fall of 1931," Mr. Lowery said. "County agents are keeping winter legumes before farmers who are intensely interested in them because they have found that producing nitrogn this way is much cheaper than buying it in commercial form. In addition winter legumes add humus which is a big help to Alabama land."

In making these estimates Mr. Lowery proceeded on the basis that one good crop of either hairy vetch or Austrian winter peas adds nitrogen to that in 300 pounds of nitrate of soda, although such a crop is due to add nitrogen equivalent to that in 400 pounds of nitrate of soda. He compiled figures on winter legume plantings and production from 1919 to 1930 showing that the money value of the nitrogen added during the decade was $2,123,050.

Until 1924 very few winter legume seed were planted in Alabama and almost none were planted from 1918 to 1920. In 1928 more than one million pounds of seed were planted for the first time. The aim is to plant more than two million pounds next fall, Mr. Lowery said.

REVIVAL BEGINS AT JEMISON BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev J. W Jones of Thorsby stated Monday that the revival meeting at Jemison Baptist Church will begin next Sunday, and will continue for ten days.

The preaching will be done by Rev. I. W. Myers, formerly one of the Baptist State evangelists for Alabama.

Services will be held daily at 10 o'clock in the morning, and 7:45 in the evening. Everybody is given a cordial invitation to attend.

CLANTON METHODIST CHURCH

In spite of the heat last Sunday we had good services at our church. One man said: "The Methodist Church in Clanton is the coolest place in the city on a hot day." We turn on our big electric fan in the basement, and that sends up a cool breeze that makes the auditorium very pleasant.

Worship with us at 9:45 in our study of God's word. Be with us at 11 a. m. and hear a message that will do you good. Occupy your place at night. Make next Sunday a well rounded Sabbath by attending all the services of the sanctuary.

STORM MONDAY PUT LIGHTS OUT

Clanton Was Without Juice All Monday afternoon and Into Monday Night

What was perhaps the longest interruption in power and light service in Clanton since the Alabama Power Company came here ten or more years ago was occasioned Monday, when the storm which came along about noon, blew down five poles on the Lay Dam to Selma transmission lines from which Clanton gets service.

The damage was located in the Joe Cox fields east of town, near where Jesse Baker now lives. Local attaches of the power company were unable to meet the situation alone, and had to call for men and equipment from Montgomery to help restore service. It was after eight o'clock Monday night when the juice was turned back on Clanton.

The damage of the storm was not confined to the power company property. Several farmers also sustained damages. We have heard of a number of buildings that were unroofed, and crops in some places were hurt by the wind and hail.

It was a very fine rain in Clanton with no serious wind. But the extent of the rain was not very far. Up as far as Thorsby the shower was light, while in the Providence community in Beat 16 it is reported that there was no rain at all.

APPRECIATES UNION-BANNER

Birmingham, Ala., June 26, 1931.
Editor Union-Banner:

This morning as I walked into Mr. Ed Miller's room he told me he felt as if he were at home.

I glanced on the table and noticed The Union-Banner. I needed no explanation, because I think The Union-Banner is one of the best county papers in the state. It is always a pleasure when I get a Union-Banner, because I have many friends and relatives in Chilton County.

We have many patients come to our hospital from Clanton. We enjoy having them.

Mr. Miller is doing nicely, and will be back in Clanton again soon. He expressed his thanks for the paper, and asked me to write this to your paper for him.—Sincerely, Helen Louise Gore.

Young Flapper: "I'm just at that awkward age; too old to cry and too young to swear."

BOY DROWNED IN WELL

Alonzo Rowland Varden, age eight years, son of Mr. Isom Varden, was drowned in a well at the Varden home east of Clanton Tuesday afternoon. The boy had gone to the well to draw some water. Missing him some minutes afterward, members of the family went to the well and saw his hat floating on top of the water. Further investigation revealed his lifeless body in the bottom of the well.

The body was buried at Maple Springs Wednesday morning. Mr. Varden lives at the old Tom Powell place, near Refuge.

MORE VETCH AND AUSTRIAN PEAS

Largest Winter Cover Crop In the History of Chilton County Expected To Be Planted

County Agent Stapp states that in 1925 less than a thousand pounds of vetch and Austrian pea seed were sown in Chilton County for soil building purposes. In 1927 about 9 thousand pounds of vetch and peas were planted; in 1928 plantings increased to about twenty thousand pounds; in 1929 a carload of forty thousand pounds was planted in the county. In 1930 the plantings were about the same as in 1929.

The value of these crops based on increased yields is estimated to be more than $44,000. Due to the fact that a large number of farmers over the county have seen the value of these crops, and too, since the price of seed will be cheaper this year than ever known, County Agent Stapp believes that an unusually large acreage will be planted this year. The price of seed declined some last year, but indications are now that they are going to be cheap enough this time that they will be within reach of every farmer in the county.

LEGION MEMBERS NOTICE

The committee of the American Legion in charge of arrangements for the Fourth of July, requests that all members of Chilton County Post who can possibly do so, please come to the Clanton Ball Park Friday of this week and help out in building the necessary equipment for the prize fight and wrestling match which is being sponsored by the Legion on Saturday afternoon, July 4th.

This is important, and every member of Chilton County Post is urged to come and help out.

CHICKEN BARBECUE JULY 4TH

A committee of the Americon Legion is planning a chicken barbecue at the ball park on July the Fourth. It is stated that the barbecue plates will be served at noon at the price of 50 cents each.

All who want a good plate lunch are invited to come and get it at noon on Saturday. Each member of Chilton County Post is requested to furnish two chickens for the barbecue. Leave them (dressed of course) at Calloway's Drug store not later than five o'clock Friday afternoon.

Collins Chapel Community

(Fifty Years Ago)

After an absence of several weeks, our correspondent comes back again with some more history of the early residents of Collins Chapel community. The subject for this sketch is Joe Littleton, from whose family we find a great many prominent people of Chilton County to-day.

Joe Littleton was married twice. He reared a large family. The children by first marriage were Ike and Lucinda.

Ike Littleton lived and died near Can Creek, in Beat 11. He reared four children, two girls and two boys. Rolifee, the oldest of the children, now lives on his farm near Collins Chapel. Joe, the other son of Ike Littleton, lives at his father's old place near Cane Creek. Mary Ann Lambert, wife of the late Will Lambert, is one of the daughters of Ike Littleton. She lives at her place near Cane Creek. Sallie, another daughter, married Luke Hadnot. She died several years ago. Lucinda married a Mr. Fowler. They had one daughter, who is Mrs. J. W. Collins in the Collins Chapel community.

The boys of the second marriage of Joe Littleton were as follows:

Aaron Littleton, who lived and died in the Collins Chapel community. Aaron had three boys, Joe, who lives in Jefferson County, Walter, who lives in Dallas County, and Kroell, who yet lives on a part of the old place of his father near Collins Chapel. There were five daughters of Aaron littleton. They were Susie, Nolia, Dalie, Bertha and Vercy. Susie is the wife of G. W. Horsley, and lives in Jefferson County. Nolia is the wife of W. H. Goodgame, at Thorsby. Dalie lives in Jefferson County, and the writer does not know who she married. Bertha is yet single, and lives in Birmingham. Vercy married a Mr. Billingsley, and lives at Thorsby.

Joe and Jim Littleton, sons of Joe Littleton, and brothers of Aaron, went to Louisiana and made their homes. We know nothing of their families.

Pink Littleton lived and died in the Collins Chapel community. He reared a large family. We are not able to learn the name of all of them. Joe yet lives on a part of his father's old place. Jim lives near Cane Creek and Charley, several years ago moved to the Birmingham district. Tom died when just a young man. John married a daughter of T. J. Collins, and lives in the Collins Chapel community; he has two sons, Woodfin and Volley; three daughters, Mrs. Comie Collins, Mrs. Elijah Mims and Mrs. J. D. Cox.

Angeline Littleton, the only daughter of the second marriage of Joe Littleton, married a Mr. Martin. She died several years ago. She had one son, Tommie Martin, of Thorsby, father of the late Walter Martin, who died in Clanton about one year ago.

MRS. BOLINA FREDONIA WILLIS

After an illness of many months, death came Monday night to relieve the suffering of Mrs. Bolina Fredonia Willis, age 87 years. She died at the home of her son-in-law, Perry Robinson, near Union Grove, where she has lived for the past year or more.

Funeral and burial of Mrs. Willis was at Union Grove Tuesday afternoon. The services were conducted by Rev. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Clanton Baptist church.

Mrs. Willis was the wife of the late Edgar Wilkerson Willis, who died about 25 years ago. Before her marriage she was a Greer. She was a native of the state of Georgia.

There are ten children surviving Mrs. Willis as follows: J. W. E. Willis, of Texas; George W. Willis, of Clanton; Mrs. Virginia Vines, of Texas; Carter Willis, of Clanton; Watt S. Willis of Clanton; Mrs. Helen Collins of Troy; James B. Willis of Clanton; Mrs. Irene Wiggins, of Sayreton Charley Willis, of Texas; Mrs. Claudia Robinson, of Union Grove .

While in the natural course of human events, death can not be said to come altogether unexpected to one at the advanced age of 87 years, yet the many members and connections of the Willis family and their hosts of friends are stricken with sorrow at the earthly departure of this good woman whom all loved most tenderly.

Church Conference To Be Annual Event

Ministers and Laymen Are Well Pleased With First Conference

Auburn, Ala., June 29.—Ministers and other church workers of Alabama who attended the rural church conference at Auburn June 22-26, were unanimous in asking that such a conference be made an annual event at Auburn. They declared that the first conference was very beneficial to them and asked that the program for next year be enlarged and more ministers and laymen in church work attend.

More than one hundred actual ministers attended the conference. Laymen and rural workers present increased the total attendance to more than two hundred. Many denominations were represented, although the conference was entirely non-denominational.

In addressing the conference Professor L. N. Duncan explained that the program of this, the initial conference, was arranged to acquaint those present with the rural forces of the state, and with a view to using this as a spring board for future conferences. He asked that the ministers prepare the program with such help as they wish the extension service of the Alabama Polytcehnic Institute to give them each year. In this way each conference will meet the wishes of ministers and other church workers, he said.

During the week the work that is being done in Alabama for the improvement of agriculture, the home, education, child welfare, and health was explained by officials in charge. This brought the various forces and agencies into closer relations and gave the church workers a better understanding of each. Consequently, the service of each will be improved, Prof. Duncan said.

KIWANIS PARTY HAD A BIG TIME

Boat Trip Was Enjoyed By Party of Seventy-Five Members, Guests

"When It's Moonlight in June," sounds like the name of a love song, and it may be for all the writer of this piece knows. The term was coined by the Kiwanis Club of Clanton some months ago to denote the time when John Hollis would crank up the big boat at Mitchell Dam and take a Kiwanis party for an evening cruise on Lake Mitchell.

It was left with John to watch the moon and say when the time was right. Last Friday evening was the time selected, and what a time it was. Everything was right, plum right. The moorings were cut loose from the dock at six o'clock, and the boat was loaded to the gunwales with the happiest party we have been in in many a moon.

Kiwanis Club members, one hundred per cent present (with the lone exception of John Page) with their wives, sweethearts, and friends, composed the party of about seventy-five. As the sun hid its face behind the hills, the cooling shadows spread in beautiful pictures on the placid blue waters of the lake. The big boat crooned its way into the stillness of the settling dusk. The happy party alternated between hilarious expressions of delight and silent admiration of the sublime beauty of passing pictures of nature.

The ladies of the party had prepared a bounteous feast of fried chicken, sandwiches, and other fixings for the occasion. It was served to the party as the boat slowly cruised the waters of the lake several miles above Mitchell Dam.

The program for the evening was in charge of Billy Smith. The principal speaker was Bob Mangum, of Birmingham. After the dinner was served Mr. Mangum was introduced by Mr. Smith. It was a very unusual setting for such an occasion. The situation seemed to inspire the speaker in a peculiar way, and he let loose half an hour of speaking that was not only characteristic of the ability and charm of Bob Mangum, but embellished will all the inspiration of the natural beauties that pervaded the hour.

Other notables who were present and had a part on the program were Commissioners Jimmie Jones and Taylor, of Birmingham, T. B. Baird and W. A. Steadman, of the Bell Telephone Company.

During the progress of the program several musical numbers were rendered with Mrs. Pitts at the piano, and Mr. Pitts directing the singing. When the program was completed and the trip back to the dam was started, the gaiety of the crowd was unrestrained by any formality whatever. Many old time melodies and popular songs were sung by a chorus composed of practically every voice in the party.

Due recognition was accorded to John Hollis, Sam Powers and Leonard Williams, of the Alabama Power Company, for providing the arrangements that made the outing possible. It was voted the best occasion in the history of the Kiwanis Club of Clanton.

Doubtless in years to come "When It's Moonlight in June" will be a regular part of the entertainment program of Kiwanis.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

SPRING PIG CROP IS LARGER IN COUNTRY, BUT SHORT IN STATE

An increase of 2.5 per cent in the United States spring pig crop of this year over that of 1930, and a prospective sharp increase in the number of sows to farrow this coming fall are shown by the June pig survey covering about 77,000 farms made by the Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the post office department through the rural mail carriers, reports F. W. Gist, federal and state statistician.

The report shows that pigs saved in Alabama this spring were 11.5 per cent less than 1930. The number of sows farrowed was 10.7 per cent less but the number sows bred for fall farrowing was 35.7 per cent greater than the sows farrowed in 1930.

The reports of the number of sows bred or to be bred in the United States for farrowing in the fall of 1931 point to a marked increase in fall farrowing this year over last, if the relationship between breeding intentions and subsequently reported farrowing is about as shown during the preceeding four years. The increase in breeding intentions shown for the fall of this year is the second largest shown in nine years.

If the June survey this year indicates the change in the market's supply of spring pigs from the corn belt states about as the June survey for the past four years have indicated these changes the market supply of hogs from the 1931 spring crop will be about 7 per cent larger than from the 1930 spring crop. This would represent an increase of about 1,750,000 head of hogs.

BRIEF NEWS ITEMS

Roger Babson, well-known statistician and business forecaster, has issued a statement in which he declares that he is willing to stake his reputation of 30 years on the prediction that "business has seen its worst; that although the change will be slow it will be in the right direction; and that within a reasonable time this country will again enter a period of marked prosperity."

It has been announced publicly that the Brazilian government has buried a large part of the 50,000 bags of low-grade coffee which was purchased by the government with the proceeds of a tax of 10 shillings a bag. This action had for its objective a reduction in the Brazillian surplus of coffee.

FARM VALUES RAISED BY WINTER LEGUMES

Auburn, Ala., June 30.—Alabama famers are now producing annually nitrogen worth well over one-half million dollars by planting winter legume seed in the fall. J. C. Lowery, agronomist for the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, estimtes that winter legumes planted in the fall of 1929 added to the soil the following spring nitogen worth $587,050, and the 1930 planting was plowed into the soil in the spring of 1931 was about the same as that of 1929.

"And a bigger acreage is expected to be planted in the fall of 1931," Mr. Lowery said. "County agents are keeping winter legumes before farmers who are intensely interested in them because they have found that producing nitrogen this way is much cheaper than buying it in commercial form. In addition winter legumes add humus which is a big help to Alabama land."

In making these estimates Mr. Lowery proceeded on the basis that one good crop of either hairy vetch or Austrian winter peas adds nitrogen equivalent to that in 300 pounds of nitrate of soda, although such a crop is due to add nitrogen equivalent to that in 400 pounds of soda. He compiled figures on winter legume planting and production from1919 to 1930 shoming that the money value of nitrogen added during the decade was $2,123,050.

Until 1924 very few winter legume seed were planted in Alabama and almost none were planted from 1918 to 1920. In 1928 more than one million pounds of seedwere planted for the first time. The aim is to plant more than two million pounds next fall, Mr. Lowery said.

THREE UNITED STATES PRESIDENTS DIED ON JULY FOURTH

One historic fact relating to July the Fourth is seldom remembered in our observance of Independence Day. We are informed by the Division of Information and Publication of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission. This is especially strange, because this historic fact has touching and dramatic meaning. July 4 is the day on which three presidents of the United States died. Each of these three early presidents played a prominent part in the very formatoin of our government, and each received, as a reward from the people, elevation to their highest office. Having performed great labors in planning the theory of our government, it fell to their lot to set noble examples in putting the theory into practical effect.

These three presidents were John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, and James Monroe. Indeed John Adams and Thomas Jefferson died almost at the same hour on July fourth, 1826. After many sharp differences of opinion, which had divided them during a part of their lives, Adams and Jefferson became not only reconciled but closely attached friends. The correspondence of their final years is one of the glories of American letters. Adams lived to be ninety, Jefferson eighty-three. Neither knew how close to death was the other, and Adams' last words, when conscious that death was near, are said to have been, "Thomas Jefferson still lives." But Thomas Jefferson was already dead.

Before their presidency, both these great men served as vice president, and one of them as vice president while the other was president. The older man, John Adams, was vice president under George Washington himself. All three were closely associated with Washington during our formative days, and to one of them, John Adams, goes the credit for playing a major part in throwing George Washington into the arms of destiny.

Farmers in Nebraska are turning to aquaculture, or raising game fish, according to the American Game Association. The Alabama department of Conservation at Montgomery is encouraging fish production on the farms of this state.

A sharp decrease in the number of passports issued by the U. S. government to date this year compared to last year is announced. It was the first decrease in eight years. The figures up to June 30 were 156,715 new and renewed passports, which was a decrease of more than 50,000 compared with last year.

Henry Ford has issued a statement in which he attributes the boom which collapsed in 1929 to "stock exchange speculation by persons who expected to get rich without work." He predicted that a healthier and better economic condition will emerge from the depression from which the United States and other nations are now recovering.

Senator ill, who has been abroad for some time investigating conditions, recently returned to the United States and announced that Franklin Roosevelt would be our next president. Isn't it funny what things you can find out in Europe?

ALABAMA PRODUCING LARGE HONEY CROP

Alabama is this year producing the best honey crop produced in the state within the past five years, according to Thomas Atchison, apiary inspector for the Department of Agriculture and Industries, who reports prospects for a 5,500,000 honey crop in the state this year.

Not only are beekeepers producing a large honey crop, but they are at present shipping over 200,000 queen bees to northern states and Canada, Mr. Atchison said. "Most of these queens are used for requeening and improving colonies of the north."

Mr. Atchison also reported that beekeepers have just completed shipping about 22,000 two and three pound packages of bees to northern states and Canada to make new colonies, strengthen old colonies and to pollenize fruit orchards.

"Practically all of the honey produced in Alabama is consumed in the State and several cars are shipped into the State each year. This being true farmers can well afford to increase the honey production on their farms," he said.

TIMBER OF U. S. IS GOING AT RAPID RATE

The United States is using its timber four times as fast as nature is replacing it by natural growth, says the Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries, which reports only 40 per cent of the original 1,284,590 square miles of virgin forest found by the early colonists remain.

The amount of timber at present is estimated at 746,000,000 cubic feet and is being consumed at a rate of 26,000,000 cubic feet a year.

SEVEN MILLION ACRES OF WOODLAND IN FARMS

Montgomery, Ala., June 29.—The farmers of Alabama own approximately thirty-one per cent of the woodlands of the state, according to compliments made by Colonel Page S. Bunker, state forester, based upon the U. S. Agriculturel census of 1930. The total woodland of the state amounts to approximately 22,500,000 acres, the part owned by farmers thus being about seven million acres.

The forest lands under the control of the farmers prove of special benefit during hard times, points out Colonel Bunker. When the returns from agricultural crops are inadequate to cover the cost of production and furnish sufficient income for the support of the family, the farmer often can cut posts, poles, piling, saw logs and railroad crossties from his woodlands, bringing in sufficient cash to tide him over the period of depression. The fact that forest yields can remain unharvested from year to year and be placed on the market when need is the greatest makes them of the utmost importance to the landowner.

Timber yields from the farm woodlands can be gathered during the time of the year when agricultural operations are at a standstill. This enables the farmer to make better seasonal use of his time and equipment. According to Colonel Bunker, forestry authorities universally recommend that every farm of substantial size contain a material proportion of land devoted to the growing of timber.

PROF. W. M. DEVAUGHN WILL TEACH SINGING SCHOOL, COLLINS CHAPEL

Beginning Monday morning, July 13th, Prof. W. M. Devaughn will teach a singing school at Collins Chapel. Prof. Devaughn taught a school there last year and the results were very pleasing. He is one of the best music teachers in this section of the State, and Collins Chapel is one of the best rural communities in Alabama; so there is nothing to hinder the school this year from being a spectacular success.

If you are interested in the school, you may see or write Prof. Devaughn on Clanton Route 2, or you may see the men in charge of the school at the Chapel. Either will be glad to give you any information you may wish. The prices of tuition this year have been reduced from previous years; they are as follows: For children under 12 years of age, 10 cents per day; rudiment pupils over 12 years of age, 12 and one-half cents per day; harmony pupils, 15 cents per day and up.

Maybe the Democrats are talking so loudly and rapidly about the tariff in order to keep the minds of some of their leaders off the liquor question.

MT. PISGAH

We are going to meet at Mt. Pisgah cemetery on Tuesday, July 7th, for the purpose of cleaning off same. Bring tools and come early.

And remember too, that our revival meeting begins on the third Sunday in July, with Rev. J. H. Lembric assisting.

We still have a wide-awake Sunday school and a good Christian Endeavor, which meet every Sunday at the usual hours. We invite you, one and all, to come and be with us at all services.—A. R. Edwards.

Mrs. Kin Vinson and children of Sandersville, Georgia, are in Clanton to spend a few days visiting relatives and friends.

PATRIOTISM

Prov. 14:34—Righteousness exalteth a nation.

It ain't in throwin' your cap in air
And shoutin' your candidate's praise.
It ain't in argunin' all day long
Until you are red in the face.
It's to vote as you pray
On election day.
That's patriotism.

It ain't in swellin' a torch-light parade
And settin' off rocket and flare.
It ain't in yellin' applause each time
Your candidate speaks on the square.
It's to do your best work
And not play the shirk.
That's patriotism.

It ain't in votin' the ticket straight,
However its platform may read;
It ain't in makin' a god of a man
Just because he's appointed to lead.
It's livin', forsooth,
At the dictates of truth.
That's patriotism.

It ain't in singin' the national air,
Or salutin' Old Glory each morn;
It ain't in bombast and boastful acclaim,
And blowin' the national horn.
It's treatin' folks right,
Be they black, yellow or white,
It's barin' year heart to God's sunlight.
That's patriotism.

SINGING SCHOOL AT CHESTNUT CREEK BEGINS MONDAY, JULY 6

A singing school will begin at Chestnut Creek, Coopers, Monday, morning, July 6th. It will be taught by Prof. A. O. Boswell and will continue for a term of 18 days. The following tuition prices will be charged: For children under 12 years of age, 10 cents per day; all rudiment pupils over 12 years o fage, 12 and one-half cents per day; harmony pupils, 15 cents per day and up.

Prof. Boswell is recognized as a very able teacher, having taught singing schools for the past four or five years. Everywhere he has taught he has given the best of satisfaction both among pupils and patrons. Coopers is his home community and Chestnut Creek is his home church, so there should be nothing in the way of his having a real good singing scool this summer. Mr. Boswell is a steady Christian young man and deserves the best support the people of his community can give him.

Whenever we get out on the road in our flivver Sunday afternoon and some of those smart aleck drivers try to crowd us in the ditch we are suddenly fired with the ambition to drive one of those armored tanks.

SINGING SCHOOL AT FRIENDSHIP

Prof. L. T. Grant of Coopers will teach an 18-day singing school at Friendship Church, beginning Monday, July 6th. Tuition will be: 10 cents a day for pupils under 12 years of age; 12 1-2 cents a day for all other rudiment pupils; harmony pupils 15 cents a day and up.

Prof. Grant taught a school at this place last year. He has been teaching singing scholos for the past ten or twelve years, and is considered one of the best in this part of the state. It is hoped that the people of this section will lend Prof. Grant their support.

If interested in the school apply to J. D. Collins, T. E. Wyatt, or to Prof. Grant at Coopers.

POULTRY

SAVE A FEW OF THE BEST EARLY COCKERELS

(By Prof. W. B. Krueck)

There is a temptation under present conditions with broiler prices as they are, for a great many poultrymen and farmers to sell all of their early, rapid developing cockerels.

Where this is praticed in some cases the breeder or feeder selects from the remaining cockerels his breeding stock for the following year If this practice is continued over a period of years, it is bound to lower the vitality and quality of the breeding males in the flock.

The early, vigorous, rapid developing cockerels is the type of bird that will build up vitality and vigor in the average farm flock. Therefore, a few of the best type from your early hatches should be saved because they will be more mature and will build strength, vitality and early maturity in the flock from year to year.

In too many cases farmers wait to buy their cockerels until very shortly before breeding time. Where this is done, often a slow maturing bird has had considerable time to develop and may look relatively good. The man who picks his breeding cockerels early, when the slow maturing birds are a long way behind, can detect them and use only the early birds that will build permanent vigor and vitality into his flock.

Lesson for July 5

THE GIFT OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

LESSON TEXT—Acts 1:6-14; 2:1-8.

GOLDEN TEXT—But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Friends Carrying on His Work.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Friends Carrying on His Work.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Coming of New Power.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Empowered for a World Task.

I. The Holy Spirit Promised (Acts 1:6-8).

1. The disciples' question (v. 6). They said, "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" They were right in their expectation of the kingdom, for it had been covenanted to David (II Sam. 7:8-16), predicted by the prophets, and declared to be at hand by John the Baptist and Christ himself. However, they were in darkness as to the calling and establishing of the church.

2. Times and seasons in God's hands (v. 7). Christ turned their attention from the desire to know times and seasons, which belong alone to God, to their supreme duty. The Christian's supreme obligation is to preach repentance and remission of sins through the shed blood of Jesus Christ to all the world (Luke 24:46-49) in the power of the Holy Spirit (Acts 1:8).

3. The missionary program (v. 8). The Holy Spirit came to empower them to preach the gospel to the world.

a. In Jerusalem. This witnessing was done by the twelve immediately following Pentecost.

b. In Judea and Samaria after the hands of wicked persecutors were laid upon them.

c. Unto the uttermost parts of the earth. Beginning with the first foreign missionary enterprise this work has been carried on with varying degrees of success till the present time.

II. The Holy Spirit Given (Acts 2:1-8).

1. The time of (v. 1). It was on the "Day of Pentecost." Pentecost means fifty. It meant, therefore, the feast that was held fifty days after the wave sheaf was offered (Lev. 23:15, 16). It was observed by presenting two loaves made of new wheat (Lev. 23:17). These loaves were baked with leaven while leaven was excluded from the Passover Feast (Lev. 23:6). The reason for this was that the Passover Feast typified Christ's sacrificial death, while Pentecost represented the Church, composed of Jews and Gentiles—the two loaves.

2. Upon whom the Spirit came (v. 1 Cf. 1:13-15). The twelve and others to the number of 120. The gift of the Spirit was not merely for the twelve but for all believers.

3. Marks of the Spirit (vv. 2-8).

a. The sound of a mighty wind (v. 2). This suggests the all pervasive life-giving power of the Holy Spirit.

b. Tongues of flame (v. 3). Each of the 120 was crowned with such a tongue. "Tongues" show the practical purpose of the Spirit's gifts, and "fire" indicates his purifying energy.

c. Speaking in other tongues (vv. 4, 8). Men of every nation heard the gospel in their own tongue.

III. The Holy Spirit Working (Acts 2:14-47).

1. Peter's sermon (vv. 14-40). This sermon is as wonderful as the gift of tongues. It demonstrates the presence and power of the Spirit, because Peter was a Galilean fisherman without literary training. His analysis is perfect. He begins with a brief defense and scriptural explanation of the phenomenon of tongues (vv. 14-21), and follows by a threefold argument proving the messiahship of Jesus. In his conclusion he appealed to them to repent and be baptized in the name of Jesus.

2. Three thousand converted (v.24). Many people were convicted of their sins.

3. The abiding fellowship (vv. 42-47. The evidence that the Spirit had really come and that his work was real was that

a. The converts continued steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine (v. 42).

b. They continued in fellowship with the apostles (v. 42). The surest way to grow is to keep in fellowship with Christians.

c. In using the means of grace (v. 42). They continued in the breaking of bread. God has instituted ordinances in his house.

d. In prayer (v. 42). The apostolic church was a praying church.

e. In praising God (v. 47). The experience of the indwelling Spirit issues in praise to God.

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

The great Lord Tennyson in a beautiful poem refers to a woman's Adam's Apple as "The warm white apple of her throat." Consider your Adam's Apple. Touch it—your Adam's Apple—That is your larynx—your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. When you consider your Adam's Apple you are considering your throat—your vocal chords. Protect the delicate tissues within your throat. Be careful in your choice of cigarettes. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants! Reach for a LUCKY instead. Here in America LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette which brings you the added benefit of the exclusive "TOASTING" Process, which includes the use of modern Ultra Violet Rays. It is this exclusive process that expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. And so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple."

FROM J. H. JACKSON

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you please allow me a little space to say a few words through your valuable paper? I want to commend Brother Bice for coming out boldly and expressing his sentiments on the prohibition law. I think Brother Bice has told the truth. He has expressed a Christian's spirit. Now I want to say with best respect to the churches which are responsible for this most ungodly prohibition law, I have heard preachers say that the church was the mother of prohibition. Yes that is a fact, but in my opinion it is the most ungodly and oppressive law that has been since the days of Pharoah.

We read of two women or mothers in the Bible, one is Mrs. Babylon, the mother of harlots and abomination of the earth. We find this mother is wicked and oppressive. If we don't mind we will be found serving this sinful mother. When we organize to influence our lawmaking power to enact a law like the prohibition law, I believe it is organized sin, and God will visit this nation with a curse for such unholy law. I believe that He has already done it to some extent.

To advocate or to enact a law to punish and to imprison and to fine and take from poor women and their little ones their support for a thing that our fathers of old and Christ Himself practiced and was honorable, it's just too bad. No wonder Isaiah says it shall come to pass in that day that the Lord shall punish the host of the high ones who are on high, and the kings of the earth upon the earth. And they shall be gathered together as prisoners are gathered in the pit, and shall be shut up in the prison, and after many days shall they be visisted. Then the moon, which I understand to be the law, shall be compounded, and the sun, as I understand to be the church, will be ashamed.

We had better seek for that woman or mother who is clothed with the sun and the moon under her feet, its stand above the law and above popularity. Let's do like Brother Bice when we see our mistake, make an honest confessison, its good for the soul. Don't let pride stand between you and God. I know that its unpopular to oppose prohibition. He is called by some a liquor head, yet he is with 75 per cent of the people. I oppose drunkenness; prohibition has failed to check drunkenness. It is the spirit of oppression; it is without Bible authority.

The man who can lie down at night with a clear conscience and sleep, knowing that he has been partly the cause of this unjust law that has filled our jails, our penitentiaries, and occasionally a 9-pound strap on their back, has a different view of religion than I; but that's not the worst. It's causing people to lose respect for all laws. When the majority of the people lose respect for all laws, we will have a hell right here on earth. God forbid that should ever come, but that is just where this prohibition is leading to. It is not for the big boys, but for the little ones, or rather it's used that way. If I thought the Bible justified such law, I wouldn't open my mouth against it. I expect to contend for the things that are for the upbuilding of our morals and kingdom of God.

I love peace and liberty, but I hate the spirit of oppression. Solomon says surely oppression maketh a wise man mad. Isaiah, in instructing the church, says: thou shalt be far from oppression, then how can we be the servants of God and support the spirit of oppression. It just won't work, it's impossible. With best respect to all.—J. H. Jackson, Lomax, Alabama.

WHAT YOU ARE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

"You are going to be," Coleman Cox tells us, "that which you make of what you are."

The Byers family are sending their son to college so that he may "make something of himself," they fondly hope. There isn't a great deal in young Byers out of which to make much of anything worth while, so far as I can see. He has never shown any keen desire to do any specific thing, he has no apparent talent, and he is, if the truth were told, decidedly lazy. Lack of ambition, lack of brains, an unwillingness to work are no, strongly prophetic of much worth while to come.

Young Byers does not count so much on what he is as upon what he is going to be.

It is rather significant that the student in college seldom does better than the record he makes during his first six weeks in classes. We have a scholastic report at the end of the sixth week, and the scholastic excellence indicated at that time is about what may be expected of the man during the rest of his college course. The man who does well during this initial period will continue to do so; the man who is failing and indifferent, and commonplace seldom in the future rises above the commonplace.

He may give excuses and his parents may—he was not feeling his best, he got a poor start, it is the first time that he has ever been away from home, and he finds it difficult to adjust himself, he is young—it makes little difference what the explanation is, he keeps along the same path at the same rate of intellectual speed. Reduce the number of his studies if you will, get him a tutor, move him to a place of greater comfort and quiet, find friends to charm away his nostalgia—what he is he still continues to be. On the one hand it is discouraging, but upon the other hopeful.

Chicago's 1933 Exposition Opens First Exhibit

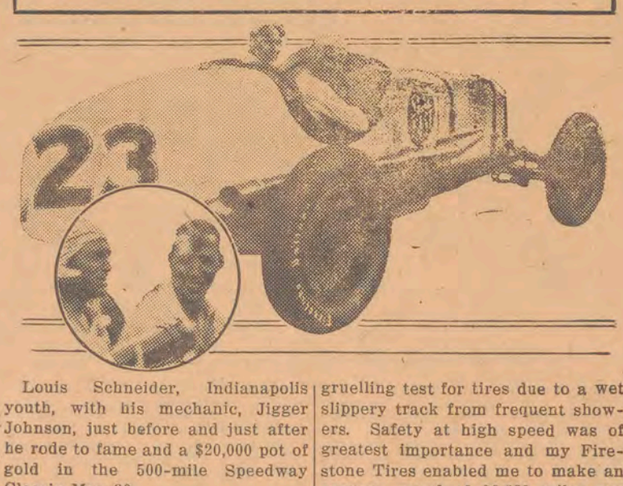
Fort Dearborn and modern Chicago. Hedrich-Blessing Studio.

Two years before the formal opening of A Century of Progress — Chicago's 1933 World's Fair—the first exposition building has been thrown open to the public.

It is Fort Dearborn, an exact replica of Chicago's birthplace—the log stronghold built in 1803 by Captain John Whistler and burned to the ground by savage Redskins on August 15, 1812, after the evacuating garrison had been massacred.

Silhouetted against the skyscrapers of modern Chicago, Fort Dearborn offers a romantic contrast to life today.

From the top of a tall pole in the center of the parade ground flies a flag bearing fifteen stars and fifteen stripes.



At diagonal corners of the fort, log blockhouses frown down upon the narrow enclosure between inner and outer stockades and menace the prospective foe with brass French cannon which saw service in the War of 1812.

Ancient flint-lock muskets, dueling pistols and powder horns hang on the rough, hand-adzed walls and above the heavy, masonry fireplaces.

It is a fascinating reproduction of frontier life at the beginning of the marvelous century whose culmination the world will celebrate in Chicago in 1933.

Louis Schneider Wins 500 Mile Race

Louis Schneider, Indianapolis youth, with his mechanic, Jigger Johnson, just before and just after he rode to fame and a $20,000 pot of gold in the 500-mile Speedway Classic May 30.

No man has ever won two years consecutively, but Schneider is the twelfth consecutive winner on Firestone Tires, and to express his gratitude for his safety and victory he sent Harvey S. Firestone the following telegram from the track:

"I have just won the five hundred mile Indianapolis race on Six Hundred Twenty Firestone Gum Dipped Tires. It was a most difficult and gruelling test for tires due to a wet, slippery track from frequent showers. Safety at high speed was of greatest importance and my Firestone Tires enabled me to make an average speed of 96.629 miles per hour. I have always used Firestone Tires in all my racing, for I have great confidence in their safety and dependability, and I want to thank you for the part Firestone Balloons played in my victory today, for I had no tire failures and changed but one tire, purely a precautionary measure, and all my tires were in fine condition at the finish of the race."

Heavy Cotton Yields Mean Low-Unit Costs

The rock bottom cost of producing a pound of seed cotton last year was probably 2¼ cents. At least, that is what it cost the winners of cotton-growing contests in nine Southern States.

An inspection of their records shows that every one of the winners, 22 in all, side-dressed their crop. The average application was 200 pounds of Chilean nitrate per acre, applied about 45 days after planting.

It is sometimes said that while the winners of crop-growing contests make high acre yields, their cost of unit production is abnormally high. This is far from being the case. In fact, as shown by these records, the cost of growing a pound of cotton was reduced as the yield was increased.

POTPOURRI

Gunpowder

Although information is indefinite, it is thought that the Chinese used gunpowder before the Christian era. Roger Bacon of Oxford is sometimes given credit for its discovery because he told how to make it in some of his writing in 1242. The earliest cannons of record were used in Florence in 1326, France 1338, Germany 1340.

W. O. W. MEETING AT THORSBY

There will be a Woodmen of the World Meeting at Thorsby Tuesday night, July 7th, for the purpose of organizing Central Alabama Log Rolling Association, composed of the Camps in this district.

An executive committee has been selected who will present the by-laws for the organization according to Mr. Evans, district manager. These meetings will be held each month somewhere in the district.

At 4 o'clock all of the drill teams of the district will meet and enter a contest and the team that makes the highest grade will put on the floor work and the initiation at 8 o'clock.

There will be a large class of new members initiated. Col L. A. Ellington will preside as Consul Commander. Mr. Ellington is recognized as the best consul commander in the state. All woodmen of this section are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

Col. Z. R. Tew of Montgomery will be present to look after the interest of the drill team work.

You're Late, Mr. Weevil

This shows how Southern farmers have outsmarted one of their worst enemies, the boll weevil. Notice that the cotton bolls have opened on the lower branches of these stalks. They are out of danger, safe from the ravages of the weevil.

In sections where weevil infestation is heavy it is always difficult to mature the bolls on the upper half of the stalks. Growers have discovered, however, that a full crop of cotton may still be grown by spacing the stalks closer together, leaving two stalks in each hill instead of one. A side dressing of quick-acting nitrogen is used to speed up the development of the bolls. In this way two stalks produce as large a crop in about half the time as was formerly made on one stalk during a longer unmolested fruiting period.

The side-dressing is applied after chopping and before squaring begins. The common application is 100 to 200 pounds of Chilean nitrate of soda per acre. This quick-acting plant food speeds up the development of the bolls so that the cotton on the lower branches is safely out of danger when the weevil puts in its appearance.

Remember next Sunday is our regular singing afternoon, beginning at 230 o'clock. Come bring your song books and friends.

BILLINGSLEY ITEMS

We are still having hot weather with practically no rain.

Mr. Jim Bently motored to Montgomery Thursday and spent the day with friends.

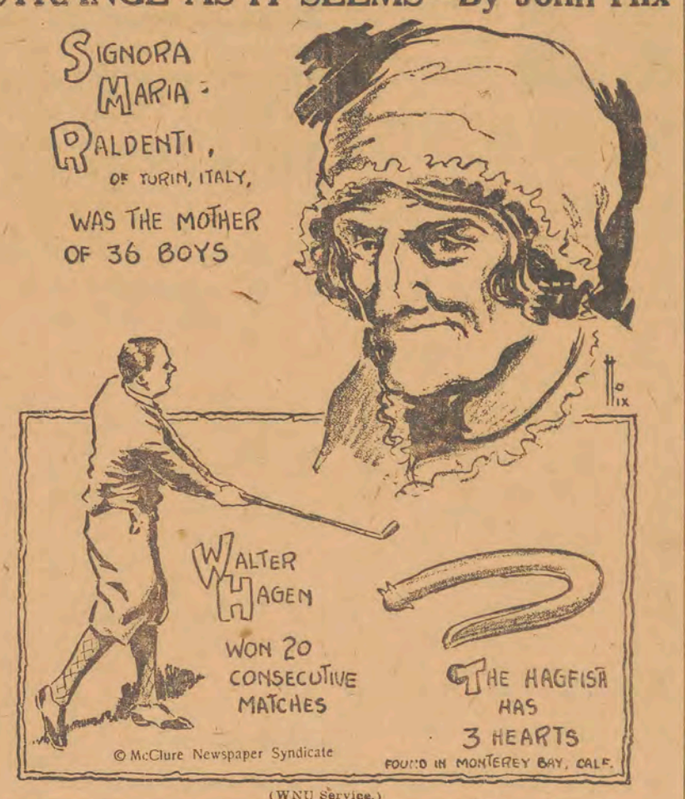
We are pleased to note that little Junior Wilson is rapidly improving.

Rev. Bently left Saturday for Moffet to fill his appointment at that place.

E. H. Downs went to Tuscaloosa Sunday to visit his daughter, Mrs. Joe Boozer.

Last Friday when the fire alarm was given neighbors responded and found Mr. Irby Bedlescomb's house so near burned down that it could not be saved, but saved a part of the contents. Monday we were again called to a serious fire in which Mr. C. B. Deramus lost his house and only saved part of the contents.

We want each family to know that we extend sympathy in their great loss.



Mrs. Clifford Harrell visited her sisters, Misses Nettie M. and Lucile Patillo last Monday.

FUNDS FOR HOMES SUPPLIED BY BANKS

By ROME C. STEPHENSON
President American Bankers Association

A LARGE PORTION of the funds required in home building always has been furnished by banks. They have shown constantly a deep interest in the performance of this feature of national development. Upon it rests much of our country's future stability, and any contribution to its advancement redounds to the advantage of all. So banking has never permitted its co-operative attitude toward home building to lessen.

R. C. STEPHENSON

Practically all banks now accept savings deposits which can well be turned to the advantage of the home builders. The construction of individual dwellings requires a large amount of financing and is a thoroughly commendable enterprise. Necessarily, the aid given to home builders is governed by the sound banking rules which have grown out of the years of experience and the constant studies of bank practices.

All of the efforts made to secure broader real estate loan privileges, to adjust resources to make it possible to lend larger sums for long terms, the standardization of mortgage loan formulas, and the actual lending of vast sums on mortgage notes evidence the desire of banks to contribute a full measure of support to the home-building movement. This is true of all classes of banks, but even in a more marked degree of those whose deposits are largely in the form of savings and whose loans are primarily for building or home purchasing purposes.

Both Sides Protected

The process through which bank loans are made on real estate is as simple as the nature of such an important transaction will permit. When money is advanced the lender must know that repayment will be made the specified time. Likewise the borrower wants to be assured that, after he has figured the loan on the basis of his conservatively anticipated ability to pay, he will not be required to do more, that he will not be disturbed in his efforts to work out of his obligations under those terms. Whether his agreement is to repay the entire loan in three or five years, or on a monthly or yearly basis, he wants the assurance that no additional burdens will be imposed upon him. All of this is settled definitely in advance.

There is no mystery about any of the details, and when the negotiations are complete the borrower knows just what he may expect and what he will be required to do to meet his obligations.

Loans made to persons who wish to acquire homes are not necessarily building loans. One may wish to purchase a home already constructed. In this form of transaction bank loans are used very freely because it is the only kind of a real estate loan some classes of banks may make. Others of course, may lend upon real estate with improvements uncompleted and advance funds as the construction progresses. Different styles in home financing have developed in the various states, and banks have tried to adapt their facilities to the needs. Whatever character of assistance is required in any particular instance usually can be found in some bank in the local community.

Among banks and borrowers for home acquisition purposes a long established and thoroughly tested relationship exists. Banks are not the only agencies through which such funds are available; they do not embody all the spirit of helpfulness which abounds. However, through the years of their co-operation their aid has been of unquestioned value to the home builders whose efforts to establish a permanence for themselves have received constant encouragement. Bankers everywhere are ready to counsel with their customers about their home-building plans and to assist to the extent of their ability. This is being done constantly and the many advantages of it are not without recognition.

IN MEMORY OF GRANDMOTHER ABBOTT

On May 28 the death angel visited Grandmother and took her from us. She was in bed for three weeks, but has been in bad health for several years. She was at the home of her son, J. T. Abbott, when death came. She was 78 years old at the time of her death. We feel at a great loss without her, but our loss is Heaven's gain.

She leaves three daughters, Mrs. R. L. Edwards of Irondale, Mrs. E. J. Poole of Tuscaloosa, and Mrs. G. B. Williams of Pletcher; and three sons, J. L. and J. T. Abbott of Pletcher, and C. D. Abbott of Autaugaville; 25 grand children, and 8 great grand children, and a host of other relatives and friends to mourn her loss.

We want to thank all who were so kind to us during her sickness. A friend in need is a friend indeed. We hope some day to return all the help rendered us.

Do you knock on wood every time you set out for an airing in the car?

Is your heart in your mouth when you swing into a curve at a little more speed than the law allows?

There's nothing like a set of junky old tires to take the joy out of driving.

Why worry about blowouts when you can buy sturdy Goodyear Pathfinders at present levels?

Never in the history of the automobile has tire mileage been priced so low.

COSTIVENESS

CONFINING indoor work—skillful work with the hands that does not include plenty of physical exercise for the body, often results in the bad feeling and unpleasant signs of faulty bowel movement. W. S. Conant, a saddler and harness maker living in Somerset, Ky., says: "I had to take something for costiveness, as I would just get so tired, or have a dull feeling. After I heard of Black-Draught and began taking it, I avoided this trouble. I take it in small doses and it is most satisfactory." FNA-9

BLACK-DRAUGHT

THE FALL CROP OF IRISH POTATOES

The two main factors limiting the production of fall grown Irish potatoes in Alabama are: climatic conditions in some sections of the state during July and August, and, through force of necessity spring grown seed are usually planted which generally result in a poor stand. Of course, climatic conditions cannot be controlled, but results during the past few years have shown that we may materially increase the sprouting of new or spring grown potatoes by a comparatively simple treatment. Certain sections in North Alabama seem particularly adapted to the production of a fall crop of potatoes where a stand is secured, and these recommendations should prove of greatest interest in these sections.

Ethelene chlohydrin is the material which has been found to be most effective in hastening the sprouting of new potatoes. This treatment is as follows:

1. Mix one pint of 40 per cent ethelene chlorhydrin in four gallons of water.

2. Cut potatoes as usual before planting. Where small potatoes are used which are not cut before planting, slice off one side of peeling to permit direct action of the chemical.

3. Dip potatoes in solution just long enough to make sure they are thoroughly wet.

4. As soon as potatoes are dipped they should be placed in a fairly tight container, cover over top, and allowed to remain for 24 to 36 hours. To avoid over-heating, which usually results in decay of the potatoes after planting, this container should be kept in a cool place while the potatoes are going through this treatment.

5. The potatoes should be planted at the end of the treating period (24 to 36 hours). They should be planted about 6 inches deep to avoid excessive heating from the sun and first few inches of top soil.

See county agent for further information.

IN LOVING MEMORY

On last Friday, June 26th, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Vinzant and Mr. Dick Peters were called to the bedside of their grandfather, Mr. D. S. Peters, who was very ill. On Saturday the death angel called him to rest. He had been very ill for about 2 years, suffering from heart dropsy.

He was 84 years of age, and was an old citizen of Chilton County. He was the father of 13 children. He leaves to mourn him, a wife, Mrs. Ammie Peters, 2 sons, Mr. Lawrence Peters and Mr. Willie Peters, one daughter, Mrs. Ida Peters, all of near Childersburgh. He also leaves a host of friends and relatives.

All was done for him that doctors could do, but God saw fit to take him. Our loss is heavens gain.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

Patrick E. Crowley

Cattaraugus was a railroad town on the Erie line. It was the ambition of most of the boys born and raised there to learn railroading. A conductor in his natty uniform, an engineer, fireman or mechanic in workstained overalls was a common enough sight to the boys thereabouts. Still it always gave them a thrill. They hoped to rise that high in the world themselves some day in the future.

Patrick E. Crowley shared the ambition of his playmates to become a first-class railroad man. He was born in a house near the tracks of the Erie in 1864. His father had worked on the Erie for years. He was the station agent at Cattaraugus and as such was a man of authority and prestige in the little railroad community.

The youngster knew the language of the railroad almost as soon as he was able to talk. His ears would tell him when the puffing engines were in need of repairs or overhauling before he was ten years old. He could tell at a glance the condition of the rolling stock as it passed through Cattaraugus. He was inquisitive and friendly with the train crews from the time he was able to get around alone.

He was a wiry youngster, rather on the smallish size. While he played in the fields with the other boys, he managed to spend much time around the station and in his father's little office. He took particular interest in the work of the train dispatcher.

His mind was made up while he was in grammar school that he would seek a job on the railroad as soon as his father would permit. In those days the generally accepted way to learn the business was to begin young and work your way up. The boy's father thought that as long as he was so anxious to start railroading he might as well pass up a high school education.

So the lad left school when he was fourteen years old and went to work as a messenger and odd job boy for the Erie in his home town. Each month his pay envelope contained $5. While that wasn't much financial incentive the youngster was satisfied and proud of being a wage earner. He was learning the business he liked, getting a lot of fun out of it and being paid in the bargain.

Getting up at 5:30 in the morning, going to work at seven o'clock and not finishing the day's tasks until nine o'clock at night, might not seem so much fun to boys of the present day. But young Crowley thrived on the hard grind. His thin legs carried him over many a mile in the course of an average day's work as messenger.

When he wasn't on the jump he sat and watched the telegraph operator at his work. There was something in the click of the instrument that seemed to fascinate the lad. The train dispatcher, noting his interest, helped him to learn the Morse code. The boy proved to be a mighty apt pupil. By the time he was sixteen he was a full fledged operator.

Most boys would have gone to bed as soon as they arrived home from such a hard day's work as this youngster put in. But not young Crowley. He was a great reader of history and technical books dealing with railroad problems. Often he remained up reading until midnight or later. In this way he continued the education that was halted, so far as school was concerned, when he finished his grammar school course.

Long before he was able to vote he was known as a boy who always was on the job, who studied it thoroughly until he knew his particular work better than anyone else. It wasn't so strange, in view of this, that when he put his mind to it he became an expert telegrapher at the age of sixteen.

The Erie sent him to Custer City, Pa., as telegraph operator. There were only a couple of trains a day at the little way station, but it was a start for the boy. He didn't remain there long. Soon he was transferred to Buffalo and became a train dispatcher at an important point.

He continued to be a wide reader of good literature in his spare moments, burning the midnight oil to improve his mind. He worked as hard as he had done on his first job. He was gaining a thorough foundation in railroading. He went with the New York Central in 1890 as a train dispatcher. Next he became chief of the department and then chief train master. He was already a man marked for promotion.

When he was offered the place of superintendent of the Pennsylvania division of the Central system, he refused it at first. He was so modest he didn't think he deserved such an important post. Friends persuaded him to change his mind.

From then on his promotion was steady and sure until he was named president of the vast Central system. His thoroughness in mastering every job as it came along has paid him and the New York Central big dividends.

DAIRY TRAINED MEN RECEIVE EMPLOYMENT

Auburn, Ala., June 29.—Prof. A. D. Burke, head of the dairy department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, has found employment for the three young men who specialized in dairying and graduated at the recent commencement. W. F. Barnett is in dairy herd improvement work at Selma; E. E. Allredge is with the Frozen Custard Corporation at Birmingham; and Clifford Alston is with the Foremost Dairies milk station at Burkeville in Lowndes County.

Prof. Burke said that dairying opens a broad field to those interested in it as a vocation. "Aside from," he said, "the manufacture of ice cream, butter, cheese, milk powder and condensed milk which are industries in themselves, the field is open to those who are well trained in bacteriology and chemistry. Dairy inspection, market milk and certain phases of public health administration demand a knowledge of these two latter subjects. Hence the man engaged in dairy manufacturing is scarcely limited in a choice of his life's work.

"In the field of dairy production one finds many opportunities. While a student specializing along this line may primarily feel the urge to return to the farm better equipped to carry on. There are opportunities in farm management, and dairy herd improvement association work."

Prof. Burke has presented statistics on the dairy industry of the United States which is almost equivalent to cotton and cotton seed in the production of cash income, and cotton and cotton seed are cash leaders among American farm products. In total value milk exceeds cotton and cotton seed but much milk is never turned into cash.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SOCIAL

On Friday night, June 26, the Young Peoples Sunday School Class of Mt. Pleasant, and their guests were entertained royally with an ice cream supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rheuben Scott. Free ice cream, cake, and lemonade was served to the large crowd present.

Among those participating in this delightful affair were Mr. and Mrs. Lee Popwell and children, Misses Gladys Melton, Marie Eiland, Ophelia Hayes, Mayme, Birtie, and Myrtice Logan, Gertrude Blalock, Jessie Lee Price, Mittice Duncan, Frances Massey, Claire Mae Kelley, Pearl Wilson, Gertrude Foshee, Eunice Hilda Holley, Rosa Lee Harris, Ila Massey, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Rheuben Scott, and Mrs. Fannie Jones; Messrs. Coy Kendricks, Houston Nivens, Dick Massey, Bill Wilson, J. C. Massey, Grady Miner, Luther Kendricks, Dewey Robinson, Harvey Melton, Lewin Massey, Warren Riggins, Waylam Riggins, Bud and Elijah Turner, Herschal Hayes, Elbert and Henry Foshee.

The Young Peoples Sunday School Class has been divided into two groups, the reds and the blues. Each group is trying to have the largest number of members present for four consecutive Sundays, the winner being entertained at the close of the contest by the less fortunate group.

Friendly rivalry between the two groups is making things interesting around Mt. Pleasant. Everybody come to Sunday school and help your favorite side win.

A request has been made that every one interested in having a singing school taught at Mt. Pleasant this summer meet here next Sunday and discuss it.

Seed cost less than at any time in history of the crop in Alabama. Alabama farmers have planted peas and vetch:

Year	Amt., lbs.	Year	Amt., lbs.
1918	1,535	1925	526,905
1919	2,465	1926	397,928

1923	315,765	1930	1,955,224
1924	505,905

A year's average over the whole State of Alabama showed increase yield after peas and vetch of 22 bushels of corn per acre, and 356 pounds of seed cotton peracre. This accounts for the above increased plantings from 1918 to 1930.

AGAINST ODDS

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

It was a thrilling story that they told of Buchanan at the services which commemorated his victory and his death—a story which should give those who heard it a higher appreciation of duty, a stronger determination to win the battle of life even against odds.

Buchanan had always shown a strange faculty for doing things which he undertook to do, no matter what it might cost in personal labor and effort, or even danger to himself. If he assumed an obligation, he met it. He was a young naval officer in charge of a detachment of marines in Nicaragua. The Nicaraguan town which he was guarding was attacked by a band of guerillas ten times the number of men at Buchanan's disposal. He might well have hesitated to engage them in battle. Ten to one the odds were against him and the attackers knew the country in which they were making their onslaught far better than he did. It was his duty, however, and there was no hesitation, he put the guerillas to flight. He won his battle, notwithstanding the odds against him, though he lost his life. It takes courage to engage in any sort of contest against odds.

"I am willing to try you out on the job," the superintendent said to Craig, "because you show much enthusiasm for your work, but I want you to understand that you haven't one chance in ten of making good. Your preparation for the work is not so good as it should be, you are young and inexperienced, and you are going into a most difficult position where the three men who have preceded you have resigned because they saw that they were facing failure."

"I'll take a chance at it," Craig said. "If I fail I'll die fighting with my boots on."

But he didn't fail, and the added courage and confidence which came from success in an almost impossible situation has made him one of the most trusted and valuable men in the organization to which he belongs.

Too many young fellows these days, it seems to me, in high school and in college and in business, are looking for the easy job where the odds are in their favor and where success may be won without effort. There is little future for such men.

Corn Champions Show How to Reduce Costs

An analysis of the records made in the state-wide corn growing contests last year shows that all of the winners followed the same successful practices. In fertilizing the crop, every one of the champions in nine Southern States side-dressed with Chilean nitrate when the plants were knee-high. The average rate of application was 265 pounds of "Soda" an acre.

The average yield of the group was 110 bushels an acre, nearly six times the average yield in the South. The total cost of producing a bushel was 29 cents. This figure included every item of expense, such as seed, fertilizer, labor, and rent of land.

DRASTIC ANTI-GUN LAWS UNPOPULAR

The anti-revolver law, that old stand-by and hope of the crime reformers, did not fare so well in the legislatures that met during the winter and spring of 1931.

In that time forty-six legislature were in session—and in only five of them were stringent anti-gun laws, of the Sullivan type, introduced. Of these, three did not get beyond committee, and the other two, in Pennsylvania and Ohio, were re-written so as to bring them into line with the Uniform Firearms Bill.

This bill, which protects the right of the honest citizen or sportsman who wants to own a small arm, and at the same time makes it difficult for a criminal to obtain a weapon, is now in force in several states. It has been given the blessing, both of sportsmen's associations, and of persons who take a deep interest in the problem of crime prevention and wish to see it advance along sane and sensible lines. It does not please the fanatics on either side—but it does work to the benefit of the public in contrast with unconditional anti-gun laws, of the "make-more law-breakers" type.

Have you noticed that with the general decline in the cost of living, nothing has been done yet in the way of deflating taxes?

(By Frank P. Litschert)

We are all familiar with the old free-trade slogan, that "if we are to sell abroad, we must buy abroad." The inference of course is that the protective tariff keeps us from buying abroad, merely because it equalizes the cost of production at home and abroad in competitive articles, and gives the American worker an even chance with the illy-paid labor of Europe and the pauper labor of the Orient. Nothing, of course, could be farther from the truth than this inference. Because of the protective tariff, Uncle Sam does not rest behind an unscalable wall producing everything at home that he consumes.

On the other hand, as the president of the Brookmire Service put it the other day, Uncle Sam is the world's best customer. This economist calls attention to the fact that we consume three-fourths of the world's raw silk, two-thirds of its crude rubber and half of its tin. Just think that over for a moment! The United States uses three times as much silk as the rest of the world put together, twice as much rubber and fully as much tin as the other nations of the globe. Then we consume more coffee than any other nation, and great quantities of tea, sugar, tropical fruits and other commodities which come from abroad. And yet the free traders have the nerve to shout that the protective tariff is wrong because "if we are to sell abroad we must buy abroad."

Our protective tariff does not prevent our buying three times as much raw silk as the rest of the world combined, twice as much rubber, as much tin, coffee, and so on down the line. On the contrary, it is this protective policy which enables us to do these things and to remain, as a nation, the world's best customer. The proof of this statement is easy to find. Our protective tariff laws protect only those commodities, the production of which, come into competition with cheap labor costs abroad. By maintaining through protection, a higher standard of living than the rest of the world, we have enabled our workers to own automobiles, radios, electric refrigerators, have enabled them to use as much coffee and tea as they desire, and have made it possible for their wives, sisters and daughters, in normal times, to wear silk dresses and silk hose. It is because our workers and their families are such good earners and such good spenders, that we can use three times as much raw silk and twice as much rubber as the rest of the world combined. For the workers of Europe do not disport themselves in rubber-tired autos and their families seldom dress in silk. The worker over there is fortunate indeed who is able to provide food and a comfortable shelter for his family, not only during periods of depression but in normal times.

To sum up, it is a simple sequence of conditions; our protective tariff gives us the highest living standard and the greatest consuming demand in the world, and this enables us to buy the products of the world, like sugar, rubber, tea, coffee, and tin in much greater quantities than any other nation on earth, and it so enables Uncle Sam to become the best customer of the rest of the world. The theory of the free trader, therefore, to the effect that the protective tariff keeps us from buying abroad, and so selling abroad, is not only illogical but actually silly.

The less we worry about foreign markets and turn our attention to building up the great home market and restoring our national buiness to normal, the better off we will be, and the better off the rest of the world will be. Our foreign trade, with the usual assistance given it by our government agencies, will then take care of itself.

PACIFISM AND PIFFLE

American advocates of the League of Nations—there are still a few—should read a recent statement by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff of the United States army.

General MacArthur says:

"Under the terms of the League of Nations, the United States would be required to maintain a standing army of at least half a million men in order to be able to carry out its mandates."

This would be nearly four times the present strength of the American army. It would be nearly nine times its present combat strength.

Pacifistic gentlemen who want us in the League so that we can reduce armaments will have to think up another one. In the classic language of the prize ring, General MacArthur has handed their pet argument a sock in the jaw.—Washington Times.

RAILROADS AND BUSES

The so-called "battle" between railroads and bus lines is not so serious as some wild statements, from both sides, might make it seem.

Buses and rails have the same common purpose—to give the public good service, in return for a fair profit. Those who have blamed failing rail business entirely on the buses find no support in fact. According to John F. Deasy, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, the decline in passenger traffic on his line, was principally due to the use of private automobiles. Compared to the number of people now traveling in their own vehicles, both the railroads and buses are very small fry when it comes to short-haul transportation.

What is needed is wise cooperation between buses and rails—and this is coming. Demands for tax rates and regulation that would stifle the bus industry are certainly not the solution to the problem. At present the buses, in most states, are providing a receptive public with fast, safe and economical transportation—and the systems are contributing great sums in taxes, most of which are used for roads.

Both railroads and the buses fill a necessary place. Those interested in social and industrial progress will wish both these great, progressive and essential industries well.

There is no more reason for attacking and destroying confidence in any industry as a whole because of the crookedness of a few companies than there is for attacking our whole banking system because of the crookedness of a few banking officials.—John J. Raskob.

HELP COPPER "FIND ITSELF"

The plight of the copper industry has far reaching significance.

It goes far beyond the discomfort of stockholders, and even the hundreds of thousands of persons who are dependent for their livelihood and that of their families on the copper mines. It touches a multitude of other industries whose prosperity, or lack of it, is directly and indirectly related to conditions within the mining industry. It goes into the homes and factories of America, where a steady, fair-priced supply of copper will be necessary to future progress, as it has been to the progress of the past.

Anything that will help copper "find itself" takes on the nature of a public service. And in this connection it is well to say that greater use of silver in the arts and trades and in home furnishings would help raise that metal above the lowest price in history and be an aid to the copper industry, as silver is one of its chief by-products.

MILKING THE MOTORIST

The poor motorist is becoming one of the tax collector's best sources of revenue. Last year he paid taxes exceeding $2,000,000 a day—and he will pay more this year. The gasoline tax, the registration tax, the personal property tax, the driver's license fee and similar levies are making a steadily larger hole in the driver's purse. Since 1921 total motor vehicle tax income has increased at the rate of 14 per cent a year—and gas tax income at the rate of 79 per cent a year. In spite of this, annual increases in motor vehicle registration have been less than 11 per cent, and expenditures for highways have gone up but six per cent.

So far during 1931 ten legislatures have given the gas tax a boost skyward—and in one state, a seven-cent tax just escaped passing. The gasoline tax will approach $600,000,000 this year and the total motor vehicle tax will be close to $1,500,000,000.

Arthur Chilton, of Montgomery, was sworn in as United States District Attorney Wednesday, succeeding Grady Reynolds, of Clanton, who has held the office for seven years. Mr. Reynolds has to his credit what is considered a highly successful administration of the duties of the office. It is stated that the retiring District Attorney will resume his private law practice at Clanton, and is considering opening a law office in Montgomery also.

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

Saving Our Roads—Now and then, every once in a while, I hear something about saving our road surfaces. All well and good. You remember we had an epidemic of graveling just at the fag end of 1930, and lots of the little slick places got a good thick coat of gravel. Again, well and good, or good and better. Then we began to hear about keeping those good surfaces and adding to the good work already started by graveling other places a little at a time, so that sooner or later we would have a real good set of fine roads all over Chilton County. But—BUT—just between us and the gate-post, I believe some of the road crews, or those in charge of them, have the wrong idea about how to go about this surface preservation problem. It looks like they have decided that the way to save those graveled surfaces is to cover them up with a thick coat of clay, using the road machines to dig the clay out of the ditches with which they cover them. Not such a hot idea. Of course, folks, that was just a little fun squib, but that is just what is happening in some parts of the county. Chilton County spent lots of money last year graveling roads, and the boys made a good job of it, too. Give the road crews credit for that. But now, as stated above, the machines are going along in some parts of the country and raking clay over that gravel. What's the idea? The graveled surface is no good to us if we have to dig in to get to it. And that's exactly what we'll have to do when it rains—if it does.

Vacation Days—Vacation days are with us again. We see evidence of that fact beyond just hearing that somebody or his brother is going somewhere for the next week or so. For instance, one day this week we noticed an old Model "T" all loaded up with bric-a-brac which had all the earmarks of being camping material. And, too, it took that guy about 30 minutes to get Lizzie wound up, so he must surely have been on his way to Florida, or some place equally distant. It's a good time to go, though, with nothing to do and always to do it.

It's Fighting Time—Yep! That's right. It's fighting time. Most of us are fighting the flies and other pests, all of us are fighting the hot weather in one way or another. But the last part of this week we ought to get about fed up on fights. On Friday night, lots of us will be sitting by our radios listening to the Stribling-Schmeling fight, and then on Saturday if you attend the American Legion blow-out at the High School grounds you will see several good real—REAL—fights, and wrestling matches. If you like to see a good fight without getting into it, just stick around for the fun on next Saturday. You'll see plenty.

Naming The Babies—Did you ever think to notice how people kind of run in sets, so far as names are concerned. Not many years ago, a big crop of Grover Cleveland so-and-so's popped up all over the country. And then, too, there came an epidemic of Corbitts. Of late years, the school registrars have listed an enormous crop of Woodrows. This caused, of course, from the list of greats and near-greats that appear from time to time. Now they tell us this guy Schmeling pronounces his name as if spelled "Smelling," and we just wonder how that would sound as a name a few years hence, and, of course, he would have to have a nickname, which would surely be "Smell." Lots of good laughs in the future along that line.

Here's Your Problem—Here's a problem for the baseball figure hounds. You've got a week to figure it out. A pitcher in a baseball game pitched, in one inning, 15 strikes, 21 balls, walked three men, gave up 2 hits, failed to strike out a single man, threw no balls to bases for put-outs, and yet was not scored upon. How did he ever do it?

This Is The End—As the stair said to the attic, "one thing leads up to another," and we have come to the jumping-off place. Goo' bye.—The Man in the Moon.

LOOK OUT FOR FOREST FIRES

Governor Meier of Oregon, in warning his state that it faces an unusual forest fire hazard, said that all but 23 per cent of forest fires are caused by human agencies. In other words, 77 out of every 100 fires are the result of human carelessness and indifference—or malice.

The situation in Oregon is not greatly different from that in many other states, and the governor's warning has national significance. We talk, on the one hand, about forest preservation—and, on the other, we make it possible for thousands of acres of grown or growing timber to be devastated in the course of a few hours.

The summer and fall seasons immensely increase the seriusness of the forest fire problem. The careless smoker and builder of campfires constitute a tremendous hazard to our timber areas—to say nothing of the arsonist, who is always busy. Every public and private facility should be given to forest protection—and every individual should do his bit in cooperating in the good work.

Our diea of real living would be to have a big income and nothing more to do than a lieutenant governor.

Colonel Woodcock, chief of the prohibition enforcement machinery in the United States, is quoted as saying that he believes the course of enforcement of the prohibition law is now definitely on the right track. He declares that prohibition is now being enforced with less irritation to the innocent than at any time in the history of the movement. Prohibition agents, declares Woodcock, are becoming the best trained investigators in the world.

The fellow who coined the phrase about having a "sense of security" evidently didn't mean the kind of security that you buy on margin.

HOW TAXES ARE INCREASED

Muscle Shoals may be a time-worn topic to discuss but it is one of those political experiments that pile up the government overhead and create permanent, increased taxes for the people to pay. The more such experiments we have, the higher taxes go.

At Muscle Shoals, according to Edwin Gruehl of the North American Company, the government spent more than $68,000,000 on two nitrate plants involving processes which are now obsolete. It spent $56,000,000 for the Wilson Dam which is capable of producing less than 100,000 horsepower under present conditions. To remedy this lack of capacity, it is now proposed to spend $83,000,000 more for dams and improvements, bringing the total investment to $207,000,000.

On the credit side of the Muscle Shoals ledger is an item of $2,600,000, the total receipts to the government from the sale of power between September, 1925, and June, 1929. Against htis must be charged direct operating expenses of $750,000. Thus the return to the government in four years was less than $2,000,000 on a direct investment of $56,000,000—less than one per cent per year.

Richard B. Russell, the new Governor of Georgia, has announced to the legislature of his state that he wents his own salary cut fifteen per cent, and six months taken off his term. Think of that, even when it is still fresh in our minds how our own Alabama legislature the other day voted itself a recess of a week with full per diem of eight dollars to each member. Folks will just naturally be different.

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

Whew! Hot, and how! We have been having to take time out this week to stand in the shade and cool off. Some mighty big and heavy cinders have been rolling around our part of town this week, and it has been giving us all we wanted to do to pile them up.

Yes, sir, Mr. Hoover has gone and done it now. Wonder what all the fellows who have been harping about his sitting still and letting the whole world go to the dogs, are going to say now? Of course they will pick something the matter with the present proposal of the President to harp on we guess. But what is more significant in the whole economic situation, and what we think goes to prove beyond a doubt that the present situation is and has been more or less a condition of the mind and tendency on the part of the money interests to be "scared" was plainly shown by the sudden up-turn of the stock and bond market immediately after the president's proposal of a debt holiday for war debts.

There has been much said in the daily press during the past week relative to the reason for Mr. Hoover's apparently belated action in asking for a moriatorium on war debts. Regardless of the underlying reason for his action in so doing, the fact remains that it will be reflected in terms of politics in the coming presidential campaign. It now appears that by the time this is in print that each of the big powers, including France, who are concerned in the proposal will have agreed to the terms of the moriatorium, and if such be the case, and the effect is any where near that expected by the outstanding world economists, the result will most certainly be an ending of the present economic depression. This will naturally reflect to the credit of the present administration, and there is plenty of time for the people of this scountry to get on their feet financially and forget the past two or three years of hard times and be ready to give Mr. Hoover another term in the White Houses if he wants it, by election time.

Our Own Wonder Box

We Wonder:

When something will be done about these freight vans blocking our streets.

When we will have traffic semaphores.

When we will have a white way.

When all our ice will be weighed to us.

When the Banner will be published daily.

When Gum swamp will be drained.

When we are going to see our girl friend.

Why a certain girl friend chased us from Atmore to Moffat Farm recently.

When we'll make our first million dollars.

What has become of the old-fashioned girl who invaribly said: "This is so sudden."

When we will go fishing again.

When the weather is going to get cooler.

When we will be in Odd McIntyre's class as a columnist.

If the Senate passes the near-beer bill, will the people ratify it at the polls.

Well, "Cotton Tawm" and the other powers that be up at Washington finally horned Hon. Grady Reynolds out and appointed Arthur B. Chilton, erstwhile Democrat and pollywog as United States District Attorney for the Middle District of Alabama. The Sweeper does not feel that this action was justified in any particular, unless it was that the administration felt it had a debt to pay to Chilton and the pollywogs, a debt incurred by virtue of their activity in behalf of Mr. Hoover in the past presidential campaign. Even granting that this was the underlying reason for Chilton's appointment, we do not feel that Mr. Reynolds got a fair deal. Even the Montgomery Advertiser, as anti-republican as it is, feels that Mr. Hoover made a grave political error in Chilton's appointment.

Mr. Reynolds has a record of excellent service in the office behind him, as well as one of constant support of the republican party in every instance. We feel sure that although the citizens of Chilton County regret to have Mr. Reynolds replaced as District Attorney by Mr. Chilton, they at the same will no doubt be glad to have him devote more of his time to the practice of law in Chilton County courts.

We will have more to say next week regarding the war debt moriatorium.—The Sweeper.

Some Sights He Saw—
and Some He Saw Not.

Fine Rain To Start With

What could have been better to start the week off with than the fine rain we had in Clanton Monday at noon? With the Farenheits dodging around the 100 mark, everybody heaved a sign of expectant relief when the thunder clouds began to appear against the torrid sky. By two o'clock the mercury was down to 84. What a relief, not only to our tired feelings, but the suffering fields of corn and vegetable gardens.

A Notch on A Wooden Leg

What is the meaning of that notch on your wooden leg? This is the question that was being asked of Tom Ogletree Monday morning. It was finally admitted by Tom that he went to Sunday school Sunday and one of his friends, desiring to preserve the memory of this pious act on the part of Tom, took out his pocket knife and carved a notch on his wooden leg. "Yes," said Tom, "that is the way it goes. If I do something good, some fellow is up to making a joke out of it; and if I do something bad, of course some fellow is always ready to give me the devil about that."

A Lesson From The Fig

J. H. Jackson, of Lomax, brought in a branch from a fig tree Monday. On it were several figs, two of which were extra large and already matured. Mr. Jackson pointed out that the two large figs were grown on the old growth of the twig; and that the fruit was although apparently ripe, was without flavor, and not good to eat. Mr. Jackson remarked that the bearing of new figs on old growth is contrary to Bible doctrine, and I thought of what the Bible says about putting new wine in old bottles.

Cigaretts Going Up

The price of cigaretts has taken another jump, this time reaching a new altitude record. They are now selling for eighteen cents a package at most of the smoke shops in Clanton. The new revenue tax recently levied in Alabama is the cause of the rise. This will bring further alarm to the head of the house where cigarett smoking has become a part of the menu of every member of the family, including the cook. Cig. Cig. Cig.

The Worst Is Yet To Come

A friend who is somewhat concerned about the final outcome of the present administrative and legislative program of the Alabama State administration, says the only reason he can find for living is to see what is coming next. Maybe this fellow is in the fix of the man whom Frank L. Stanton wrote about in the following verse:

His hoss went dead an' his mule went lame;
He lost six cows in a poker game;
A hurricane came on a summer's day,
An' carried the house whar' he lived away;
Then a airthquake came when that wuz gone,
An' swallowed th lan' that the house stood on!
An' the tax collector, he come roun'
An' charged him up fer the hole in the groun'!
An' the city marshal—he come in view
An' said he wanted his street tax too!
Did he moan an' sigh? Did he set an' cry,
An' cuss the hurricane sweepin' by?
Did he grieve that his ol' friends failed to call,
When the airthquake come an' swallowed all?
Never a word o' blame he said,
With all them troubles on top his head!
Not him . . . He clumb to the top o' the hill,
Whar' standin' room wuz left him still,
An' barin' his head, here's what he said:
"I reckon it's time to git up an' git;
But, Lord, I hain't had the measels yit!"

News Is Scace This Week

It is an awful job to fill up a newspaper when there is nothing doing to make the ink flow. Imagine how I feel right now with the white space of many blank columns staring at me and the only thing I can see worth mentioning is this new awning Buck Gore has put up on the corner. But it will not do much good unless business gets better so Buck will feel justified in letting it down now and then.

Sympathy For Uncle George

Uncle George Willis came by Tuesday morning to tell me that his good old mother had answered the call of the Great Spirit and passed over the river Monday night. I was sorry for Uncle George, as I am always sorry for anyone who comes face to face with the loss of the dearest friend we ever have on earth. I have for a long time admired the manner in which Uncle George expressed to me his love for his mother. He took time regularly to visit her during her illness.

EMULATE THE EXPERTS

The fire insurance industry, through the national board of fire underwriters, performs a public service of tremendous value by inspecting fire stations, apparatus, personnel, water systems and pressure, and buildings.

Each year many communities come under the notice of experts. Particular attention is paid to mercantile sections, where there is congestion of high commercial values, and where fire would result in the greatest damage to both life and property. Following the inspections a report is made to the authorities pointing out weaknesses in the community's fire defense, and offering definite suggestions for improvement. When the improvements are carried out—as probably happens in a majority of instances—the mixiumum degree of protection against fire is reached. When the suggestions are overlooked, the records show that disastrous fires often follow.

That this inspection service has been responsible for saving thousands of lives and millions of dollars worth of property goes without saying. Even so, it is impossible to make an appreciable dent in the fire record without public support. So long as the citizen, as an individual, permits hazards in his home, garage and place of business to go uncorrected, every city faces a potential fire that may delay progress for years to come.

Perhaps the greatest step forward in fire prevention would be for every property-owner to emulate, as best he can, the example of the insurance industry's experts, and conduct a private inspection campaign with the object of correcting or reducing the hazard that exist in almost every building.

Masculine Axiom—It's humiliating to any man to realize how much more his wife knows than he does.

WE MUST WORK OURSELVES OUT

No truer words have been spoken than these of President Hoover: "We cannot legislate ourselves out of a world-wide economic depression," he told newspaper men at a press conference. "We can and will work ourselves out."

We have tried many times to regulate economics by laws and never have succeeded. Sometimes laws have had some effect, but finally we have had to depend upon such things as supply and demand, and business cooperation and leadership to achieve lasting results.

Too many people say, "There ought to be a law on it," every time something goes wrong. The truth is, of course, we have untold thousands of laws that were better off the statute books.

And as the president says, "we can and will work ourselves out." of the slump. This the people of the United States have done many times. There have been worse depressions than the one we have been going through and always they have been followed by a period of abounding prosperity. We shall pass through this cycle and into another and prosperous one. but calling the Congress into special session to make new laws will not help. Rather, almost surely, it would hinder by creating a feeling of uncertainty and distrust on the part of business.

HERE'S AN EXAMPLE

It has long been claimed by opponents of the League of Nations and League Court in the United States that in case of American entry an effort might be made to control the tariff policy of the United States. This claim is borne out by the authority taken by the League Council in referring to the League Court for an advisory opinion the question of whether Austria and Germany have the right to regulate tariffs as between these two nations, a proposal having been made that the two nations form a customs union, with free trade between these two nations as between our American states. Referring to the determination of France to upset this arrangement through the League and League Court, the Scripps-Howard chain papers say editorially: "This is the kind of international dictatorship which cannot and should not last." But it is the kind of international dictatorship the Scripps-Howard chain papers have been trying to let America in for their campaign for the subordination of the United States to the domination of the League and League Court.

Television will soon be an accomplished fact and then you can no longer lie to your wife and tell her you are calling from the office.

Well, with all the high school and college graduates being manufactured this month, there ought not be any trouble getting advice on how to end the depression.

It is said that the army worm is attacking wheat fields in the West. We are now expecting a broadside from Fred Libby to the effect that this is the result of our failure to disarm and at the same time put teeth in the Kellogg pact.

It is said that the usual crop of icebergs is not coming down from the region of the North Pole into the Atlantic. Maybe here is another industry that has been slowed down by the depression.

THE DOLE—A WARNING

Unemployment insurance is receiving attention from many groups in the United States in addition to the congressional committee which was appointed especially to look into that subject. The Industrial Relations Counselors have just published a detailed report on "Unemployment Insurance in Great Britain," in which many defects in the system and difficulties in its operation are pointed out. Advocates of a dole system in this country may find it enlightening.

Before the war, unemployment in Great Britain ranged between 3 and 8 per cent of the industrial employable population. From 1920 to 1928 unemployment ranged from 8 to 20 per cent, reaching a peak of 21 per cent last March. The insurance system was calculated to take care of a maximum of less than that percentage. That is the reason why the government has found it necessary to lend the insurance fund $480,000,000 in the last few years.

Great Britain's decline as a great commercial power can not be understood unless this heavy drain upon industry is taken into consideration. The chief causes of unemployment in that country were found to be the decline in export trade, the substitution of oil and water power for coal, and revolutionary developments in the textile industry. British industry came into sharp competition with foreign enterprises. Methods and machinery were found in many instances to be inefficient. Under ordinary conditions industry would have responded to changing conditions, but British plants were under pressure as a result of the dole. Modernization was postponed and additional funds poured into the unemployment insurance fund. Even those industries which were prosperous and had no unemployment of their own were taxed heavily to maintain idle men thrown out of obsolete plants in some other industry. The result was to hang a stone around the neck of British industry, preventing its recovery of lost ground. As this burden becomes heavier the drain upon industry is increased and the whole British economic system is weakened. The dole tends to postpone necessary economic adjustments and thereby handicaps both industry and labor.—Washington Post.

PRAISES PROHIBITION LAW

Editor Union-Banner:

I want to say I am glad for our prohibition laws. It is not something for punishing the man that is not guilty. The law is good if a man used it lawful. The scripture says the law is not made for a righteous man, but for the ungodly, for sinners, profane murderers, and for them who defile themselves.

Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging, and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise. The prohibition law is uncovering lots of people, and I say let them quit or take the penalty.

Some uphold drinking by using Matt. 15 ch. and 11 verse, which says not that which goeth in the mouth defileth a man, but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth a man. The scribes and pharisees tried to find fault with Jesus by asking why do the disciples trangress the traditions of the elders, for they wash not their hands when they eat bread. And Jesus taught them that eating bread with unwashed hands did not defile a man. Lots of people try to get by and excuse themselves from rightly dividing the word of truth.

It a man's heart is right with God, he will not drink strong drink, for he will thus be condemned. Let us not fill our neighbors with strong dring.—Ellis Cleckler.

DEMABEL'S BEAUTY SHOP CELEBRATES 4TH ANNIVERSARY

July 1st, marks the fourth anniversary of the establishment of DeMabel's Beauty Shop in Clanton. During this time Miss Howard, manager and operator, has devoted herself to a careful study of the many things of interest to the women of Clanton, and surrounding towns and has worked up a steady clientele. Her shop is well equipped with the best and most modern things, which are necessary to give the best service possible. Miss Howard uses a "Eugene" permanent waving machine and supplies, which are considered the most superior method of permanent waving throughout the world. It enjoys the preference of nine-tenths of the fine beatuy shops in England and Europe, and even a greater degree in America. Today, the crowns of Europe rest on Eugene waved hair. For royalty has set on it their seal of approval and preference, and in America, those alert to fashion and superioty, invariably choose a Eugene permanent.

The coiffure, so fashion declares, must be arranged in soft, graceful undulations. Friz and fuzz are passe. The riged waves of less sophisticated times are declared amateurish and downy. Thus, the indicates of fashion and the charcateristics of the Eugene Wave are one. This metod achieves graceful, ridgeless waves that are fashionable.

Another up to the minute feature of great interest which Miss Howard is encouraging is La Geraldine, a lotion, which will train a wave in hair that has always been straight. The truth of this amazing statement can be proved by the simple use of this lotion in your own home or getting the treatments from Miss Howard in her shop. The possibilities of a beautiful, soft, natural wave lies in each and every head of hair, no matter how straight and stiff your hair has been. Simply follow instructions and repeat the treatments faithfully. See how readily your own hair may acquire the flattering beauty of a natural wave, a wave you never dreamed you had.

Powder blending, is another requirement which Miss Howard is able to give her customers who want to be smart in appearences and enhance the beauty of their complexions by having their face powder blended to suit their individual type.

So don't say that you can't wear the different shades, that you always use flesh, brunette, or white. Every complexion is different, and needs a different shade of powder. Along with powder, Miss Howard carries a beauty parlor exclusive line of other cosmetics, and all the latest things to protect the skin from the hot sun and winds, for tan and to prevent blistering. She is using and also sells a special shampoo and rinse to recondition hair that has been dried out by the sun and hot air, or when it has been bleached and is lifeless. The 1931 sleeveless frocks and mesh hose, and for those who spend considerable time in swimming or down at the beach, need depilatories for their arms and legs as well as permanent waves for their hair. They must have both to feel comfortable and look well groomed. Also the tranparency of the newest hose give added emphasis to the care of the legs. A visit to DeMabel's Beauty Shop will solve problems everyone wants to know for more beauty.

Together with her beauty work, Miss Howard devotes spare time to painting greeting cards and photographs. Whenever you need a greeting card to send to a sick friend, a birthday congratulation, for a shower, or any occasion, get it from DeMabel.

Beginning this year of her business Miss Howard wishes to express her appreciation for the splendid patronage she has received from the women of Clanton and Chilton County, and wishes all those who are not already a customer to visit her shop if you want to look your best, and you know it pays to look well. Her shop is located in the Mullins building upstairs, next to the Exchange Hotel on the main highway, phone 150.

$50,000 to be Spent For State Hatchery

Chilton Will Be Given Chance to Present Suitable Sites For Inspection

According to a letter from Congressman W. B. Oliver to Judge L. H. Reynolds, there is now available for expenditure in Alabama, $50,000 for the purpose of establishing a fish hatchery. The letter further states that the Bureau of Fisheries desires to inspect any suitable sites available for this purpose in Chilton County.

In accordance with the request of Congressman Oliver's letter, Judge Reynolds has issued a request that all interested citizens come to a conference at the courthouse Friday afternoon of this week, at four o'clock, for the purpose of considering any property sites that may be suitable or available for this purpose.

The letter of Congressman Oliver to Judge Reynolds is as follows:

My Dear Judge Reynolds:

"There is now available for expenditure in Alabama $50,000 for the purpose of establishing a fish hatchery. The bureau of fisheries desires to inspect any suitable sites in your county you may have to offer. I understand the bureau will want about 100 acres of land and the contour of the land must be such that numerous small ponds can be made from time to time thereon as the hatchery is expanded. The supply of water must be adequate, clear, and of quality well suited for fish culture, and the site must be free from seasonal overflows. This suggests sites where the water can be supplied by springs or overflow wells if possible. The site must be easily accessible by rail and dirt road. You will understand how important this last item is since fish will be distributed in the spring and fall from the hatchery by motor cars, as well as by rail.

"My suggestion is that it would be well for you to call a conference of representative citizens who are informed on matters of this kind, and submit through me at once to the bureau of fisheries such sites as you feel meet the requirements. It is very probable that the representative of the bureau will start visiting the counties offering promising sites on July 15th, and he 'phoned me yesterday that he would like to visit the counties of my distrtict first. I will ask that his visit be postponed until full information can be had, but you will recognize it is important that the matter be given immediate attention. Many counties in the state are offering sites."—W. B. Oliver.

GRANT'S SINGING SCHOOL OPENED; GOOD PROSPECTS

The singing school of Prof. L. T. Grant opened at Friendship Church last Monday morning with very promising prospects. There were thirty-six pupils present the first morning, several others promising to enroll later.

Prof. Grant extends an invitation to any others wishing to avail themselves of the school to enroll at once. It will run for eighteen days, and if you enter the second week, it will be time well spent.

The patrons of the school are always welcome to come and see how their children are progressing. Prof. Grant likes for the older people of the community to visit the school at any time.

The school opened Tuesday morning with 41 on roll. Wednesday morning it increased to a total of 46 on roll. This a much better school than Mr. Grant had last year, however, there are several others in the community who should be availing themselves of the opportunity.

MEDICAL SOCIETY ENTERTAINED AT GRAGG'S

Dr. V. J. Gragg entertained the members of the Chilton County Medical Society with a barbecue and picnic at his camp on Lake Mitchell Tuesday. A good attendance of the doctors of the county was registered. Other invited guests were wives of the doctors, as well as the dentists and veterinarians and their wives.

Barbecued chicken, pheasants, fried fish, and ham were served. A total of about fifty people composed the party, and everybody had a most enjoyable time.

J. BICE NOW IN TENNESSEE

STATEMENTS ABOUT VETCH AND AUSTRIAN PEAS

Mr. J. Hance Alred planted about 5 acres to Austrian peas last fall. He says anyone who doubts the fertilizer value of Austrian peas should see his patch of corn following peas turned under this spring. He says he expects to plant 25 acres or more Austrian peas this fall.

Dr. W. L. Parrish planted about 15 acres in Austrian peas and vetch last fall about three acres of the 15 were in Austrian peas and oats. Dr Parrish says he is going to plant more peas and oats this fall for hay crop next spring. He also says that mules fed plenty of good hay made from oats and Austrian peas and vetch seldom have colic or other digestive troubles.

"I am a thorough believer in legume cover crops," says J. N. Dennis. His advice is: "Plant more of them to stop washes, increase feed and fertilizer, save fertilizer cost, and add to your general yields and profits."

L. C. Keen, Clanton Route 3, has this to say about vetch: "I've tried vetch enough to know that I'm going to plant it as long as I can get the seed."

More about Rural Church Conference

Editor Union-Banner:

If you will allow me space I will write a few more lines in regard to the Rural Church Conference, which was held at Auburn June 22-26. The great purpose of the meeting was to arouse a deeper spirit of cooperation among the ministers, county agents, and farmers of our rural districts. I was pleased to see a spirit of interest manifest in regard to the country church. It seems that people, generally speaking, are getting closer to the fact that the rural churches furnish us our greatest strength and might. Dr. L. E. Barton remarked, "The rural church furnishes the most potential field for service known to the religious life of our time."

There were 106 gospel ministers present at this conference. They are expecting five hundred next year, as it was unanimously agreed to make it an annual affair.

I will endeavor to tell you a few things which were demonstrated to us during our regular field trip hours. The first thing I will mention is "the land erosion experiment." If you don't thoroughly understand this term, consult the dictionary, then if not satisfied walk out into your field, or someone's field that is carelessly cared for, and you will clearly understand what erosion means. I am not stressing this as though I were talking to ignorant farmers, if you will pardon the expression, but that you may take greater interest in saving your soil, which can be done to a great extent.

The following figures will give you some idea as to what vetch is worth to your land. This is an experiment. One inch of rain (artificial rain) was let fall on an acre of land where vetch was growing. The water was caught in barrels. The water dreaned off, and the soil weighed 60 pounds, was the result. The vetch was cut and the same method was used with 400 pounds of soil being the result. The land turned under with same method and 2,000 pounds of soil was the result. This shows what vetch will do.

I will write more next week.—M. Lockhart.

"I WILL," SAID THE LITTLE HEN

On last Christmas eve a little Game hen belonging to Tom Wells on Clanton Route 6 set out to make a record by laying an egg every day. Well, that record has been kept up so far, and then some. One day recently the little hen, which weighs only four and one-fourth pounds, layed an egg that weighs exactly three and three-fourths ounces, is three and one-eighth inches long and measures around six inches by eight and one-fourth inches.

REPORT OF COUNTY TREASURER BEING PRINTED IN BANNER

Elsewhere in this issue of The Unoin-Banner will be found the report of the County Treasurer of Chilton County for the first three months of this year. The report for April, May and June of this year will be printed next week.

The reason for the report being divided this year is that by special act of the Legislature the Treasurer was required to submit her report to the Commissioners Court on March 31st and on June 30th. Since the two reports for each quarter were separate and distinct. and since the copy for the first three monts was available earlier, it was decided to run one report this week and the other next week.

CLIFFORD GULLAHORN BURIED HERE MONDAY OF THIS WEEK

Clifford Gullahorn, age about 45 years, died at his home in Thomasville, Ala., on July 4th. The remains were brought here and buried in the Clanton cemetery Monday. He is survived by a wife.

He was the son of John W. Gullahorn, and both formerly resided in and near Clanton. They will be remembered as having been prominently identified with the lumber business in this section a quarter of a century ago.

Bonner of Anna, Texas, stating that he is going to write a letter to The Union-Banner within the next few weeks, telling our readers something of the rural life and customs of his section of the Lone Star State. We are sure that this letter will be of interest to our readers, and we ask you to be on the watch-out for it.

Rev. Bonner is a former resident of this county, having lived at Thorsby and pastoring the Baptist church there and at Jemison as well as at Concord near here some four or five years ago. Since leaving here he has completed work at the Southeastern Seminary at Fort Worth, Texas.

LETTER FROM MONROE GENTRY FORMER TAX COLLECTOR HERE

Mr. J. E. Gentry of near Center Hill, northwest of Jemison, was in Clanton Monday, and handed us a letter from his brother, B. Monroe Gentry, a justice of the peace at Chillicothe, Texas. The letter is written to a nephew at Jemison. Monroe Gentry will be remembered by older citizens of the county, he having been tax collector here about thirty-five years ago. J. E. Gentry is the only brother left in Chilton County. There are two or three brothers in Texas. The letter follows:

Chillicothe, Hardeman County, Texas, June 24, 1931.—Mr. John G. Johnson, Jemison, Ala. Dear Nephew: I received your welcome letter last Sunday and was glad to hear from you, as I had not heard from you and other home folks in a long time. Am asking you to forgive me for not writing oftener myself, but as you know, I have too many years behind me to write much. I would like to see all of the folks back home so much. For the past several years I have thought I would visit you all, but just first one thing and another gets in the way, and at my age I doubt that I would be able to make the trip. I had a bad spell of pneumonia this past winter and I have not gotten stout yet.

Well, John, I was glad to see the names of my old friends that you spoke of in your letter, butt was sorry to hear the deaths among them. I guess Aunt Emma is the only aunt I have living. Is Harvey Nix still at Maplesville?

We have made a big wheat crop out here this year, but it is not bringing much—only thirty or forty cents a bushel. I was proud to get the pictures you sent me; will show them to Arthur and Patsy and their three children.

John, I wish you would pay me a visit and bring your mother with you. I don't know much news that would interest you, but anything you write me from home is interesting; I like to hear from all of my old friends in Chilton County. Would like to have a copy of the Clanton paper. I paid in the first money that started the first newspaper in Clanton. Write me who all the county officers are now. Hope to hear from you soon and often.—Your Uncle Monroe.

FIDDLERS CONVENTION IS BEING PLANNED

A committee has been appointed by Chilton County Post of the American Legion to make plans for a Fiddlers Convention to be put on at the curthouse in Clanton some time the latter part of this month.

Members of the committee are Bud Klinner, John Cox, and Mack Wyatt. The committee has tentatively selected the date of July 24 if arrangements can be made to secure the use of the courthouse.

Full details of the plans and arrangements will be made in the county papers next week.

CALF CLUB MEETING

On Thursday, June 18, the Clanton Calf Club met at its usual meeting place at Mr. Stapp's office. The club had with them, Mr. F. W. Burns, a livestock specialist from Auburn.

The boys enjoyed a trip to the farm of Judge Reynolds, near the cotton mill, to judge hogs. All the boys made splendid placings and ratings. We came back to town and were carried to the Kiwanis club, where everyone enjoyed a good dinner. Here Mr. Stapp called on three of the boys to make talks on judging hogs, dairy cattle and to tell the difference between dairy and beef cattle.

Mr. Burns was called on to explain the purpose of all the 4-H clubs.

After lunch we were carried to the barn of Mr. Bay Fiquette, to judge dairy cattle. On account of Mr. Burns having to leave we adjourned until the next meeting.

BARBECUE AT LOG CABIN BEACH ON LAST FRIDAY

United States Judge, Chas. B. Kennamer, of Montgomery, with Mrs. Kennamer, and their son and daughter, were guests at a barbecue last Friday at Log Cabin Beach.

About seventy-five local people were in attendance. Judge L. H. Reynolds planned the affair in order that Judge Kennamer might have an opportunity of meeting as many Chilton County people as possible on his visit here. Grady Reynolds, Omar Reynolds, and M. D. Foshee assisted Judge Reynolds in carrying out the program.

Late in the evening a delightful barbecue dinner was spread on a long table, and everybody seemed to enjoy it fully. The invocation was said by Rev. Haskew, after which Judge Reynolds introduced Judge Kennamer and members of his family. Judge Kennamer responded in a short talk, expressing the delight of himself and his family to meet the people of the county there assembled.

STILL SOME DRY SPOTS AROUND OVER THE COUNTY

For the past two weeks there have been nice showers over most of the county, however, there are some few spots that have had scarcely any rain yet. Reports from Pinedale say that they are still dry as a chip. Providence in Beat 16 has had scarcely no rain in six weeks, and crops are about gone. On further down the river about Corinth it seems still to be very dry.

Crops generally over the county however, are in a very promising condition. Most folks say that they have the best chance they have had in years. A recent visit from Clanton down by Enterprise and around by Shiloh reveals that crops in that section are exceptionally fine. Cotton and corn have a very fine color, and if they get one or two more rains within the next few weeks an abundant crop will be made from all present indications. If something doesn't go wrong soon, Lou Cagle of Bethany is going to make enough sorghum this fall to sweeten everything in Chilton County, if it is used for that purpose.

20 Arrested Here Since Last Friday

Since last Friday Sheriff Gillespie and his deputies have hauled in a total of twenty violators of different kinds. Fifteen of these were for violating the prohibition law; one for distilling, arrested on a warrant in Cocsa County; one for assault and battery; two for public drunkenness; and one for desertion.

Two Ford automobiles, a model T roadster and a Model A touring, were taken for confiscation. Of the 15 prohibition cases, thirteen were for home brew alone; one was for whiskey and home brew; and one for whiskey alone. The amount of home brew taken ranged everywhere from 168 bottles, on about twelve gallons, on down to small quantities.

BEAUTIFUL ELECTRIC LAMP TO BE GIVEN AWAY SATURDAY

The big beautiful Vogue electric lamp, on which tickets have been given away by Clanton Building Supply Company for the past two months, will be given away at their store next Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Rockett asks The Union-Banner to inform everybody to be there with their tickets at that hour and see who is the lucky person. This is a gift worth coming after, and you have the same chance of all the rest who hold tickets. Don't forget—Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Clanton Building Supply Company, formerly Jones Hardware Co.

CHILTON COUNTY OFFICERS PROBE DEATH OF FARMER

Selma, Ala., July 6.—A murder theory was being investigated here today by Chilton County and railroad officers, probing the death of Jim Smith, farmer, whose mangled body was found on the Southern Railroad tracks at Randolph Saturday night.

J. W. Pennington, of Selma, engineer of the freight train under which the body was found, said the body was cold when the train crew reached it after being struck by the train.

The train was an extra freight bound to Selma from Birmingham.

SINGING AT BIG SPRINGS

The Union-Banner has been requested to announce that there will be an all day singing next Sunday, the second Sunday in July, at Big Springs, in Autauga County. The main purpose of the singing is a kind of reunion of the former pupils of J. W. Cagle who taught schools some years ago at Haynes and at Indian Grave, therefore the showalter books of 1921 and 1922 will be used some together with the new 1931 books. All who have either or both of these old books are requested to bring them.

A cordial invitation is extended to all singers to attend; bring your dinner and all spend the day together singing praises to God.

STORK CAME JULY FOURTH

A card from Mr. and Mrs. Gresham Lowery at Marion, Ala., says: "Announcing the arrival of Gene Lowery on July 4th, 1931, weighing 8 pounds."

COLLINS CHAPEL SCHOOL

Prof. W. M. Devaughn is making preparations for the opening of his singing school at Collins Chapel next Monday morning, July 13th. He is expecting a jam up school this year. Anyone in reach will do well to get in touch with Prof. Devaughn and make arrangements to attend this school.

Legion Fights Fourth Were Well Put Out

Boxing and Wrestling Bouts Enjoyed By People Who Attended

Notwithstanding the scanty patronage which was somewhat a disappointment to everyone concerned, the program of boxing and wrestling sponsored by the American Legion for the Fourth of July in Clanton, was carried out according to schedule.

Quite a number of sport fans of Clanton, Lay Dam, Mitchell Dam, and other places in the County were present, and everyone was delighted with the performances. Some seemed to fear that on account of the small number of spectators the boxers would not "put out." Any such apprehensions were soon dispelled, because it was evident from the very start that there would be plenty of action. The program started off good and got better all the time.

As had been previously announced, the fun started with six negroes in the ring for a big battle royal prize fight. In this were two of Will Kennedy's boys, Bill Dickerson's boy the fourth was Kiser, and the other two from Lay Dam. When the smoke had cleared away from this engagement, it was found that Kiser and one of the Lay Dam negroes were still in the ring plugging away at each other. They kept it up until the referee called time on them.

Second on the card was a wrestling match by Ed Henson of Tupelo, Miss., and Bill Edwards, of Birmingham. This was for the best two out of 3 falls, with thirty minutes limit. They registered one fall each when time was called.

When Kirl Kako and Blar Mash Terror, two negro fighters, were called for their bout, it was announced that Terror had refused to fill his contract, and therefore would not be permitted to fight any more in the State of Alabama.

Two negroes, Earl Weaver, of Birmingham, and Kid Samson, of Detroit, fought a three round bout, which was full of action.

An extra feature was added to the program when Burdette Crowson, local boy, answered the challenge of Johnny Bass from Birmingham. They went into the ring, and Crowson was accorded plenty of cheers for the manner in which he performed.

The main wrestling match of the program was between Curly Mac of Rome Ga., and Jack Freman of Birmingham. It was a one hour limit for the best two out of three. No decision was reached as they had time for only two falls with the tally standing one and one when time was called These were big fellows, and they put a lot of hot stuff into their match. The crowd thoroughly enjoyed every bit of it.

The main bout of ten rounds between White Saylors of Birmingham and Jimmie Musso of Bessemer, was saved for the last item on the card. This was a dandy scrap, with both fighters showing some good stuff.

When the scrap between Saylors and Musso had gotten well under way it was thought that Saylors would make short work of Jimmie. But round after round went by, and Jimmie was still in there plugging away, and seemingly getting stronger and stronger. Saylors could never get to him with anything that had much damage in it. When the tenth round was called Musso went in it with more pep than had been shown during the whole engagement, and he wound up a blaze of cheering. The result was declared a draw.

Max Scholder, of Birmingham, was refree. He handled the bill in a splendid manner. It is to Mr. Scholder that credit is due for putting on the program. He agreed to get it up for the American Legion when the undertaking was first begun, and he carried out his part of the job in good style.

Jack O'Brien of Mitchell Dam, was official announcer. Mr. Romeo, of the State Boxing Commission, was present to see that everything was carried out according to regulations.

LEGION ELECTS OFFICERS

At the regular monthly meeting of Chilton County Post held Monday night, officers for the next year were elected, as follows:

Commander, R. D. Woodson, of Lay Dam; first vice Commander, L. C. Warr; second vice commander, W. M. Wyatt; adjutant, A. L. Robinson; service officer, Bud Klinner.

Eleven delegates and eleven alternates were elected to represent the Post at the State Legion Convention to be held at Talladega July 27, 28 and 29.

A committee was selected to make arrangements for a Fiddlers Convention to be held at the courthouse some time during the latter part of this month, perhaps the night of July 24th, if necessary arrangements can be made to secure the use of the courthouse for that date.

County Farm Agent's Notes

COTTON WEEK WILL BE OBSERVED AGAIN

Auburn, Ala., July 9.—Continuing an annual practice farmers' week at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, July 27-31, will be cotton week again this year. The aim is to promote the use of cotton and with this in view those who attend the farmers week exercises are being asked by Miss Dorothy Dean, extension clothing specialist, to wear cotton clothes. This they did during the farmers' weeks of 1929 and 1930. Beautiful, attractive and inexpensive garments were worn, Miss Dean said.

One day will be known as "Farm Bureau Sack Day," when each woman present is expected to wear a sack dress. The climax of the day will be a sack parade with each woman wearing a sack dress and carrying a placard stating kind of sack, number of sacks used to make the dress, and the total cost of it.

Men too, are expected to wear cotton clothes, Miss Dean said. They are comfortable and inexpensive. They are also stylish.

Cotton garments will be featured at clothing programs for women during the week. "Cotton dresses are beautiful and low in price, and, by wearing them, Alabama women increase the use of an Alabama product," said Miss Dean. "The same is true of men."

MORE COTTONSEED MEAL WILL BE FED

Auburn, Ala., July 9.—As a result of recent experiments more cottonseed meal is being fed to work animals and to hogs. Prof. J. C. Grimes, head of the animal husbandry group of the Alabama Experiment Station at Auburn, says that many stations have experimented with cottonseed meal as a portion of the ration for work animals and hogs, and that recommendations are made on a basis of these experiments.

The cottonseed meal limit is two pounds per day for animals doing light to heavy work, and this amount should be attained gradually, starting with a fraction of a pound and increasing it up to a maximum of 2 pounds. One pound of cottonseed meal will replace two pounds of corn.

Grain, cottonseed meal, cottonseed hulls, and hay may be fed to work animals (horses and mules) in different mixtures and proportions.

Prof. Grimes said that for work animals, corn, oats, barley, and molasses have about the same feeding value, pound for pound. Consequently, either of them may be used for grain. One pound of salt should be added to each 11-pound sack of cottonseed meal.

There are several good hog rations which include cottonseed meal. Farmers may get specific information from their county agents or by writing to Prof. Grimes.

Ordinarily cottonseed meal is a cheap protein ration. Therefore, it tends to reduce the cost of feeding. Its advantages in the rations of dairy cows, beef cattle, and sheep are well known; and it is expected to gain favor in the rations of work animals and hogs.

HOW TO EAT MORE EGGS IS EXPLAINED

Last year thirty-six billion eggs were produced and eatetn in the U. S. They were eaten for breakfast, luncheon, dinner or supper in numerous ways. A New York hotel, for example, offered to patrons 141 egg dishes.

These facts about eggs were printed in a recent issue of McCall's Magazine, the article being written by B. V. Gilaspie who continued:

"Then you use eggs as a thickening for sauces, pie fillings, boiled dressing and custards.

"Eggs become a source of leavening when you use them in puffy omlets, souffles, sponge and angel cakes.

"They are a coating agent when you dip cutlets croquettes, and other foods in them before frying.

"For muffins, cookies croquettes and some kind of cake you use them as a binder to hold other ingredients together.

"They improve the texture of the frozen mixtures, because they act as a sort of wrapper around the crystals, preventing them from collecting in lumps.

"If you ever make clear broth or soup stock, you pin your faith on eggs as a clarifier.

"Mayonnaise, Hollandaise, and similiar emulsions demand eggs as a stabilizer—a term I shall explain later.

"As a garnish for salads, cold meats, and some kinds of fish, eggs have no rival.

"Lastly, eggs improve the flavor, color and texture of the products in which they are used."

NEW SALEM

AUBURN GETS READY FOR FARMERS' WEEK

Auburn, Ala., July 9—Preparations at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, for the annual Farmers' week are nearing completion, as announced by L. N. Duncan, director of the Extension Service. The dates are July 27-31, inclusive.

On Wednesday and Thursday, July 29 and 30, the state convention of the Alabama council of home demonstration clubs will meet at Auburn. Mrs. J. D. Giles of Selma is president of the council. On Thursday and Friday, July 30 and 31, the annual convention of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation will be held at Auburn.

The program provides for meetings in the forenoon and outside work in the afternoon. In the evening, or night, general session will be held. The outside work during the forenoon will consist of visits to the experiment station where studies will be made of work in progress, giving special attention to crops, livestock, farm machinery, fruits, vegetables, and poultry.

The program has been arranged by a special committee composed of President Bradford Knapp, director L. N. Duncan of the extension service, dean M. J. Funchess of the school of agriculture and director of the experiment station, and Dr. C. A. Cary, dean of the school of veterinary medicine and State veterinarian.

A special program for the farm women has been arranged under the direction of Helen Johnson, state home demonstration agent, and the district home agents—Miss May I. Cureton, Miss Ruth Dobyne, Miss Elizabeth Forney—and others of the home demonstration staff.

A program is being arranged for the home demonstration council and another for the Farm Bureau convention.

POULTRY

IS YOUR POULTRY PROFITABLE

(By C. E. Stapp, County Agent)

When egg prices are low many of us complain. If a flock is not making a profit something must be done. Good feeding and summer culling will result in a profitable flock even if egg prices are low.

It requires 3 lbs of mash and 3 lbs of scratch feed to feed a hen one month. Three lbs of scratch costs 6 cents; three lbs of mash costs 7 and one-half cents, making a total cost of 13 and one-half cents. The cost of eggs is 15 cents per dozen; with the hen giving 50 per cent production, which is 15 eggs your profit will be 1 and one-half cents per bird.

At 50 per cent production on 300 hens we will make $4.50 per month. At 60 per cent production on 300 hens we will make $13.50 per month.

High egg production is necessary when egg prices are low.

Cull the non-producers; feed a moist laying mash each day; keep dry laying mash before them at all times and feed 8 pounds of scratch per 100 hens per day. This will result in high production and a profit.

Points to look for when culling:

Head and Body

Head of poor layer is snaky and narrow. Comb shriveled, eyes listless and sunken. Good layers head shows smartness, comb full and red, eyes bright.

Back of poor layer rounded, tapers to rear. Breast is shallow and flat. Back of good layer long and flat. Breast is full, deep and prominent. Neck fairly short.

Legs and Toes

Shanks of poor layer round and beefy; yellow in yellow skinned breeds. Toenails long Shanks of good layer flat, tapering to rear. Bleached in yellow skinned breeds. Toenails short.

Molt

Poor layers molt early, one or 2 wing feathers at the time. Cull out June, July and early August molters. Good layer molts early and more rapidly, dropping three to five wing feathers at a time.

Laying

When distance from lay bones to keel bones is less than three fingers, the abdomen hard, skin thick, vent dry, hen is not laying. Hen that is laying has three to 5 fingers spread abdomen is soft, skin loose. Vent large, moist.

CIGARETTES ARE BECOMING MORE POPULAR

Cigarette smoking in Sweden increased 28 per cent in 1930 as compared with 1928, according to a report made to the Department of Commerce by T. O. Klath, American commercial attache in Stockholm. Cigarettes are becoming more popular all over the world. The increasing production in the United States is attributed by authorities in the industry to the removal of harmful irritants by modern methods of manufacture such as the toasting process including the use of ultra violet rays. Smokers are paying more attention to their throats and are considering their Adams apple. Indications in Sweden are that the annual production will soon reach 2,000,000,000. This, of course, is only a small amount when compared with the United States where the production last year was more than 119,000,000,000.

What the American farmer needs this year is a few droughts in other parts of the world.

THE PREACHING OF THE APOSTLES

LESSON TEXT—Acts 3:11-4:31.

GOLDEN TEXT—And now, Lord, behold their threatenings: and grant unto thy servants, that with all boldness they may speak thy word.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Preaches a Sermon.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Peter Preaching in Jerusalem.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Two Brave Preachers.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Apostolic Preaching.

I. Peter Preaching Before the Multitude (Acts 3:11-26).

1. The audience secured (v. 11). In appreciation of his healing the cured cripple took hold of Peter and John, calling attention to these men as his healers.

2. Disclaimed miracle-working power (v. 12). Though the miraculous healing of the cripple focused attention upon Peter and John, Peter immediately turned attention from himself to Christ.

3. Proclaimed Jesus as the Messiah (vv. 13-18). Pointing to the healed man, Peter declared that it was through faith in Jesus that this man was given "perfect soundness." He declared that the very one whom they had "delivered up," "denied in the presence of Pilate," "and killed," God had raised from the dead.

4. A call to repentance (vv. 19-21). Despite their aggravated crime in murdering the "Just and Holy One," Peter called upon them to repent, assuring them that their sins would be blotted out and that they would enjoy refreshing seasons.

5. Appeal to the Scriptures (vv. 22-26). The warnings and promises are based upon the words of Moses and the prophets.

II. Peter Preaching to the Sanhedrin (Acts 4:1-21).

1. Peter and John arrested (vv. 1-4). The healing of the lame man caused such a stir that the people flocked to see the man. Advantage was taken of this occasion to preach Jesus Christ to them. As a result of this preaching, five thousand believed. Such a following caused great alarm. The priests were intolerant because these new teachers were encroaching upon their ministerial functions. The Sadducees were angered to be told that the One whom they crucified had arisen from the dead and would appear again.

2. Peter and John on trial (vv. 5-12). This trial was before the Sanhedrin, the supreme court of the nation.

a. The inquiry (vv. 5-7). They asked, "By what power and what name have ye done this?" This inquiry admitted the reality of the miracle.

b. Peter's answer (vv. 8-12). Filled with the Holy Spirit, he replied to their question, showing them that he and John were not being tried as evildoers but for doing good to the needy man. He boldly declared that it was by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom they had crucified, and God had raised from the dead, that this man stood before them whole. He further declared that there was no salvation save in the name of Jesus Christ.

3. The impression upon the Sanhedrin (vv. 13-22).

a. They marveled (v. 13). They saw that the behavior and words of Peter were as unusual as the miracle. They were made to feel that instead of sitting as judges they themselves were on trial.

b. They took knowledge that the apostles had been with Jesus (v. 13).

c. Commanded not to speak in Christ's name (v. 18). Not being able to deny the miracle or gainsay the accusation which Peter brought against them, they attempted to intimidate him.

d. The reply of Peter and John (vv. 19, 20). They openly defied the Sanhedrin and expressed determination to disobey their command. Thus they repudiated the authority of the rulers of Israel and set the Church in a place of independence from the Jewish state.

e. Their release (v. 21). Having further threatened them, they let them go.

III. The Church at Prayer (Acts 4:23-31).

As soon as Peter and John were set free they hastened to their fellow disciples and rehearsed their experience. They turned to the Holy Scriptures for comfort and strength. They praised God for deliverance and prayed for boldness to speak his Word and that their testimony might be confirmed by signs. Their prayers were answered by the shaking of the place where they were assembled, and they were filled with the Holy Spirit.

Mercy

We had mercy shown us at the beginning of our Christian course. We have had mercy shown us today, and shall need mercy, if Jesus tarry, in our dying hour. Well, the way to enjoy it is to be merciful, to deal in grace with others.—W. Lincoln.

TIMBER GROWERS MEET IN BALDWIN COUNTY

Montgomery, Ala., July 6—Significant of the awakening of the landowners of the state to the feasibility of profitable timber production was the meeting of about a hundred timberland owners of Baldwin County at the Bell Fountain School in the Gateswood community July 1, according to the State Commission of Forestry. The object of the meeting was to coordinate the efforts in timber growing.

The meeting was called to order by Proffessor L. F. Moseley, who stated that the community was solidly behind the efforts to grow profitable yields of timber in perpetuity on the nonagricultural lands in the county. Other speakers were Mr. R. A. Bingham, who has charge of extensive timberland holdings of the International Paper Company in Baldwin and Clarke counties, State Forest Inspetor Charles H. Chaeffer, who brought out the economic significance of building up the timber growing business, Mr. J. J. Munn and Mr. F. M. Joy, both of the Tennessee Land Company which has a large acreage in Baldwin County, and various others. The trend of the sentiment expressed at the meeting was toward positive and aggressive steps in the promotion of timber production.

It was decided by the timber growers to hold another meeting July 15, at which time moving pictures on forestral subjects will be furnished by the State Commission of Forestry, together with a lecture on economic timber growing. At this meeting a number of additional timber growers who were not able to attend the first gathering will be invited to speak.

AS OTHERS SEE YOU

A backwoods mountaineer one day found a mirror which a tourist had lost.

"Well, if it ain't my old dad," he said, as he looked in the mirror. "I never knowed he had his pitcher took."

He took the mirror home and stole into the attic to hide it. But his actions didn't escape his suspicious wife. That night while he slept she slipped up to the attic and found the mirror.

"Hum-um," she said, looking into it, "so that's the old hag he's been chasin'."

DR. MILES' Liquid NERVINE

All Wrought Up Over Nothing

Didn't sleep last night; too much work; the children are fretful; the Boss is cranky; Mrs. DeVere didn't invite you to her party.

Ordinarily you don't mind any of these things, but today they are simply unbearable. You are nervous, that's why.

Did you ever try Dr. Miles' Nervine? Just two teaspoonfuls in a half glass of water will quiet your over-taxed nerves and bring you a feeling of calm and peace.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is now made in two forms—Liquid and Effervescent Tablet. Both are the same therapeutically.

At all Drug Stores. Price $1.00

YOU'LL GET RELIEF OR YOUR MONEY BACK

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

John Hays Hammond

The boys started on horseback from San Francisco to Oakland. Their aunt, with whom they were staying while their father was in the East, consented to the trip. They took a small compass, a shotgun, fishing tackle and $60 in money with them. Blankets were also in the extra equipment, for the lads planned on doing a bit of camping before and after they visited their friends in Oakland.

John Hays Hammond, the older of the two lads, was fourteen years old. His brother was two years younger. They had been brought up in the California of Civil war days and they were accomplished riders and skilled in the ways of the great outdoors by the time most boys of today are still playing with toys.

Their father, a graduate of West Point and an army officer detailed to duty in California, had taught them self-reliance, a love for outdoor life and instilled in them a spirit of adventure from the time they were able to walk. So it wasn't unnatural that they should make up their minds to see something of the world instead of merely taking the ride to Oakland and back to San Francisco.

They had heard much of the Yosemite valley, then a comparative wilderness, and they turned their horses' heads in that direction, seeking the adventure that appealed so much to their venturesome dispositions.

Occasionally they stopped at small hotels, but for the greater part they slept in the open. They shot their own game, varied their diet with the fish that abounded in the mountain streams and thrived on their own cooking. By the time they reached the Yosemite they still had a substantial part of their money left.

From there they ventured into Nevada and by the time their father returned from the East and traced them through express company agents they had ridden approximately 1,000 miles on horseback. And all this in a period of less than three months.

While seeing the country young John had an opportunity to inspect his first quartz mine. He spent several days watching the operations there. That experience was largely responsible for his choice of mining engineering as a profession, a career in which he has gained world wide renown and great fortune.

The trail that started with the trip to the Yosemite carried him to practically all parts of the world, through dangers and hair-raising adventures in South America, Africa and elsewhere and to friendships ranging from lowly miners to crowned heads.

John Hays Hammond was born in 1855 in San Francisco, to which city his father, who had been a major in the regular army during the Mexican war, had been detailed. His mother was a sister of Col. Jack Hays, famous as a Texas ranger, and later the first sheriff of San Francisco. Young Hammond spent much time at his uncle's home. His mother died when he was a little fellow.

His father and uncle, between them, taught him to ride, to swim and to hunt. He proved that he was an apt pupil when he and his brother made their 1,000-mile trip into the wilds depending largely on their skill with rod and gun to live as they rode through the lonely and rugged country.

The youngster was educated in the public schools of San Francisco. Later he went to a private preparatory school in New Haven to qualify for admission to Yale. He was enrolled in college at the age of seventeen and was graduted in 1876. At Yale he was a classmate of former President Taft.

From Yale he went to Germany where he spent three years in the Royal School of Mines at Freiberg. He returned to the United States and went to work for Senator George Hearst of California at $75 a month. His father wanted him to be a civil engineer, but the lure of mining was too great, and he turned down a better paying job with a railroad to begin his chosen career.

He made progress enough to warrant him in going into business for himself. For a time he was too poor to pay an office boy and swept out his own office. He rode through the dangerous Apache country on a business mission in 1882, later almost losing his life in troublesome Mexico.

He came into world-wide prominence when he went to South Africa to act as an expert for Barney Barnato and Cecil Rhodes at their vast diamond holdings. He was accused of being implicated in the Jameson raid on the Transvaal republic and was sentenced to death. But he was pardoned and went on to greater fame and fortune.

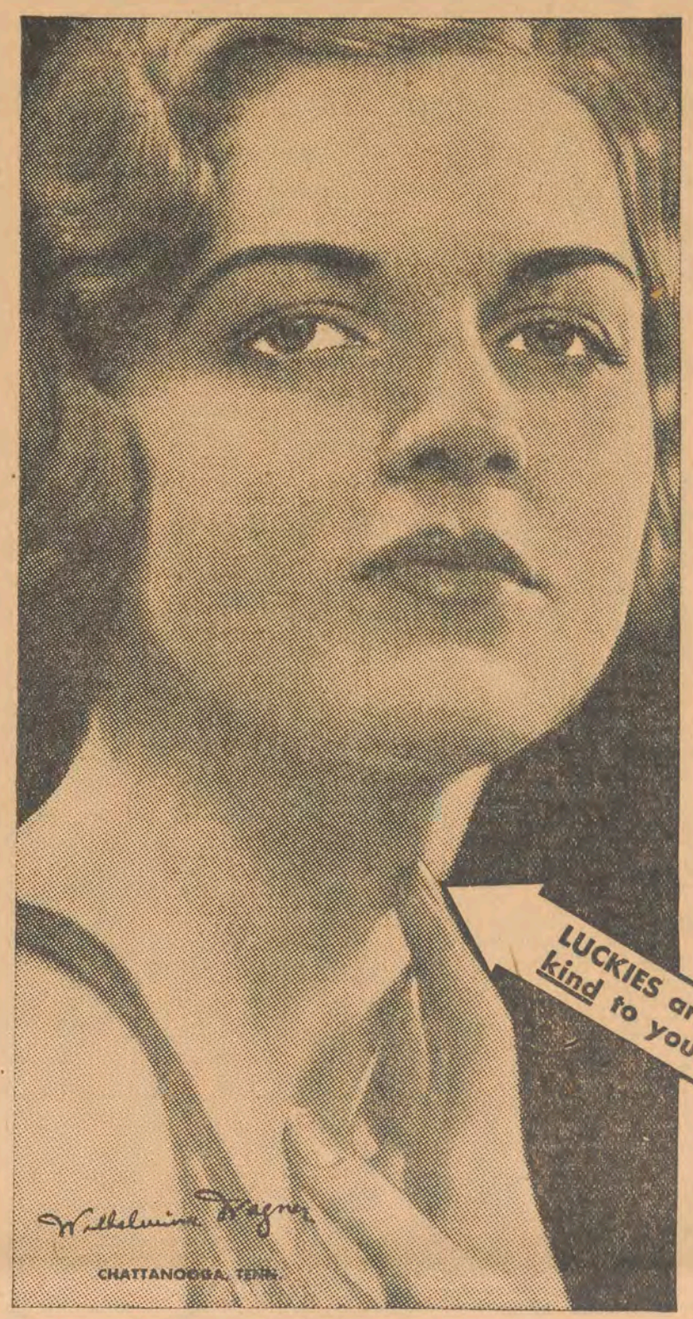
Family Resemblance



Sharon had a new baby brother. One evening at the dinner table she remarked that he looked very much like her father. The latter, doubtful but pleased, inquired where Sharon saw a resemblance.

"Well," replied Sharon, after thinking a moment, "you're both bald, aren't you?"

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Mims of Jasper are visiting here.

Remember, LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that through its exclusive "TOASTING" Process expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. MAD DOGS INFEST CLANTON, BITE FIVE

Three Beasts Show Positive Tests; State Official Scores Carelessness

Within the past three days, three mad dogs have bitten five people at Clanton, according to records at the State Laboratory, where tests established that the dogs were affected with hydrophobia. All of the persons bitten are taking the anti-rabies serum treatment.

Back of the appearance of the three mad dogs is a situation causing it, that could have been avoided, Dr. L. C. Havens, director of the laboratory, said yesterday. Some two months ago, he stated, one rabid dog bit a number of other dogs, also several people. All of the people attacked took the anti-rabies serum. The canine preventive serum was given to a few of the more valuable dogs bitten, but these and the others not treated, were not confined.

The result, Dr. Havens said, is that since the heads of dogs have been coming in to the laboratory for examination from the Clanton section at the rate of about one a week until lately, when the rate increased. Examination of these heads has revealed the presence of rabies germs.

Had all the dogs first bitten been confined this situation with its attendant menace to humans could have been avoided, he said, the way to stop the spread of the infection being immediately to close all possible avenues that might permit its spreading, particular attention being given to the confining or destroying of dogs and livestock exposed to infection by being bitten by a dog suffering from hydrophobia.—Montgomery Advertiser.

Miss Eunice Wright of Route 6 spent last week end with Miss Ruth Giles of Clanton.

Mr. E. W. Miller returned to his home Sunday afternoon, after an absence of two and a half weeks which he spent at a Birmingham hospital. He was operated on for appendicitis on June 17th.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

Those who listened to President Hoover's recent address before the Republican editors of Indiana, must have been impressed not only by the cordial Hoosier receptoin accorded the Chief Executive, but with the especially vigorous applause which greeted every remark of the President devoted to extolling our sound American nationalism. This significant fact ought to impress our internationalist theorists, who frequently, like the frogs in the puddle, make so much noise they fool themselves, but it will not impress them. They are never bound by such materialistic things as facts.

The simple statement by the president that we have so regulated immigration during the depression, in order to save American jobs for American workers, that for the first time in our history more people are leaving our shores than are entering, was greeted with a storm of applause. There was scarcely less enthusiasm over many other enunciations of sound American doctrine. The president's defense of the tariff was warmly received, as was his statement to the effect that the best way for Americans to help restore prosperity to the world was to try to make America prosperous. In this connection President Hoover well said:

"But it is not my purpose upon this occasion to discuss the relations of our many economic problems to the problems of other nations. I am not unmindful of our responsibilities or our vital interest in their welfare. The very first service to them must be to place our own house in order; to restore our own domestic prosperity. It is from increases in our reservoir of economic strength that has and must come our contribution to the development and recovery of the world. From our prosperity comes our demand for their goods and raw materials. A prosperous United States is the beginning of a prosperous world."

These declarations of principle are so logical and so obviously true that it would seem that even an internationalist could see them, and come to the realization of the fact that the best way to help the business of the world is to put on his feet Uncle Sam, the world's best customer. But it is too much to hope that these internationalist economic doctors of ours can advocate a remedy so simple. It is unfortunately far more probable that they will continue to advocate saddling the burdens of the world on to American taxpayers by cancelling the allied debts; that they will continue to denounce our protective tariff and seek to make possible the flooding of the American market with cheaply made foreign goods at the expense of American capital and labor and the ultimate expense of Europe itself; that they will continue to agitate—to borrow words from the president's address—"to agitate for the adoption of economic patent medicines from foreign lands."

It is undoubtedly true that if as a part of the nation, all of us, great and small, will do our best toward restoring normal conditions in America, if our business and political leaders will go about restoring confidence in the United States by building for America in America, if they will cease thinking so much about European markets, and European promotion, it will not be long until America is once more on the way toward a new period of prosperity and progress. And a restoration of prosperity in America, will have its effects all over the world, for Uncle Sam, it is to be remembered, is the world's best customer, and he spends his money freely abroad. It is the very fact that he has little money to spend just now, that is hurting, abroad. It is not our tariffs, nor our debt collections which are responsible for the falling off in the total of our foreign trade, because nearly two-thirds of what we buy abroad comes in duty free.

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

Since last week we have had considerable rain in sections of the county and the dust has been settled to such an extent that we have little trouble with our cinders these days. While we are speaking of the rains, we would also like to mention about the apparent prevalence of hails. Most every rain has been accompanied by more or less hail. In some sections, we learn, it has been very damaging, even knocking holes in grown melons, and stripping cotton down to the bare stems. We sometimes get to wondering just what is the matter with the world anyway? Seems that the farmer is beset on every hand with either a drouth, wet spell, boll weevil, army worm, bean beetle or some other pest and what they leave is then beaten up with hail or blown down with wind.

Of course we should not complain because all these things, even ourselves, are in the hands of the great Creator. We should only examine ourselves to see if we are to blame in any respect for the seemingly unfair destruction that is visited upon us, and if we find that we can account for some of these things, we should set about in earnest to remedy matters. Remember the first chapter of Psalms? "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the council of the ungodly, nor siteth in the seat of the scornful, nor standeth in the way of sinners;—But his delight is in the law of the Lord . . . . and his leaf also shall not wither . . . . and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper." The Sweeper is inclined to believe that when the nation gets around to the practice of the lesson embodied in that scripture we will have no more drouths and pestilences and depressions, and will have no more wars and no need for moriatoriums.

We can not help but wonder just why the French government feels they will be the only goat at the sacrifice if the Hoover inter-governmental debt moriatorium should be put into operation for a year. The French must be an awfully thick-headed bunch of fellows if they fail to see wherein the United States would be the heaviest sufferer in such an arrangement. No nation other than Germany owes France any appreciable amount of money, whereas practically every major European nation is heavily in debt to the United States. As The Sweeper understands the plan, materially France would only be giving up what Germany owes her for one year—this only means a postponement of payment for a year, making the ultimate completion of the Young Plan one year longer in its fulfillment, while on the other hand the United States would be experiencing a complete cessation of ill national obligations coming to her from all the major European countries.

Aside from the fact that France would not suffer near so much economically as the United States, the French Nation is and has been suffering from an economic depression similar to wnat we have been undergoing right here in America. One of the underlying aims and principles of the Hoover plan has the ending of this same depression in view through a wise governmental distribution of the money which otherwise would have to be used to pay national debts, but under the Hoover plan could be used for governmental expansion and set the world commerce into motion. When this is done, the depression will fade away in a very short time. The stand of the French government on the Hoover proposition in our opinion is a blazing monument to the short-sightedness of the French people in dealing with huge international problems. It would also appear to us that the French people do not appreciate to the fullest extent the magnitude of the favor the United States confered upon the allied nations by entering the World War and refusing any indemnity at the end thereof. The Hoover plan is the greatest contribution of the United States looking to a realization of the very things this World War was fought for, since the close of the war. In a way the French government is making a big grandstand act of endeavoring to reach an agreement with the United States on the matter—but they want all the consessions to favor France—they do not appear to be willing to play a fair game of give and take in the matter.

In our opinion the economic welfare of the world depends to a great extent on some workable plan for the relief of these inter-governmental debts for a year or two while the nations involved get their breath financially. As long as a nation has to hoard every dollar they can get to pay off some sort of national debt, just so long will that nation be on the verge of collapse. For a nation to survive it must also grow, and to grow it of necessity must spend money. We trust and hope that although the Hoover Plan fails in some of its intentions, that some workable plan which will be acceptable to all the nations concerned will be found and agreed upon at once so that the economics of the world may again settle down to some real business.

LOSS OF LIFE ON JULY FOURTH

The worst holiday death toll of recent years has been reported from all parts of the United States for the week-end past, which included the Fourth of July.

The nation, according to the Associated Press, counted 354 deaths up to Sunday night, as it prepared to end the two-day celebration which began with Independence Day observance last Saturday.

It was reported that all sections of the United States were represented in the casualty list, the highest loss of life in recent years.

The mid-western states led in fatalities, reporting 86. They included 35 drownings, 30 auto deaths, and 16 heat prostrations.

Mid-Atlantic States were but two behind, and also led in deaths from fireworks, with three.

Pacific Coast States, with a total of 69, including 27 drowned and six killed in an airplane crash, were third.

Fireworks, once the cause of numerous fatalities, were responsible for eight deaths this year, four less than last year.

Lakes and rivers exacted a grim toll, accounting for the largest number of dead with 139. Next were automobile accidents, which cost 118 lives.

When this war debt problem is at last settled to the satisfaction of all concerned, a breathing spell on national debt payments instituted, then we shall see world business begin to hum again as of old.

The MAN in the MOON

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

"I'm In Favor of Prohibtion, But"—Have you ever heard anybody begin a big spiel on his views on prohibition in this manner? I have—plenty of times. In fact, I've heard it so many times of late that it has ceased to be funny. There should be only two groups as regards the much-mooted prohibition question—prohis and anti-prohis, but there is another group. These might be termed "straddlers." You can tell one of them right off the reel—he invariably begins with: "I'm in favor of prohibition, but," and then proceeds to lament the fact that there is more liquor than ever before, or more suffering from it, or it causes oppression, causes contempt for law because the liquor traffic hasn't been completely stamped out, and a million and one other reasons why the law should be repealed. I have every respect for the person who really would like to see "the good old days" and is man enough to SAY SO, stating his true reasons—so that he could get a drink when he wanted it, without having to look around to see if anybody is liable to catch him. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred you'll find that fellow is a pretty straight sort of a guy—he's honest, to say the least. Another thing, more than apt you'll find he's a law-abiding citizen—more so, at any rate, than the "straddler." And then, there's the strict dry, who believes dry because he honestly believes that is best. He'll tell you in a minute that he is glad we have the prohibition law, and believes it has done good. Then, alas—there's the pussy-footing, fence-straddling, "goody-goody," who really, at heart would like to have the law done away with, but don't like to have his brethren know he would. If he'd be fair, he has less respect for himself than anyone else because he knows just how weak he is, better than anyone else. He is dissatisfied with conditions over which he has no power, but being too weak to say so, and too lazy to fight for what he wants, the only thing he knows to do is gripe and GRIPE! Poor fellow! I pity him! Oppression? Ugh! It isn't liberty he needs more of—it's courage! The next time you hear some fellow say we should abolish the prohibition law because we've had it, now, so-many years and it has failed to do away with all the liquor, ask him a few like these: Shall we abolish the law against murder because it has failed to stop murder? Shall we do away with our laws against theft, and hundreds of other crimes just because they have failed to check their respective vices? No! A thousand times—NO! And the only pity is that we can't look down into a guy's inner being and see how he REALLY feels and thinks when he starts griping. You'd be surprised—at times.

Have A Laugh With Me—I got a good laugh out of an article I read in one of the papers one morning last week, just after President Hoover had offered his "moratorium" to the World Court. Somebody over in Kentucky dunned a negro for a bill he owed, but that negro had heard somebody talking about how the President had asked that the German people be allowed to "go over" this year without paying the customary amount they are supposed to pay the several nations. The negro didn't understand all he had heard about the matter, but he did get enough out of it to suit his own case. Taking the bill, he went to his creditor, and, laying it down before him, proceeded: "Boss, I don't guess I'll pay dis bill dis yeah. In de fust place, I ain' got dat much an' won't have dis fall, and den, too, de papehs all say de president say we don't haf to pay no bills dis time. Naw suh! I'll sho try to be ready when yo' bill comes due 'long 'bout dis time nex' yeah. Dat I will! Yessuh!"

No Foolishness—There is at least one thief in this neighborhood who does not go in for foolishness in his thievery. He must certainly be a real worker, and believe in good, sound, regular "vittles." After breaking the lock, or filing it off, he proceeded to steal a few jars of canned turnips, and a pair of plow lines. How's that?

Happy Days—There's a song that is very popular right now, "Happy Days are Here Again." I guess that'll be coming true before long—nearly all the farmers will be done plowing, watermelons will be in season, the baseball season is in full swing, we are told that better times and more money are on the way, and a few more cheering bits of news are floating around. Now, who could feel bad after hearing all that good news in one ear-full?—The Man in the Moon.

Hope Deferred—Did you ever think it of Julius Barnes? He gave the bankers an 11-point program for the improvement of everything, and every point refers to congressional action.—Washington Post.

In commenting on the feat of two scientists who recently went up tetn miles in a balloon one of our exchanges says: "Just imagine, if you can, how you would feel if you were entirely out of sight of the earth and in a region of nothing except blue." For example, in Wall Street.

PACIFIST CLERGYMEN ENJOY LIFE ASSURED BY BRAVE AMERICON BLOOD

General MacArthur says that the pronouncement of pacifist clergymen "in effect proclaimed their willingness to see the nation perish rather than participate in its defense." It is that attitude that the Supreme Court passed upon recently in refusing citizenship to Dr. MacIntosh. Shame, shame on any man born under the Stars and Strips and enjoying the privileges vouchsafed to him under the Constitution who refuses to defend them, his own fireside included, or raise his hand to protect what he ought to hold dearer than life itself!

What we have has been purchased at too great a price to be given freely to those who do not value it sufficiently to defend it. Should we be attacked, some must bear arms. When they do, and peace is restored, these same men, having avoided the danger which others suffered, will continue in the enjoyment of what they were willing to sacrifice rather than defend. A manhood citizenship is a Christian citizenship, and if these men care to hold what they have, let them get a new orientation from a new reading of the Constitution.—A letter to the Editor of the Washington Post.

MORAL ECHOES

(By D. W. Haskew)

During the last week I heard two young ladies discussed by two different groups. Of one girl it was said: "She is one of the most graceful dancers I have ever seen on the floor. She knows how to dress and how much cosmetics to use, and when she goes on the floor all the men fall for her. She is a dainty little doll and she knows it." Another group was speaking of another young lady, and here is what they said of her: Miss . . . is one of the finest girls I have ever known. She does not play cards, she never goes to dances, but when it comes to church services she is always there. She is a power when it comes to teaching a Sunday school class, and leading and helping with young people. Everyone loves her and has confidence in her. Men know their places when they are in her presence." Knowing that you must die and face the judgment of God, which one of these girls had you rather be?

A citizen of Clanton was in tears. He was a man who loved every one in the city, and all knew that he was doing his best to improve conditions, and lead the people into closer fellowship with God. In his zeal for the ideals of God's kingdom he had uttered a truth that stung the pride and wickedness of a guilty party. That party went out to say unkind things, and of course these words of criticism came back to the one who loved and lifted. To be the target of burning remarks, to be misunderstood when the truth was uttered, had grieved the heart of this man, even as it had grieved the heart of the Christ. When the truth is uttered and heeded, the truth shall make us free, but when the truth is uttered and then despised, it is then that the truth will make us mad.

Not many Sundays ago a Christian woman walked into the house of God in Clanton, wearing a last summer's hat. She did not seem embarassed. She carried on her face the expression of contentment. She could have bought a new hat, but she did not feel that it was the thing to do. With conditions as they are, she was satisfied to wear the hat that she wore last summer. This remark was heard: "I feel so contented here under my last summer's hat, for I see that others are wearing their's too." It is some times the case that people who have money make it hard for those who have but little. They dress up in new frocks, and that embarasses the one who is not able to afford new things. God bless the Christian woman who can dress simply and neatly, and without pompous pride enter our church as an example of economy and true religion.

It did not happen in Clanton, but it happened somewhere. A little girl of the city visited a cousin in the country. There were no picture shows to be visited among the hills, but there were many wild animals to be chased by barking hounds. The city cousin was carried out hunting. On returning to the city the child reported to her mother the results of the hunt in her own language. Here is what she had to say about catching of a skunk: "Mother, the dogs got to hollering into a stump hole and out came a great big, stripped stunk, and then five little stinks came out after their mamma." That sounded about like the city child knew the story to be. Many a preacher has barked around, "a den of corruption" in the towns and cities, and out would come a big stunk and many little stinks.

There stood by the roadside an old white-oak with the echo of the centuries among its boughs. During its lifetime many a storm had pulled at its roots and twisted its limbs, but the old oak had stood there the master of them all. The flash of the lightning had shivered other trees to the right and the left, but some how this old tree had never been struck. We looked at it and wondered if it would live on forever. But, one day we saw some blighted leaves, then there were dead branches. The foliage became pale and thin. The old oak died. A storm came up and that old trunk gave way and the tree bowed to earth to rise no more. My friends, you have been living these many years. Doubtless you think that you will live for many years to come. Listetn to me, as the oak tree bows before the storm, so the time is near at hand when you will have to bow before the storms of life. The place that knows you now, will soon know you no more forever. So is my life and your life.

I was hurrying along the side walk last week and on passing two men in conversation, I overheard this remark: "There are many men in Clanton who would weigh two hundred pounds on man made scales, but if you were to put them on God's scales, they would not break the balance." In the olden days a very prominent king was led up to God's scales. He was a great big fat, nice looking monarch, but when he had weighed himself on God's scales it was said of him: "Thou art weighed in the balances and found wanting." No man has much to boast about until he carries weight on God's scales.

A friend of mine remarked to me: "Parson, why is it that we never see you 'lounging around on the streets'?" When I stood before the bar of the Conference of which I am a member I took this solumn obligation: "Never be unemployed, never be trifflingly employed, never trifle away time, and never spend any more time at one place than is strictly necessary." Hanging around street corners is not my business.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw—
and Some He Saw Not.

It Is Like A Letter From Home

Recently letters have come from Chilton County boys away at school expressing their pleasure in receiving The Union-Banner every week. They always say it is really like a letter from home. Lamar Calloway, studying medicine at Duke University, Durham, North Carolina, says everything is going nicely with him. He is on surgery now. The four million dollar medical school, he says, is a beauty, and it has a right to be with four million invested in it. Hudson Williams, a Billingsley boy, is at Troy State Teachers College. He also enjoys the letter from home every week.

Not Many Peaches Now

Due to the readiness with which peaches have been marketed, there are not so many on hand locally at this time. Inquiry at Thorsby a few days ago revealed that the crop has been disposed of as fast as the fruit was ripe, and none of the growers have very many on hand. Several car loads have been shipped out of the county, which took away the early ripenings. There will likely be plenty of nice fruit later, however. It is said generally that the entire crop of peaches in the county was about three weeks late this year.

Water Everywhere and None to Drink

Failure to find peaches at Thorsby is somewhat like being unable to get a glass of orange juice in Dade City, Florida. We drove into Dade City, and there were oranges everywhere, on the trees, on the ground, on the cars, trucks, and wagons. When we stopped at a drug store to get a drink, Stapp asked the soda jerker for a glass of fresh orange juice. He said Mister, I am very sorry, but we haven't a bit of orange juice. That just happened, of course, but it was noticeable.

Picnics Are In Style Now

The Man on the Corner had the pleasure of being with a big gathering of friends at a barbecue and picnic last Friday evening at Log Cabin Beach below Mitchell Dam. The occasion was in honor of United States Judge Chas. B. Kennamer, and members of his family, of Montgomery. It was attended by about seventy-five citizens of Chilton County, including many ladies and children. Judge Reynolds was the prime mover in getting up the barbecue, and making of it an opportunity for Judge Kennamer to become acquainted with as many of the Chilton County folks as possible. It was a most enjoyable event. A barbecued pig, a lamb, and 25 chickens were consumed.

Log Cabin Beach Fine Place

Log Cabin Beach is one of the finest places I ever saw for a barbecue and picnic. The place has all conveniences necessary for an outing. Mr. Thomas, who is in charge of the place, always makes his visitors feel welcome. He has a barbecue pit, stew pot, tables, and everything that is needed for barbecue and picnic parties. If you have a party you want to take out for a picnic, you can't do better than communicate with Mr. Thomas at Log Cabin Beach.

With the Doctors Tuesday

Another picnic and barbecue that will go in the list of highly successful and pleasant occasions was the one had at Gragg's camp Tuesday, for the members of the Chilton County Medical Society. A good attendance of the doctors of the county was registered. They brought their wives also. In addition to the medical society members, the dentists and veterinarians responded to the invitation to participate.

Charley Walker Here

Charley Walker, of Lawley, formerly county commissioner, was a visitor to Clanton Monday. He called on The Man on the Corner, but was in such a big hurry he didn't stay long enough to tell me anything of particular interest. I hope he will make his visit longer next time.

Oats Good This Year

Everyone has perhaps noticed that the crop of oats in Chilton County this year is unusually good. Mr. J. N. Dennis reports that he has threshed 962 bushels on his place, which is only the surplus he does not need in his own operations. There is no telling how many bushels he made on his farm. Dudley Collins had a good turn out on his place, but I don't know how many bushels. Everybody had good oats this year.

The Shoe Polish Blues

Bob Allred has had the shoe polish blues this week. He had his shoes dyed last Sunday. The hot weather caused his feet to absorb the dye and as a result he became poisoned. His complexion has been a nice tint of blue ever since. He is better at this writing.

Secret of Smartness—A woman, to be smartly dressed, must put her faith in line and color, not in price tags.

Cheaper Than Eating—Automobiles, by the way, are cheaper than food. A low-priced sedan costs about 20 cents a pound. Check that against steak or butter.

Sermon for Mothers—Self-development in children is a splendid thing, but it cannot rightly begin until self-discipline has been learned for a foundation.

High Cost of Debt—American families at any given time are in debt from 22 to 26 billion dollars. Of this total, 18 to 20 billions are owed for groceries, meats, clothes, furniture and automobiles.

Behind the Counter—Surveys of saleswomen in department stores show that the married woman sells more goods, is more regular in attendance and maintains better health than the unmarried sales girl.

HELP FOR WAR

Britain is the only nation in Europe which is a signatory to the past to limit naval armaments. France, Italy and to a certain extent Germany are in a race for naval supremacy today. No wonder it is being said that the outlook for peace in Europe is not good. No wonder travelers are returning gloomily predicting that in a little while European nations, now distrustful of each other, will be at each other's throats again.

In this connection, suppose the United States should remit all the war debts and thus make available to European nations additional millions of dollars. That would allow them to speed up military and naval preparations. And perhaps hasten the next war.—Houston Post-Dispatch.

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E Norton, Manager)

Touring, during these vacation days, is well represented by prominent Thorsby citizens. The most extensive trip is being made by Miss Helen C. Jenkins, principal of Thorsby Institute, who was scheduled to leave New York as a member of "Wheeler Tours," sailing on the steamship Rotterdam, at 12 a. m. last Saturday morning. She expects to visit London three days and nights, the Hague, Holland, Amsterdam, Brussells, Belgium, Cologne, Rhine River, Wiesbaden, Heidelberg, Germany, Lucerne, Switzerland and Interlaken, Geneva, Switzerland, Milan, Venice, Florence, Rome, Naples, Nice and Genoa, Italy, Marseilles, Paris France; returning to disembark at New York August 24. The dates of all these visits are on an official schedule in the hands of Mrs. Norton. The next point of extent is the Charles S. Howard family, who, when last heard from had arrived at Seattle, Washington, on the Pacific coast, in the extreme northwestern part of the United States, where Mr. Howard has a married sister residing. They will probably return via the Pacific coast and a southern route.

In spite of the abnormal heat of the past week Thorsby people seem to be enjoying life to a considerable extent as noted in the following locals:

Last Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Each and their four girls were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Petersen, where they met Mr. and Mrs. Louie Self, and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Petersen, who, with the younger Petersen boys, Richard and Leroy, made up a lively party bent on having a good time and good eats, among which were unlimited quantities of excellent home made ice cream.

About two o'clock p. m. the party went over to the Lutheran Sunday school picnic at Conrad Carlson's grove. Here they found many of the Scandinavian residents of Thorsby, who are adepts at giving picnic entertainments, and quite visiting, making a scene always pleasant to remember.

The boy scout outing last Friday night at Gores Pond was an enjoyable affair, for several hours, before a heavy thundershower sent them scurrying for shelter, some took refuge in an automobile, and thought best to head for home, others sought refuge in the bath house, and were dry and comfortable, after spending the forenoon there they hiked home.

The color scheme of the decorations was pink and yellow. Snapdragons adorned the table, while sunflowers were freely distributed about the rooms. Car Owners Bought More Firestone Tires

During April, May and June than in any like period in History

THERE are reasons for this—Firestone is now building the Greatest Tire Values in history, with the result that Firestone factories are operating 24 hours a day, 6 days a week, to meet public preference.

This is the year everybody is scrutinizing his purchases. This is particularly true in tire buying because of the many confusing and misleading statements made about tires.

To give car owners the facts, Firestone published comparisons showing quality, construction and prices. Then the public came in—made their own comparisons with cross-sections cut from Firestone tires—and from special brand mail order tires and others.

When they saw the facts, they bought more Firestone tires during April, May and June than in any like period in Firestone history.

Drive in today and let us show you these Firestone Extra Values and have your car equipped for Safe, Trouble-Free Summer Motoring. We can save you money and serve you better.

BUILD UP TO PREVENT PAINS

How a Missouri woman was benefited by taking Cardui is described below by Mrs. Joe Schumer, of Cape Girardeau: "I suffered with irregularity. For weeks at a time I was so weak I could not work. I had aches in my back and head and legs—I ached all over. I would get dizzy and feel faint. I had read about Cardui, so I got some and took it. I improved a great deal. After I had taken four bottles, I felt like a different person." FR-10

CARDUI

UNITY-CHILTON INSTITUTE

Those who attended the Unity-Chilton Institute held at Clanton Baptist Church last week had a feast of good things. Dr. L. O. Dawson was at his best. Our missionaries, Rev. J. L. Maye, Chile, and Miss Mary Caver, Africa, told of personal experiences and presented missions in a wonderful way. Every member of the faculty made his or her book intensely interesting. Anyone desiring a seal on Torrey's little book, "How To Pray," should read the book and answer the following questions:

1. Name four reasons why persistent prayer is needed. 2. Give a reason why prayer is so important. 3. Why do we link obeying with prayer? 4. (a) In whose name should our prayers always be given? (b) Through which two things may we know the will of God? 5. What attribute should we have in order to pray? 6. Quote a passage of scripture about praying always. 7. What two conditions must be met for Christ to answer prayer? 8. Quote Phil. 4:6-7. 9. Name four hindrances to prayer. 10. When should we pray?

The question on "Gospel Triumphs in Argentine and Chile," two questions to a chapter are as follows:

1. What did President Alvear consider the fundamental difference between his country and the United States? 2. How have most of the new mission stations been opened? 3. Give an illustration of fanaticism. 4. Tell of some of the superstitions. 5. Tell of an interesting happening to Mr. Penzotti. 6 What has paved the way for the missionaries? Why establish Christan schools? 8. Tell of a student in one of these schools. 9. Why did Dr. Willingham send Mr. Bagby to Sao Paulo? 10. How did R. S. Hosford befriend the missionaries? 11. What is shipped all over the world from Chile? 12. Tell how Baptists came to Chile.

All the papers from Unity Association should be sent to Mrs. J. A. Hester, Clanton, and from Chilton to Mrs. J. W. Jones, Thorsby, Ala.

We wish to express our thanks, not only to the inspiring speakers and most excellent faculty, but to Group Leaders, Mrs. J. H. Bruce, Jones, Mrs. Geo. Nash, Jemison; Mrs. J. F. King, Billingsley; Mrs. J. W. Jones, Thorsby; Mrs. S. R. Hudson, Mt. Creek; and Mrs. S. J. M. Webb, Maplesville, Route; and to their churches who furnished delicious lunches each day; and to the W. M. S. of Clanton, who assisted in every way possible and served so graciously, to each local committee, and to the membership of Clanton church and the city for generous hospitality; to the pastors, who by their presence added spiritually, and to all who came for their interest, and faithful attendance.—Mrs. Donald Merchant, Superintendent of Chilton County W. M. U.; Mrs. S. J. Ezell, Superintendent of Unity W. M. U.

A Fictitious Issue

After quoting an authoritative statement to the effect that the electric bill of household users of electricity in the United States averages only eight and a half cents a day—which half of the customers pay five cents and the other half pay 12 cents a day on an average the (Atlantic City, N. J.) Union says:

"In other words, ten million Americans receive all the advantages of electric power for the price of a daily package of chewing gum, and ten million more receive it for less than the cost of a package of ordinary cigarettes."

ALL DAY SINGING AT LIBERTY IN AUTAUGA THE THIRD SUNDAY

There will be an all day singing at Liberty church in Autauga County on the third Sunday in July. A cordial invitation is extended all singers and lovers of music.

Prof. I. D. Huett begins teaching a singing school at that place next Monday morning, July 13th. This is about the fourth school Prof. Huett has taught at this place, and he has always made a good showing. He desires the support of all who can help him this year in making the school a success.

JOHN PAUL JONES' BIRTH ANNIVERSARY RECALLED

In the little parish of Kirkbean in Scotland one of America's heroes was born July 6, 1747. His family name was Paul and he was christened John. Later in life he was to add Jones to his name and become famous as a commander in the Continental navy whose brillant achievements on the sea rivalled those of George Washington on the land.

The 184th anniversary of John Paul Jones' birthday is marked as a date of significance to all Americans by the division of information and publication of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission. Every citizen of the United States has reason to be grateful for the services of the first great American sea fighter.

Young John Paul went to sea when he was but 12 years old, and at the age of 21 he was captain of a trader. In 1773 he came to America and settled on his brother's plantation in Virginia which he had inherited upon the death of the latter. It was here that he first used the name Jones.

When the break between England and her colonies widened into actual warfare, Jones applied to Congress for a naval commission which was granted in December, 1775. That month, as a lieutenant in the new continental navy, he is said to have hoisted with his own hands the first naval flag of an American squadron. This was the well known yellow silk banner with the rattlesnake and the warning "Don't tread on me."

A lot of free traders are busy blaming our tariff law for the increase in Canadian rates. But none of them have the nerve to advocate the repeal of tariff schedules which Canadians object. They know what the American farmer would do to them if they did advocate lowering the American rates on Canadian products.

WILL SING AT PROVIDENCE

The Central Singing Society will meet at Providence in Beat 16 next Sunday afternoon. It is hoped that all singers who can will meet with the society at that time and place. The singing was good last Sunday at Concord, but there is still room for other singers, and they are always welcome.

THE FLOWING WELL

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you please let me have space in your paper to say a few words about the overflowing well near Isabella? The water is gushing up nine feet; it sure is nice. We had a curiosity to see the well, as we locatet water veins and trace them up. This vein that supports this overflowing well is about sixty feet wide. It is the largest vein I have found in Chilton County. We traced it half a mile. It is running from north to south. This vein can be traced from the head to its outlet.

It is a little river under the earth; what a blessing it could be to all near to it if they would drill, all could have a flowing well. There is no telling how far it is running under the ground. We can locate for anyone that desires an overflowing well on that stream. It is nice to locate the hidden blessings for the people under the earth. There is no telling what we walk over. There is a new process coming in to locate blessings without doubt. There may be more of those overflowing streams in Chilton County; if there is, they can be easily found.—S. N. Waldrop, Randolph, Ala.

The price of bread has not followed wheat downward, and the big baking companies say it is on account of the labor cost. In the good old day when mother baked her own the high labor cost didn't enter into it.

ANOTHER PICNIC FRIDAY

Another basket picnic for the people of Friendship and Union Grove communities will be held at the mouth of the creek below Lay Dam next Friday. All members of these two churches are asked to come and bring some bacon and eggs and cake. The bacon and eggs will be cooked at dinner time.

A similar affair was held last Thursday, but not many were present, so it was decided to have it over. It is hoped that more will attend next Friday.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the people for their kindness and sympathy shown us in regard to our eight year old son who was drowned June 30th. Our hearts are heavy with grief and sorrow, but we shall never forget the things that have been said and done by our neighbors and friends. It seems that sometimes we have to give up the brightest jewels of our home. Alonza Rowland was always eager to do the things required by his parents. He was trying to accomplish the desires of father and mother when, by some accident, he fell into the well of our home. We will never see Rowland here any more, but it is our desires to meet him in that great beyond. He was laid to rest at Maple Springs, Rev. M. Lockhart officiating.—Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Varden and children.

"Mama," said little Dorothy, "Sister don't tell the truth."

"Why, Dorothy, you musn't say such things," reproved the mother.

"Well, last night I heard her say, 'Charlie, if you do that again, I'll call mama.' And he did it twice more and she didn't call."

Ramsay MacDonald's government barely escaped falling, and he now knows how Mayor Jimmy Walker felt a few weeks ago.

During the fiscal year immigration to the United States will be less than 100,000 for the first time in 69 years. The total is not expected to exceed 96,000, which was the lowest record since 1862 when 91,985 immigrant aliens were admitted. More than 1,000,000 immigrants were admitted annually for six years prior to 1914. The number of departures in the last twelve months is placed by immigration officials at about 60,000.

Gilda: Did you read about the girl who was afraid to kiss her boy friend on account of germs?

Hulda: That's all right, my boy friend kisses so hard he kills the germs.

Sadie: He's got nothing on my boy friend. He makes his kisses so hot, they're sterilized.

STATE TEACHERS EXAMINATION

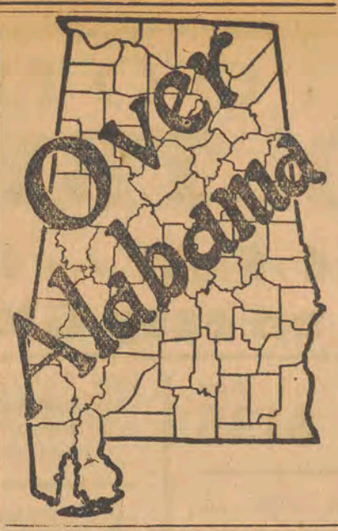
The next annual state examination for teachers will be held at the courthouse on July 20-22, 1931. All applicants not known to me personally must be properly identified and no applicant will be permitted to write an examination who does not live or teach in this county, or who does not present a permit from the State Department of Education, if living in some other county, to be transferred to this county.

No third grade examination will be given but applicants for second grade certificates failing to make the necessary grade for such certificate may receive a third grade certificate provided the papers show a minimum of 40 per cent on each subject and an average of at least 60 per cent on all subjects. No third grade certificate may be substituted as part of an examination for second grade.

No one will be permitted to take the second grade examination who does not submit satisfactory evidence of graduation from a Junior high school or of equivalent education. Each application for a first grade certificate shall submit evidence of graduation from an accredited senior high school or of education that is the equivalent.

An applicant for a first grade certificate may substitute a valid second grade certificate for all second grade papers.

Each applicant for a life certificate shall satisfy the examiner that he has held a first grade, Alabama Teacher's Certificate, or its equivalent, for at least five years, within which time he has taught a minimum of forty scholastic months, and that he possesses a "high degree of proficiency and professional attainment."



No person under 17 years of age may legally write an examination for any kind of teacher's certificate. The application fee for each kind or grade of certificate is $2.00. No exemption from answers to questions will be allowed for statements of Reading Circle and Extension Credits.

SUPPLEMENTS FOR SWINE FEEDING

(By Dr. John M. Evvard

All of the farm grown basal feeds of carbohydrate nature such, as corn, wheat, barley and others, are deficient in proteins, certain vitamins, and specific minerals. In order to nutritionally round out the farm grown grains for economical feeding, it is absolutely essential that all of these missing or deficient elements be carried in a supplemental feed.

The farm grains are not only low in protein, but the quality of the protein carried is "off;" this means that not only more proteins must be added, but these proteins must be of such high quality as to blend with the proteins in farm grains. In other words, the inferior proteins of the farm feeds are thus made superior through the feeding of the kind of supplement that we are talking about.

Certain farm grains are deficient in certain vitamins. It is necessary to add feed ingredients to correct this deficiency. For instance, in wheat or barley, we have a certain vitamin deficiency. By adding green and leafy alfalfa meal, we supply vitamins that otherwise would not be contained in the ration.

And now, even though we have the proteins and vitamins properly provided for, we still must put emphasis upon the mineralization of the supplement. We supply sodium and chlorine in the form of kiln-dried salt. We provide calcium by introducing calcium carbonate. Sometimes we provide calcium also in the form of bone meal or other form of phosphate, particularly when the organic ingredients of the supplement are still deficient. If the ingredients of the supplement already carry sufficient phosphorus in the form of fish meal, meat meal tankage, etc., then it is not necessary to add additional ingredients carrying phosphorus or reduce them to a minimum. Calcium and phosphorus are of major importance in building body tissue and bone. Therefore, they are instrumental in control of growth and health.

Since blood, muscle and other animal tissues carry considerable iron and since farm grains are low in this essential ingredient, an ecenomical and efficient form of iron carrier must be included, otherwise we would have an incomplete supplement.

In order to make sure that the thyroid gland in the forward part of the neck functions properly, we must supply iodine for that gland. This thyroid gland makes a substance called thyroxin. This secretion is sent to various parts of the body and aids in metabolism or assimilation of certain food elements. Without iodine, this thyroid gland cannot produce thyroxin and for this reason, in many sections of the country where iodine is deficient in feed stuffs, pasture, and water, the condition known as goiter develops. This disease is called big neck in calves, goiter in horses and hairlessness in pigs. Naturally, the presence of iodine in proper form is a safeguard and insurance in producing better livestock. Even in some localities wherein hairlessness is not noticed in young pigs, or big neck in calves, there is, nevertheless, a physiological shortage of iodine; the use of potassium iodine in the supplementary feed adds to the quality of the feed and insures that the animals on the feed shall never be lacking in the element under discussion.

WEST CHILTON

Crops are looking prosperous. We had good rains last week. The crops here are fairly balanced, not too much cotton, but all crops seem to be in proportion. Great crops in sight and already here, yet some go hungry. So after 6,000 years of experience, man cannot properly adjust the business of the world. How he needs an administration that is both wise and unselfish.

Jim Helton was killed Saturday night, ran over by a train on the Southern Railroad, near the tank north of Randolph.

Cofer brothers' fish pond is becoming a noted bathing resort. Some narrow escapes from drowning are reported.

Walter Veazey and family of Pleasant Grove have located on the Boatfield farm in West Chilton. They sold their place to Mr. Wooley.

Mrs. Rebecca Cates of Selma has been spending several days at W. R. Reedings'.

The people here seemed to have enjoyed the glorious Fourth. Sometimes people forget and act as if they knew nothing of American ideals and the American spirit. Shame on us. Someone in poetic lore has said of America, "Thy reign is the last and the nobles of time."

Mr. Pratt Crumpton's little child has been sick for a week, but has now recovered.

Mr. W. R. Redding's sister of Gorgas, Mrs. Cummings, recently paid him a visit.

An appeal from County Agent Stapp for $75 to help pay expenses of the boys club camp was denied.

The work of the county agent in general was taken up, and when finally disposed of the result was a reduction in the county's appropriation for the salary of the county agent from $137.50 a month to $100 a month, effective August 1st.

When the child welfare work was taken up, it was ordered by the court that the appropriation of $800 a year for this purpose be discontinued altogether on August 1st.

The court considered the matter of making appropriation of $500 for the opportunity schools. This matter did not come to a vote, as it was found that the court was not authorized under the law to make such appropriations.

MANY LOCATIONS FOR FISH HATCH

Sites Offered Will Be Reported To Federal Bureau of Fisheries

In response to the publication made last week about the proposal of a government fish hatchery location, a number of places have been listed with Judge Reynolds. The members of the Commissioners Court are making a preliminary survey of the places listed, and will make report of same to the proper government authorities through Congressman W. B. Oliver.

Among the places already listed, and which the Commissioners will inspect this week are the following:

A spring on the place of Dr. Conway three miles east of Jemison, which is also three miles from the L. & N. Railroad and three miles from the paved highway. A proposed site on the Ab Glass place, also near Jemison, will be inspected.

A place belonging to J. M. Giles, near Mountain Springs Church, about five miles northeast of Clanton. This is said to be a very desirable place with plenty of fine water flowing from springs at the foot of the mountain.

On the place of Dr. B. J. Baldwin at the headwaters of Mountain Creek, where several springs are located in close proximity. This place is near the paved Montgomery Highway, right on the L. & N. Railroad, and close to the old Montgomery Highway.

One large spring near Stanton, on the place of Dr. Parnell. This is two miles from the Selma Highway and a little over a mile from the Southern Railway.

Judge Reynolds stated Tuesday that several other places would be listed this week, and that the Commissioners would make a preliminary survey of all of them. After the preliminary survey is made, those places which appear suitable will be listed with Congressman Oliver, with the request that representatives of the government bureau of fisheries come to Chilton County and make inspection.

FARM MEETINGS WILL BE HELD

County Agent Stapp Will Push Campaign For Winter Legumes

County Agent Stapp is anxious to see every farmer in Chilton County plant at least 5 acres of Austrian winter peas or vetch per plow. While in attendance at the meeting at Auburn in June, Mr. Stapp made plans for an extensive soil-building campaign this fall. He has already sent out four circular letters pertaining to the campaign. He has offered nice prizes to the club boys who are most active in the campaign. The banks of the county are cooperating in a splendid way. In an effort to reach as many people personally as possible, and discuss with them the great importance of Austrian peas and vetch as soil building crops, Mr. Stapp has arranged the following series of meetings:

Thomas Jr. School, Monday, July 20, 7:00 p. m.
Enterprise School, Tuesday, July 21, 7:00 p. m.
Mt. Pleasant School, Wednesday, July 22, 7:00 p. m.
Collins Chapel School, Friday, July 24, 7:00 p. m.
Providence (north of Jemison) August 3, 7:00 p. m.
Pleasant Grove, Tuesday, August 4, 7:00 p. m.
Concord, Wednesday, August 5, 7:00 p. m.
Fairview, Thursday, August 6, 7:00 p. m.
Sardis, Friday, August, 7, 7:00 p. m.
Isabella, Monday, August 10, 7:00 p. m.
Baker, Tuesday, August 11, 7:00 p. m.
Jackson Chapel, Monday, August 17, 7:00 p. m.
Union Grove, Tuesday, August 18, 7:00 p. m.
Freeman, Wednesday, August 19, 7:00 p. m.
Pinedale, Thursday, August 20, 7:00 p. m.
Verbena, Friday, August 21, 7:00 p. m.

Mr. Stapp regrets that he will not be able to visit every schoolhouse in the county, but feels that practically everyone in the county can easily teach one of the above schools. At these meetings Mr. Stapp will give the latest recommendations of the experiment station.

HAD A BIRTHDAY SATURDAY

A little surprise birthday party was given Mr. John W. Cagle of Mitchell Dam last Saturday. Mr. Cagle and his family came up the river to the old Salem cemetery to have a little birthday dinner, and when they arrived they found that there were others there to help them eat it—that's where the surprise part of the game came in. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cagle and daughter, Miss Ethel; John P. Cagle, wife and children; Lou P. Cagle and wife; Leo Cagle; Mr. and Mrs. Jean Wyatt and little daughter of Clanton; Miss Lena Culver of Clanton; Mr. Arthur Colley and Miss Dera Colley of Verbena; and Miss Ruby Eiland of Montgomery.

From nine o'clock until about three in the afternoon, the time was spent in eating, drinking, boat riding, and generally making merry. Everyone had a very nice time and hoped to duplicate the occasion some other time.

Barbecued Pheasants At Gragg's Picnic

Another chapter has been added to the story of pheasant raising in Alabama. On July 7th, when Dr. V. J. Gragg was preparing an entertainment for the Chilton County Medical Society at his camp on Lake Mitchell, he instructed his chef to place a dozen pheasants on the menu for barbecue. The birds, about a year old, and weighing about four pounds each, were furnished from the pheasant farm of Dr. Gragg in Clanton.

Along with the pheasants, a dozen frying size chickens were barbecued. This gave a good opportunity for members of the party to compare the edibility of pheasant meat with chicken. A quarter of pheasant and a quarter of chicken were served on each plate.

While the eating of pheasant was a new experience to every member of the party, it was none the less pleasing to the appetite. The doctors voted unanimously in favor of the pheasant, stating that if every operation in the pheasant business were as pleasant as eating them, they would be willing to quit medicine and go in for pheasants altogether.

Pheasant meat is very similar to the meat of our native quail; but the bird being much larger, it is more desirable than quail in many ways. There is more good eating in a quarter of pheasant than a whole partridge. The breast of the pheasant is very bulky, and is highly palatable. None of our native wild birds has such a fine breast.

A two-pound frying size chicken can be barbecued in an open charcoal pit in two hours. It requires about three hours to finish out a year-old pheasant weighing about four pounds.

Pheasants are scarcely known in Alabama. However, the doctors of Chilton County, and their wives, who attended the barbecue at Gragg's camp on July 7 can testify with authority born of actual experience that the pheasant is as good to eat as any bird in the world.

The history of Dr. Gragg's venture in pheasant raising is very interesting. When he became interested in the pheasant by reading stories of their nature and habits, he must have been impressed by the statements of game authorities that they could not be raised in Alabama. This challenged the adventurous spirit in the man. He always did like to do things that somebody said could not be done.

If Gragg had listened to those who said it couldn't be done, he never would have become the renowned physician and surgeon he is. He was a tall, lean, lanky country school teacher, with a wife and three children, when he got the notion into his head that he would like to be a doctor. Somebody told him he had waited too late to start out on that job. But he started. He went to medical college a year and came back home and taught school a year. Then back to college and back to teaching school. When he had completed three years in medical college, he was able to get a state license to practice medicine. After he practiced medicine a while, he went back for his senior year in medicine, and graduated.

But back to the pheasant story. Dr. Gragg secured his original stock of birds from California. Being very wild, they had to be kept in very close confinement. It involved a great deal of expense to provide a place to keep them. They started off well, laying lots of eggs. The young were hatched under Bantam hens. Before the first year of his venture had passed he had a colony of about a hundred young pheasants.

A dog got into the pen and killed the whole business. Back to California he sent for more birds and started all over again. Wiser by costly experience, he had better luck the second time. There have been grown on the place up to now several hundred birds. Many of them have been eaten.

Satisfied that the pheasant can overcome climatic conditions in this part of the country, Dr. Gragg has now turned his efforts toward stocking the woods and fields with his birds so they may grow wild. This spring a number of pairs were released. Reports have come in already that some of the hens have been seen with coveys of young.

Six pairs of the birds were released on the farm of Dr. P. T. Hinkle, near Clanton. Dr. Hinkle has kept close watch over them, and says he can account for five of the hens, and that three of them have young birds with them.

Besides being a fine game bird that challenges the best there is of dog and gun, the pheasant is reputed to be a valuable bird to the farmer. Inspection of the birds in the far northwestern states where they are wild in large numbers, has revealed that only two per cent of the contents in the craws was farm plants; while 67 per cent of the contents was made up of insects that were injurious to crops.

Dr. Hinkle says some have expressed to him the idea that the pheasant running wild would pull up young corn. In reply to this he states that while the pheasant, like any other bird, would perhaps destroy some young corn in its tender stage, on the other hand the bird will many times repay for the corn it destroys by eating many insects.

Dr. Gragg hopes that the people of the county will do all they can to help protect the pheasants that have been liberated. With protection assured them, he believes it will not be many years until pheasants will be more plentiful than quail. And that would be fine indeed. When a hunter bags a pheasant, he has enough meat to equal half a dozen partridges.

Dief Is In Contest To Win Free Trip To Akron Offered By Goodyear Tire Co.

Dief's Service Station, Goodyear tire dealer in Clanton, is entered in the third annual Goodyear Dealer Zeppelin race, a contest in sales based on a two months' quota, and participated in by thousands of dealers all over the country, according to Mr. Diefenderfer, manager of the station.

"So many people have been asking us what we are so hopped up about in these so-called vacation days," continued Mr. Dief, "that I thought I would explain that we are in the contest to win, because it means a free trip to Akron to see the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation's airdock where the world's largest airship is nearing completion for the U. S. Navy."

"Akron will be the center of national interest in August, because the ship will be making its trial flights about that time. The U. S. S Akron, though huge in dimensions, is trim and shapely, measuring 785 feet in length or about 24 times the length of a standard box car, and twice the size of the U. S. S Airship Los Angeles.

"The Akron will be carried aloft by 6,500,000 cubic feet of helium a non-inflamable gas contained in 12 separate cells, the largest of which has a capacity of 1,000,000 cubic feet. Eight twelve-cylinder motors, delivering a total of 4,480 horsepower, give the Akron a top speed of 80 miles per hour. These motors are reversible and because the propellers are mounted so they can be readily moved through angles of 90 degrees can move the ship in a vertical direction as well as fore and aft.

"Three tons or 35,000 square yards of strong cotton fabric are being used to cover the sturdy framework of the ship. A compartment in the forward section will house five completely equipped pursuit planes that can be lowered through a trap door and launched or picked up while the Akron is in flight.

"We are planning a number of new merchandising features at our service station," said Mr. Diefenderfer, to put this firm in the running for the prize trip to Akron, and we are offering special attractions to be found in our advertisements."

STATEMENTS BY VETCH GROWERS

More Chilton County Farmers Tell of Experiences In Soil Building

Mr. M. T. Smith, Clanton Route 3, has the following to say about vetch: "My cotton where I had vetch last year and followed with corn is the best cotton I have. The ground surely works good."

Mr. W. L. Popwell says: "I expect to plant at least 60 acres to vetch and peas this fall. I only bought three tons of soda this year and I want to buy less next year." Mr. Popwell joins Mr. Stapp and many others in the county in urging the farmers of Chilton County to grow their nitrogen this winter instead of paying high prices for it in sacks next spring. Mr. Popwell further states that "I think I have the best corn I have ever seen in my life. It is on land where a good crop of vetch was turned this spring. No fertilizer was used."

Mr. R. J. Williams, Thorsby Route 1, has the following to say: "I have been growing vetch seven or eight years and find that it is one crop that always pays me. My second crop of corn where vetch was turned last year, followed with corn, is almost as good with no nitrogen applied this year as it was last year. I expect to plant more vetch and peas this fall than I have ever planted."

Mr. A. N. Thrash, Jemison, Route 1, was in Mr. Stapp's office last Saturday making arrangements for vetch and peas. Mr. Thrash said that Mr. J. L. Wade, near him, certainly has some fine corn this year on land where a crop of vetch was turned last spring. Mr. Thrash, too, thinks farmers should grow their nitrogen.

Dr. P. T. Hinkle says, "Winter legume crops are certainly worthwhile. I have been growing crimson clover successfully for years. I believe I will make near 100 bushels of corn per acre this year on land where I turned under good crops of crimson clover this spring."

KENNAMER WEIGHS RIGHTS AND DUTIES

Tells Kiwanians Jury Service Is An Obligation Upon Good Citizens

U. S. Judge Charles B. Kennamer, who was honor guest of the Kiwanis Club at the Jefferson Davis Hotel yesterday, spoke upon the increasing duties of Federal courts, stressing the close relation between court and people, and appealing to all good citizens to support the courts and especially to be willing to do jury duty.

"We in America," said Judge Kennamer, "have been taught to think a great deal of the rights of citizenship. This is well for us, but I sometimes think we keep our minds overmuch on our rights and too little on our duties and responsibilities as citizens.

"When the rights on any citizen are involved in a courtroom that citizen naturally wants the benefit of the wisdom of the 12 best men that can be found.

"Government is what the people make it. Courts are what the people make them. That is just as true of Federal courts as State and city courts. If the courts are to be what we expect of them all good citizens must be ready to serve them in whatever capacity a citizen may serve a court."—Montgomery Advertiser.

FILLING STATION OPENS SATURDAY

W. A. Reynolds Will Start New Place On Highway South of Town

"Brownie's Place," is the name of the new filling station that will be opened and put into operation next Saturday by W. A. Reynolds. The location is at the forks of the road just south of Clanton. Mr. Reynolds announces that he will retail an independent brand of motor fuel which will be known as Bear Cat Gas. This is a high grade anti-knock gasoline, he says, and will start off retailing at 14 cents a gallon.

Mr. Reynolds has gone to considerable expense to build a nice modern service station to take care of his business. He has built a railroad side track from which he will be able to get his products, gasoline and oils, in car load shipments. In this manner, he says, he will be able to buy at lower prices, and therefore sell to the consumer at lower prices.

In his statement announcing the opening of Brownie's Place, Mr. Reynolds says:

"On next Saturday, July 18, I will open a new gasoline filling station 200 yards south of Upchurch Drug Store on the highway. I have built a side track and will install a large tank and buy gas by the car load. This will enable me to buy cheaper, and I am going to sell to you cheaper.

I ask those who buy gas to give me your patronage. I will handle the best grade anti-knock gasoline, and give my customers the very best courteous service. My opening day price will be 14 cents, and I will give one quart of the best heavy Texas oil free with each purchase of five gallons of gas on next Saturday, July 18.

No doubt the big oil companies will cut their prices to meet my price, but just remember on thing, the big companies have been operating 20 years and they have not cut the price. The only place you can buy gas cheap is where you find independent gas companies.

I have gone to a very great expense in order to give you a good high grade gas at a much cheaper price. All I ask is an opportunity to serve you. You stick to me and I will stick to you."

It is further planned by Mr. Reynolds to continue to add to the place until he has completed a nice cafe and barbecue stand to be run in connection with the filling station.

Drivers of automobiles are invited to come to Brownie's Place on next Saturday and fill up with Bear Cat Gas at 14 cents. Read the big advertisement of Mr. Reynolds in another place in this paper.

Tom Hand Writes More About Poor House Fuss

The Chilton County Almshouse Hearing, By W. T. Hand, Jemison, Ala. Not Inclined to Impose on the Press or Apologize to Chilton County

Complaint against treatment of inmates of the almshouse caused the Commissioners Court to order, on June 16th, 1931, to interrogate inmates and the keeper and investigate all conditions impartially, inviting other evidence.

In a statement published June 25, 1931, signed by L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate, J. E. Cobb, J. M. Mims, J. L. Burnett, A. P. Vinson, Commissioners, the following decision is noted: "and the court concluded that the charges were frivolous and the result of prejudice of certain parties against the keeper, J. D. Bean."

Extracts from Press Testimony

Inmate Shaver: "They didn't get enough to eat."

Inmate Teel: "For dinner we have Irish potatoes, cabbage or beans cornbread and a glass of water if we want it. For supper we have cornbread and buttermilk and if there were any cold vegetables left over from dinner we have that and rice."

Inmate Newton: "It is enough food, owing to how hungry a fellow is."

Inmate Alice Newton: "He came into my room and beat me with a stick, and said, 'I'll beat hell out of you,' He beat me around in the room, and I decided he meant to kill me, and stayed away for a couple of nights, my mind wasn't good, I hadn't done a thing in the world. I have seen Gip run in his room and said, 'Lord have mercy,' and Mr. Bean was right behind him."

A near resident: "I saw Lloyd Bean knock Gip down three times; Inmates come to my house and say they are starving to death."

A near resident: "He saw Mr. Bean whip Gip."

Bill Lawson, a negro: "Mr. Bean got me to help bury one of the women of the poorhouse and I really in a way thought it my duty and since that they replied to me it was against the administration of a negro to help bury a white lady, and I toted the back end of the corpse."

Percy Pitts, counsel for Keeper Bean, and Omar Reynolds, for the court, were present and there in the keepers' presence, Mr. Pitts was persistent in objecting to certain testimony the imates tried to disclose and no attorney to aid them. Unwilling to suspend or modify in this case, the practice of extracting the refined essence of pertinent testimony customary in conflicts of the free and rich, seemingly this relentless fellow was willing to further humiliate these defenseless old people in their humble state; Mr. Pitts instructing the court stenographer to take down only such testimony as he directed.

It seems that my absence reflected profit for the defense, notwithstanding my prior notice that I would make no complaint against the management from June 1st to 16th, which period was the basis for the hearing. I am glad I was not present, a visionary picture of the exhibition is sufficient for me.

It appears that the testimony for some were not shown in press reports and others seem wary. For instance, Ollie Brewer; press quotes: "Told he saw one of the inmates at a funeral once and the later was dressed in poor clothing." I am informed that he swore, "I saw Gip McQueen at New Salem church at the funeral of Mr. Petty, and he had on overalls that come just below his knees, with holes in them, and shoes wired on his feet."

Gilbert Kendrick a negro who lives about 2 and one-half miles distance, swore that an inmate made visits to his home and asked for food, so I am informed.

An affidavit by a woman past 82 (a former inmate recently expelled) was delivered to Judge Reynolds, its contents being withheld.

Dr. Glenn Andrews, Prison Inspector read his report of date June 8th, 1931, made to Governor Miller, eight days after the order for the hearing, even then numerous recommendations are made such as: "several of the inmates are hospital cases requiring close attention; a practical nurse is to be placed in charge of patients and rooms generally as soon as one that is competent can be had, so the Probate Judge stated. An employed cook should also be in charge of the cooking. All the inmates should be required to bathe at regular intervals, or as often as is necessary to keep them clean."

The patients should be restrained from going about the neighborhood. The Judge of Probate stated that it was the purpose of the board to have the institution placed in a comfortable condition and to provide quarters for negro patients, as soon as the new building could be occupied. Dr. Andrews did not refer to the condition there as shown by affidavits of inmates, taken by his agent last December, even denying the writer the priviledge of seeing them after inviting him to Montgomery for that purpose, however, I had formerly seen copies of a number of them and in that case affiant swore, "We do not get enough to eat." Comment is restrained.

In his letter to the court he states "Please note the recommendations as pointed out in the report and institute such measures as are necessary to carry them out. "My latest inquiry fails to show that an employed cook has relieved Mrs. Shaver, about 76, cooking about eight years for inmates, or that a practical nurse has been employed, and if any other regulations have been carried out except revoking their freedom, I am not informed of it.

It will be a joyful day if soap and towels are provided and no doubt they will delight in bathing.

The writer endeavored to stop the practice of slavery and involutary servitude enforced on inmates, without success, and now with their liberty, as well as their sufferage rights denied, these bonds are tightened, notwithstanding our federal and state constitutions recite that, "no form of slavery or involuntary servitude shall exist."

Aside from the complaint in behalf of the living, attention is invited to the testimony of the negro, Bill Dawson, who was a pall bearer at a funeral, termed, "frivolous charges" by the court, which only goes to show the estimate and little regard held by the administration in Chilton County for this high calling.

Considering their verdict of "frivolous charges" the average mind become stupified and perception and understanding is made blunt at an attempt to alleviate this irreconcilable spectacle.

The same negro stated, not as evidence, that when an inmate, Mrs. Myrtle Lawrence, about 35, died about June 1st, 1931, he laid her in the coffin, with the assistance of Dr. Wood, although they said that the dead were turned over to undertaker and Judge Reynolds didn't know how long it had been the custom.

My record shows, she washed for Mr. Bean's family and all inmates except five, and other work, hoeing, making beds, cleaning house, etc., although both arms had been paralyzed.

Worked longer than able; mind wavered said, "Prayed all night last night, going to pray all night tonight; still working."

The dope was put in her arm, lay long time, could not be woke up, the keeper nor any of his family present when she died. Poor, dejected heart-sick slave, the poorhouse had been her abode for about 17 years. Her mother died before she entered and her father several years ago.

Lack of proper regard for these unfortunate castaways is apparant, consigned to the workhouse, called the "human dumping ground," shut in from society's walks and the cultivated portion of the community, deprived of that fellowship and familiar intercourse, without which life itself is but a weary existence. "The poor committeth himself unto thee." Mild and brief my comment concludes—Ill treated in life; dishonored in death.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

MUCH PROGRGESS WITH WINTER LEGUMES MADE

Auburn, Ala., July 13.—The remarkable progress made by Alabama farmers with winter legumes as soil builders and also as pastures and feed crops is shown by statistics compiled by J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist at Auburn. Other states are following Alabama.

In 1918 Alabama farmers planted only 1,535 pounds of winter legume seed. The next year, 1919, they planted 2,465 pounds. Annual plantings thereafter, as reported by Mr. Lowery, have been 10,470 pounds in 1920; 35,508 pounds in 1921; 149,465 pounds in 1922; 315,765 pounds in 1923; 505,905 pounds in 924; 526,905 pounds in 1925; 790,649 pounds in 1927; 1,127,096 pounds in 1928; 1,956,889 pounds in 1929; and 1,884,717 pounds in 1930.

In recent years the annual value of nitrogen which these plants have removed from the air and stored in the soil has exceeded $500,000. The two leading winter legumes are hairy vetch and ustrian winter peas and one good crpo of either one will double the yield of either cotton or corn which follows, Mr. Lowery said. Getting nitrogen this way is much cheaper and better than buying it in commercial form; and, in addition, legumes add much humus or organic matter.

Throughout the state farmers have demonstrated, in line with the results of the experiment station at Auburn, the exceptional advantages of winter legumes, big crops of corn, cotton, and other crops following. Cost of planting seed is small.

In addition to using them as soil builders they are being used for hay, being planted with oats and the mixture harvested together. In addition some use them for pastures. County agents are now planning with farmers and also with bankers and business men to increase plantings next fall.

REPORTS OF PROGRESS MADE BY COUNTY AGENTS

Auburn, Ala., July 13.—Much evidence of progress in Alabama agriculture was presented by the county demonstration agents in their official reports for the month of June, sent to state headquarters at Auburn.

John Blake, who has spent twenty years in continuous service in Dallas County, reported that farmers around Marion Junction are more prosperous than in any other section of that county. There they are engaged in dairying in addition to producing cotton, hay, beef cattle, turkeys, and lambs. They raise feed, including good pastures. Last year one milk concern paid to 50 dairymen around Marion Junction $160,000 for milk.

Farmers in Pickens County demonstrated that they can produce Irish potatoes successfully by producing at the rate of 140 bushels per acre, reported County Agent F. A. Rew.

In the Walker Springs community of Clarke County, a few farmers who had engaged in commercial peach productoin sold 1,800 bushels for 85 cents per bushel. They were pleased with their experience, said C. L. Hollingsworth, county agent.

Near Gallion in Marengo County two young sheepmen, reported County Agent R. D. Winch, had a very successful year in raising sheep, and other farmers are following them.

As a result of cultivator demonstrations conducted by County Agent W. A. Cammack and J. B. Wilson, extension agricultural engineer of Auburn, 16 Wilcox County farmers have bought riding cultivators and are now using them, reducing costs and doing the work easier.

In Chilton County banks are backing the movement directed by C. E. Stapp, county agent, to increase plantings of winter legumes this fall. The banks are running advertisements and advising farmers to plant this year as many acres as they can.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture, says that in his judgment world-wide production of wheat this year will be 350,000,000 bushels less than that of last year.

Preliminary census figures for 1931 give Greater London a population of 8,202,818 and Greater New York a population of 6,981,927. Therefore, Greater London is decidedly the biggest city in the world, with New York second.

Dr. Stephen Moulton Babcock, who revolutionized the dairy industry by discovering in 1890 a test to determine the butterfat content of milk, died at his home in Madison, Wis., on July 2. He was 87 years old and was professor emeritus of agricultural chemistry at the University of Wisconsin.

The National Industrial Conference Board of New York says that the cost of living for the average wage earned is now lower than at any time in the past 12 years and is still going down.

A survey report shows that in 1930, as a whole, the cost of living averaged 3.8 per cent lower than in 1929, and 4.2 per cent lower than in 1928.

The U. S. Bureau of Fisheries is credited with the statement that bread can be made of fish. The flesh is first dried and ground into flour and then it can be turned into muffins, popovers, pancakes, biscuit, rolls, or bread. While it may not look like shad, mackerel, bluefish, or perch the fish is there and it has the sustenance that it had when swimming around in the water and wondering as to the edibility of a worm or artificial fly.

19,765 MORE FARMS IN ALABAMA THAN IN 1925

In 1930 there were 19,765 more farms in Alabama than in 1925 and the average number of acres in an Alabama farm had decreased from 70.4 acres in 1925 to 68.3 acres in 1930, according to the new federal census figures released by the Bureau of Census. In 1925 Alabama had 237,631 farms compared with 256,396 farm in 1930.

The average value of farms shows decided change in the last 10 years. The average Alabama farm in 1920 consisted of 76.4 acres and was valued at $2,123; in 1925 the average farm consisted of 70.4 acres and was valued at $1,746, and in 1930 the size of the average farm was 68.3 acres and its average value was $1,961.

"We are accustomed to think that our farming in Alabama is done largely by tenants," says Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture, yet the federal census figures show the state's farm acres operated as follows: Owners, 9,412,904; managers, 340,807; tenents, 7,826,097.

In 1920 there was a total acreage of all land in farms of 19,576,856. In 1925 this had dropped to 16,739,139, and in 1930 had again climbed to 17,579,808. It is informative to contrast these figures with the total value of all farm lands and building at the three periods. In 1930 the value was $543,657,755; in 1925 it was $414,858,647 and in 1930, $504,756,249.

AMERICAN COTTON CROP REDUCED 10 PER CENT

Alabama Acreage Witness Same Reduction With Variation In Different Sections

Alabama followed the general trend of the American cotton, growers this year in reducing its cotton acreage 10 per cent, which was the same as the reduction for the United States, reports F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician of the Department of Agriculture.

The acreage in cultivation on the first day of July in the United States was 41,491,000 compared with 46,078,000 growing at the same date last year. With a few exceptions the 10 per cent reduction prevailed throughout the cotton belt. The most notable differences were 17 per cent reduction in Oklahoma, 18 per cent in North Carolina, and 12 per cent in Georgia. Texas and Arkansas reduced their acreage 8 per cent while Mississippi left off only 6 per cent. Among the smaller states Virginia and California each reduced 25 per cent, while Florida planted the same acreage, 9.8 per cent, while those east of the river left off 10.4 per cent of last year's acreage.

Alabama on the 1st of July had 3,410,000 acres growing to cotton compared with 3,789,000 acres of last July. The various sections of this state seem not to have followed uniform trends in reducing their cotton acreage. The northwest section reduced 5 per cent, the Tennessee valley 8 per cent, the mineral section 12 per cent, the northeast section 13 per cent, the western part of the black belt 5 per cent, the eastern part of the black belt 12 per cent, the piedmont 13 per cent, the southwest 5 per cent, the south central 12 per cent and the southeast 14 per cent. The trend in reduction did not seem to follow any uniform reasons, since some sections making the best crops last year gave the heaviest reduction. While the reduction was lightest in some of the poorest yielding areas of last season.

FORESTS REBUILD SOIL

Montgomery, Ala., July 13.—The value of forests in rebuilding worn-out soils has been plainly shown during the past few years, says Colonel Page S. Bunker, state forester. Approximately a half million acres of new ground has been put into cultivation during the past two or three years, nearly all of which was land carrying stands of trees of various ages, according to the investigations of the state commission of forestry. This acreage belongs to the class commonly known as marginal land; that is, land which is not suitable for continuous agricultural use but which is very satisfactory for timber production.

A great deal of the marginal land of Alabama has been in cultivation during past times. During periods of general prosperity, however, such land is the first to be abandoned, and it quickly reverts to timber growth. The root systems of trees, reaching far down into the earth, bring up through the stem, branches and leaves many of the elements of fertility which in turn are deposited by the leaf fall upon the surface where they become available for agricultural crop plants when the land is again cleared.

The rebuilding of soil fertility through tree growth is an important factor in tiding many farmers over hard times. With insufficient funds to buy fertilizer for worn-out fields, and with no other market for their labor, the farmer can well spend the time clearing a considerable acreage of marginal land which has recovered much of its fertility through the action of trees.

INTEREST IN VETCH AND AUSTRIAN WINTER PEAS GROWING

County Agent Stapp states that already much interest is being displayed over vetch and Austrian peas. He says that many farmers are talking about the fact that commercial nitrogen is high to buy and that since the producers of commercial nitrogen did not cut their price this year, we will be forced to grow our nitrogen.

Mr. Stapp thinks that hundreds of farmers who never planted vetch and peas before will plant them this time. Indications are that seed and inoculation will cost not more than $2.00 per acre this fall. The experienced vetch growers of the county agree with Mr. Stapp in the statement that $2.00 worth of vetch or peas planted this fall and crop turned next spring will do more good than six or seven dollar's worth of commercial fertilizer applied next spring.

The 4-H Club boys are more interested in vetch and peas this year than usual. We wonder what club and what member will win the prizes offered for best score in the Austrian peas and vetch planting campaign.

POULTRY

CHICKENPOX IN POULTRY

If chickenpox was prevalent in the poultry flocks in your community last year, you will do well to vaccinate your pullets during the month of August. Vaccination against chickenpox has proved quite effective and has often avoided discouragement for the better poultrymen.

Many of the state experiment stations have been doing some very constructive work on the use of virus in successfully vaccinating pullets against this infection. If the treatment is given to the pullets while the weather is still fair, and before the pullets have fully matured, their growth and development and the time of coming into egg production will not be affected very materially.

In some states the egricultural experiment stations are preparing the material for vaccination and poultry breeders can obtain the material through the experiment stations. If the station is not preparing this material, in most cases the poultry or veternary department of the state agricultural college can usually refer poultrymen to reliable laboratories from which the material may be obtained.

UNION GROVE

Editor Union-Banner:

My meeting at Union Grove started off well. Had a splendid crowd Sunday at 11 o'clock. A fine rain in the afternoon kept a large number away from the evening service. However, we had a goodly number out, and a fine service.

It seems that the church and community are ready for a revival. Rev. O. M. Moore of Bessemer will arrive Monday evening and will do the preaching. I have great hopes for the meeting. Bro. Moore is a sound gospel preacher. May give you the results after the close.—Rev. J. Robert Bean.

They say prosperity is just around the corner and we hope Uncle Sam is not traveling on a merry-go-round.

One of the best things that can be said for President Hoover's moratorium plan is that Moscow doesn't like it.

A number of well-wishers telegraphed the Prince of Wales on his 37th birthday that they hoped he would be married by the time he reaches 38. That is, we suppose they were well-wishers.

A German professor says it won't be many years until we will all be riding on rockets. We presume the popular warning then will be: "Don't rock the rocket."

A household expert says that the day's dishes should be stacked until evening and then be washed all at one time, to save duplication of effort. Yes, but just think how hard that would be on father who comes home all tired out from a couple of conferences on the golf course.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

The first effect of the proposal of President Hoover for a moratorium on debt and reparations payments for a year, was to revive drooping spirits in Europe and America, and to cause a reversion of feeling, which was immediately reflected in the stock and commodity markets. A greater significance lies in the fact, however, that the president, by a neat stroke of diplomacy, has virtually "put it up to Europe," so to speak.

This is exactly as it should be and the result should have a very salutary effect on sentiment in the United States as well as in Europe. For years Uncle Sam has been belabored and criticized by our internationalists at home and the politicians abroad because he has not "done something." Just what he was to do, according to the views of these critics, ranged all the way from cancelling the war debts to abolishing the tariff and throwing open the markets of America to the cheap labor of Europe.

The criticism of Uncle Sam has been all the more violent since the world-wide depression, for which of course he was not responsible. The Young plan served to steady international conditions for a time, but the coming of the depression and the fall in prices has so changed international values that the world was faced with a collapse of German credit groung out of the reparations payments.

At this time, when people were beginning to fear gravely for the immediate future of Central Europe, and for the devastating effects of a collapse there would have on the rest of the world, President Hoover made the move for a year's postponement of debt payment, which completely changed the picture, from a psychological standpoint at least. And the President has put it up to Europe to "follow suit." He has made the first move and can do no more unless the nations of Eurpe enter wholeheartedly into the scheme of restoring confidence and prosperity.

It is now up to Europe. The mere acquiescence will not be sufficient. Twelve months will roll around all too soon and unless something constructive is done in the meantime, it goes without saying that the same evils will be upon us again. There can be little doubt that another cry will go up for debt cancellation, but Americans will not forget that the leading nations of Europe are now spending a great deal more in enlarging their armies and navies, and in getting ready for the next year, than they are sending to the United States. An agreement to limit these armaments will make it necessary for European nations to repudiate their debts to the United States.

There can be little doubt that we are on the threshold of sweeping changes in the European situation. Whether they will be changes for the better or worse depends now on the nations of Europe and the degree of cooperation they can maintain among themselves. Uncle Sam has made the first move in seeking the twelve months postponement of debt and reparations payments. He cannot help Europe further unless Europe decides first to tighten its belt, to retrench all along the line, and to seek cooperation among the various nations of the continent.

President Hoover has now given the nations of Europe a splendid opportunity to prove that they want to help themselves and to pull out of their difficulties. If they cooperate and show the proper spirit of giving and taking they can pull out. But if they miss the opportunity which Uncle Sam has given them and decide to sink further into the mire they will never get a similar chance. The American people will become convinced that they are not sincere, that they put politics above cooperation, and their interantional friends on this side of the Atlantic will be silenced forever.

A REPLY TO TARIFF HOKUM

The manner in which the present tariff schedules have been of especial benefit to the American farmer is shown by a comparison of the increases on farm products with increases allowed on industrial products.

The American Farm Bureau Federation, the largest of all the country's organizations of agriculturalists, has succintly reviewed the tariff facts as to what the Smoot-Hawley measure does for the farmer, in a letter written by Mr. Chester H. Gray, Washington representative, to President Thompson of the Federation of the State Farm Bureaus. He presents a table showing what happened to products of agriculture by comparison with the products of industry.

The computed ad valorem rate on industrial products in the schedules of 1922 was 37.35 per cent; in the schedules of 1930, 42.83 per cent. The per cent of increase in the 1930 act over the 1922 base was only 14.6 per cent.

The computed ad valorem rate on agricultural products in the schedules of 1922 was 22.37 per cent; in the schedules of 1930, 33.94 per cent. The per cent of increase in the 1930 act over the 1922 base here was 51.6 per cent!

The protection to agricultural products was increased nearly 3.54 times as much as the protection to industrial products.

It will be seen, as Mr. Gray points out, that the 1930 tariff reduced the spread which existed between the protection of industrial and agricultural products by 40.6 per cent.

But this is not the whole story. Seventy-five items were removed from the free list of the 1922 law to the dutiable list of the 1930 law. And 80 per cent of these were so removed at the request of agriculture.

The farmer will do well to ask himself how greatly he would have been served, in such a depression crisis, by a set of tariff schedules such as prevailed in the last Democratic tariff law (the Underwood Act of 1913) when the following farm products were on the free list: Alfalfa, bacon, ham, beef, veal, buckwheat, casein, cattle, clover seed, corn, cheese, cream, fresh eggs, lard, milk, mutton, pork, potatoes, sheep, swine, rye, wheat and wool.

Neither the farmer nor the industrial worker can easily be deceived by the Democratic anti-tariff smoke-screen, behind which operate the international banking interests with their projects for debt cancellation, League of Nations membership and a general system of American entanglement in foreign affairs—eager to force down American living standards to the Old World level. The present anti-tariff talk is hokum, simple and undiluted.—Ft. Wayne Newe-Sentinel.

NO TIME TO DISCOURAGE BUSINESS

This is a poor year for "baiting" the electric industry.

Our economic progress probably depends more on this industry than on any other. It has been making a consistent increase in the investment of new capital and sale of power to the public. As a result it has become the apple of the political eye.

But now the electric industry is beginning to feel the recession of business activity. Sale of power during 1931 has been below the level of the preceding two years—though electric facilities and investment are greater than ever before. The decline has not been destructive, however, and the earning record of this industry has been one of the bright spots in the business world. Hence, it is only the part of wisdom to give it all reasonable support and official aid. This does not mean that we should relax regulatory functions in the interest of the people, but it does mean that it will be an economic and social calamity for the country if we fail to give power a "fair break."

Denunciations and criticism may be a diversion when everybody is prosperous and money is growing on trees—but in other times it is poor business to discourage the industry which is a leader in stimulating and maintaining employment and living standards, and payng regular dividends on the savings of millions of investors.

The MAN in the MOON

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

This World—Somebody has said that the only difference in a boom and a panic is the degree of optimism with which people look out on things in general. If that is the case, let's all get busy and get optimistic. One thing we all DO know, and that is that the guy who goes around with a long face looking for something to mourn over usually finds it. No matter if the world IS growing worse all the time (and always was) we can't do anything about it. This old world is the only one we have, after all, so why not make the most of it? Look for something bad and you'll find it—look for better times and we'll have 'em, sure as shootin'.

We're All Gamblers—Yes, sir, we're all gamblers, sure as you're a foot high. Sure, some are bigger gamblers than others, but the funny part about it all is that the bigger gamblers we are, the more successful we are, as a rule. Laugh that off—but it's true. I told a fellow that the other day and almost had to run—boy, he was mad, because he was a preacher. But, he was a farmer, too. I had to sort of laugh it off with him to get him back in a good humor, too. And then I explained to him what I meant. And when I had explained fully, the old boy scratched his head and admitted that he was both a gambler and a foolish one at that. He was one of the farmers who had buried about a thousand bucks in fertilizer, depending on his cotton to pay him out. Before he finisned telling how many different kinds of dunces, boobs and what-nots he was, I thought he was getting mad again, so I moved on.

Nothing New—Lots of people seem to think President Hoover has shown himself to be mighty smart, the way he thought up this moratorium, debt "carry-over" idea. Shucks, nothing new about that. I know lots of fellows who have been being carried over from year to year so long that they have given up the idea of EVER paying up. Yea, verily, there is nothing new under the sun.

Blocking Traffic—I noted in a newspaper the other day where some town had given autoists the right to park out in the street until they could put out or take on passengers or goods. That's funny! They do that here without being ALLOWED to do it. And how they do it. Anybody wanting to know how that job is REALLY done up right should just drop around here about 9:00 o'clock some pretty morning and take lessons from a few of the bread trucks, transport company freight wagons, and busses. I don't know how they ever manage to get that many of the big fellows in such a little place at one time. But they do, and for the rest of us, all we CAN do is just wait—or maybe cuss and wait all at the same time. Notice it, some time—or maybe the right admonition is to try to keep from noticing it some time.

Everything Delivered—Times are certainly getting to be good. It used to be that if you wanted anything, you had to hitch up "Old Beck" and go get it. Not that way any more, though. Nope! Nowadays we can have anything we want, almost, not only delivered at the door but all the way inside the house. I mean anything, too. One morning last week (so one fellow tells me) a nice example of that we enacted. While that man was taking on a late breakfast, the grocer brought in the day's batch of eats—he was followed shortly by the laundry man—pretty soon the coal man began dumping next winter's supply in the basement—all the while the maid and cook were in the next room with the radio doing a double shuffle by music brought in from far off Chicago—until the good madan ran 'em out long enough to have an evangelist pitch his big tent in there and begin evangelizing. The old boy let all this soak in, and then rose from the table to go out and make the cash to pay for all this. "Money is the only thing they will not bring me—I gotta go get that," he said.

To Golf Or Not To Golf—They all fall sooner or later. Clanton has withstood the golf bug for a long time, but he's getting in at last. Nearly every little burg the size of Clanton, and some of them smaller, have already had a golf course arranged for them, and now Clanton is to have one a mile south of town. I have already noted several of the boys down there taking swings at the little pills, and I have noted one thing—they start out swinging and wind up cussin." Strange to say, they all, sooner or later, say the same old thing: "It looks easy, but it ain't."

Those Negroes—The eight negroes that were sentenced to die in the electric chair have certainly had the waters muddied for them. Now comes another wire all the way from Europe pleading "in the name of all that is sane and humanitarian" that they be spared. I think it's a good thing that those fellows who are doing all that worrying and wiring are on the other side of the big pond, else a bunch of our good old mountaineers who hung negroes and "hoss thieves" before "reds" and "communists" were ever thought of might make an object lesson of the likes of them. Yep! They're lucky, those fellows.

Let Nothing Go To Waste—Since times are so hard, we hear a lot of palaver about making the most of everything we get a chance at. I believe in that, too. And just to show you that I DO believe in it, I saw a watermelon fall off a truck and burst, just now, and I'm hot-footin' over to make the most of it. Wouldn't you?—The Man in the Moon.

Money Lenders—Three per cent of the wages and salaries paid this year to Americans will be owed, at any given time, to money lenders and loan sharks. The total, a round billion dollars, is almost as much as people borrow on their life insurance policies or from building and loan associations.

Training In Obedience—The surest way to encourage reasonable obedience in a child is not to give him too many others.

In football language, President Hoover grabbed the ball and carried it to the one yard line and it's now up to Europe to make a touchdown.

Movie Miracle—Around the world, habits 1,000 years old are being challenged by the vogue for talking pictures.

Seventeen To One—At the present time, there are 17 one-dollar bills in circulation for every two-dollar bill, and almost twice as many $10.000 bills are traveling around as $5,000 bills.

HUCKLEBERRIES

The huckleberry crop is fast drawing to a close, although a few are now seen every day. To sum up the volume of business it is well to talk to Mr. E. O. Johnson, of Talladega Springs, who has bought these berries for a number of years, and who this year purchased 5,400 gallons, paying out a little more than $3,000. Mr. Johnson says that much of this money went to people who were in actual need, and that this cash tided them over at a most vital time. He says it is almost impossible to estimate the added wealth that this county could have if its entire berry crop was saved and some means was worked out to prevent burning the forests.

At the opening of the season berries were purchased at 85 cents per gallon, but later dropped to 25 cents. The average price paid was 55 cents.

The largest shipping center was Talladega Springs, which shipped 9,000 gallons. Childersburg and Sylacauga shipped 9,000 gallons, making the crop in this end of the county amount to 18,000 gallons, bringing the pickers $9,900 in cash on a crop that it cost nothing to raise.—Sylacauga News.

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

Good morning, folks! The Sweeper is being farmed out this week and next to our neighbors, The Prattville Progress. No, we are not doing any "sweeping" down here in Prattville. Martin Doster, the manager of this place, is attending camp at McClellan with the Prattville Dragoons and we were honored with the job of substituting for him while away.

Sure we can do most anything that comes to hand in the average printing office as well as keep things swept clean. Here in Prattville we will mostly see that their model 14 Linotype delivers the necessary type to fill up the paper. We find here a very nice country shop—some recent changes in shop layout and a general going over of the interior of the place has made a decided improvement in the general appearance of the shop.

Since coming to Prattville, The Sweeper has heard considerable complaint about the drouth. There seems to be a universal need for rain in this county. However, we also find a most splendid spirit of making the best of what is to be had. This is more to be noticed among the business men of the community in their reactions to the financial situation caused by the recent closing of the last bank in Autauga County.

Autauga and Prattville have a game bunch of business men and citizens who refuse to be counted out, although they may be temporarily "down." Such a spirit is to be commended when found in a community which has been hit as hard financially as has Prattville and Autauga County.

We also wish to comment briefly upon some of the things which are near to the hearts of a great majority of the farmers of Chilton County. And when we say farmers, we are talking about the greater part of the population of our county. We refer here to the action taken by the commissioners court at its last meeting, wherein the salary of the County Agent was reduced and the work of the Child Welfare Department discontinued. The Sweeper has not examined the minutes of the court to verify this statement, but we speak from information given out by one of the county commissioners.

In view of the magnitude of the work carried on by our county agent and his office, we feel that the results obtained through his efforts, and the ultimate value of those results when measured in terms of dollars and cents to the people of Chilton County are of such proportions as to well justify not only the salary the agent has been drawing from the county, but even a larger one. Although there was some sort of half-hearted effort being made in the county in the way of strawberry raising before the county agent was secured, it is and has been largely through his effort and direction that our two strong and live berry associations have been either formed or put on a profitable and paying basis. We are firm in our opinion that had it not been for the work and efforts of our county agent, Chilton County would not have sold nearly two hundred thousand dollars worth of strawberries this year.

And not only has the work and influence of this agent been felt in the strawberry operations, but in all other branches of farm activities as well. Dairy herds have been improved under his direction and farmers have been taught to enrich their lands and increase their yields by winter legumes and crop rotation. Again we say had the county agent been getting double what the county has been paying, he would have still been well worth the money! Let our commissioners reconsider their action and raise Mr. Stapp's salary instead of cutting it.

With considerable opinion to the contrary nothwithstanding, we are very much in sympathy with the operation of the Child Welfare Department. Here is a branch of government supervision that really reaches the sources of poverty and provides a remedy and help to those who need such services—a help that comes to people who would not ask for or get it from any other surce. And about 99 per cent of the activities of this welfare department reach deserving people. No one wishes to accept charity until forced to do so, but unfortunately some have to resort to this at times.

With a Child Welfare Department operative in our county we could be assured that all our needy children, those who are undernourished and underclothed would be cared for and receive such medical attention and clothing and books as necessary that they might attend school and secure a sufficient education as would fit them to fight the battle of life in this rapidly moving world. Let us think long and seriously before we place obstacles in the path, and withdraw such assistance from our unfortunate children as that administered through the activities of the Child Welfare Department.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw—
and Some He Saw Not.

Good morning. Had any rain yet? Any ripe watermolens? The conversation might go on for some minutes. Have a cigarette. Oh, yes, I see you are smoking Target. Well, that's all right. Lots of us are doing it these days. The B & W special, advertising Target, has got Charley McCall's broadcasting outfit beat a mile.

The dry spell in Beat 16 was broken by a fairly good rain Sunday night and Monday. The neighborhood around Providence has been about the dryest part of the county during this summer. It looks like it is too late for rain or anything else to help the corn crop very much. Down next to the river, however, there has been plenty of rain. The farm of Mr. Frank Higgins right on the river shows prospects for a very fine crop of both corn and cotton.

Arthur Chandler, of Bethsalem community, was a visitor to Clanton last Saturday. He spent a while in a neighborly visit with the Man on the Corner. We talked about many things. The expressions of Mr. Chandler on the subject of the relation of the city dweller to the rural dweller was interesting. We finally agreed to the conclusion that there is not much difference. We are all just plain old hill billies. Us fellows in town have just strayed off from our raising a little bit.

Rev. S. J. Ezell, accompanied by Mrs. Ezell, John and Grace, left Sunday at noon on their vacation trip. Their first stop was scheduled for Eatonton, Georgia, where they expected to spend Monday and Tuesday. The Ezells lived at Eatonton before coming to Clanton. Wednesday they planned to continue the journey to their old home at Chesnee, South Carolina, to spend two or three weeks with home folks. During the absence of the pastor, there will be no preaching services at Clanton Baptist Church. Sunday school and other activities, of course, will be carried on as usual.

Broadus Connatser, first baseman of the New Orleans baseball team, stopped over in Clanton Monday to greet his friends and homefolks. He spent Monday night with his father and mother at Thorsby. Local baseball fans extended Broadus a hearty greeting. They have been following his activities in the game this year with much interest. If they had known he was getting off the train here Monday morning, I expect they would have had the brass band out to meet him. The New Orleans club plays in Birmingham all this week. Many Clanton folks will attend the games. I wouldn't know which team to pull for. Alabama fans are for Birmingham in the pennant race, but Clanton is for Broadus always.

An all night fishing expedition to Lock 18 Monday night brought plenty of thrills and fish to Joe Mims, Jelly Bean, and M. D. Foshee. They brought back about a hundred pounds. They had yaller cats from 45 pounds all the way down to four and five. All they caught less than four pounds they threw back into the river.

W. A. Reynolds is ready to open up his gasoline and filling station business at the forks of the road south of Clanton. He will start off next Saturday with a big special day. His price on gas is low, and he expects to cause a revolution in the business hereabouts. Wouldn't it be fine if the gas companies would start a war so we could get our motor fuel for about ten cents a gallon for a while.

Will Culp and Akins Collins are getting lined up for taking over their duties as Tax Collector and Tax ssessor of Chilton County. They will not have much to do until tax paying time gets here October the first. Meanwhile Sam Pate and Tom Rockett are getting their part of the business wound up so the new officers will have a clean place to start.

Considerable interest has been aroused over the possibility of getting the government fish hatchery located in Chilton County. Several proposed sites for location of the hatchery have been offered through the commissioners court. Judge Reynolds is in communication with Congressman W. B. Oliver about the matter. Mr. Oliver will arrange for representatives of the government bureau of fisheries to come here and officially inspect the sites offered. The hatchery ought, it seems to me, to be located in proximity to the vast inland lakes of Central Alabama. I hope that suitable situations for it will be chosen in Chilton County.

Work on the Chilton County jail continues to go forward. It is a slow process, though. Alteration of a building built out of huge chunks of rock is a hard task. Appearances at present indicate that the building will have a much better appearance when the workmen get through with the job.

Another picnic is in the offing. The Mens Class of Clanton Baptist Church have started another attendance contest. John Lawrence is head of the Reds and Arthur Willis is leading the Blues. When the campaign is over the losing side will have to set the whole crowd up to another picnic. We had a wonderful time last year, and everybody will want to get in on it again this year. The last plea of the pastor when he left for his vacation was "Boys, don't pull off the picnic until I get back."

Soil building is being stressed by County Agent Stapp. His plan and method is to accomplish soil building through growing legumes, hairy vetch and winter peas. Our farmers should get into this campaign in dead earnest. A series of meetings are being advertised by Mr. Stapp, in which he will discuss soil building crops in every part of the county. It means money in the pocket of every farmer who follows the plan of soil building by using vetch and peas.

Chilton County Post of the American Legion is going to try a fiddlers convention on July 24th. The co-operation and patronage of the public for this occasion is earnestly solicited. Every fiddler in the county is invited to compete for a prize.

The Kiwanis Club of Clanton is joining with the people of the Maplesville community in a picnic and get together meeting this evening at Maplesville. Earle Thomas, chairman of the Kiwanis committee on Agriculture, is in charge of the program.

Year's Biggest Disaster—Every individual in the land was affected in some way by the great American drought of 1930. It was by far the worst disaster of its kind in history.

JAMES C. FORSYTH APPRECIATES UNION-BANNER

Editor Union-Banner:

As others are writing you all the time telling you how much they appreciate The Union-Banner, I thought I'd drop you a few lines and tell you how I enjoy reading it.

On several occasions since I have been here I have got important news of my relatives in Clanton before I heard from them about it. When my mother was stricken with paralysis just before Christmas, the first I knew of it was when I saw a little news item about her being admitted to the hospital, in the hospital notes. I immediately wired Dr. Gragg and got full particulars.

The notice I saw in the paper this week is all the news I have got so far of my Uncle Tom Thornton's death.

When I get through with my copy of the paper I pass it along to Grady Baker, who used to work at Bates Garage and at Verbena. He says he likes to keep up with the folks at Clanton. He is clerking here at one of Metcalf's stores.

I'll close for this time, wishing the paper continued prosperity, but not the Hoover kind.—Your friend, J. C. Forsyth, 743 First Ave., Columbus, Georgia.

Mrs. K. M. Vinson and children returned home to Sandersville, Ga., last Friday, after a week's visit to relatives and friends in Clanton.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

Walter Chrysler

The boy spent his time watching the old wood-burning engines of the Union Pacific sputter and chug into the shops for repairs and overhauling. He chatted with the mechanics, sometimes being gruffly ordered to get out of the way, ran errands for them when they were good natured, and learned, as he watched, that skilled hands can do wondrous things with the proper tools.

Thus Walter Chrysler, early in life developed the liking for mechanic that has aided him so much in gaining such a signal success later on in life.

He was born in western Kansas in 1876. Wamego, a typical prairie hamlet, was his birthplace. His father, an engineer for the Union Pacific railroad, moved to Ellis, a nearby town, when Walter was a little fellow.

The lad grew up there in the atmosphere of engines and the din of repair work, for the shops of the Union Pacific were located at Ellis. He would watch his father start his run in the primitive locomotives of half a century ago. He would be waiting for him on his return from across the prairie.

The youngster aspired to follow in the footsteps of his father and become a first class mechanic. He inherited a liking for machinery from his parent. The contacts and associations of the railroad center served to strengthen his inclinations. He never thought seriously of following any career other than a mechanical one.

The elder Chrysler piloted the first coal burning locomotive owned by the Union Pacific, which is indication enough that he was regarded as the pick of the engineers on the road. His son came naturally enough by his mechanical bent, it would seem.

The Ellis roundhouse and shops saw much of young Chrysler in the time he could spare from school.

During the summers he didn't have so much time to loiter around the railroad shops. He worked for a grocer as an errand boy and clerk in the vacation periods. His earnings helped the family. Times were none too good in Kansas in those days.

When he was seventeen and had received the best common school education he could obtain in Ellis he decided that it was high time for him to begin to earn his own living and to acquire a trade.

He tried and passed an examination to become a machinist's apprentice in the Ellis shops. He had to make his own tools as he went along. His kit, consisting of assorted calipers, dividers, balanced hammers, test indicator and combination square, was all made with his own hands, before he was eighteen.

After a year in the shops he was skilled enough to build a miniature steam locomotive. It was complete in every detail, including air brakes. He built a track in his back yard and gave demonstrations of how the contrivance would run.

Tired as he was from a hard day's work in the shops the youngster read magazines and books on engineering subjects to round out the practical knowledge he was gaining as a machinist's helper. At the end of four years of strict application to his job he was earning 22½ cents an hour as a first class journeyman mechanic.

Then he got the itching foot and decided to see something of the country. He worked for a time in western shops, finally settling in Salt Lake City where his pay was 27½ cents an hour. There he repaired a locomotive's blown off cylinder head in two hours so that it could pull out the fast mail on schedule time.

This feat brought him the job as foreman of the Colorado & Southern shops in Trinidad, Colo. Next he became superintendent of motive power for the Chicago & Great Western. Still thirsting for knowledge and a chance to broaden himself, he accepted the place as manager of the American Locomotive company in Pittsburgh.

He got his first chance in the automobile business with the Buick company, again accepting a big salary cut for the opportunity. With him the prospects for the future have always outweighed immediate rewards. What he did with Buick, General Motors, Willys-Overland, Maxwell-Chalmers and his own product constitutes one of the most outstanding achievements in the automobile industry.

Today his headquarters are in New York, where his ancestor, Tuenis Van Dolsen, was the first male child born in the days when the city was New Amsterdam. It is a far cry from the sun-baked prairies of Kansas to a position in a leading industry and to offices atop the highest building in the metropolis, a structure that bears his name.

But that is the place to which the box of tools made by Walter Chrysler, on his first job, helped carry him. He still has the implements that started him on the path to fame and fortune. Nor has he forgotten how to use them.

More about Rural Church Conference

M. LOCKHART WRITES MORE ABOUT HIS AUBURN TRIP

Editor Union-Banner:

I will write a few more lines, as I promised to do, on the Rural Church Conference, recently held at Auburn.

There were many things of great interest and importance demonstrated to us, but I shall just sketch two or three more things.

First, I will say a few words in regard to forestry and reforestation, which they have on experiment. I think it would be of interest to any one to walk over the forest and see the different experiments. They have plots that are burned off annually, some that are burned every five years, and some that are never burned. I consider that in the course of time this will prove most valuable for the good of our forests.

One of the interesting features of the Tuesday morning program was a demonstration of some of the dresses made through the clothing home demonstration work. Miss Dorothy Dean, extension specialist in clothing and handicraft, was in charge. The following will probably be of interest to the ladies:

Mrs. V. V. Mitchell of Tallassee Route 2, Elmore County, made in clothing renovation, a nice looking, linen suit from one of her husband's suits. Mrs. Mitchell said: "My husband has worn this suit for several years, and he won't wear it any more. The suit has two pair of trousers and I am going to make me a suit from it.

Probably one of the most interesting features was the dresses made from sacks. Mrs. D. S. Foster, of Lee County, wore an afternoon dress made from sacks, and dyed a lovely blue. The dress was made by Mrs. M. E. Bishop of Talladega County, at a cost of 12 cents. Miss Sophie Foster wore a sport ensemble, white dress, blue coat, white hat lined with blue, and a blue pocket book. Every article was made from sacks. Mrs. T. D. Orr of Lee County wore a coat suit made of chicken feed sacks. It took four sacks to make the dress and coat, at a cost of five cents. Mrs. M. S. Famby of Elmore County, wore a green ensemble made of fertilizer sacks, which cost 12 cents. Letters can be easily removed from sacks by using the following method:

1. Soak sacks in a tub of cold water over night. This loosens the dye in the sacks.
2. Wash sacks in warm, soapy water the following morning.
3. Boil sacks in soapy water, adding one tablespoonful of borax to a gallon of water.
4. Rinse twice.

Hope this well prove worthwhile to our mothers. If you will read again with me next, I will give you an interesting experiment on rats.—M. Lockhart.

Why Drive in Danger WHEN THE WORLD'S SAFEST TIRES COST SO LITTLE?

FIRESTONE Tires are the safest tires in the world, because of inbuilt patented construction features—Gum-Dipped Cords, Patented Double Cord Breaker, and Tough, Thick Non-Skid Tread, which give—

58% longer flexing life in every cord
56% stronger bond between tread and cord body
26% greater protection against punctures and blowouts
25% longer non-skid wear
25% to 40%, longer tire life

Firestone saves millions of dollars annually through economies in buying, manufacturing, and distributing to give these extra values at lowest prices in the history of tire building. We have a complete line of Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires for you to choose from. Every Firestone Tire bears the name "Firestone", and is doubly guaranteed by Firestone and by us.

Come in TODAY—we will make full allowance for the unused mileage in your old tires. Let us show you how little it will cost you to equip with Firestone High Speed Tires—and eliminate the danger of worn tires.

Heat

Heat results from the agitation of molecules of which every substance consists. Most of this earth's heat comes directly or indirectly from the sun, and all life depends on it. The sun has an estimated temperature of 10,000 degrees (F.) and if it should cool all life would eventually cease to exist and the earth would become cold like the moon.

FELT SICK AFTER EATING

"None of my food agreed with me — I would frequently taste what I ate, long after my meals, and I did not see a well day for weeks," says Mr. Peter Seeger, 329 S. Elmwood St., Kansas City, Mo. "I began taking a pinch of Black-Draught after each meal, and kept this up for weeks. Gradually the pain left me and I began to feel better. I ceased to be troubled with gas, and could eat what I liked." FNA-11

REVIVAL AT MT. SPRINGS

Our revival will begin here next Saturday, July 18, conducted by our pastor, Rev. A. C. Nelson, and Rev. Dopson, as helper.

Bro. Dopson is well known at this place, and we will be glad to have him with us in this meeting. Everybody has a special invitation to attend these services. We stand for unity. Let's all work and pray with and for one another. God has no respect of persons, so let us all come out to these meetings with a heart filled with love and prayer, and God will bless us, and our meeting will be a great success. We especially invite our neighboring churches to come and help us. Visitors are always welcome at Mt. Springs.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC

Last Tuesday, July 7, the Intermediate Sunday School Class of Liberty Hill went on a picnic to Log Cabin Beach. This is an annual affair, and is looked forward to all during the year.

The picnicers were a jolly crowd, and had lots of good wholesome fun. At the noon hour a picnic lunch was served to Miss Eula Foshee, Mrs. Frances Lowery, Mr. and Mrs. Wilburn Ward, Chaperones; Misses Annie and Pauline Chambers, Luettie Cooper, Eunice Holley, Annie Mae Bice, Nell Melton, Amye Gray, Gertie Lee Taylor, Lorine Headley, Mary and Lottie Scarborough, Messrs. Marvin Lowery, T. J. Headley, Howard Maddox, Sam and Buck Chambers, Harlow Thornton, Cornelious Hand, Hiram Littlejohn and Zane Lowery.

OAK GROVE

There will be childrens day and singing at this place next Sunday, July 19. We will have Billie Milstead, and many others, we can't mention. Everybody come and bring your dinner and 1931 song books, and meet your friends, and spend the day together. Oak Grove is on the Birmingham highway, two miles north of Jemison. We are looking for the United Singing Society, and several from Jefferson and Shelby counties. Be sure to come by 9 a. m.—W. J. Northcutt.

SINGING SCHOOL AT MT. PISGAH CHURCH

There will be a twenty-day singing school held at Mt. Pisgah church, beginning on Monday, July 20th, and taught by Prof. Emmett Wilson. Rates in reach of all.

Revival services also begin at this place July 19th. Everybody invited to come and worship with us. Rev. J. F. Limbrick will do the preaching.—Jake Henley.

Somebody complains because the price of bread hasn't gone down. But, what is more important to most folks, the price of gasoline has.

Editor Union-Banner:

We will thank you very much if you will give us space to publicly express our thanks and appreciation to our friends and neighbors who were so good to us and to our dear old mother during her long illness. We pray God's richest blessings on all of you, our friends. When sorrow and misfortune comes your way, we hope to be able to be as good and helpful to you as you were to us—J. W. E. SINGING SCHOOL AT POPLAR

Prof. W. M. Devaughn announces that he will open a singing school at Poplar Springs church on Monday, August 3rd. It will continue for 18 days. If you will be interested in attending the school you should get in touch with Prof. Devaughn at once.

An exchange expresses the hope that the first thing Gandhi does when he comes to the United States will be to go to a dentist. He'd better not do that if he expects to have enough money left to buy any new clothes.

Senators Walsh of Montana and Caraway of Arkansas want a special session of Congress to remedy the drought situation in the Northwest. But we doubt whether even Congress could make it rain.

It seems that some nations not only want assistance but want to be paid for accepting assistance.

CENTRAL SINGERS WILL MEET AT MAPLE SPRINGS SUNDAY

The Central Singing Society will meet with the Maple Springs class next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. All singers have an invitation to attend, as well as all lovers of music.

The society met at Providence last Sunday afternoon and had a real good singing. It is kindly getting back on its feet again now, and let's keep it going strong. This can be done only by people attending the society. We must have singers and we must have listeners to make the thing interesting and worth while.

"Vetch will make your land rich."

"Austrian Winter Peas make nitrogen while you sleep."

Plant five acres of vetch or peas per plow.

"Five acres of corn, per plow, following vetch or peas will make all the corn the average farmer needs."

"Will your land be more or less fertile three years from now? Austrian peas or vetch will make it more fertile."

"Watermelons grow mighty big following vetch and Austrian peas."

We hope that President Hoover's next constructive step will be to declare a moratorium on saxaphone players and radio crooners.

HOW ONE MAN LOST 22 POUNDS

Mr. Herman Runkis of Detroit, writes: "A few lines of thanks from a rheumatism sufferer—My first bottle of Kruschen Salts took all of the aches and swellings out of my joints—with my first bottle I went on a diet and lost 22 pounds and now feel like a new man."

To lose fat safely and quickly take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning—an 85 cent bottle lasts 4 weeks—Get it at Alred Drug Company, or any drug store in America.

If not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.

Bear Cat Gas 14c

— AT —

BROWNIE'S PLACE

OPENING DAY

Saturday, July 18

On next Saturday, July 18, I will open a new gasoline filling station 200 yards south of Upchurch Drug Store on the highway. I have built a side track and will install a large tank and buy gas by the car load. This will enable me to buy cheaper, and I am going to sell to you cheaper.

I ask those who buy gas to give me your patronage. I will handle the best grade anti-knock gasoline, and give my customers the very best courteous service. My opening day price will be 14 cents, and I will give one quart of the best heavy Texas oil free with each purchase of five gallons of gas on next Saturday, July 18.

No doubt the big oil companies will cut their prices to meet my price, but just remember one thing, the big companies have been operating 20 years and they have not cut the price. The only place you can buy gas cheap is where youfind independent gas companies.

I have gone to a very great expense in order to give you a good high grade gas at a much cheaper price. All I ask is an opportunity to serve you. You stick to me and I will stick to you.

Yours for Business,

W. A. Reynolds

CONCORD—BILLINGSLEY

We received a good rain during the past week for which we are very thankful.

The singing was very well attended here last Sunday afternoon, but we would like to have more singers to come and help us in our singings. We extend to all a cordial invitation to come and be with us each first Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Henley and family of Selma were visiting here the latter part of the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Williams and children dined at the home of Mrs. W. H. Little Sunday.

Mrs. C. A. Surles and family, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Turner, Mrs. Willie Mae Weldon, visited Mrs. J. L. Sheppard of Clanton Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Williams and children spent Saturday night with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. Lon Buzbee and family of Clanton Route 3 spent the past week end with Mr. and Mrs. Freddie Waites.

Mr. and Mrs. Alonza Baker were the week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. O. N. Williams.

Miss Connie Shaw left Saturday for Coosa County, where she will spend some time with friends and relatives.

CALF CLUB MEETING

On Thursday, June 18, the Clanton Calf Club met at its usual meeting place at Mr. Stapp's office. The club had with them, Mr. F. W. Burns, a livestock specialist from Auburn.

The boys enjoyed a trip to the farm of Judge Reynolds, near the cotton mill, to judge hogs. All the boys made splendid placings and ratngs. We came back to town and were carried to the Kiwanis club, where everyone enjoyed a good dinner. Here Mr. Stapp called on three of the boys to make talks on judgng hogs, dairy cattle and to tell the difference between dairy and beef cattle.

Mr. Burns was called on to explain the purpose of all the 4-H clubs.

After lunch we were carried to the barn of Mr. Bay Fiquette, to judge dairy cattle. On account of Mr. Burns having to leave we adjourned until the next meeting.

THOMAS JR. 4-H CLUB NEWS

The Thomas Jr. 4-H Club held a picnic at Oscar Norman's camp Thursday, July 9th. We had a most enjoyable time; good swimming.

Mr. Walter Moore was kind enough to carry us down. He and Mr. Bud Parrish were chaperones.

Those present were Newburn Jones, Hollis Thornton, Lee Allen Miner, Roy Smith, Osmond Glenn, Argus Pressley, Earl Dukes, Gerrell Miller, Erskine Parrish, George Moore, Aaron Guy. Mr. Stapp spent the afternoon with us.

The club held its regular meeting Saturday, July 11th. We are working on a county-wide vetch campaign. Our club is working for the prize to be awarded to the club getting the most and largest order.

Our club suggests that every club member go before the Commissioners Court next time they meet, and ask for help on our camp.

We are going to make a trip over the boys' projects Monday, July 20. All members are urged to be at the school house at 7 o'clock.—A. B. Pressley.

REFUGE

Our pastor, Rev. G. G. Williams, will preach at Refuge next Saturday night and Sunday night. Everybody invited.

These night services will take the place of our regular day services Saturday and Sunday.

SOCIAL SERVICE IN THE EARLY CHURCH

LESSON TEXT—Acts 4:32-35; 6:1-4; 9:36-39; II Cor. 9:1-7.

GOLDEN TEXT—I have shewed you all things, how that so laboring ye ought to support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Sharing With Friends.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Sharing With Friends.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Christians Sharing With Others.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Generosity of the Early Christians.

Social service as such was not a department of church activity. However, the early church was most ready to discharge its social obligations. Members of the body of Christ are sympathetically related.

I. Characteristics of the Early Church (Acts 4:31-35).

1. It was a praying church (v. 31). These early Christians for every need betook themselves to God in prayer.

2. It was a Spirit-filled church (v. 31). When they prayed, the place wherein they were gathered together was shaken and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit.

3. It was a church with a bold testimony (v. 31). The ministers of the early church did not offer any apology for the Bible, but expended their energy in fearlessly preaching it.

4. It was a united church (v. 32). They were all of one heart and soul.

5. It was a generous church (v. 32). They held nothing back from those who had need.

6. Its ministers had a powerful testimony (v. 33).

7. Its members had an unblemished character (v. 33).

II. Appointment of Deacons (Acts 6:1-4).

1. The occasion (v. 1). The church was threatened with disruption over suspected partiality in the distribution of alms. The Grecians felt discriminated against in that their widows were neglected in the "daily ministrations."

2. The issue met (vv. 2-6). A congregational meeting was called, the case placed before the church, and the church instructed to select seven men of good report, filled with the Holy Spirit and wisdom to administer the temporalities of the church, leaving the apostles freedom for prayer and the ministry of God's Word.

3. The ministry of the deacons (v. 7). They looked after the poor, but while distributing alms, they were witnessing for Christ. Social service is a by-product of Christianity and not Christianity itself.

III. The Raising of Dorcas (Acts 9:36-39).

1. Her ministry (v. 36; Cf. v. 39). Her life was full of good works, such as making coats and garments for the poor. Her noble ministry has set in motion countless numbers of needles, and has given incentive to many noble women to follow her example. The good deeds were not merely those which she intended to do, but "which she did."

2. Her death (v. 37). In the midst of a life full of good works she was overtaken by death.

3. Peter sent for (v. 38). In their distress the disciples sent two men urgently to request Peter to come to them. Having heard of the healing of Aeneas at Lydda, which was near, they no doubt believed that he could restore Dorcas to life.

4. Dorcas raised (vv. 39-41). In answer to Peter's prayer Dorcas was "presented alive to the saints and widows."

5. The effect (v. 42). So astounding was this miracle that "many believed in the Lord."

IV. Ministering to the Saints (II Cor. 9:1-7).

The saints in need were Christians at Jerusalem. Many were impoverished because of embracing Christianity. Sending money to the saints at Jerusalem was an expression of affection on the part of these Gentile Christians for the Jews. As an incentive to giving Paul shows:

1. That the volume of reaping is based upon the volume of sowing (v. 6).

2. There should be a heart purpose (v. 7). This calls for intelligence as to the object in giving.

3. Giving should not be of necessity (v. 7). No particular value accrues to the giver who only responds under pressure.

4. God loves a cheerful giver (v. 7). Right understanding of responsibility toward God with reference to temporal possessions will make giving a glorious privilege.

All Who Come

Christ saveth unto the uttermost all who come unto God by him; and it is best to leave Christ to determine where the uttermost lies. What is impossible with men is easy to omnipotent grace.—W. L. Watkinson.

IN MEMORY

On Tuesday afternoon, June 30th, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Varden of Refuge community, and carried away the spirit of their little son, Alonza Rolland.

Weep not dear parents, little brothers and sisters, for the Lord saw fit to call him from this world of pain and woe, to that land of many treasures, which Jesus went to prepare for him.

The tragic way in which he was called home, only adds to the burdens of our hearts. Although we must not permit memory to revive the scene in our minds, for God moves in a mysterious way, his duties to perform, and we must be submissive to his will.

Little Rolland was born January 30th, 1923. He was only 8 years old. His life with us was short, but the joys and pleasures he is now sharing will last forevermore. There is a vacant place, not only in his home but in his community, that never can be filled. We loved his bright face and sunny smiles, but God loved them better than we. So we must say goodbye but not farewell, for we are praying to meet him in heaven and share the same joys he is now sharing.

He was laid to rest at Maple Springs cemetery, with Rev. Lockhart, pastor of Maple Springs church, officiating.—Myrtle Bowles.

CIGARETTE TOBACCO YIELD DOUBLED IN U. S. SINCE 1921

Production of flue-cured tobacco in the United States more than doubled since 1921, according to government estimates. Flue-cured tobacco is used chiefly in the manufacture of cigarettes and the gain in production of this type of tobacco is the result of the increasing numbers of men and women who are reaching for cigarettes. The ever-growing popularity of the cigarette is attributed by authorities in the industry to the fact that people are paying more attention to their adams apples and are using cigarettes from which certain harsh irritants present in all tobaccos have been removed by modern methods of manufacture such as the toasting process including the use of ultra violet rays. According to government records, production of flue-cured tobacco last year amounted to more than 870,000,000 pounds in 1921. Production in 1930 set a new record for flue-cured tobacco, the next largest being about 750,000,000 pounds in 1929.

L. B. MUSGROVE

In the death of Col. L. B. Musgrove the temperance forces of Alabama and the nation suffer a severe loss. For more than twenty years he has been one of the foremost leaders of the prohibition forces of this state. He has been on the headquarters committee of the Alabama Anti-Saloon League, a member of the National Board of Trustees and on the Executive Committee of the Anti-Saloon League of America. During the campaign for the ratification of the 18th amendment he was chairman of the committe for the southern states. In 1924 to 1926 he was chairman of the board of trustees of the National League.

He was a man of outstanding ability, wise in counsel, fearless in standing for the right as he saw it, generous to all righteous causes, a patriotic citizen standing for the best in state and nation and with it all a loyal and devoted son to his unusual mother during her lifetime and to her memory after her death.

Therefore, be it resolved, by the headquarters committee of the Alabama Anti-Saloon League that, in the death of Colonel Musgrove the state and nation lost a loyal patriotic citizen, the church one of its most ardent and benevolent supporters, and the prohibition movement one of its greatest and most tireless workers for a sober and better world.

Be it further resolved; that we extend our sincere sympathy to his bereaved ones and copies of this resolution be sent to the secular and religious press.—J. Bibb Mills, Supt., Alabama Anti-Saloon League.

Mr. W. T. Hand of Jemison was a visitor to Clanton on business last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gentry of Mt. Creek spent Monday here with relatives.

It occurs to us that if you want to become a successful radio singer you must first develop a good pair of adenoids.

ROLAND W. TAYLOR TELLS OF HIS TRIP OUT WEST

A recent interview with Mr. Roland W. Taylor of the Taylor Wholesale Grocery Company, reveals some interesting facts about his recent trip out west. He was accompanied on the trip by Messrs. Jimmie Reeves of Montgomery, W. H. Harper, mayor of Geneva, Ala., and Ira Hansen of Meridan, Miss., another wholesale flour and grain man. The trip was made principally to get first hand views and facts about the big wheat fields of Kansas and other western states.

The party left Clanton by automobile at 6:00 a. m., on the morning of June 18th and went out by way of Birmingham, Athens, Memphis. In Arkansas they passed through Wilson, Blytheville, and Ocela, crossing into Missouri the morning of the 20th. They passed through the Ozark Mountains in Missouri and at Vanburen of that state they visited the largest spring in the United States. At Springfield they bought gasoline at 6 cents a gallon; a large flour mill was visited at this town. Entering the State of Kansas they saw their first oil wells at Winfield. Sunday, June 21st, they spent in Wichita, and on Monday went to Whitewater and were shown through the Whitewater Flour Mills. From this point they went out in the rural districts and visited the large wheat fields. Tuesday was also spent in visiting the wheat fields of Kansas. At Emporia, Kansas, they visited the home of J. C. Penny of chain store fame, also the home of Mr. Allen White, the famous journalist. Out from Ottawa they visited more wheat fields and also went through some flour mills of the city. They went to the home of Jess Willard at Lawrence, Kansas.

One of the most interesting sights of the trip was their visit to the packing plant of Armour and Company at Kansas City, where they saw hundreds of fine cattle and sheep slaughtered to be packed. The largest grain elevator in the world was visited at Kansas City, having a daily capacity of 10,500,000 bushels. Friday they arrived at St. Louis and remained there until Monday, June 28th, when they set out through Illinois and into Kentucky headed for Nashville. They came back into Alabama Tuesday, June 30th, arriving at Clanton at 7:30 p. m.

Other interesting things of the trip were the rice fields of Arkansas, the 1,400 acre park and zoo at St. Louis, and the sublime beauty of the city of Wichita, Kansas. A total of 750 miles was traveled over the wheat fields. Besides the states above mentioned they touched the states of Oklahoma and Indiana. They bought gasoline as cheap as five cents per gallon.

How Decreased Railroad Earnings Affect You

Every reader of this newspaper is directly or indirectly concerned with the prosperous operation of American railroads as will be shown in this announcement. Read it carefully so that you may be impressed with the necessity for greater cooperation with the railroads and more equitable laws and regulations governing other forms of transportation.

At the close of last year 1,350,000 employes were in the service of the railroads, and this figure was over 400,000 less than five years before and fewer than at any time since 1909.

In the past five years this railroad has found it necessary, on account of competing forms of transportation and depressed business, to reduce its force by more than 18,700 employes—men and women who are capable, good citizens and assets to the community in which they live. Railroad employes are patrons of every line of business and professional activity.

Less patronage and lower earnings have forced the railroads to materially reduce their expenditures for fuel, products of iron and steel mills and various items of materials and supplies; numerous stations and ticket offices have been closed and many trains discontinued. These conditions have been observed and felt by almost everyone.

The Railroads Must Earn To Spend

¶ There is scarcely a family in all America that is not affected by railroad prosperity, or lack of it. This is evidenced by the widely-held securities, stocks and bonds, in the hands of the American people; all American institutions, financial, educational, etc., as well as forming the basis of many trust estates. Fourteen billion dollars worth of railroad bonds and ten billion dollars worth of railroad stocks are held by the public and these institutions.

It is to your interest, therefore, to assist the railroads in regaining their lost ground by patronizing them; and by helping them to solve the problems confronting them as the result of unjust and unfair competition with other forms of transportation operating for hire.

THE OLD RELIABLE L&N (LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.)

The steam railroads built this nation. They saved it in time of war and they must continue to be the backbone of its transportation structure. This they cannot do without the active support of travelers and shippers and a fair field of competition.

Our Sunday school is still progressing nicely, although some of our Sunday school members are still hindered from coming to hear the word of God taught on account of sickness, but we all earnestly hope and pray that they will be soon where they can come back and be with us again.

But, there are some who are able, but still don't come to Sunday school. But I hope and pray that God might draw them near to us and make them so interested 'till they will come every Sunday and be with us and help us to make our Sunday school more religious.

Everybody study your lesson and come and bring some one with you next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, and let's all have another good Sunday school.

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E. Norton, Manager)

A good rain lasting forty minutes Sunday afternoon has greatly benefited vegetation and people in and about Thorsby. As frequently happens the country around Thorsby coprious rains for days in advance. As it seems lower levels got it before it hit the high spots on the plateau, where Thorsby is located, which is the highest land in Alabama south of the mountains around Birmingham, while there has not been much change in thermometer records, cooling breezes, especially at night, make life more enjoyable.

Those who want to keep posted as to the movements of our Thorsby contigent of absentees, will be interested to know that Miss Jenkins is spending several days this week in London, England. Mr. V. H. Sutlive has finished his summer course at Howard college, and has scheduled to go to a hospital in Birmingham Saturday to have an operation for appendicitis, but at this writing Tuesday morning, no word has come to us from or about him.

The Howard family, who have been making an extended tour of the northwest and the pacific coast are expected to reach home about the middle of the week. They visited Miss May Stoddard, a former member of Thorsby Institute Faculty at her home in Boise, Idaho , and one who used to be known as Maud Gerald, somewhere in the state of Washington.

The Foss family, who have been as far as points in Minnesota, are expected home Saturday.

The Each family reached their destination at Noble, Oklahoma last Thursday afternoon, and a card received Monday reports all well.

Mrs. Nels Peterson and children who have been visiting kinsfolk in Georgia, returned Friday. The item of most interest to the most people in Thorsby, is the report about the twins born to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Winningham of Atlanta, Ga., Mrs. Winningham being a sister of Mrs. Peterson, known in Thorsby as Miss Nell Shannon. While they remained at the hospital some six weeks after birth, the boy of the pair, didn't do well, and it was thought they would lose him, but as soon as they returned home, where he got a lot of mothers care and natures food for babies, he began to pick up.

Dr. Horace Franklin, having finished his year as intern at Hillman Hospital, to complete his preparation for the practice of medicine, has located at Tallassee, Ala., where in addition to his office in town he has an office at stated hours in a big cotton mill. This seems a good start for a young physician. Dr. Franklin is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Franklin. A Thorsby boy who has spent eight years in preparation for his work. And one whom the whole community wishes success.

Go Where you Please On your Vacation...

Mother likes the mountains—sonny wants to go to camp and so does little sister—dad must work most of the summer—but they may go where they please and still keep together by telephone. Mother and the children may arrange to call dad regularly at a certain time, at office or home. It makes vacations more enjoyable and dispels anxiety to hear the voices of loved ones, telling of the day's happenings.

Calling at a prearranged time enables you to use the cheaper station-to-station service with no risk of missing the person wanted. If you call by number at night there is a still further reduction in cost. In using station-to-station service, ask for the distant telephone by number or location instead of asking for a particular person. When the distant telephone answers you may ask for whomever you want.

Wherever each member of the family goes this summer, the local telephone office will gladly give the cost of calling back home. Just ask for "Long Distance."

WOMAN DIED OF WRECK INJURIES

Body Sent Back To Home In Louisville, Kentucky Sunday

A woman giving her name as Mrs. Adams, age 60 years, of Louisville, Kentucky, died at the Central Alabama Hospital in Clanton last Saturday morning as a result of injuries received in an automobile wreck two miles south of Clanton last Thursday night.

The car of Mrs. Adams, a Ford coupe, was being driven by a young man, Jerome Greenwell, whom the lady had engaged to drive for her from Louisville to Biloxi, Miss. Greenwell stated that he was tired of driving, and went to sleep a time or two. He insisted that they stop and spend the night, but Mrs. Adams would not agree to it, saying she wanted to get to Montgomery before they stopped. It was about midnight when they passed through Clanton.

Greenwell said he went to sleep again soon after they passed here, and the car left the pavement, striking a pole by the side of the road. The Ford coupe was completely demolished. Mrs. Adams was badly cut and bruised. The driver escaped without any injuries. Martin's ambulance was summoned and brought the injured woman to the hospital. Spurgeon Calloway brought in the wrecked automobile.

Martin took charge of the body of Mrs. Adams, and shipped it back to Louisville Sunday morning.

UNCLE DOCK GENTRY ILL

When Is A Pheasant Not A Pheasant?

This Question Answered By Dr. Hinkle For Jim Armstrong

The other day Jim Armstrong went over to Dr. Hinkle's for the purpose of getting an authoritive answer to this question: When is a pheasant not a pheasant?

Here is the answer he got: When you find it is a guinea. And thereby hangs a tale of how Jim's friends worked a good little joke on him.

Jim has a pair of Dr. Gragg's pheasants on his farm. This spring he was very, very anxious for the hen to go to laying. His anxiety and the hen's delay became almost a worry to him.

His brother Cecil and Dr. Hinkle became interested in Jim's exorbitant desire for the pheasant to lay some eggs and hatch her young brood. In order to allay his worries, Cecil carried four guinea eggs from Dr. Hinkle's. Each day for four days he slipped one of them in the pheasant's nest. Jim was happy.

After the guinea eggs had been placed in the nest, the pheasant hen began to lay. In a short time there was a nest full of eggs.

In due time the eggs were hatched and Jim was jubilant over the brood of seventeen young birds. They grew and prospered, but in a few weeks Jim began to worry again. Four of the birds were a whole lot bigger than their brothers and sisters. Jim got suspicious, and the whole mystery broke upon him like a terrific explosion when he asked the question "When is a pheasant not a pheasant," and received the ironic reply "When you find out it is a guinea."

Class Is Initiated By Clanton Grove

Local Officers and Degree Team Participate In Rally

Officers and the degree team of Capitol Grove No. 15, Woodmen Circle, along with several other members of the order, attended a big meeting of the Grove at Clanton last Wednesday night. The Montgomerians were called upon to conduct the initiatory work of the evening when seven candidates were instructed in the ritualistic mysteries of the society with the Montgomery degree team under the command of Mrs. Alma Shores in charge of the floor work.

The Clanton Grove has just recently resumed activity and a large class was in readiness for the meeting. Another class will be received at another meeting to be held at an early date.

So well pleased were the Clanton members with the work of the Montgomery team that a large delegation of Clanton members came down to Montgomery on Friday night to attend the regular meeting of Capitol Grove. Included in this party, headed by Miss Louise Pulliam, were Mrs. E. R. Odom, Mrs. Dudley Tippet, Mrs. Bob Baker, Mrs. Gerthia Snow, Mrs. Jean Wyatt and J. D. Tippet.

The Clanton delegation brought one candidate with them to receive the initiatory degree at the hands of Capitol Grove. This was conducted in an impressive manner with the degree team under command of Mrs. Alma Shores in charge of the floor work.

Following the business session a special committe served refreshments in the banquet hall adjoining the lodge room. During the evening a number of short talks were made and musical selections interesperced in the program.—Montgomery Advertiser.

McCORMICK BOY BROUGHT BACK

Said To Be Man Who Killed John Ed Bearden At Maplesville

Sheriff Gillespie went to Louisville, Mississippi Tuesday and brought back a young man by the name of Dalton McCormick, who is said to be the one who killed John Ed Bearden at Maplesville on May 7, 1922.

The boy who killed Bearden was Milton McCormick. Members of the McCormick family, who now live at Louisville, say that Dalton McCormick, whom the officers brought back here Tuesday, is a younger brother of Milton, the slayer of Bearden.

According to Sheriff Gillespie, Dalton McCormick was arrested in Missisippi on a charge of stealing. When he came up for trial in court a man from Alabama, who knew about the Bearden killing, called the Sheriff to one side and told him this was the man who was wanted for the killing at Maplesville in 1922. Whereupon the Mississippi Sheriff communicated with the Sheriff at Clanton.

A story of the killing of Bearden, printed in The Union-Banner May 11, 1922, relates the circumstances as follows:

"According to the story related by members of the Bearden family, about noon Sunday as they were sitting at dinner, a call for Mr. Bearden was heard out in front of the house. He arose from the table and went to the front door to see who it was calling him. Just as he opened the front door and stepped out on the porch, they say this young man, standing about the front gate, took from behind himself a pump shotgun, firing twice into the bowels of Mr. Bearden. The gun was loaded with number eight bird shot.

"It is said by those who are acquainted with the circumstances leading up to the fatal incident, that young McCormick had been keeping company wth one of Mr. Bearden's daughters for some time, and had been making efforts to marry the girl, to which the father objected. It is said that McCormick had been ordered away from the Bearden home at former times when he went to call on the young lady."

Milton McCormick was brought to jail in Clanton on the day he shot Bearden. Before he came to trial on the indictment, he broke out of jail and got away.

A thorough investigation will be made to determine if the man who was brought back here Tuesday is Milton McCormick, who shot Bearden, or is his brother, Dalton, as represented by himself and members of his family. He is now in jail at Montgomery.

FARM MEETING AT MAPLESVILLE

Clanton Kiwanis Met With Maplesville Business Men and Farmers

Members of the Kiwanis Club of Clanton journeyed over to see our neighbors in the Maplesville community last Thursday night. They gave us a truly great reception, and made us feel that we had been treated to one of the choicest privileges of our lives.

There were about seventy-five went Chilton farmers present, and about all of the business men of the town. The assembly was in the auditorium of the Maplesville High School, where the ladies of the Parent-Teachers Association served us a most delightful dinner.

The Kiwanis Club's interest in this event was in carrying out one of the objectives of Kiwanis to foster a better relation of friendliness and understanding among all peoples in the communities where the clubs are located. Similar meetings have been held at various places in the county in the past.

The business men of Maplesville expressed their interest in and approval of the movement when it was first suggested that the Kiwanis Club have such a meeting at Maplesville. They at once determined that they would get right into the plan of arrangements and do their part in making it a successful venture. They did their part in fine style. The interest shown by the business men of Maplesville went a long way toward making the success of the meeting, as well as adding to the enjoyment of all who were present.

The farmers who came were a happy, jolly, good natured lot of fellows, among whom one could not help but have a happy time.

The program for the meeting was in charge of Earle Thomas, chairman of the Kiwanis Committee on Agriculture. The principal speaker was Dr. M. F. Jackson, of Birmingham, who is chairman of the Alabama Kiwanis District Committee on Agriculture. He spoke about thirty minutes, giving his hearers many very valuable thoughts on subjects of interest to farmers.

When Mr. Thomas declared the meeting open for remarks from anyone who might wish to say something, several farmers and business men responded with short talks. Among them were O. O. Calfee, Mr. Lawrence, Pope Payne, Dr. H. M. Nix, J. N. Dennis, and Howard Oden.

County Agent Stapp was asked to present the subject of growing strawberries for the consideration of the group. This he did by quoting some figures gathered from the operations of some of the members of the Clanton association. One of the main objects of the meeting was to give the farmers of the Maplesville community an opportunity to learn something about the possibility of growing strawberries. Several in that part of the county have been interseted in getting a strawberry association started there. The berry subject was discussed at some length, and it was finally determined to conduct a survey among the farmers to determine how many of them will be willing to put in a small acreage of plants. County Agent Stapp, Earle Thomas, Dr. C. N. Parnell, Pope Payne, and Dr. H. M. Nix were designated as a committee to work the proposition out. There will likely be another meeting called some time soon.

Music for the meeting Thursday night was furnished by the Isabella string band.

At the conclusion of the program Mell Martin, president of the Clanton Kiwanis Club, expressed the thanks of the Club for the good time that was afforded us. The whole assembly gave a rising vote of thanks to the ladies of the Parent-Teachers Association.

A big delegation of Bessemer people stopped a while in Clanton Tuesday morning. They were on their way to Montgomery to see the legislature.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Wyatt in Clanton was the scene of a wedding last Sunday afternoon about three o'clock. Reeves of Troy, Ala.

FINE PEACHES FROM MINERAL SPRINGS

Mr. Martin Gore of Route 1 in the Mineral Springs community wins the distinction so far of bringing to The Union-Banner the best samples of peaches. FARM MEETINGS WILL BE HELD

County Agent Stapp Will Push Campaign For Winter Legumes

County Agent Stapp is anxious to see every farmer in Chilton County plant at least 5 acres of Austrian winter peas or vetch per plow. While in attendance at the meeting at Auburn in June, Mr. Stapp made plans for an extensive soil-building campaign this fall. He has already sent out four circular letters pertaining to the campaign. He has offered nice prizes to the club boys who are most active in the campaign. The banks of the county are cooperating in a splendid way. In an effort to reach as many people personally as possible, and discuss with them the great importance of Austrian peas and vetch as soil building crops, Mr. Stapp has arranged the following series of meetings:

New State Law For Public School Aid

State Aid Now On Fifty-Fifty Basis For School Buildings

A new law has been enacted by the legislature of Alabama, making provisions for State aid to communities in the erection and repair of school buildings. The new law provides that the State will match dollar for dollar with local funds raised for this purpose. In the past the law has provided that the State would put up one dollar for each two dollars raised by the communities.

Following is the text of the new law, which was approved by the Governor of Alabama on July 6, 1931:

The County Board of Education, where it is proposed to erect a school building or teachers' home according t oplans furnished by the State Department of Education or to repair or to equip a school building according to plans approved by the State Department of Education, may make application to the State Board of Education for aid subject to the following conditions: The application shall show that at least equal to the amount for which aid is asked has already been secured from other sources than the State, and shall also contain a description of the plot of land upon which the public school building for which aid is sought is located or is to be erected. Nothing in this article shall prevent the granting of aid for the erection, repair and equipment of rural school buildings on property already owned by the State. County High Schools shall be eligible for aid for repairs and equipment under the provisions of this article.

County Superintendent Lawrence points out the provisions of the new law, stating that it will be a welcome provision for many communities in which school buildings may be constructed or repaired or equipment installed.

Judge Reynolds and Charley Cox went to Montgomery Tuesday to see the legislature.

Lesson for July 26

CHRISTIANITY SPREAD BY PERSECUTION.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 7:54-8:4; 11:19-21; I Pet. 4:12-19.

GOLDEN TEXT—Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer: behold, the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried; and ye shall have tribulation ten days: be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.

PRIMARY TOPIC — The Gospel Spread by Persecution.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Christianity Spread by Persecution.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Martyrs of the Early Church.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Results of Persecution.

Christianity is a life, a "way." Because it is the life of God expressing itself through men, it is indestructible. Its genius is to prosper through opposition. "The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church." Prosperity may ruin the church, but persecution never.

I. Stephen Stoned (Acts 7:54-60).

In Stephen's ministry as deacon he testified of Jesus Christ and wrought miracles in confirmation thereof. This aroused violent opposition on the part of the synagogue officials. Not being able to meet the wisdom as Stephen spoke by the Holy Spirit, they stirred up the people against him. They arrested him and brought him before the council. They accused him of blasphemy and employed false witnesses against him. They could not silence him by argument before the council so they decided to do so by violence.

1. Stephen looking into heaven (v. 55). Instead of looking about upon his murderers in their raging fury he looked up to heaven. This was the secret of his calmness.

2. He saw the glory of God (v. 55). A vision of God's glory only can be seen by those who are loyal to him even unto death.

3. He saw Jesus at the right hand of God (vv. 55, 56). The fact that Jesus was standing showed his actual interest in the sufferings of his faithful witness.

4. Cast out of the city and stoned (vv. 58, 59).

5. His prayer (v. 60). He kneeled down and cried with a loud voice, "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge." How like the prayer of Jesus on the cross!

6. He fell asleep (v. 60). The Christian's death is only a sleep.

II. Persecution of the Church at Jerusalem (Acts 8:1-4).

1. The ringleader (vv. 1, 3). As a member of the Sanhedrin Saul had cast his vote against Stephen. He perhaps was the Sanhedrin representative to guide and direct in the execution. Saul's consenting to Stephen's death shows that he was not taking part himself, but directing the activities.

2. The disciples scattered (v. 1). The stoning of Stephen had so aroused the passions of savage men that they proceeded to wreak vengeance upon the Christians, who, as a result, were scattered abroad.

3. Preaching the Word (v. 4). Though forced out of Jerusalem, they did not go out in a panic, but went "everywhere preaching."

III. Preaching the Lord Jesus at Antioch (Acts 11:19-21).

In the providence of God a new missionary center was now being prepared. With the conversion of Saul and his commission as the apostle to the Gentiles, a new center was needed. Antioch was well suited as that center, for it was the natural door to the Graeco-Roman world. The persecution at Jerusalem sent the disciples as far as Antioch.

1. Preaching to Jews only (v. 19). In this they followed the example of Christ. They had not yet come to realize the universality of the gospel. Even thus limited, they were used in carrying out the divine purpose.

2. Preaching to the Grecians (v. 20). The disciples who had come from Africa and Cyprus were of broader sympathy than those of Palestine, and they courageously crossed the line preaching the Lord Jesus to the Greeks.

3. The hand of the Lord upon them (v. 21). Perhaps the Holy Spirit was poured out anew as at Pentecost. Their ministry was accompanied with the divine blessing. Many believed on the Lord through their ministry.

IV. Rejoicing in Persecutions (I Peter 4:12-19).

Fiery trials are to be expected by the disciples of Christ. The world hated Christ and put Him to death. To be reproached and hated for Christ's sake is a badge of honor, and those who may be called upon thus to suffer should rejoice.

Christ Wins at Last

No matter what the obstacles, Christ wins at last. No matter what the delays and disappointments, Christ triumphs in the end. In spite of suffering and loss and repeated defeats Christ is the eternal conqueror. Lord we believe! But we need a lot of help!—Charles E. Jefferson.

REVIVAL MEETING AT NEW CEDRON BEGINS ON SUNDAY

Rev. G. H. Carroll asks The Union-Banner to announce that the summer revival meeting at New Cedron will begin next Sunday, July 26th. He says that he has secured the services of Rev. P. W. Lett, former president of Newton Institute, to do the preaching. An invitation is extended to all to attend the services both morning and evening.

REFUGE

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely. Last Sunday there were seventy-one on roll, sixty-one present. Why the other ten was not there we do not know; they could have been providentially hindered. God knows why they did not attend. We hope you will stop and think where you are, and that you will find your place in Sunday school some where each and every Sunday morning.

Last Sunday, our regular preaching day, our regular pastor, Rev. G. G. Williams, was not present, although Rev. M. Lockhart rendered two fine sermons. Saturday night his subject was "Pitching your Tent Ttoward Sodom." Sunday night his subject was "Weighed in the Balances and found Wanting." Mothers and fathers, bring your children to Sunday school!

REVIVAL AT THORSBY BEGINS SUNDAY

ORR-PITTS WEDDING WAS PRETTY EVENT, THURSDAY

Miss Elie Merle Pitts, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elie Braxton Pitts, became the bride of William Grey Orr Thursday evening at 7 o'clock at the Fairfield Methodist Church, the Rev. Foster K. Gamble reading the nuptial vows in the presence of a large assemblage of guests.

The entire front of the church was banked with a profusion of Southern smilax and plumosa ferns, interspersed with pink gladioli and gypsophilia, while numerous standards of candelabra furnished light for the ceremony. Similar standards, tied with satin ribbon and decorated with gladioli, marked the places of the relatives and intimate friends of the couple.

The candles were lighted by Edward Pitts, brother of the bride, and D. W. Dobbins, who also acted as ushers.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Marjorie Moran Carpenter rendered a group of love lyrics. Kenneth Griffin and Miss Madelyn Orr, sister of the bridegroom, sang selections.

The junior bridesmaids, Misses Jane Elizabeth Ardis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Ardis, and Betty Jean Tubb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Proctor V. Tubb, nieces of the bride, entered first. Their dresses of the net were of colonial style, tight bodices with ruffled skirts reaching the floor. Bands of blue ribbon bound their hair and they wore flesh tinted slippers and carried French bouquets.

The maid of honor, Miss Evelyn Meacham, cousin of the bride, came next, wearing a gown of similar blue net over blue taffeta made colonial style, with sash of flesh velvet tied in front with streamers to the floor. Her arm bouquet was of pink roses and baby breath tied with flesh tulle.

Little Francis Leon Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pitts, Mrs. M. R. liams, carried the ring on a pillow of hand-painted flesh satin, the same having been carried on former occasions at the marriages of two sisters of the bride. The ring-bearer's suit was of flesh satin with flesh slippers to match.

Preceding the bride came little Ann Self, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Self, flower girl. She was dressed in flesh net with ruffled skirt and tight bodice with yoke. Her sash and hair band were of flesh ribbon. She carried rose petals in a colonial bonnet of ruffled net.

The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage. Her bridal gown was of flesh Chantilly lace over flesh taffeta, fashioned along princess lines, flaring at the knees and touching the floor. Long tight-fitting sleeves and draped neck marked the bodice. Her veil of cream tulle was attached to a cap of Chantilly lace with clusters of orange blossoms at each side. Her only ornament was a string of pearls. The bridal bouquet was of cream Killarney roses showered with lilies of the valley. Mr. Orr was attend by Kenneth Matthews.

Immediately following the wedding the bride's parents entertained with a reception at their home on Parkway.

The receiving line was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Pitts, Mrs. R. M. Orr, mother of the bridegroom; Mrs. J. M. Cooley and Mrs. Lloyd Riddell. Mrs. Pitts received in a gown of blue chiffon, having a shoulder corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Orr wore black chiffon with gardenias. The table was covered with Venetian lace. The bridal cake was ring-shaped, embossed with roses, orange blossoms and lilies of the valley, a bouquet of roses, intermingled with fern and gypsophelia filling the center. Pink tapers burned on either side in silver holders. Ices and mints were in keeping with the color scheme of blue and pink. Assisting in the dining room were Mesdames James H. Ardis, Proctor V. Tubb, T. W. Elliott and James Leon Williams. Mrs. Marjorie Moran Carpenter registered the names of the guests in the bride's book. Later in the evening the young couple left on their wedding trip, which will include a motor trip to Chattanooga, Lookout Mountain and other points in Tennessee.

Out of town guests to the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cooley, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Riddell, of Dallas, Texas; Mrs. M. R. Orr and Miss Madelyn Orr, of Clanton, Ala., and Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Harrison, of Guin, Ala.

Mrs. Orr, as Miss Pitts, was educated in Birmingham and is a popular member of the younger set.

Mr. Orr, only son of Mrs. M. R. Orr, of Clanton, received his education at Alabama Polytcehnic Institute at Auburn, and is a member of the S. A. E. Fraternity. He is connected with the Firestone Service Stores of this city.

After the wedding journey, Mr. and Mrs. Orr will be at home in English Village at Mountain Brook. —Birmingham News.

MORE BOLL WEEVILS FOUND IN ALABAMA

Auburn, Ala., July 20.—Information received by W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, indicates that boll weevils are appearing in large numbers in cotton fields of South Alabama, and their appearance in cotton fields elsewhere in the state is expected.

These reports brought from Mr. Ruffin the suggestion that farmers be prepared to poison weevils if, and when, it becomes advisable to do so. This recommendation is based upon the fact that poisoning properly done is profitable when and where needed.

Mr. Ruffin explained that weevils do most of their damage in July and August and that infestation is now sufficient for big damage if weather conditions do not provide natural control, which is not probable.

Any cotton grower who has a supply of calcium arsenate and machinery for applying it is ready to stop boll weevil damage whenever it becomes great enough to warrant an application of poison. Thus poison and machinery provide insurance. County agents are advising farmers about poison, giving information as to when and how to apply it.

A few farmers began poisoning early in July, and more are expected to apply it as the season advances. A few dollars spent on poison may protect a crop of cotton.

Mr. and Mrs. Renfroe Mullins are at home again, after a delightful trip to Cleveland, Ohio.

Mrs. Donald Merchant of Thorsby was here Monday to attend the school of instruction of the O. E. S.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

George Eastman

The young bank clerk was in need of a vacation. He had been working hard in the confinement of a bank. His health was poor. He planned on taking a trip to San Domingo, where the United States was likely to buy a naval base, according to the gossip of the day. He told the engineer of the bank of his plans. The latter advised him to take a photographic outfit with him. This was in the days of President Grant's administration.

While the trip never materialized, George Eastman, the young bank clerk, then and there began a deep study of photography. He had been interested in the art from the time he was fifteen years old, but until he made plans for a southern trip he had never really applied himself to the study of the subject.

The result of his studies gave the world the kodak and the modern process of photography.

George Eastman was born in Waterville, N. Y., in 1854. A few years later his father moved to Rochester where he established a commercial school, teaching his pupils business methods by actual experience. The father died in 1860.

George was an only son. He was a quiet and somewhat shy lad. His mother made many sacrifices to keep him in school until he was fourteen years old. She taught him never to buy anything unless he could pay for it, with the result that he was never in debt.

He got his first job as an office boy in an insurance office. His wages amounted to $3 a week. He worked his way up until he was getting $600 a year. Frequently he labored over his books eleven hours a day.

He had a chance to become a bookkeeper in a savings bank at $1,000 a year. The young man didn't hesitate about accepting an opportunity that brought with it such a substantial increase in salary. When his pay was low his mother had taken in boarders so as to keep a nice home for her only son.

He was twenty years old when he went to work in the bank. He remained there seven years, during which time he took up the study of photography in earnest in view of his contemplated trip to the West Indies. He bought a camera and took lessons on the wet plate process. Glass plates were in use then. They had to be sensitized before using, a tedious process.

This meant that the photographer of the day had to carry a bulky equipment if he worked in the field. Treatment of the plates made it necessary to take a silver bath and dark tent so as to prepare the plates properly to receive an image.

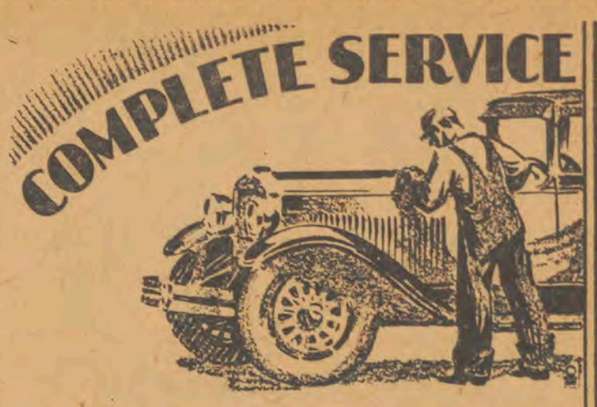
The amateur enthusiast took such an equipment with him on a trip to Lake Superior, which was a substitute for the planned but not carried out excursion to San Domingo. His experience on his vacation showed him that the joys of picture taking could be made available to every one only through the perfection of a process which would substitute compact and light equipment for the bulky paraphernalia and eliminate the tedious process of preparing each plate.

Meanwhile his career in the bank was not progressing to suit him. The official, whose assistant he was, resigned his position. Young Eastman's work had been most satisfactory. He looked forward confidently to moving up a notch and succeeding his immediate superior.

But he didn't get the job. The place went to a relative of one of the directors of the institution. That convinced him that he had better get out of the bank as soon as possible. He determined to go on his own when he could see his way clear to do so.

He rented a small room for his experiments in the dry plate process. He worked hard and intelligently, but not without the disappointments that come to all inventors. He was often too tired to undress when he went to bed. Frequently he slept from Saturday night until Monday morning, awakening only to eat the meals his devoted mother brought to him.

He didn't have to seek money to finance his experiments. His mother had taught him thrift as a little fellow and he never forgot the lesson. He saved $37.50 the first year he worked. He had $2,500 in the bank when he was twenty-five years old. His first photographic equipment cost him nearly $100.



From that he built the great industrial concern which today bears his name.

WASHINGTON HEADQUARTERS AT WEST POINT

About a mile north of West Point n a little vale now known as Washington's Valley, General George Washington established his headquarters July 21, 1779. Here he ived until the following winter in a huge mansion known as Moore's House—a structure which had been built prior to 1749 by John Moore, prominent New York merchant. The house, because of its size and costliness was sometimes referred to as "Moore's Folley," a title by which t was designated in some of the literature of the day.

The Division of Information and Publication of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission recalls that at the time Washington established his headquarters at West Point, the military affairs of the colony were in a bad way. Savanah had been taken by the British. Suffold and Portsmouth, Virginia, New Haven and other cities had been sacked and burned by the enemy. Added to all this was the fect that the Continental currency had depreciated to such an extent that, as Washington said, a wagon load of it would scarcely purchase a wagon load of provisions.

Despite these misfortunes, however, there were some bright spots for the Americans such as the brilliant exploit by which Wayne captured Stony Point and the equally daring attack on Paulus Hook successfullly carried out by young Major Lee. A little later in the summer the British evacuated Rhode Island.

From his headquarters at West Point Washington wrote the following letter to Dr. John Cochran, surgeon general of the army. In it the commander-in-chief reveals a spirit far fram depressed and gives an idea of the style of living which prevailed at his headquarters.

"Dear Doctor: I have asked Mrs. Cochran and Mrs. Livingston to dine with me tomorrow; but am I not in honor bound to apprise them of their fare? As I hate deception, even where the imagination only is concerned, I will. It is needless to premise that my table is large enough to hold the ladies. Of this they had ocular proof yesterday. To say how it is usually covered is more essential; and this shall be the purport of my letter.

"Since our arrival at this happy spot, we have had a ham, sometimes a shoulder of bacon, to grace the head of the table; a piece of roast beef adorns the foot; and a dish of beans or greens, almost imperceptible, decorates the centre. When the cook has a mind to cut a figure, which I presume will be the case tomorrow, we have two beefsteak pies, or dishes of crabs, in addition, one on each side of the centre dish, dividing the space and reducing the distance between dish and dish to about six feet, which, without them, would be about twelve feet apart. Of late he has had the surprising sagacity to discover that apples will make pies, and it is a question, if, in the violence of his efforts, we do not get one of apples instead of having both of beefsteaks. If the ladies can put up with such entertainment, and will submit to partake of it on plates once tin but now iron (not become so by the labor of scouring), I shall be happy to see them.

ELECTRIFY Your Kitchen Increase Your Profits

A view of the Electrified Kitchen and Exterior of Hotel Reich, Gadsden, Ala.

Every hotel and restaurant operator knows that his prosperity is keyed by the success of the kitchen. The reputation for good food travels fast. The reputation for not serving good food travels even faster. Experience of hotels and restaurants throughout the country is now proving that electrically cooked food draws customers and increases profits. Add to this the many other outstanding advantages—no fuel handling; no fumes or odors; the minimum of attendance; never failing conveniences; less food shrinkage and spoilage; elasticity of temperature control; uniform results—and here in Alabama an unusually low electric rate for heavy duty equipment. Thorsby Section

Mr. D. H. Gentry, who has been ill for several months, was reported Tuesday morning, to be in a serious condition at the home of his son, Adolphus Gentry, in Thorsby.

The Ladies Guild of Thorsby will follow the prevailing summer fashion by taking a vacation, the meeting due this week will not be held.

Mrs. Mary Ann Williams died at the home of her son, C. M. Williams, in Thorsby, at 11 o'clock, p. m., July 20, at the age of 79 years. At her bedside were the C. M. Williams family, F. L. Williams, Dan Williams, Mrs. C. W. Adams and daughter, Elizabeth, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Burdett and Mrs. W. H. Raybon, Mrs. Roy Wilson and Mrs. Franklin of Clanton.

Mrs. Williams had a very active Christian life. She was for more than fifty years a member of Brewersville Methodist Church, near Goodwater, Ala. She was the mother of five children, all of whom lived to grow up. Three of her sons, C. M., of Thorsby, Foster, of Harpersville, and Palmer, of Lawley, are occupying positions in teaching professions. Her son, Dan, is a prominent member of the operating staff of the Bell Telephone Co., in Atlanta. Her daughter is the wife of C. W. Adams, a well known railroad man of Prattville, Ala. She also leaves a number of grandchildren, who are giving a good account of themselves.

Burial services were conducted at the church she had so long been connected with, in charge of an undertaker from Montevallo, and interment was at the side of her husband, whose death preceded hers by about two years.

Mr. Frank McCain (widower), son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McCain, of Thorsby, and Miss Mabel Linnehan, of Clanton were married in Clanton, Friday, July 17. We were unable to obtain further details.

TOBACCO YIELDS INCREASE

Production of tobacco in the United States during 1931 will amount to 1,525,000,000 pounds, an increase of 20,000,000 pounds over 1930, according to estimates by the Department of Agriculture. Increases in the use of cigarettes which are attributed by authorities in the industry to the removal of harsh irritants by modern methods of manufacture such as the toasting process including the use of ultra violet rays are responsible for the increase in the leaf tobacco production. Larger quantities of flue-cured tobacco, which is used principally in cigarette manufacture, are being exported and this with the increase in domestic use is bringing additional dollars to the American farmer's pocket. Tobacco production in the United States this year will set a new record and will be almost 200,000,000 pounds over the five-year average between 1925 and 1929 of 1,357,000,000 pounds.

1,500 FORDS SOLD TO P. O. DEPARTMENT

The United States Post Office Department placed an order with the Washington branch of the Ford Motor Company for 1,500 motor truck chasis, of which 500 will be 3-4 ton carrying capacity and 1,000 of 1 1-2 tons carrying capacity. The purchase of the motor equipment was the largest made by a government department since the war. With this order Ford sales to the Post Office Department during recent years reached a total of 2,900 units.

The purchase marked another step in the Department's program of building up its fleet of several thousand trucks and also to replace some of the surplus trucks turned over to the Post Office Department by the Army at the close of the war.

Deliveries are to start immediately and continue as rapidly as the bodies contracted for are made ready for installation. The completed trucks will then be distributed to some 60 cities throughout the United States.

The order was placed with the Ford company after an exhaustive test conducted by the Department with the cooperation of the Bureau of Standards. The tests were under the supervision of W. A. Jacobs, automotive engineer of the Bureau of Standards, and William Wolma of Chicago and Morris Carreir of Brooklyn, motor vehicle engineers of the Post Office Department.

REV. O. T. HEADLEY OF NEW HAMPSHIRE VISITING HERE

The Union-Banner had a very pleasant caller last Thursday in the person of Rev. Ormon T. Headley of Wolfsboro, New Hampshire. It will be remembered that Rev. Headley had two interesting letters in The Union-Banner last winter. He was raised on a farm in the Fairview community and has been moved north about 25 years.

Rev. Headley owns two farms in Tennessee near Crab Orchard, and on one of these farms is a quarry from which excellent building rock is quarried. He had samples of the rock with him. It comes out of the quarry in uniform layers the same thickness all over and perfectly straight. There are different thicknesses of the rock all the way from a quarter of an inch to six inches. It is found in all colors.

The Layman and Law

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Thrasher is a business man who has had nothing to do with college for twenty-five years, and nothing at all with college administration. He knows the price of steel and how eye-beams are made, and something of the methods of transporting these commodities from one part of the country to another. He could probably design a bridge if he had to, but unless cornered would assign the task to some subordinate and then criticize the design with a semblance of intelligence when it was presented to him. He has managed an office force of draftsmen and has given a few sales talks to the fellows who go out to dispose of the products of his plant; and that is as far as his administrative duties have led him.

He could manage the largest educational institution in the country with ease, however, and without further experience; and he admits it to me modestly, but with assurance. The less he knows about the work of a department, the more certain he is that if he had his hand on the steering wheel he could guide the intellectual machine swiftly and smoothly over the rockiest roads. He can't be made to see that he is a joke and that he could no more manage my job, simple as it seems, than I, never having had either mechanics or mechanical drawing, could execute a bridge design.

It was Socrates who through a long life having associated with all sorts of people discovered that every man was willing to admit that he knew his own business thoroughly whether he was a philosopher or an artist, a teacher or a common laboring man; but he observed further, also, that they were sure they knew about every other man's business as well and felt quite competent to offer criticism on the way it was being conducted. The wise man, Socrates concluded, is the one who knows most about his own business and who trusts the other man to run his, since he really is likely to know little about it.

It is curious how much the inartistic know about art and the layman about law.

Here is proof that a hungry field of cotton or corn will pay big dividends for a side-dressing of quick-acting nitrogen. In thousands of supervised farm demonstrations, a dollar's worth of Chilean nitrate used on cotton returned $4.78 and on corn, $3.37. These figures show that even a crop appreciates a good square meal.

EZELLS WRITE BACK FROM OLD HOME IN S. CAROLINA

Chesnee, S. C., July 15, 1931.

Dear Folks:

Just a few lines to let you know we are "at home" safe and sound, and all feeling fine. We arrived Wednesday afternoon at 6:30, spending Monday and Tuesday with old friends at Eatonton, Ga. It made me think back ten years ago when I was pastor there, busy making calls. Oh, what changes take place in the brief period of nine years. Our visit was one much mingled with joy and grief. So many have gone on to their reward. Then too, the town and county have lost more than half their population. Bank deposits were between two and three millions there in 1920. They are now only forty thousand. Oh, if our folks who think times are hard in Clanton and Chilton County could just see what our eyes have seen the last three days, surely we would cease forever complaining. My visit reminded me of Rip Van Winkle's return. Read the story again.

Well many of you folks perhaps would like to know something of the crop conditions along our 500 mile journey. Well, from Verbena to Wetumpka they are bad. From Wetumpka to Newnan, Ga., I would say, pathetic. However, they have had rain from Opelika to within 20 miles of Eatonton. Crops around Eatonton and on to Anderson, S. C., are in the pathetic class. From Anderson on to Chesnee the prospects are fine, with plenty of rain. The stands however in most places are very spotted all along the way. Chilton County crops are fifty per cent better than any crops we saw for 400 miles. Once again, let me say that Clanton and Chilton County are favored spots. My friends, believe this, for it is true beyond words to tell. It may be well for me to remind you folks that we are away only on a "vacation."

Well, I am a bit sad today. My dearest aunt passed away yesterday, and is to be buried at three o'clock today. They have asked me to say a few words at her funeral. Her going leaves my father alone, out of a large family. We are remembering you dear folks daily at His throne of grace. Enough for this time. With love to all.

DUAL BANK SYSTEM FAVORED BY BANKER

State and National Institutions Supplement Each Other in Serving Country's Varied Financial Needs

RECENT suggestions that all banks in the United States be under Feeral jurisdiction, doing away with the chartering of banks by the various states recalls the opposition to this plan presented at the recent convention of the American Bankers Association by R. S. Hecht of New Orleans, Chairman of its Economic Policy Commission. Mr. Hecht said:

"There are just as good reasons why there should be state as well as national banks, as that there should be state as well as a national government. I do not think that analogy is farfetched. The states should not surrender all political jurisdiction to the central government, and the local business life of the states should not be made to surrender all control over financial functions to national financial instrumentalities. There are many variations of business conditions from state to state and there are special fiscal requirements of the various states.

"It is entirely logical, therefore, that the states should retain the right to charter banks so as to mold and direct their affairs in accordance with the states' governmental and business requirements and keep them adapted to localized sentiment and conditions.

"The argument is sometimes advanced that the dual system jeopardizes the life of the Federal Reserve System because under it there is a large group of banks that are free to remain out of or to withdraw from the system. Facts and figures prove that this is a specious argument.

"It is true that there has been some shifting from national to state charters especially in cases of mergers of large national banks with banks operating under state charters. However, the Federal Reserve System was not weakened in this process because the merged institutions almost universally retained their membership in the system on a voluntary basis. Moreover, the records show that state bank members are just as good members of the system as national banks and the ratio of state bank resources in the Federal Reserve System is constantly growing. In 1922, national banks held about 65 per cent of the resources of reserve members, and state banks about 35 per cent, while in 1929, the nationals held only 60 per cent and state banks 40 per cent.

Banking Systems Help Each Other

"Reciprocally the state and national banks systems have helped each other. If the national banking law has served in some respects as something of a model code toward which state banking laws more and more have approached year by year, so have the state codes developed valuable reforms which have suggested improvements for the national laws. A great many undesirable competitive inequalities have been wiped out by this mutual evolutionary process and further progress along the line of uniformity so far as is desirable is anticipated.

"However, I do not believe that it is a disadvantage to have two banking codes that differ in some respects. It is quite probable that the state banking code in many instances represents a closer adjustment to local conditions than could be had under the national banking laws, and this is a situation that should be retained. There should, however, not be competition between the two banking codes. Competition should be between banks themselves and not between the laws under which they operate. The effort to offer too great allurements in one code as against the other could lead only to weak banking laws. But I do think that there should be the alternative opportunities that now exist which banking institutions and local business interests may choose, so that they can function or conduct their business relationships under that banking code which best meets the conditions of the times and of the place as they see them.

"This has been illustrated in both directions. In states where such unsound measures as the guarantee of deposits were operative state banks had the opportunity to escape the baleful effect of such laws. On the other hand, when a court decision was handed down in Worcester, Massachusetts, which rendered uncertain the position of trust assets acquired by a national bank through a merger with a state bank, it was a real advantage for national banks affected to take out and operate under a state charter, either on a temporary or a permanent basis, as circumstances make expedient.

"In my opinion, bankers, national as well as state, should combat the thought that conceives of depriving us of the vitalizing benefits of our dual system."

Finance Fights Erosion

Farm terracing to stop erosion is of major importance in Noble County, Oklahoma, the county agent said, and so one of the county's national banks bought five farm levels to be loaned to farmers without charge. The machines were immediately put to use and the farmers are showing keen interest in terracing. Two terracing schools were started for adults and 4-H Club boys.

Mr. and Mrs. Lomer Giles are being congratulated upon the arrival of a new baby girl at their home.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

ALABAMA HAS LARGEST CORN ACREAGE IN YEARS

The Alabama acreage planted to corn this year was 3,091,000, compared with 2,810,000 last year, which is the largest acreage planted to corn in a number of years, according to F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician for the Department of Agriculture.

Conditions of the corn crop on July 1 was reported as 70 per cent of normal, which indicates a total production of 38,638,000 bushels, or an average of 12.5 bushels per acre. This compares with a total production last year of 29,501,000 bushels, an average of 10.5 per acre.

PEANUT ACREAGE IS GREATLY INCREASED

A heavy increase in the acreage in Alabama planted to peanuts is reported, amounting to 30 per cent over 1930, reports F. W. Gist, statistician of the Department of Agriculture. This brings the acreage planted alone to 360,000 compared with 277,000 last year.

Condition of peanuts on July 1 was 69 per cent of normal, indicating a yield of about 20 bushels per acre. Usually about 80 per cent of the solid acreage is gathered for nuts, which indicated that 5,760,000 bushels will be gathered this year, compared with 5,304,000 last year. The acreage of peanuts planted with corn for hogging off is about in line with the increase in corn acreage.

STATE FARMERS PLANT 25 PER CENT MORE HAY

It is the intention of Alabama farmers to cut hay from 686,000 acres of land this year compared with a harvested acreage of 554,000 last year. A condition of 65 per cent of tame and 58 per cent of wild hay on July 1 indicated a total production of 479,000 tons compared with 402,000 last year, says F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician.

"The increase in acreage was 25 per cent," he added but conditions are not so favorable on account of drought. Legume crops turned into hay may yet develop into a much better condition and higher yield."

ALABAMA OAT ACREAGE INCREASED 75 PER CENT

An increase of 75 per cent in the Alabama oat acreage and a favorable season for maturity combined to promise a total production of 4,202,000. The acreage this year is 191,000 compared with 109,000 harvested last year, and the preliminary yield is estimated at 22 bushels per acre.

The Kenya Agricultural Department reports that locusts are hatching over an area of seven million acres in the Keyna district of East Africa alone. In addition to this the laying of locust eggs is proceeding over hundreds of miles of dense tropical vegetation in Uganda. The town of Masindi was recently inundated by locusts, forcing all shops to close.

ALABAMA PLANTS MORE COWPEAS AND SOY BEANS

Alabama this year increased its acreage planted to cowpeas and soy beans. F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician, reports the following acreage and conditions on July 1:

Cowpeas planted alone were increased by 50 per cent, resulting in a total acreage of 158,000 against 105,000 planted last season. The condition of the crop is 70 per cent of normal.

Soy beans were planted on 78,000 acres compared with 72,000 last year, and the condition was 78 per cent of normal. Both cowpeas and soy beans were planted with corn commensurate with the increase of the latter crop.

IRISH POTATO ACREAGE INCREASED 50 PER CENT

Alabama farmers this year increased this Irish potato acreage by 50 per cent, the total being 48,000 acres, compared with 31,000 last year. The yield has been good, averaging above 90 bushels and producing a total of 4,384,000 bushels compared with 2,521,000 last year. Most of the commercial crop has already moved to market at rather disappointing prices, but the main production has been for home use.

ALABAMA SYRUP CROP INCREASED 10,000 ACRES

A total of 49,000 acres in Alabama have been planted to sorghum and sugar cane this year, compared with 39,000 last year. The condition was 70 and 60, respectively, on July 1, and there is in prospect a production of 4,346,000 gallons of syrup compared with 3,470,000 gallons last year.

EDITORS TO MEET AGAIN IN AUBURN

Auburn, Ala., July 20.—The next Alabama press institute will be held at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, August 13 and 14. It will be the third, and with it will be combined an annual meeting of the Alabama Press Association, of which Marcy B. Darnall, publisher of the Florence Herald, s president.

The institute will open at 11:00 o'clock on the morning of Thursday, August 13. The visitors will be welcomed to Auburn by President Bradford Knapp with response by Jack M. Pratt of the Pickens County Herald. President Darnall will then deliver his annual message as president of the Press Association.

Thursday afternoon equipment and its relationship to profits in newspaper and job offices will be stressed. A manufacturing representative will lead the discussion and names of several editors and job printers appear on the program.

The newspaper as a community enterprise will be the main subject discussed at the third session Friday morning. The leader will be Fred Naeter, editor, Southeast Missourian, Cape Girardeau, Mo.

At the fourth session Friday afternoon advertising and the business depression will be considered, Emmett Brooks, editor of the Escambia Record and past president of the Press Association, will be the leader. A dozen editors will participate in the discussion.

A business session during which reports of officers will be made and new officers elected will follow. The institute and Press convention will end with a banquet in Smith Hall, Friday night.

Electric power production in the United States during May of 1931 was 3 1-2 pe rcent below May of a year ago. During the year 1930 the electric light and power industry spent more on construction than in any previous year.

40 PER CENT MORE SWEET POTATOES ARE PLANTED

Alabama sweet potato acreage was increased by 40 per cent this year compared with 1930, giving a total of 104,000 against 74,000 last year, reports F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician for the Department of Agriculture.

The condition on July 1 was 60 per cent, indicating a production of 8,320,000 bushels, compared with 6,290,000 last season. "If this prospect continues there will be a problem of marketing a considerable surplus, or feeding to hogs," he said.

COTTONSEED MEAL AS FEED ENDORSED

Auburn, Ala., July 20.—By making full use of cottonseed meal as a feed for work animals, based upon scientific research work, Alabama farmers can effect a big increase in consumption of a crop which they produce and also reduce their cost of feeding.

The above statement was made by Director L. N. Duncan of the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute after a study of experiments in feeding cottonseed meal to dairy cattle, beef cattle, work animals, hogs, and sheep. "Cottonseed meal," he said, "should form a part of the ration of each of these groups of farm animals."

For many years cottonseed meal has been fed to dairy cows and beef cattle. A few farmers have fed it to work animals but the number is almost negligible compared to the opportunity. It is a good feed for horses and mules and it is cheap.

Recent experiments have shown that limited amounts of cottonseed meal can well be included in the ration for hogs. Feeding it to sheep is an old practice.

"We need to feed more cottonseed meals," continued Director Duncan. "This is especially true of Alabama and other cotton-producing states where cottonseed meal is produced and where, on the other hand, much feed that was produced in other states is consumed.

"Of course it should not be done blindly. Recommendations of experiment stations should be followed. County agents are acquainted with these recommendations. By applying them, rations for animals will be improved and costs reduced. It is an unusual opportunity."

FOREST FIRE REPORT FOR FIRST HALF YEAR

Montgomery, Ala., July 20.—Approximately six and a quarter per cent of the 22,500,000 acres of forest land in Alabama was burned over during the first six months of 1931, according to compilations just completed by the state forestry department. This, while higher than the average for the past four years due to the nineteen months drought extending from November, 1929, to July of this year, and to the early exhaustion of the department's funds through the falling off of receipts, is far below the average prevailing prior to the inauguration of the cooperative work in forestry between the federal government, the state and the local communities. It is pointed out by the department that were not such cooperative measures in effect the proportion burned over would have been in the neighorhood of forty-five or fifty per cent.

The total number of fires during the first half of the year was 18,371. The total area burned was 1,421,750 acres. Of this acreage 229,338 was merchantable growth, 1,005,074 was unmerchantable growth, 174,904 was open forest land, while 12,434 was nonforest land. Lightning caused 8 fires, railroads 762, lumbering operations 915, brush burning 7,852, camp fires 225, smokers 925, incendiaries 4,889, and miscellaneous causes were responsible for 2,795. Fires covering one-quarter acre or less numbered 118, those more than one-quarter and less than ten acres 5,961, while 12,292 were ten acres or more in extent. The average fire was about 77 acres in extent.

The proportion of forest land burned in the organized forestry districts, comprising the portions of the state carrying the higher hazard, and consequently the localities in which the cooperative work is centered, was about 3.4 per cent. In the unorganized territory, which includes more populated agricultural sections with the woodlands comprised in smaller areas and involving a much lower hazard, but not supplied with local forestral agents, the proportion burned over was approximately 7.2 per cent. The unorganized territory in 1931 includes also a large acreage which formerly was in forestry districts but on account of a further decrease in funds had to be left temporarily without cooperative field work on the part of the state.

In terms of one person per fire it is estimated that 19,045 persons engaged in fighting fires without compensation from the state. Of these 15,967 were farmers and stockmen, 644 were railroad employees, 1,089 were lumbermen's employees, and other volunteers numbered 1,345. Private equipment was used in fire suppression to a hire value of $1,579. The total money value of known fire fighting efforts on the part of landowners and others is estimated at $16,290.

The forest fires occuring in the state during the first half of the present calendar year resulted in money damage amounting to $1,044,771. Of this amount $275,900 comprises damage to merchantable timber, $623,228 injury to young growth, $4,434 damage to wood products, $13,549 loss to other forest products, $31,871 damage to buildings, fences and other improvements, and $95,789 damage to range and pasture.

Farm real estate in Alabama has suffered a heavy drop in value, but it is still 29 per cent above pre-war level, according to the Alabama Economic Review, published by the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn. For the country as a whole the value is 6 points above the pre-war level.

JAMES M. PRICE

It was quite a shock to the people on the morning of the 14th, to hear that James M. Price, of Pleasant Grove, was dead.

His health had been failing for more than a year, suffering with heart trouble, and on the night of the 13th his son heard him struggle and went to him and found him breathing his last. A physician was hastily called, but he was dead.

Burial was at Pleasant Grove on the afternoon of the 14th. Funeral by Rev. Mr. Miller, of Birmingham. The funeral was attended by a large gathering of his friends.

The writer knew Mr. Price from his youth. He was truly a man. His honesty was unquestioned. His neighors loved him. He was a man of great usefulness. A man of sterling worth, kind-hearted, and true.

He leaves a wife, six children, an aged mother, thre brothers, two sisters, to mourn his loss. He is missed so much. He was about 57 years of age; but he will live again. The ransom price has been paid for him, and his return is sure. "Thou turnest man to destruction and says return ye children of men."

He sleeps under a rich profusion of beautiful floral offerings.

Our sympathy goes out to his loved ones.

Prices of agricultural products dropped sharply from April 15 to May 15 of this year, the index at the latter date being 5 points below that of April 15. Since then further declines have been reported. Wheat recently hit a new low price level.

High Grade Gas At a Low Price

DON'T BE FOOLED BY THE CHEAP GAS BEING OFFERED IN COMPETITION TO MINE

It has happened as I predicted it would. Just as soon as I announced the opening of my filling station with a high-grade gasoline at 14 cents a gallon, the other companies came out with a low grade gas to sell at 14 cents.

I WANT TO REMIND MY FRIENDS OF TWO THINGS

First—The other stations would not have offered any kind of gas at 14 cents if I had not forced them to do it.

Second—The gas which they offer at 14 cents is a low grade. The gas I sell at 14 cents is a high grade anti-knock motor fuel.

Stick to me, folks, and I will stick to you. Thereby you can be assured that you will continue to get high grade gasoline at the lowest possible prices always.

Boy Scout Meeting At Thorsby

Arrangements have been made to hold a community meeting in the interest of boy scouts, at the Congregational church, Thorsby, on Thursday, July 23rd, at 7:30 p. m.

John J. Sigwald, District Executive for a large district in Alabama, a man thoroughly versed in boy scout matters, will be the principal speaker.

These arrangements have been made through the active assistance of Mr. C. E. Stapp, of Clanton, County Farm Agent, and also chairman of the Clanton District of Boy Scouts, and vice president of the central Alabama area council, of which Clanton and Thorsby troops are members. It is expected that Mr. Stapp will be present and assist in the meeting.

During the meeting opportunity will be given for people interested to ask questions of these scout executives, concerning things pertaining to scouts, which they wish to have explained.

As noted above this is intended to be a community meeting for all who are interested in the boys of Thorsby and vicinity. Most folks have heard of boy scouts, but many do not know of its value to growing boys and their parents or any one interested in training of our boys for good citizenship.

Thorsby Institute is the sponsoring organization for Thorsby Troop of Boy Scouts, all persons, whether members of its Board of Trustees, committees, faculty, or students past or present, together with all boy scouts, their parents and friends, boys and young men, and even young boys, not yet old enough to join, but old enough to learn what they may grow to be, are invited, if in this invitation any are left out who want to come you will be welcome. We hope all will be interested.

O. V. Bruner, principal of the Geneva County High School at Hartford, was in Clanton last Sunday on his return home from the summer school at University of Alabama.

Howards Travel Over Northwest

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard, Lloyd and Ella, and Mrs. Bina Husby reached St. Elmo, Ala., Mrs. Husby's home, Sunday evening, July 12th. After visiting a day there with relatives, the Howard family returned to Thorsby, July 14th.

On June 2nd they started out in their car going to Indiana, where Lloyd joined the party and the journey was continued. Chicago was the first stop, where Mr. Howard has some cousins. Many things were seen in this big city among them, some buildings already finished and others under construction for the world's fair. One which has recently been completed and stocked is the Aquarium. There can be seen fish from all over the world, all sizes, shapes and colors. From Chicago the trail led through Wisconsin, whose beautiful capitol at Madison was visited. Marble from every state in the Union was used in this building, the colors ranging from almost pure black to white, are most artistically combined. At La Crosse, Wis., they crossed the Mississippi River and were very surprised that it was such a small river. They then stopped with relatives in Minnesota. Ever so many beautiful lakes were seen along the roads in this state, all abounding in fish, but since the state enforces very rigid fishing laws they did not try their luck at that. Sioux City, Iowa, was the next stop, where Mrs. Husby saw her sister for the first time in 34 years. This was Mrs. Howard's birthplace. The old home and the school house, where she went to school her first were still there.

Then relatives were visited in both South and North Dakota. The prairie lands in these states were quite different from our little hilly farms around here. There the average farmer tended about 200 acres or more. A hundred acres in corn on each farm there is a common thing. One man cultivates with four horses, cultivating four rows of young corn at a time.

Gillette, Wyoming, where John Husby, Mrs. Howard's brother lives, was the next stop. This is a desolate state, but there must be something about it that holds a person once they have lived there a few months. Everyone we spoke to said they would never live anywhere else. Those who knew John may be interested to know he was married last August. His wife is a lovely woman. Her home was originally in Missouri but she had taught school in Gillette for six years. Wyoming has extensive coal fields. One mine they saw had a vein 900 feet thick and only ten feet down from the surface of the earth. Another interesting thing they saw near Gillette was a burning coal field. It has burned as long as anyone there can remember. There were large cracks in the earth from which blue flames escaped. They said at night the flames appeared somewhat red. Parties of young folks go out there for weiner roasts. John also took the Howards to a big ranch where buffalo were raised. They saw twelve large ones and three buffalo calves.

From Gillette the route led to the Yellowstone National Park. On this road they had a sample of what "gumbo" soil is. They saw no paved roads in Wyoming and only a little graveled. They were skimming over a lovely graded road with hard, smooth surface when all at once a shower came up and what had been so nice a road became a very slippery road. One car went into a ditch and another was across the road in front of them. This held up traffic and soon there was a long string of cars lined up in the road. They were from all over the Central and Eastern United States, mostly tourists headed for the park. Well, for a time it looked as though there would be a short order slumber party out there in the lonely hills, where nothing but sage brush grows and only jack rabbits and coyotes abound. But finally the men got the first cars straight and walked on the sides of each others cars, keeping them from slipping over the hundred or more feet deep embankment, which had no posts for protection. The rain having stopped we finally made the six miles to the graveled road. A funny experience after it was over.

The next morning they traveled over what they called the most scenic seventy miles of road in the world, from Cody to the park. This was over the Big Horn Mountains, the road following along the Shoeshone River Canyon. They saw the Shoeshone Dam, which irrigates thousands of acres of land. At one point they were 10,000 feet above sea level in these mountains.

The park was one thrill after another. With bears and elk roaming around you, and the geysers, hot springs, beautiful lakes, rivers, waterfalls and the gorgeous canyon of the Yellowstone River. Their short stay of a day there was crowded with interest.

From there they headed for Seattle, where Mr. Howard's sister, Ida LeClair, and family live. The beautiful spruce and fir trees through Oregon and Washington were sights to be remembered. As they went throug Boise, Idaho, they went to see Miss Stoddard and her mother. Miss Stoddard has put on a little flesh and looks better than they had ever seen her before. Her mother is also much better.

While in Seattle they went on the Warship the U. S. S. Texas. This is a little city on water, they have everything, even to motion pictures, for the sailors. Seattle was a beautiful city and every minute of their stay there was enjoyed.

From Seattle the homeward route led through Oregon (where by the way they saw Maud Gerald Atwood). California, Arizonia, New Mexico, Texas, Louisana, Mississippi, and Alabama, coming home from the south, where as they started out going north. While in El Paso, Texas, they crossed over the Rio Grande River into Juarez, Mexico. The crossing of the Mississippi River at its mouth was quite longer than at La Crosse, Wis.

In all, the Howards traveled about 10,000 miles on this trip of six weeks. Went through 21 states and three states were crossed twice. A few hot days were experienced, but for the most the weather was grand and the trip a series of pleasures.

There's Music in the Air — by Armando

Contrary to popular belief, Music in the Air is not a recent discovery. Armando, internationally famous caricaturist, has delved into the history of past ages and learned many interesting facts about how the Ancients got "Music from the Air." Pictured below may be seen his version of how they did it.

King David, according to Rabbinic records, was often lulled to sleep by the music which came from his Aeolian Harp, thus named after Aeolus, Greek God of the Wind and Air. The harp was placed in an open window and the wind vibrated the strings.

As it is today. Typical scene in a broadcasting studio showing B. A. Rolfe and a few of the fifty members of the Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra putting music in the air from which it is immediately extracted by millions of radio listeners.

The Chinese have been flying specially constructed kites for a thousand years. These kites have strings spread over the openings through which the wind may blow, thus producing musical tones.

Out in our part of town there is a man so ignorant that he thinks the Hoover dam is a Democratic campaign slogan.

What we would like to know is how many stacks of wheat cakes the wheat surplus owned by the Federal Farm Board could be worked into.

One of the things we have against Congress is that the state legislatures were modeled after it.

If the weather man keeps on sending the kind we had late in June that gasoline surplus is going to look emaciated by the time Labor Day rolls around.

One way to help the livestock growers would be to have more meat and fewer ants in the picnic sandwiches.

Our office boy says that he wishes his best girl loved him as much as the international bankers love Europe.

Why not convert the Farm Board wheat surplus into boarding house biscuits and use them for paving material?

Mr. Theodore Dreiser has been flaying the "public utility trust." The only trust Mr. Dreiser admires very much is the iron-clad soviet trust over in Russia.

Ramsay MacDonald declared recently that the United States is now the greatest nation now existing on the face of the earth. This statement alone is enough to make Ramsay lose the moral support of a lot of our American college professors.

It is said that a red shirt movement has started in India. It won't grow very fast if the weather is as hot there as it is here.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

Two of President Hoover's official family in recent Independence Day addresses made statements which are worthy of repetition. At Philidelphia, Secretary of War Hurley called attention to the national dangers surrounding the efforts of certain theorists to commit us to the dole system. The efforts to create a federal dole system, he said, were not in keeping with American traditions and the American system of government and the same he declared was true of the breakdown of local self-government and the growth of federal bureaucracy.

At the same time Assistant Secretary of the Navy, E. L. Jahncke, in an address at Altoona denied that there was any political kinship between President Roosevelt and the present day economists who are seeking government ownership, since President Roosevelt had repeatedly gone on record as opposed to any form of federal ownership of business. Continuing, Mr. Jahncke said:

"Federal ownership of public utilities would create the most gigantic trust ever known—a self perpetuating political machine, the like of which cannot be found this side of Russia. Soviet Russia has demonstrated the impracticability of attempting a system of government ownership and operation of business. They have created the most monstrous, most all-pervading political machine the world has ever seen, an almost indestructible instrument for perpetuating the party in power."

All of which is undoubtedly true. Among the most serious national problems which confront us today are those which grow out of the breakdown of local self gvernment and the growth of federal bureaucracy. Statesmen are frequently pointing to this increasing condition of affairs but it seems that little can be done about it. Year by powers and for various reasons there is an year the federal government takes on more increasing breakdown of local self government. The proposals made last winter for measures bordering on the "dole system" are one result of this modern condition of affairs. As the national government takes additional duties on itself the positon of those who favor paternalistic government become strengthened. The disposition of the promoters of this school of thought is to "let Uncle Sam take care of everything." They do not stop to realize that in the long run the people must pay the bill and that higher taxes mean greater stagnation in business and more suffering for everyone, including those whom the government is seeking to relieve.

It would seem that our experimences with government operation during the World War would cure us of the desire for government ownership and control of business. And for a few years this seemed to be the case. But the American people are forgetful and now a new school of politicans has arisen who cry out for government control and eventual ownership of business. Although the "statesmen" who advocate these measures claim to be acting for "the people" they are after all politicians of a very cunning school. They realize full well what political power would be in their hands if government ownership came about under their success at the polls and in Congree. The opportunity for strengthening political machinery would be almost limitless. With the railroads and other utilities in the hands of the political machine in power, there would be little, if any, chance of driving that machine out of power. The best example, as Mr. Jahncke states, is that of Soviet Russia. Anyone who studies what has happened over there and how Mr. Stalin has waxed powerful with governmental control of business, may get some idea of what could happen in America if private business were turned over to the government.

THE PATHETIC END OF A BRILLIANT CAREER

Why do men who have much to lose sacrifice it all on one throw of the dice? How is it that men capable of so living decade after decade as to win the confidence and esteem of their neighbors, and from them receive high honors, yet suddenly suffer a startling moral collapse? Men do not achieve favorable reputations by accident. A good reputation is built slowly and by degrees, and it is acknowledged only after its possessor has been put to the test more than once. The rule seems to be that if a man has been reliable and correct in the first third of his life he can be counted on to live the remainder of his days without scandal; but there are enough exceptions to this rule to trouble anyone who concerns himself about the breakdown of moral fibre in his fellows. Not infrequently it happens that me long reputed to be strong suddenly turn out to be incredibly weak. Were they always weak and merely escaped adequate temptation?

We are thinking of the case of poor old Albert Bacon Fall, who in his old age has ridden in an ambulance to a Federal penitentiary in the state in which he was once the first citizen. He had been showered with political honors. He had helped to write the constitution of New Mexico. He had sat in many legislatures. He had been Attorney-General. He had been on the Supreme Court Bench, he had been repeatedly elected to the United States Senate, and finally rose to a seat in the cabinet of the President of the United States.

His family was proud of him, his friends admired him. He must have thought rather well of himself.

But he loved money more than he loved his reputation, he loved money more than he loved his family and his friends. He loved money far beyond the deserts of money! He let an oil developer put his hand into the precious naval reserves of his country, and in return give (or "lend") Fall, his old friend, $100,000. This much is known, undisputed. How much more he received from Doheny or from other magnates could never be learned but he received enough from some source to build a maggnificent private estate in New Mexico.

Now a nurse has bundled him up in downy comforts, put him on an ambulance and wheeled him to prison, where he will probably die before his term is up.

Money can afford one immense satisfaction, but when it comes with spots on it leprosy attacks the soul, and all the sweets of life turn into gall and worm-wood.—Montgomery Advertiser.

SOME AMERICAN OBSERVATIONS

(By Jay Taylor)

Whenever we read the attacks of certain American statesmen on Secretary Mellon, we are always reminded of the observation of a French philosopher who said that the strongest of all antipathies is the antipathy of a second rate mind to a first rate one.

Secretary of War, Mr. Hurley, thinks that our federal bureaucracy, now numbering well over 600,000, is large enough.

Nicholas Murray Butler is spending a few weeks abroad and is telling the people of Austria, Czechoslovakia and Hungary what is wrong with the United States.

Let us hope that those financiers, who would like to open the vaults of the Federal Reserve in an attempt to save the financial situation in other countries, will consent to leave a few dollars to take care of our business requirements in the United States.

Harry Emerson Fosdick is still feeling very much depressed because the United States is not a member of the League of Nations. The reverend gentleman is also violently opposed to war. If, however, we should become a member of the League and certain European nations, in order to promote some selfish national program, should declare war on Japan, and by a vote of ten to one the United States were told how many ships to send and how much money to contribute, Mr. Fosdick, and most of his kind, would probably then join in the cry demanding that America promptly and nobly respond to the summons.

The water power development in the United States has reached the figure of 15 million horsepower—one-third the total of the world.

The MAN in the MOON

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

Verily, Verily—There shall be wars and rumors of wars. I reckon that time has just about arrived what with the gas wars, flour wars, and others too numerous to mention. Some people are bemoaning the fact that it isn't the very best thing that could happen to business as a general rule, but, now, just to bring it right down home with us, it is right nice to be getting our gas for 14 cents a gallon when we have been paying 18 cents, with lots of other things in proportion. I heard one man say that if they kept on like that for a while longer they would be doing business about on a par with the farmer—he added that it has been said that nobody could do business very long at a loss, but that he had been farming at a loss for over 40 years, and he guessed that maybe somebody else could do the same for a little while.

On The Bank Of The Coosa—I was invited out to Coosa River last Saturday to help eat the dinner which had been prepared at the Ellison picnic. And what a dinner. We started off with watermelon and wound up with—well—whatever we happened to be eating at the time we got so full we couldn't handle any more. Courtland Retherford and "Crip" Ellison won't be of much use for the next several days. How those fellows CAN and DID eat! We all enjoyed the feast, but how I envy anybody who can eat as much as the above-mentioned boys, and stay alive, unhampered by "stummick cramps." Thanks, to Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Ellison.

"Bull Tongue" Scooters—In my rambling around I see quite a few reasons why farmers have made this crop at far less expense that that of 1930. Most everybody has cut down on the fertilizer bill this year—then fertilizer just wasn't as high as it was last year—there are various and sundry other reasons too—and then, last Sunday I saw another big reason. Here 'tis! Whereas, last year we all saw lots of new plows and equipment of one kind and another going out to the farms, this year this wasn't the case. The boys just used what they had. I saw a "bull tongue" scooter, which, at the beginning of 1930 was about eight or ten inches long, but last Sunday I took a look at that scooter, and it was about four inches long—almost worn down to the bolt eye. The practice of such rigid economy for some little time to come will cause the bank deposits to swell rather than the banks' total of uncollectable accounts. Let's try it a few years and see.

Hunting A Home—The story goes this way: A subscriber unfolded his paper not long age, and found a spider therein. He wrote the publisher, asking if this meant good or bad luck. The publisher replied that so far as the subscriber was concerned, it meant neither, and that the spider was merely looking over the advertising to see which of the merchants wasn't advertising, so he would know which merchant's door to spin his web across. He knew that if he spun across the non-advertiser's door he would be allowed to proceed about his work, unmolested. However, I have my doubts about that. He would do better to spin INSIDE the non-advertiser's place, then he wouldn't be bothered even when the bankrupt receiver arrived to close the doors. Any way, that's usually the way it turns out. Just think back and see.

This Week's Best—A man was seen hurrying toward the depot just as a train pulled in. Somebody yelled: "Tryin' to catch that train?" The fellow halted long enough to retort: "Never thought of that. I was hurrying to try to get aboard while it was stopped."

The Big End—From time to time I hear somebody say that prices of what people have to buy are hardly ever cut in proportion to what they have to sell. Now, how's this for a price comparison: A few years ago, cotton was selling for 20 cents a pound—now it is selling for nearly 10 cents. That same year I saw a man pay $20 for a 30 x 3 1-2 fabric tire—today, you can buy a full set of four cord tires for $19.20. Figure that out, and see who is getting the big end of this price reduction scrap.

Leading The Procession—You have heard the saying: "Giant oaks from little acorns grow." Truer words were never spoken. Even the fads, or styles, or whatever you care to call them, are, most of the time, the result of little things. The story goes that the bobbed hair craze came as the result of what a style leader considered a great calamity. She was having her hair curled, when the curling iron became too hot and burned her beautiful tresses, of which she was so proud, until she was forced to do something about it. At first she sat and bemoaned the loss of her beautiful long hair. Then she had what was left long cut off to equal length with the short part, and that night attended a fashionable affair, a dance or something, where her new style in arrangement of her hair was noticed by hundreds of ladies, always on the alert to be "in the swim" in regard to styles, etc. Within a few weeks the new style was the rage of the city, and from that spread to be the almost universal style. Now, ain't that sump'n? (Apologies to Amos 'n Andy).

The Last Shot—It's watermelon season, fried chicken season, and big meeting time all rolled into one, about now. For a little while, I'll be too busy running down the fryers, and rubbing the watermelon aches out of my "stummick" to think of any more. Here I go—behind a cloud.—Man in the Moon.

It's The Ship—But after all, what does it matter how the Constitution travels from port to port, or what her crew wears? She is an institution in herself, an historical monument whose mere existence is a subject for the country's self-congratulation. It would be only the most unimaginative of sentimentalists who would require her to be recommissioned as an active sailing ship.—Hartford Courant.

Next week is farmers week at Auburn. I hope that some of the farmers of Chilton County who went on the Kiwanis trip to Auburn last spring will go back for farmers week and get something really worth while. It will not cost much for a farmer to stay a week at Auburn, and it will be worth many dollars in the future. See Mr. Stapp and make arrangements to go.

It is also hoped that some of the ladies of the county will go to Auburn next week. The home demonstration department will provide instruction and entertainment for all ladies who go. Miss Bertha Dennis and Miss Zora Guy will be glad to see any ladies who may be interested in going.

MORAL ECHOES

(By D. W. Haskew)

I took a seat in the home of a friend, and for an hour I listened to him. He talked loud and long about how good he was. He was a wonder when it came to his church, his liberality, his care for the widows and the orphans, his civic pride and his school interests. In his own estimation that fellow was a sure enough good man. He spared no words in recommending himself, but the sad part about the case in hand was that it was all talk. So far as I could find out that man stood alone in his high estimate of himself. I knew another man who never referred to himself as being good, but he was eternally going about doing good deeds and saying nothing about them. He did not recommend himself to any one, but the entire community recommended him as a mighty good man. High sounding words will not convince people that you are good. The best way to convince the world that you are good is to do good and say nothing.

A boy is a curious bundle of machinery. He will stop when he is supposed to run. He will go backward when he is supposed to go forward. He will run with speed when he is supposed to run slowly. He will mess up the warp and filling, when he is supposed to weave a fabric of value. He will burn out when he is supposed to be well oiled. He will develop a carbon knock when he is supposed to have clean cylinder heads. He will climb a tree when he is supposed to sit in the shade. He will run the curb stone when he is supposed to run the side walk. He will use his energy to produce a noise when he is supposed to use it for production. He is out on the highway when he is supposed to be in the garage. He comes in with a leaking tank and a broken rib when he is supposed to come in sound and well. This little piece of machinery that we call a boy is the problem in this shop of life. My experience is that it is hard to run a boy for twenty-one years and not meet a tragedy along the highway.

A tool box never fails to be a curiousity shop to me. While fingering around in such a shop the other day I came across an old pair of scissors. Both blades were there, but the little rivet that held those two blades together was broken and gone. I placed the two blades together in a correct position and then tried to cut a sheet of paper, but the blades fell apart and refused to do the citting. The blades were no good because there was no rivet to hold them in position. Human life is another curiosity shop. I saw a man who had a strong, healthy body. This man had a college education, and yet he was worthless in the shop of human society. He was lacking in the rivet of will power. He did not possess that something that gives to a man cutting power, and he was a failure. As the rivet in the pair of scissors gives to it the power to do useful things, so the will power in a man's life gives to him the ability to be worth while. Rivet your health and your education with will power and soon you will be cutting your way to success.

After eating the big supper prepared by the P.-T. A. ladies at Maplesville on last Thursday night, I returned to my bed in the Clanton parsonage. I was happy over the fellowship and the food of the Kiwanis occasion, but during the midnight hours the fried chicken started a disturbance in my thinking powers. I dreamed that I was made into a long block of wood, and that my neighbors and friends decided that I was fit for nothing but to be cut into short pieces and made into wood fit for the stove. They quietly placed me on the rack and then two well known Kiwanians advanced with a cross-cut saw and started to lopping off chunk after chunk. They soon had me sawed into short blocks and the ax man was splitting me into stove wood. To say the least, this moment of imagination on my part was not so pleasant, and yet I have seen men and women place their neighbors on the rack of criticism and actually saw them to pieces with their tongue. If you are ever disposed to place any one on the rack of criticism, I hope that you will eat a lot of fried chicken and then in the midnight hours dream that you are a block of wood being sawed into chunks and then split up into stove wood. This tongue sawing business is what divides friends.

The crops on each side of the highways in Chilton County are good for the sore eyes. The corn is rich in color and the cotton is full of promise. We are now in the midst of our growing crops. This is a beautiful time in which to live. It is grand to travel the roads and witness the fruit of faith. While the soil was cold and the ground was bare, our farmers went to work. They did not know what four months would bring to pass, but they worked, planted and cultivated by faith, and now they have a harvest in sight. Between Plantersville and Selma there is a farm that indicates that its owner had no faith. A furrow was run in the old middle, and corn was dropped into that furrow. The land has not been cultivated and the corn is worthless. That farmer had no faith. Faith inspires works. Listen to these words of the Master: "According to your faith be it unto you."

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw—
and Some He Saw Not.

I had the pleasure of attending the meeting at Maplesville Thursday evening. It was a combined gathering of Kiwanis Club members from Clanton, business men of Maplesville, and farmers in the western part of Chilton County. Various farm subjects were discussed. Particular attention was paid to the strawberry business. The business men of Maplesville and the farmers of the surrounding territory are contemplating the organization of a berry growers association with Maplesville as the shipping point. I hope they put the project over. That will help out toward the goal of 500 car loads of srawberries for Chilton County ecah year.

County Agent Stapp says about forty farmers have visited the farm of Willie Hamilton during the past week to see what results he has gotten from vetch and winter peas during the past five years. The farm of Mr. Hamilton is one of the best practical demonstrations of this subject. Mr. Stapp would like for every farmer who is interested in vetch and peas to visit the farm of Mr. Hamilton and see what can be done.

Stapp has been bearing down with all his might on the soil building campaign during the past two weeks. He will continue to stress this important matter until the expiration of the time to plant vetch and winter peas. With Mr. Stapp in stressing this subject there is combined the interest of all who have tried the plan. The banks and business men are adding their influence also. Farmers may well take this matter seriously, for it means better production of crops and less money spent for commercial fertilizer. If that kind of a program does not interest a farmer, he is not really a farmer; he is a misfit.

Bringing Up Babies—Great men used to say: "All I am I owe to my mother." The future great man will say: "All I am I owe to child psychology and spinach."

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

Since last week there has been considerable rainfall over the most of Autauga County and the people are in much better spirits over the crop prospects than they were a week ago. Although the rains have come too late to help early watermelons and the old corn, late melons and corn are expected to make satisfactory yields.

Since we have been in Prattville, we have heard considerable discussion regarding the opening of a new bank here. It would seem to us that the people of Prattville and Autauga County certainly deserve and need a good bank. It wont be long now until the cotton crop will begin to move and there will be great need of some kind of banking facilities in the county. Although there has been in this county a considerable feeling against all banks since the failure of The First National here in Prattville, we have no doubt that a strong bank under the management of sound business men would be well patronized and that the people of the county who use banking facilities, would rally to its support.

The Sweeper cannot fail to contrast the banking situation here in Autauga County with that prevailing in our own county, Chilton. In Autauga there is not a single bank doing business, while in Chilton we have six—all of which are as strong as the rock of Gibralter. This takes on an added noticeability when it is remembered that Autauga and Chilton are adjoining counties, both of them agricultural counties and producing about the same kind of crops for revenue.

Everywhere one goes, one hears some remarks about Chilton County. The majority of the people of Chilton do not realize to just what extent our county is becoming one of the most talked of counties in Alabama. On every hand it is to be heard—Chilton's diversification program is attracting the attention of the farmers of the state, and the soundness of our banks and business establishments that of the business circles. We should be proud of the record our county is making in its strides forward in roads, schools, diversified farming and stabilized and safe banking.

One of the greatest drawbacks The Sweeper has been able to discover to the advancement of the Prattville district and Autauga County as a whole, is the lack of adequate cooperation among the farmers. They seem to have gathered the idea that the old axiom—every tub must sit on its own bottom—applies to the small farmer. When the farmers of Autauga County go into cooperation wholeheartedly and only then will they be able to successfully dispose of their side crops of strawberries and peaches and watermelons at a profit to themselves and show a gain in business for the entire county.

Another hindrance which stands in the way of successful farming in Autauga as it is practiced in Chilton, is the large plantation owners, who have all their farming done by what is called down here "negro squatters." In Chilton there are few such plantations and most all farmers either own their home or have only from one to two tenants. Even among the tenants there is a great percentage of them who own their stock and farm for the fourth. With land ownership comes a certain degree of pride and determination to "make good" on the part of individual and he is ready to enter into any kind of movement that will better his condition and status in life. Such is not the case with the large plantation operator of the "black belt." Here as we stated above, the work is done by negroes, either for wages or on halves. In either case when fall and settlement time comes, the landlord gets all the negro has made and has him there to do his bidding and to do any and all odd jobs about the place; so why should the large planter make any further effort to better his condition. He is getting all that his farm produces without the necessity of doing any work himself and has a coterie of servants at his back and call at all times, and since that is what his father did before him, he figures he is getting on top of the world. Until such time as this condition and farming method is changed, there will be no great strides forward in agriculture in the "Black Belt."

Yep, Ole Chilton is a great county.

Lockhart Writes Final Story About Rural Church Conference At Auburn

Editor Union-Banner:

If you will give me space I will write a few more lines in conclusion, concerning the Rural Church Conference recently held at Auburn.

There are yet many things that I haven't mentioned that would likely be of interest to the readers of this paper, but I think I have written enough for this time. The readers will recall that the real purpose of this conference was to awaken a spirit of cooperation between the ministers, county agents, and farmers of our rural districts. This is my purpose for writing to our county paper, that you may share with me in the things that I saw and heard. It shall always be an inspiration to my life work as a minister of the Gospel. If it is the Lord's will I expect to attend the next conference, which will be held at Auburn in June of next year.

You will recall that I promised to write my next letter concerning the experiment on rats. This is the experiment that gave me my greatest inspiration. We don't wish to compare rats with people, but they have chosen the rat to experiment on as it seems to be the best animal to deal with in regard to the things that tend to build or tear down the human body. They have hundreds of them on experiment. The reason for this simple experiment, proving so valuable to me, was that I changed it into a spiritual picture, as well as getting a great lesson for the physical body.

The first rat which was demonstrated to us was one that had been fed on certain vitamins that had proven insufficient for its growth. The results was it became paralyzed. As we view this in the light of Christianity we don't wonder at so many people being spiritually paralyzed. It has been the unholy alliance of believers and unbelievers, that has brought reproach upon the cause of Christ, and paralyzed the nerve of spirital effectiveness. Many in their devotions adore the Saviour's name, who in their social relations deny His claims. Let us awaken and have the greatest revival in the history of our country. Christ crowned in social relationship means the birth of a glorious revival.

We will take a look at the next rat. It has been fed on such vitamins as to destroy its controlling power over its organs of travel. It had just as soon jump into a well as to jump from a block 4 inches high. This reminded me of people who jump at everything that comes along without counting the cost, for the sake of Him, who loved us and died for us. Let us remember that "everything that glitters is not gold."

Now we will take a look at the third rat. It is one that has been fed on vitamin A. It is about four times as large as the one fed on vitamin B. It was strong and vigorous. It wouldn't jump off into places that would endanger its life. This reminds me of people who are spiritually strong and have been fed on good sound Gospel truths. His law alone can solve the problems in social life, and rectify the conscience. His spirit alone can eliminate the blight of self-seeking, and infuse the blessedness of giving and serving. His power alone can draw the devotee of society from his slavery to the round of social functions and dissipations, and inspire him with the enthusiasm of a new purpose, helpfulness to humanity, and loyalty to the Lord of Lords.—M. Lockhart.

THIRTY-ONE ADDITIONS TO LIBERTY HILL AT REVIVAL

The protracted meeting at Liberty Hill, conducted by Rev. J. S. Holland, the pastor, came to a close last Friday night. There were a total of thirty-one additions to the church during the meetings. Baptising was held near the home of Crayton Lenoir on the old Maplesville Highway Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Those who attended report that the meetings were the most enjoyable they almost ever attended. The house was filled to capacity at nearly every service, and the presence of the Holy Spirit was manifest at every gathering. The effects of meetings of this kind will be felt on down through the untold ages of the future—in fact they will never die. The people of Liberty Hill are really and truly in love with Rev. Holland. He has been preaching for them for the past six years.

Mrs. L. C. Duncan and Betsy Ann have returned to their home in Ensley after a visit of several weeks with friends and relatives in Clanton.

Another Deep Sea Rodeo Will Meet

Fishermen the world over are invited to pit their skill against the tarpon, silver king of fishes in Alabama's Third Annual Deep Sea Rodeo, August 17-19. The rodeo this year, as last year, will be held off Dauphin Island, at the mouth of Mobile Bay. Accommodations have been made for the biggest and jolliest crowd ever gathered for the most thrilling of all sports.

Handsome trophies will be awarded for large catches, first catches, funny fish, little fish, big fish, and big fibs.

There will be special prizes for catches made by ladies. Everyone is guaranteed a wonderful time.

The rodeo is the great opportunity for which all fishermen have longed. It is the one big deep water classic that lures the true sportsman from the corners of the nation. In the first rodeo in 1929 eleven states, the District of Columbia, and over fifty counties of Alabama were represented. In the second rodeo in 1930, the attendance greatly increased, for the reputation for good fishing and radiant hospitality had spread far and wide.

This year, Alabama expects to be host to the largest crowd ever gathered for a fishing round-up. There will be excellent accomodations and plenty of boats, and the old timers who "know" wag their heads and say, "Thar's tarpon in them waters this year!"

Entrance and registration fee is $5.00 for the entire three days. Sleeping accomodations are furnished free. Boats costing from $10 to $25 per day and accomodating 4 to 6 persons are rented to parties, who may prorate the cost, if desired. Competent seaman-guides are in command of each boat. Meals are a la crate, reasonably priced and delightful.

The rodeo waters abound in tarpon, black fish, red fish, trout, ling, mackerel, and other fish that will give thrills a-plenty to rodeoists. It will be an ideal vacation.

Make up your party now and communicate immediately with Sam Lackland, Secretary Rodeo Committee, Mobile, Alabama, who will arrange accommodations and boats for you. You may not win a trophy, but you are guaranteed to win your share of a wonderful outing and catch plenty of fish.

A number of Clanton sportsmen attended the rodeo last year, and it is likely more of them will go back for more this time. Loren Smith is already booked for the trip.

Selma Kiwanis Members At Inter-Club Meeting With Clanton

A great revival of the spirit of Kiwanis was had last Thursday night, when the Kiwanis Club of Selma came here to hold an inter-club meeting with the Kiwanis Club of Clanton. About twenty-five visiting Kiwanians from Selma joined with as many of Clanton, and it was a gathering long to be remembered. Friendliness and good fellowship abounded in every heart.

The program was in charge of W. M. Polk, chairman of the committee on inter-club relations. Music was in charge of Percy Pitts, with Mrs. Pitts at the piano. President Mell Martin, of the Clanton Club, presided at the meeting.

The welcome address was made by Mack Wyatt. Paul Munro responded to the welcome on behalf of the visitors from Selma.

"What is Kiwanis," was the subject of an address by Mose Lillianthall, president of the Selma Club. Mose held the audience almost breathless for several minutes, as he poured forth one of the most beautiful word pictures of the great principles and usefulness of Kiwanis in the hearts of men and in the communities where Kiwanis functions.

Congressman W. B. Oliver, of Tuscaloosa, was guest of honor at the meeting. He spoke for several minutes on his observations of Kiwanis. His speech was a joy to everyone.

Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds, was called upon after Mr. Oliver had spoken. He brought almost continued cheers from the crowd as he spoke for a few minutes in his most happy and entertaining mood.

Lem Green and Glenn Boyd, former members of the Clanton Club were present. They were given a hearty reception. Mr. Boyd is now a member of the Selma Club. Rev. Green is a member of the club at Abbeville, where he is now pastor of the Methodist Church.

"Orphan Annie," assistant secretary and "Sweet Mamma," pianist, of the Selma Club, were present. They rendered two musical selections that were very charming. Percy Pitts, Jr., gave a violin selection.

McCORMICK BOY IS NOT MURDERER

Witnesses Testify That He Is Dalton and Not Milton McCormick

After satisfying himself beyond all doubt, and securing testimony of reliable citizens in the matter, that the McCormick boy brought here from Mississippi a few days ago is not Milton McCormick, wanted for the killing of Ed Bearden nine years ago, Sheriff Gillespie has released the boy. He was turned over to the Sheriff from Mississippi Wednesday morning, who carried him back to Louisville to answer a charge of burglary and grand larceny.

Sheriff Gillespie carried with him to Montgomery Monday morning, three men from Maplesville, Joe Hicks and T. R. Williams, merchants, and Jake Wallace, postmaster. These men knew the McCormick family while they lived at Maplesville. They testified and made affidavits that the boy in custody is Dalton McCormick, and not Milton McCormick. Not only these three men but others who knew the family have testified the same.

Therefore, it remains that the Chilton County authorities are not any nearer the answer to the question of where is the slayer of John Ed Bearden. Milton McCormick broke out of the Chilton County jail nine years ago, a few weeks after he had been incarcerated for the killing of his sweetheart's father. Since that time he has not been heard from.

Parties who went with Sheriff Gillespie to Mississippi said the boy under suspicion was the one who killed Bearden. After their positive statements, Sheriff Gillespie had to hold the boy and make every effort to prove the question of whether he was Milton McCormick, as the witnesses testified, or Dalton McCormick, as he claimed himself to be.

Mr. R. E. Powell made a business trip to Birmingham Tuesday.

THREE ARRESTED IN SHELBY, BLALOCK STORE BURGLARY

Monday of this week, three white people, two men and one woman, were arrested in Shelby County in connection with the burglary of the store of J. A. Blalock near Lay Dam on the night of May 27th. Blalock's store was broken into at that time and about $250.00 worth of overalls, shoes, cloth, hose, groceries and gun shells taken by the thieves. Only a small portion of the goods have been recovered, and are now being held by Sheriff Gillespie. The three arrests were made by Shelby County officials and the suspects turned over to the county officers here. The three were carried to Montgomery and placed in jail down there.

Besides the above, there have been nine arrests in the county during the past week. Three were in whiskey cases; three negroes from Birmingham were arrested for reckless driving. Three arrests were made at Jemison for assault and battery, which come under the jurisdiction of Justice Cobb's court.

GOOD MEETING BEING HELD AT FRIENDSHIP THIS WEEK

The protracted meeting services at Friendship this week are being well attended both night and day. The pastor, Rev. J. Robert Bean, has been doing the preaching since Saturday night with the exceptionn of the day services Monday and Tuesday, when the pulpit was filled by Rev. T. J. Deason. Bro. Deason has been present at every service and has been a great insbiration to the meetings even when he did not occupy the pulpit.

Although there had been only two additions Tuesday night, all the services were well enjoyed. It is expected that services will close either Friday or Friday night.

Rev. L. T. Reeves, of Birmingham, was a visitor at the home of Mell Martin Tuesday.

CHILTON OUT OF CONSIDERATION

Can Not Furnish Sufficient Water For Fish Hatchery

Probate Judge Reynolds reports that the investigation of proposed localities in Chilton County for the $50,000 government fish hatchery revealed that we have not got a place in the county that is capable of supplying water in sufficient volume.

The inspector was here last week, and was carried by Judge Reynolds to two places in the northern part of the county. The flow of water was tested and found to be far short of the requirements. After the two places were inspected, it was useless to go to any of the others, said Judge Reynolds, because those which were investigated had a great deal more water than any of the others.

Judge Reynolds stated that all other conditions were satisfactory to the inspector, except the flow of water. The Glass spring above Jemison was an ideal location, with the land surrounding it in good shape. The spring flows about six hundred gallons a minute, while the minimum requirement for the proposed fish hatchery is 1,000 gallons a minute.

The government inspector stated that it would require about a hundred acres of land covered with water from three to four and a half feet deep, and the water supply must be enough to keep the water comparatively fresh and flowing over the entire one hundred acres.

MR. J. H. JACKSON NOW PUTTING GRAPES ON MARKET

Mr. J. H. Jackson of Lomax was in Clanton Monday, letting all his friends know that his grapes are ready for the market. Mr. Jackson left with The Union-Banner a sample basket form his vineyard, and we are witnesses that they are fine.

There are three acres, and they are the genuine Concord variety. Mr. Jackson takes great pains and interest in his vineyard, and he is proud of the record he has made. He depends largely upon his grapes to make his living as well as that of his widowed daughter and six grand children, and he askes the patronage of his friends who might be in the market for this particular kind of produce.

Mr. J. H. Jackson lives in the old Vida Hotel, one-half mile east of Lomax station, and his vineyard is joining his home. He invites his friends to visit him and see what he has in the way of grapes.

Z. T. McMURRAY DIED HERE

Zachariah Tyler McMurray, age 53 years, died last Saturday afternoon at his home in Clanton. Burial was at Clanton cemetery Sunday, in charge of Martin. The funeral was held at the home, conducted by C. C. Metcalf, of Verbena.

Mr. McMurray has been living in Clanton only a few years. He came here from Randolph County. He is survived by his wife and a number of sons and daughters, among whom is Jack McMurray, a traveling salesman, who lives in Clanton.

NEGROES' ARREST OPPOSED

New York, July 26.—A meeting protesting the treatment of 55 negroes held in jail at Dadeville, Ala., was held Sunday by the United Front Defense Committee of the League of Struggle for Negro Rights.

Children First or When?

The work of the 1931 legislature is ended; and it comes to its termination with no provision for the normal growth of the public school system and with no hint of pride or progress in matters educational. This means that Alabama's growing school child must wear the same old suit of clothes for eight years instead of four.

Worse than this. It means that we must get along with an outfit trimmed considerably smaller by citizen taxpayer's cutting down on 1931 tax valuations. His school maintenance must be had for about a million and a quarter less during 1931-32 than during 1930-31. And yet he is bigger. A whale of a lot bigger, from every angle each year.

Now, in these days of strain and necessary economy, every thinking citizen has felt a sincere sympathy for our state legislators as they have tried to find tax money for state operations. They met pledged to economy; and they have economized so far as schools are concerned.

The Warrior's disappointment is that the legislature couldn't find the means to make possible the modest program proposed for rural schools. State University, Auburn, Montevallo, normal colleges, all city school boards, and all the other educational interests stood aside and said, "We ask for nothing for ourselves in this emergency. The keenest point of need is our rural school children. Appropriate for them a small transportation fund, increase their school building and equipment fund, enlarge the equalization fund. Guarantee at least a seven months term."

President Denny of the University appeared in person to plead this cause. The American Legion spoke in no uncertain fashion. The state teachers, organization also approved heartily. The committee on education of the lower legislative house reported the rural school program favorably by unanimous vote. The Senate economy program stopped all action through their committe on education.

Yet this same Senate group favors a $25,000,000 bond issue for roads and a new gas tax. Times are hard, gentlemen, but our big cars must roll smoothly. Most of us live in the city where tax valuations will educate our children in decent style without new laws. We are not going to send our children to county schools. We must have roads. Let's do our economizing without discomfort to ourselves. Hard times! But we must ride over good roads through the country. We do not send to country schools. If we had to, we would fix them up some way—bond issues, new taxes, or what not!

Governor Miller said that education should be his first interest. So did the Democratic platform! Who's first now, gentlemen? Roads, schools, economy, or what?

Alabama's rural school terms are now as short as any in christendom; and, when the full effect of legislative in action and of necessary tax reduction on rural lands is felt in further shortening of terms and deprivation of school advantages, then there will be a public most dissatisfied with Alabama conditions. The sad part is that meanwhile many thousands of rural boys and girls with fine possibilities for development will have missed their way educationally.—Editorial in Tuscaloosa Warrior, July 23, 1931.

DISPOSING OF WATERMELON RINDS

Mr. Walter Poole, who is the man in charge of the city's garbage wagon, says he finds that many people are entirely too careless with their watermelon rinds.

"One of the biggest messes we have to contend with," said Mr. Poole, "is to find where folks dump their rinds in some old, dilapidated trash box in the back yard, and leave them there to wait till the trash wagon comes."

Mr. Poole suggests, first of all that people should secure a good metal garbage can with a lid on it, in which to put not only watermelon rinds, but all other garbage and refuse. This will keep the garbage from becoming a nuisance and prevent the attraction of flies.

But if you have no garbage can that can be kept closed, Mr. Poole suggests that it is better to throw the watermelon rinds out in the middle of the dirt or gravel road, than to put them in an open box. When they are thrown into the road, it will not be long until a few cars will run over them, mash them up, and the ground will take up the water, and the sun will kill the smell.

The suggestion of Mr. Poole in this matter would not alone make it better on the workmen who have to handle the garbage, but it would help immensely to make a cleaner town. Suppose you try it?

FRIENDSHIP SINGING SCHOOL EXTENDED TWO MORE WEEKS

Two more weeks of singing school will be taught by Prof. L. T. Grant at Frinedship, beginning next Monday morning, August 3rd. A three-weeks school closed last Saturday afternoon, which was very successful. Most of the students became so interested until they set out to work up a two-weeks extension, which has been successful.

Prof. Grant will be glad to have anyone enroll who is sufficiently interested.

HON. W. B. OLIVER HERE LAST WEEK

Spent Two Days Getting Acquainted With People of County

Hon. W. B. (Buck) Oliver, of Tuscaloosa, Congressman of the Sixth District of Alabama, spent last Wednesday and Thursday in Chilton County, getting acquainted with the people. By an act of the legislature in re-districting the State, Chilton County has been placed in Congressman Oliver's District.

This was the first visit of Mr. Oliver to Chilton County. The people were glad to see their new representative in the National Congress, while he is not a new representative at all. He is one of the oldest men on the Alabama delegation in point of service; and he is recognized as one of the most powerful and influential men in the United States Congress.

He is a hustler, as was evidenced by the way he met folks and got acquainted while here last week. He took them as he found them, here, there, and everywhere. When he had finished up his stay of two days, there were not many folks who had not seen him and talked with him.

Thursday night Mr. Oliver was the guest of the Kiwanis Club at its inter-club meeting with Selma. The principal address of that meeting was made by the Congressman.

At the conclusion of his visit here, Mr. Oliver expressed great pleasure in visiting the people of Chilton County. He paid glowing tribute to the progressive and wide-awake spirit which he sensed among our people. His parting words were something like this: "I am glad that I am to have an opportunity of serving the people of Chilton County in the National Congress. If at any time I can be of service to any citizen or group of citizens, for the welfare and further progress of this great county, I hope you will call upon me."

MRS. RETHERFORD DIED

Mrs. Retherford, age about 48 years, widow of the late Josh Retherford, died Monday at the County alms house. She was buried Tuesday at Center Hill.

Mrs. Retherford had been an inmate of the alms house for the past two years.

George Tippett went to Talladega Tuesday to attend the American Legion Convention.

DeWitt Easterling went to Birmingham on business Monday.

FARM MEETINGS WILL BE HELD

County Agent Stapp Will Push Campaign For Winter Legumes

County Agent Stapp is anxious to see every farmer in Chilton County plant at least 5 acres of Austrian winter peas or vetch per plow. While in attendance at the meeting at Auburn in June, Mr. Stapp made plans for an extensive soil-building campaign this fall. He has already sent out four circular letters pertaining to the campaign. He has offered nice prizes to the club boys who are most active in the campaign. The banks of the county are cooperating in a splendid way. In an effort to reach as many people personally as possible, and discuss with them the great importance of Austrian peas and vetch as soil building crops, Mr. Stapp has arranged the following series of meetings:

Providence (north of Jemison) August 3, 7:00 p. m.

Pleasant Grove, Tuesday, August 4, 7:00 p. m.

Concord, Wednesday, August 5, 7:00 p. m.

Fairview, Thursday, August 6, 7:00 p. m.

Sardis, Friday, August, 7, 7:00 p. m.

Isabella, Monday, August 10, 7:00 p. m.

Baker, Tuesday, August 11, 7:00 p. m.

Jackson Chapel, Monday, August 17, 7:00 p. m.

Union Grove, Tuesday, August 18, 7:00 p. m.

Freeman, Wednesday, August 19, 7:00 p. m.

Pinedale, Thursday, August 20, 7:00 p. m.

Verbena, Friday, August 21, 7:00 p. m.

Mr. Stapp regrets that he will not be able to visit every schoolhouse in the county, but feels that practically everyone in the county can easily teach one of the above schools. At these meetings Mr. Stapp will give the latest recommendations of the experiment station.

Eugene Gore and Bud Klinner left Monday morning for Talladega, where they spent Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the American Legion State Convention.

HOUSE PASSED SHERIFFS BILL

Measure Would Permit Incumbrent To Succeed Himself

By the decisive vote of 66 to 16, the house Tuesday passed the senate constitutional amendment permitting the sheriffs of Alabama to succeed themselves. The voters of the state will pass on the amendment in the general election of 1932.

Sheriff William H. Holcombe, Jr., of Mobile county, who represented the sheriffs of the state in looking after this measure, was felicitated by members of the house when the bill passed. Scores of members grasped his hand and congratulated him on his success in steering the act to passage.

"On behalf of the 67 sheriffs of Alabama, I want to express appreciation to the legislature for passing this piece of legislation," the Mobile sheriff asserted. "I am especially elated over the legislature's action, in view of the statement recently made by a newspaper organ in my city (the Mobile Press) that this bill was headed for the junk heap."

Making the principal speech for the bill, Representative W. C. Taylor declared the people should have the right to re-elect their sheriffs if they saw fit.

"That is a sound democratic principle," Taylor said, "and I urge the house to vote favorably on this bill and let it go to the people of the state for ratification at the polls."

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

FARMERS USED 221,000 TONS LESS FERTILIZER

By using 425,000 tons of fertilizer this year, Alabama farmers used 221,000 tons less than they used last year, according to estimates by the Alabama Department of Agriculture, released by F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician. The estimates are based upon the annual survey and dealers' reports of shipments.

Of the tonnage used this year 322,000 tons were used on cotton and 103,000 on all other crops. These figures compare with 646,000 tons used last year, 513,000 on cotton and 133,000 on other crops.

4,914 POUNDS BUTTER REJECTED BY ALABAMA

During the past three months, 4,914 pounds of butter have been suspended from sale in Alabama with four lots representing 4,314 pounds required to be shipped out of Alabama back to the manufacturer because of eing short weight and containing insufficient butter fat, according to Dr. George Marsh, chief of the chemistry division of the Department of Agriculture and Industries.

"This was done to protect the dairy industry of the state and to assure consumers of butter that they were getting correctly labeled butter when purchasing same," said Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture.

COTTON PRICE IS ABOUT SAME AS 100 YEARS AGO

Cotton prices are about the same as they were 100 years ago, reports the radio and market division of the Alabama Department of Agriculture.

According to the United States Bureau of Census upland cotton prices in 1831, 100 years ago, averaged 9.4 cents per pound. This is not far off the average price at the ten spot markets during the first six months of this year.

Bureau statistics also show that in 1930 the average price of upland cotton was 9.5 cents per pound compared with the average of 9.7 cents in 1830. This shows that 100 years ago cotton average .2 cents per pound higher than it did last year.

During the past 100 years the high average price was in 1863 when cotton averaged 101.5 cents per pound. The lowest average for any year was in 1898 when cotton averaged 4.9 cents per pound.

3 BEE SHIPMENTS BURNED BY STATE

Enforcing the Alabama bee law and protecting the bee nidustry of the state against further spread of the American and European foulbrood, Thomas Atchison, state apiary inspector, has recently burned three shipments of bees shipped into Alabama from other states in violation of the Alaama bee law.

"Not only were the bees and equipment burned under the advice of Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture and industries, but the shippers were required to pay the purchasers for the losses incurred," Mr. Atchison sead.

The bees were shipped into Alabama on comb which is a violation of the bee quarantine adopted by the state board of agriculture in 1928.

FARM WOMEN CAN MANY PRODUCTS

Auburn, Ala., July 27.—To provide a supply of canned products for their own tables and also a surplus for the market 24,759 Alabama women and girls who are engaged in home demonstration and 4-H clubs are now engaged in home canning. Fruits, vegetables, and meats are being canned or preserved otherwise in the form of jams, jellies, pickles, juices, and also dried products.

Most of these food products are canned in glass containers, although a few are using tin, according to Miss Helen Kennedy, extension specialist in foods and nutrition of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

The work is now at a peak for the season. It began in the spring and will continue until the end of the harvest season in the fall. Fruits and vegetables in season are being saven in cans. Most of the work is being done in kitchens, but a few have access to larger canning outfits. Steam pressure canners are being used on a larger scale than ever before.

As a guide to supplying the family needs Miss Kennedy has named a standard budget for a family of five. It includes 60 quarts of tomatoes, 30 pints of peas, 20 quarts of beans, 30 pints of corn, beets and carrots, 20 quarts of soup mixture, and 65 quarts of berries. To this should be added 5 quarts and 5 pints of vegetables and 5 quarts of fruit for emergencies, she said.

A fruit, two vegetables in addition to potatoes, and a meat should be included in the daily diet of each person, Miss Kennedy said. By canning and otherwise saving fruits and vegetables while they are in season these products will be available during the fall, winter, and spring.

NEWS IN BRIEF

A total of 2,715,846 passengers traveled on civil aircraft in the United States in 1930, according to an official report.

The department of commerce at Washington reports 89 nurseries in Alabama, using 4,230 acres of land, with the value of this land, buildings, and equipment amounting to $1,478,831. Receipts from sales last year totaled $961,284.

During the first nine months of last year when merchants were losing their markets and men were losing their jobs because, mainly, there was not enough money in circulation, 720,000,000 were added to savings accounts in the United States.

Oat production this year on the state demonstration farm at Sylacauga averaged 42.3 bushels per acre, according to a report sent to Auburn by County Agent W. T. Coker. The seed were planted last September at the rate of 1 1-2 bushels per acre.

On a recent visit to the government Muscle Shoals property near Florence, Alabama, Secretary of War, Hurley, advised that the joint committee now trying to determine the best way to use these properties should find an outlet in the interest of agriculture. He said that changes in recent years have rendered Muscle Shoals unnecessary for explosives for war.

RAT PROTECTION ON CORNCRIB

Auburn, Ala., July 27.—With a larger corn crop planted and good yields generally expected it is time to give attention to cribs for storing corn, said W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist at Auburn.

"Especially," continues Mr. Ruffin, "should cribs be made rat-proof. More than the cost of this should be saved during the first year. An unprotected crib is the social center and also the commissary for all rats in the neighborhood."

"Of all the buildings on the average farm the corncrib is usually in greatest need of rat-proofing, and now is the time to build the rats out while the crib is empty and before this year's crop is gathered. One of the cheapest methods where conditions are suitable is to place the crib on posts that give an underneath clearance of at least thirty inches. The supporting posts are covered with sheet metal, or are protected at the tops with metal discs extending at least nine inches out from the posts."

In the summer when cribs are empty and other farm work is not pressing they should receive attention in order to have them ready for storing corn in the fall. Making them rat-proof is not expensive, but it will save a great amount of corn in one season. In addition to saving corn the quality of that which is not destroyed will be improved by keeping rats out.

Practical information on making cribs rat-proof is contained in Farmer Bulletin No. 1638 "Rat-Proofing Buildings and Premises," issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Copies may be had by writing Mr. Ruffin, or from county agents.

TENNESSEE MAN TELLS WHY TIMES ARE HARD

To his home town paper, a fellow in West Tennesse writes:

"Holler Rock Junction, Tenn., May 6, 1931.—Dear Mr. Editor: There seems to be so much talk about our so-called Republican prosperity, I believe 'tis my duty to write my views on same and help to analyze the situation as far as possible so's we can make up our minds that we had outo change our way of living and so forth.

I have taken my own case, for instance. I see my mistakes and many others have acted likewise. I bought a Ford instead of a farm and it is worn out, but the farm I figured on is still O. K. I invested in a radio instead of a cow, and the radio gives static instead of milk.

I am feeding five nice hounds which answer to the names of Red, Red Wing, Slobber, Jake and Bayrum, instead of five pigs. I had a piano tuned instead of the well cleaned out. I spent all my cash in 1928 and used my credit in 1929 and traded up my future wages on installments in 1930, so hard times caught me in hard shape last fall.

If I had spent my last $10 for flour and meat instead of gas and oil, I would have been O. K. I built a nice garage last year instead of covering my barn, and I loafed in a mountain two weeks instead of being in the pasture fixing it so's my cow won't get out, but she is dry and mortgaged to boot for two blankets my wife bought from an agent instead of paying the preacher.

I am on a cash basis now, but ain't got no cash. I am tied to the end of my rope and the man I am working for is busted on account of nobody wouldn't pay him and his cotton won't sell 'cause nobody won't buy cotton clothes; all the gals wear slick silky stocking and silk underclothes right here in our cotton patches. I had $4 saved up for a rainy day but it turned dry and I spent the $4 for two inner tubes.

I tried hard to make both ends meet with a turnip patch, but when I got ready to sell, everybody else was selling turnips for nothing and the market was glutted. I am worried plum to the bone and my wife's kin folks are coming over next Tuesday to spend two weeks.

Write or phone if you hear of any relief from the Government coming down my way. I am willing to be either a Democrat or a Republican for a few weeks if that will help out any.

Yours truly in pain,
MIKE CLARKE, R. F. D.

NEW DEVICE TRANSFORMS MUSIC INTO COLOR

The development of a marvelous color organ which automatically converts music into changing colors in harmony with the moods expressed by the music, and which can be used to protect the human voice in color on a screen, was described by Mr. E. B. Patterson, research engineer of the RCA Victor Company.

The color organ, which operates on radio-electrical principles, was developed in the vast radio laboratories concentrated in Camden, New Jersey, by RCA Victor. It is designed to produce a greater emotional affect on the spectator-listener than can be obtained by listening to music alone. It has long been known, Mr. Patterson said, that color affects human emotion in much the same way that certain moods in music do. The color organ endeavors to make a simultaneous appeal to both senses, of sight and sound, for greater anesthetic enjoyment.

Visualizing its application to the stage, or the concert hall, Mr. Patterson described the operation of the color organ in conjunction with the performance of a "blues" singer. The singer's voice picked up by a microphone connected to the color device automatically creates a colorful background of appropriate atmosphere which changes with the fluctations of his voice. Another application of the color device is to fountains, where in addition to creating pleasing lighting effects, it will be possible to control water valves so that the flow of water is varied with the changing tempo of the music.

COTTON LOSS HEAVY IN GEORGIA STORM

Lawrenceville, Ga., July 21.—A violent storm, accompanied by hail and rain, swept over a section of Gwinnett County, eight miles south of here in the Snellville vicinity, Sunday afternoon, laying waste cotton, corn and other farm products, uprooting large timber, some of which had stood for nearly a century, doing damage to barns and dwelling houses and to stock.

The annual reunion of the Williams families at the old William Henry homestead, where about 200 of the descendants had gathered to celebrate, was in the midst of the storm. The hail came in such torrents as to crush through the tops of automobiles, and was said to have been shoe mouth deep and large as large plums. Cotton and corn were totally destroyed on some farms, the cotton being divested of every vestage of foliage, nothing left except the stalk and limbs, which were scarred by the hailstones. The corn that was not broken off was cut to shreds, according to T. A. Pate, one of the largest farmers of the county, and who had farms in the demolished section.

FORESTRY EFFICIENCY CHECKED BY RECORDS

Montgomery, Ala., July 27.—Practically ten hours work a day, nine and nine-tenths to be axact, was the lot of the forestry agents of the state during the first half of the calendar year, 1931, according to the records of the efficiency system installed in the department since the time of its organization, says Colonel Page S. Bunker, state forester. This system contains certain cross checks that definitely reveal the exact performance of each individual in the field service, thus obviating the necessity of wondering or guessing what the men are doing.

On account of the financial condition of the state the number of field men employed was reduced to forty-five, who were employed for an average period of ninety days. Assisting landowners in forest fire suppression consumed eight and one-half per cent; gathering data and statistics on fires, four and one-half per cent; interviewing citizens in the promotion of timber growing, eleven per cent; assisting landowners in forest planting, one per cent; construction of improvements, three and one-half per cent; clerical work, four and one-half per cent; Sundays and holidays, four and one-half per cent; miscellaneous work, including fire lookout duty, twenty-nine and one-half per cent, while travel about the districts consumed approximately thirty-three per cent.

WHAT A BARREL OF WHISKEY CONTAINS

By Ernest Jones
Roopville, Ga.

A barrel of headaches, of heartaches and woes,
A barrel of curses, a barrel of blows.
A barrel of sorrow for a loving, weary wife,
A barrel of cares, a barrel of strife.
A barrel of unavailing regret,
A barrel of cares, a barrel of debt.
A barrel of hunger, of poison, of pain,
A barrel of hopes all blasted and vain.
A barrel of poverty, ruin, and blight,
A barrel of tears that run in the night.
A barrel of crime, a barrel of groans,
A barrel of orphans' pitiful moans.
A barrel of serpents that hiss as they pass,
That glow from the liquor in the bead of the glass.
A barrel of lies, a barrel of cries,
That fall from the drunkard's lips when he dies.

STORAGE OF QUILTS IN SUMMER IS TOLD

"I don't know just what to do with my quilts in the summer," sighed a farm woman living in a small house which was built more for shelter than for convenience of home making.

A look into the darkest corner of of the bedroom would perhaps reveal an unsightly bulk which upon closer inspection would prove to be all the surplus quilts piled upon a big chair or table and tied over with a sheet. A solution to just such a problem was given to Plantersville home demonstration club members in Dallas County in an exhibition at the time of their better homes program.

Mrs. T. M. Martin, a member of the club, exhibited as her contribution to the collection of most useful household articles, a quilt box which was so attractive as to demand attention and so practical as to hold it.

Confronted with the problem of storage space for quilts and being an ingenious woman, Mrs. Martin salvaged from the woodpile an old packing box which was subsantially made. From an old leather strap she cut strips for hinges and a tab for lifting the lid. She lined the box first with heavy builders' paper and over this lining she streched unbleachable muslin.

The top and sides were padded with enough cotton to make a smooth surface. A dull finish oil cloth made a pretty cover which cleans easily. The colors of the oil cloth cover were selected to harmonize with other furnishings of the room in which the box serves the double purpose of storage space for quilts and window seat.

Mrs. Martin has found that by being awake to the possibilities of seemingly useless articles, many conveniences may be added to the home at small cost.

Pimentoes when moved from cans will keep indefinitely in the refrigerator if drained, placed in a glass tumbler and keep covered with salad oil.

Lesson for August 2

PHILIP'S MISSIONARY LABORS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 8:5-40.

GOLDEN TEXT—Therefore they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Philip Tells a Stranger About Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Philip An Early Missionary.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Pioneering for Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Gospel Breaks Over the Frontier.

I. Philip Preaching in Samaria (vv. 5-8).

In taking the gospel to the Samaritans we see the broadening of the scope of Christianity. Philip was one of the seven so-called deacons. He went to Samaria and preached Christ showing that God's purpose included these despised people. Christ is the true message of the evangelist. Not Christ as an ethical teacher or as an example, but Christ as the Savior from sin through the offering of himself on the cross as a substitutionary ransom.

II. Philip Preaching to the Ethiopian (Acts 8:26-39).

Following the preaching to the Samaritans, the gospel was preached to the Ethiopian who was in all probability a Gentile. In his conversion we see the gospel in its outreach to the ends of the earth.

1. Philip meeting the Ethiopian (vv. 26-30).

a. Leaving work by divine direction (v. 26). The Lord called Philip away from a great work in Samaria and specifically directed him to this man. The Spirit of God directed him to go near and join himself to the chariot. The tactful question put to the treasurer gained him a seat by his side. The mission which at first seemed so unpromising was now clear.

b. An officer of state seeking the way of salvation (vv. 27, 28). The Ethiopian had been to Jerusalem to worship. Despite his high official position he was not ashamed of the worship of God. The journey from that far-off country required hardship and expense, but to one whose soul yearns after God this is all joy.

c. A providential meeting in the desert (vv. 29, 30). The coming together of these two men was clearly the predetermined way of God.

2. Philip preaching to the Ethiopian (vv. 30-35).

a. The Ethiopian's employment on the way (v. 30). He was reading the Word of God. The particular portion was the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah. A most excellent way to spend one's time while traveling is to read God's Word. It is through God's Word that the individual is shown the way of life.

b. The need of an interpreter (v. 31). The Ethiopian was reading one of the clearest testimonies to the Messiah in the Old Testament, yet he was unable to understand it. The Ethiopian, a great statesman, needed an interpreter of the Scriptures. The gospel needs to be experienced before one can be a witness to its saving power. The human mind in its natural state is blind to spiritual things, making the work of an evangelist indispensable. Preaching the Word of God will always be necessary. God has designed that through the foolishness of preaching, men shall be saved. Valuable, indeed, as the Bible is in the hands of men, the touch and influence of the believing man who has experienced the work of God in his own heart is needed.

c. Philip's message (vv. 32-35). He began at the scripture which the Ethiopian was reading and preached unto him Jesus. This shows us that the person presented in the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah as suffering in the stead of others was Jesus Christ, also that the central theme of the preacher's message should be Christ crucified. He did not preach Jesus as a great teacher, but as a Savior who had suffered and died in the stead of sinners. The vicarious atonement is a note which is at the very heart of the message of every evangelist.

3. Philip baptized the Ethiopian (vv. 36-38). As a result of Philip's preaching, the eunuch proposed baptism. When Christ is truly received men will desire to confess him in baptism. Where this desire is lacking the gospel in its fullness is evidently not preached. The Ethiopian might have offered many excuses as to why he should neglect this important ordinance, but like every man who is honest before God, he was willing at any cost to render obedience.

4. The Ethiopian rejoicing (v. 39). Having been baptized, he went on his way rejoicing. Confession of Christ and obedience to his Word always brings joy.

Oh, if religion can only rid us of this cursed habit of worry, what a blessing it will be! And Paul says it can. He is writing in the shadow of a prison. "Be anxious for nothing!" What a song to sing itself through prison bars!—James I. Vance.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

A moderately hopeful view of the last half of the year is taken by the economic survey of the conservative standard statistics published recently. The survey states that "it is our opinion that the basis is being laid for an extended period of recovery." It sets out that the recent moratorium plan of President Hoover has created a "definite assurance that a latent buying power of tremendous proportions existed just beneath the exterior of drab pessimism of the past few months." The survey adds that little can be expected in the way of increased activity during the third quarter now beginning, but adds that the fourth quarter of the year "will show definite expansion over the third quarter, while the drastic decline of late 1930 will admit of favorable comparison (with the final quarter of last year) in a majority of individual instances."

All of which may be taken as a fair forecast of the situation, and one not at all discouraging. It must be evident, however, to anyone who will pause to think for a moment, that even if business picks up during the last half of the year much faster than now seems likely, a great deal of relief work will be necessary during the coming winter. The scares of two years of depression will not disappear in the space of two or three months after the healing period has set in.

It is logical to anticipate, therefore, that no matter how quickly we get back on the road to normalcy, a great deal of relief work will be necessary during the coming winter. And it is highly encouraging to note that the people of the United States generally are preparing to meet the situation and that they do not intend to be caught napping. The President's Emergency Committee for Employment is fully in touch with the situation and has already set about lining up the constructive forces of relief for the coming winter.

It is a matter of pride to the average American that the people of the United States were able last winter, in the drought section as well as in great centers of unemployment, to take care of the situation, without recourse to the federal treasury, and without any establishment of the dole system in any guise. The people rose to the emergency in the various states and communities, and calls for relief were not unheeded.

Now it is true that there were a great many demands for public relief from Uncle Sam's treasury and for the establishment of what amount to the dole system in one form or another. It is all the more likely that there will be even greater demands for government relief during the next winter. As the national campaign of 1932 approaches it would perhaps be expecting too much of some of the politicians, to assume that they will not call for relief by federal appropriation.

But the people of the United States are just as much opposed to this kind of relief as they were last year. They still believe that relief from the results of the depression can best be handled by private organizations and by the communities themselves, with the cooperation of the President's committee. Since this is true, it is all the more important that the various state and community agencies get ready early for the coming winter. If we are then pleasantly surprised and the demands are not as great as anticipated, all the better. It is a sure thing that we cannot help matters by early neglect, and we do not want to take any chances. The more preparation now the easier it will be to handle the siuation next winter, and the less call there will be for demands on the public treasury.

THE LEGISLATURE ADJOURNS

The legislature of Alabama adjourned about midnight last Saturday night, bringing to a close one of the most unusual sessions ever held by the law-making body of this State. It was an unusual session in many ways. It is impossible at this time to give an intelligent summarized estimate of the accomplishments or lack of accomplishments of the legislative session.

It appears that even the members of the legislature themselves do not fully comprehend the meaning of everything they did or failed to do. Upon more than one occasion has it been observed that members of the house or Senate were unable to give accurate information of what had been done about certain measures inquired about.

Maybe somebody will be able to compile the doings of the 1931 legislature so that it may be available to those who care to study it. Perhaps then we can retire to some quiet spot, take a few weeks off and figure out for ourselves just where we are "at."

A number of constitutional amendments were authorized by the law makers. How the people will react upon those measures can be told only after they are made fully acquainted with what the propositions contain, and how they will affect the public.

From a strictly local standpoint, Chilton County remains unaffected by any measures enacted. Percy Pitts succeeded in getting his local educational bills passed in the House, but they died in the Senate. One of these measures provided for the election of the county superintendent of education by the people. The other provided for electing members of the county board of education from certain districts of the county.

Another local bill was advertised providing for the election of members of the commissioners court by districts. This bill was not made a law. We have been unable to find out whether it was ever introduced in either the House or Senate.

SCHOOL FUNDS REDUCED

County Superintendent of Education, Buford Lawrence, says that the schools of Chilton County will have to operate next session on less money than they had available last session.

It is pointed out that this reduction in funds is brought about by the net effect of certain losses in the assessed valuation of property in the county, some recent enactments of the legislature relative to school matters, and the loss of an appropriation from the State by action of the commissioners court in discontinuing its appropriation to the child welfare work and attendance officer.

SOME AMERICAN OBSERVATIONS

(By Jay. Taylor)

The universities having closed for the summer, those professors of citizenship and economics, who have been teaching young Americans that their first duty is to promote the welfare of Europe, can now go abroad and receive the recognition they deserve.

Secretary of Labor, Doak, confirms the report that the flow of migration has been reversed and that now for each three aliens entering the country four are leaving. Last year only ninety-six million aliens landed here, which is the smallest number since 1862.

It is only fair to say that most of our international bankers would be unwilling to sell out their country in order to increase temporarily the market value of their foreign bonds.

The older we grow, the more we respect Washington's advice that America should cultivate friendly relations with other nations and avoid entanglement in their affairs.

After all, America's best opportunity for the development of foreign trade is on the American continent. At the proper time the United States can wisely use funds for this purpose in Central and South America.

Now that the Fourth of July is over did you ever stop to think that there is no such thing as an independence day for a married man?

It is said that the Chinese government will split the thirty provinces of the country up into sixty-nine provinces. This may be all right in China where it won't add to the number of state legislators.

We don't miss the furnace firing that we had to do last winter but we do miss the hot biscuits.

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

Well, folks, here we are back on the old job again after having been with The Prattville Progress for two weeks. The "devil" has been laying down on the job while we have been away and we find plenty of cinders to huddle up.

As we have been somewhat disconnected with what has been going on in old Chilton for the past two weeks, we will not have much to say this week, and will put our time and efforts to the job of rounding up the cinders in the corner, while we look for some clinkers on which to dissertate next week.

We wish to say that we have enjoyed our vacation from the duties of keeping the office swept up and the monotony of our duties here. We met many interesting people in Prattville and in our short stay there learned to love them—the girls especially.

Trusting that you will forgive our shortcomings this week, and promising to fill the ol' colyum to the brim next week with something interesting, we will sign off.—The Sweeper.

Plenty of rain continues to fall more or less generally over Chilton County. However, there are some places where farmers complain that their crops will be short on account of dry weather. It is reported that the extremely dry section of last year in the southern part of the county has mighty fine crops this time.

The MAN in the MOON

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

Wading Shallow—Sometimes I get all serious like, and go in for a lot of serious comment and the like. Not long ago a fellow came around to me and suggested that I take a week off all such, and concentrate on trying to rouse a few smiles among the brethren. I thought he was asking quite a bit of me—asking me to try to sprout smiles when everybody KNOWS that long faces are fashionable. But, just the same, for once I'm going to try to do like somebody else says. So, ladies and gentlemen, and those who think they are such, here goes for a merry old week of fun and frolic. After all, some guy has rightly observed: "Get all the fun out of this world that you can—you'll never get out of it alive any way."

Where Is He—I am indebted to The Printer Journalist for the first squib in this week's "colyum," as it sets forth the requirements for a successful trade association secretary. Read 'em for yourself: "He should include in his make-up the business genius of John D. Rockefeller, the eloquence of W. J. Bryan, the inventive ability of Edison, the organization ability of Moses, the patience of Job, the diplomacy of a successful preacher, the financial ability of Andrew Mellon, the physical stamina of a Missouri mule, and the energy of a 10-ton truck. He should have no regard for working hours, and be as economical as the wife of a Methodist circuit rider. He should sleep only when there is nothing else to do, and that means never. Like some animals, he should have pouches in his cheeks in which to carry grub, so he can eat without stopping. He must be able to show a good profit for every member, no matter what those members do to help themselves. And then, after he is set up and ready to run, some of the members will pick flaws in him." If you know him, let the world know where and who he is, so people can begin to probe into his history to find out what's wrong with him.

My Wandering Hat—Somewhere in this sad vale of tears there is a lost hat—my hat. Now, I like that little old straw hat, else I wouldn't have gone to the trouble to try to keep up with it all these several years I've had it. And this isn't the first time that hat has been lost. It has been lost so many times—and always returned—that I have gotten into the habit of failing to look for it. It seems that nobody else will wear it, so they always bring or send it back to me. The edge is frayed, the band is torn, it has no lining (never did have), and the only thing good about it is the price I paid for it (I have forgotten how much), and the fact that it always comes home. Don't make any special search for it—that isn't at all necessary. But if it happens to skid across your path, please give it a swift kick in my direction.

Rolling Potatoes—I read the papers every once in a while, as Will Rogers would say, and from time to time I read passages, heads etc., that sound a bit funny. I can't explain just why, but in scanning the head lines a few days ago, I ran across one of this kind, which read: "POTATOES NOW ROLLING." Now, who ever heard of a potato rolling? Yep, I heard about rolling potatoes, but never about potatoes rolling. The article didn't state where they were rolling, nor why—just rolling. I can't imagine what would make a potato roll, but I suppose the fellow knew what he was talking about—I don't .

Going Broke—I read in another paper where some report shows that there were about 18,000 more tenant farmers in 1930 than in 1920. Why? I don't know, unless the fellows went broke raising cotton at 15 cents a pound and selling it for 10 cents or less. Just come to think of it, that would get to be a bit disgusting after a few seasons, wouldn't it? And I suppose again, that these small farmers got all hot under the collar, and disgusted—maybe they got right peeved and decided they would get it all back on somebody by just selling out, or giving the old farm back, and letting somebody else worry over where the money was coming from to pay the taxes. That's an idea, any way.

A New Wrinkle—I've heard of a lot of ways of giving folks a skinning, but just a few days ago I heard a 1932 idea on the subject. A very good friend says he has heard of people taking in a load of stove wood all piled high and handsome, and underneath a nice pretty top layer, the wood would be stacked hog pen fashion, if you know what I mean. Now, ain't that sump'n? I know nearly everybody has, in time, when they were youngsters, gone out to play around the stove wood pile, and had lots of fun making hog pens out of the wood. I have—lots of times. Some times it was work—other times it was play. It was play when I couldn't find anything else to play at, but it was work if mother sent me out to stack it thus, so it would dry out faster. But when it comes to a fellow using the baby's play house ideas to skin folks—well—that IS rich. Pretty soon I suppose a fellow will have to have the side of his wagon or truck body on hinges, so his prospective wood buyer can take a look under the surface. Like opening the side of a strawberry crate, to see if the contents run all the way down like they appear on the surface. Somebody has said: "Man grows weaker and wiser," to which someone else replies: "Nope, that ain't right. It ought to read 'Man grows crookeder and crookeder'."

That Ever-Present "But"—Excuse me this time, please, for departing from my fun week program, to get a little serious. You remember a little article I had a few days ago about prohibition, and how most folks who were against the prohibition laws always included a little almight "but" somewhere in their comments on the subject. Well, I received a letter from a good brother not long ago in regard to this article. Oh, boy, he was hot and long-winded—got all huffy and quoted the Bible a lot, and all that. I kept on reading, for I had an idea that "but" would crop out somewhere down the line, and I wasn't disappointed—it DID. One thing I'll have to commend that man for, though. He isn't a straddler. He states that he has been for prohibition all along until he has had time to think seriously over the matter, and now he's just as hard against it. That's good. Be whatever you are, even though you may be wrong.

What To Expect—If you have a radio, more than apt you have become restless at some time or another, and began spinning your dials just to see what you could hear (imagine SEEING on a radio) and got two or three stations all mixed up together. Sounded worse than the mixed-up conversation you used to hear when ma took you to a quilting with her. And, by the way, that was funny, how those good old sisters COULD talk, wasn't it? Now, in the near future, maybe next week, I'm going to give you a good one along this line. I've read some good squibs of this kind, but I'll try to make this one new and original. Look for it soon.—The Man in the Moon.

WILL FINISH ISABELLA SCHOOL

Of more than ordinary interest is the statement from the county superintendent of education that plans are now under way to complete the building of the Isabella High School. The people of that fine community have had a hard tussle of their building problem. But they have held on to it and worked with determination.

Under the new arrangement for state aid which was made by the 1931 legislature, a community can get fifty-fifty aid from the state on school buildings. Recently the county commissioners gave $500 to the school to help them finish the building. This with aid available from the State, it is thought, will be sufficient to finally finish the building.

The Isabella High School, teaching not only academic subjects in the high school course, but vocational agriculture and home economics as well, is one of the most valuable schools in our county. It occupies a very strategic position in providing educational opportunities for a great many boys and girls of promise. We hope the school may not be longer handicapped by having its building incomplete.

THE NEW GASOLINE TAX

Governor Miller Monday night signed the Tunstall bill raising the State tax on gasoline from four to five cents. The levy is classed as an excise tax with all funds to be paid into the state highway department's treasury until October 1, 1932.

The latest one-cent tax, after October 1, 1932, will be collected and distributed to Alabama's 67 counties on an equal basis until October 1, 1935, at which time the levy will cease.

Revenue from the added levy is expected to total from between $4,000 and $5,000 a day.

LIFE INSURANCE IN ALABAMA

The largest life insurance payments in Alabama last year were $312,000 to the estate of Dr. A. W. Bell, whose Birmingham bank closed the same day he was drowned in the Coosa river, and $175,000 to the estate of Walter Moore, Birmingham coal operator and former democratic national committeeman from Alabama.

That Alabama is rather low in the sale of life insurance protection is indicated by the annual figures showing that the state ranked 26th in insurance payments last year, while it ranks 16 in population. Insurance payments in the three largest cities totaled as follows for the year: Birmingham, $4,700,000; Mobile, $1,771,200; Montgomery, $1,316,700.

The carrving of as much life insurance as income will permit has today been adopted by practically all business men. It is recognized not only as a sound and safe method of saving and accumulating, but the protective features which it gives to those left have recommended life insurance to every citizen.—Alabama Journal.

A TIME FOR OPTIMISM

It is true there is unemployment. It is true business is dull. It is true that conditions, at home and abroad, cry for remedy. But it is also true that if all of us who have jobs have money to spend, were spending and investing it as usual, instead of timidly hoarding it out of phantom fears, there would soon be little unemployment and business would be flourishing. The world isn't about to come to an end. The United States is not about to topple over the precipice. The best and most powerful minds of civilization are active, as in no other period of depression, for cooperative action to wipe out injustices, to remove defects, to cure social and economic ills and ailments. The whole of society, as never before, is devoting itself to the succor of the unfortunate. Out of the turmoil there are gradually evolving plans and purposes that will lift humanity to a higher and safer plane of existence. It is out of crises that improvement emerges. There is enduring truth in the ancient saying that it is darkest just before the dawn.—Omaha World-Tribune.

Radio's Mission—Scientists know that the radio is making for universal languages.

Another Anniversary—Chocolate has been used in cookery for precisely 150 years—ever since a chocolate mill was started near Boston.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw—
and Some He Saw Not.

Much to the satisfaction of his many friends in Clanton, and especially to members of the Kiwanis Club, Lem Green made his sudden and unexpected appearance here last Thursday evening. He came with the Kiwanis Club of Selma for the inter-club meeting with Clanton. Mr. Green, while pastor of the Clanton Methodist Church, was a charter member of the Kiwanis Club of Clanton. Before coming here he was a charter member of the Club at Eutaw. Since leaving here he has been a charter member of the club at Abbeville. Lem claims the State record for charter membership in Kiwanis Clubs.

Lem was induced to come to the meeting last Thursday by Glenn Boyd, another former member of the Clanton Club. As he passed through Selma, Mr. Green went by the bank to see Glenn, and they arranged to come together. Mr. Boyd comes here frequently. He has a camp on Lake Mitchell, where he spends many week-ends. He still insists that he shall continue to claim Clanton and Chilton County as his home.

The get-together meeting of Clanton and Selma Kiwanians was a jolly occasion. It was the first time the two clubs have gotten together since the 15th of March, 1928, when the Selma Club delivered the International Charter to the Clanton Club. The program was spicy, full of fun, and a proper amount of serious Kiwanis thought. Mose Lillianthall, president of the Selma Club, cut loose from one of the best talks we ever heard on the subject "What Is Kiwanis?"

We should be interested in anything and everything that tends to make Clanton a cleaner town. Walter Poole offers a good suggestion about the disposition of watermelon rinds. He says don't put them into an open box in the back yard. If you haven't a regular approved style of garbage can with a lid on it, take the rinds to the middle of the street and throw them down where the traffic will run over them. In this way they will soon be broken and mashed to pieces, and the ground will take up the moisture. Nothing can make a worse mess than a box or barrel full of old soured watermelon rinds.

We are indeed sorry that the investigation of Chilton County as a possible location for the fish hatchery revealed that we have no place capable of furnishing a sufficient quantity of fresh flowing water. Judge Reynolds and the Commissioners were much interested in having the different sites inspected. But when the inspector turned down two places in the northern part of the county, they knew there was no use to take him to others which furnished a less amount of water.

Chilton County farmers are developing into expert peddlers. They are eternally here, there, or elsewhere, trying to sell some kind of produce. That is a commendable spirit. It is the secret of the success of diversified farming. Hundreds of truck loads of watermelons and other farm products are going to the nearby cities every week. Peaches are plentiful now, and it is unfortunate that there is not a better market. If our farmers had their peach acreage planted in uniform varieties so the ripening would come at the same time, then car load shipments could be made to northern markets. Such peaches as we are now having here would surely command a good price in the markets if they could be gotten there in the right way.

Uncle Tom Powell, of Concord community, was a visitor to Clanton last Saturday. I talked with him about his farm. He don't talk much, and he very modestly refers to the manner in which he cultivates his crops. He is one of the best farmers in this part of the county. It is a pleasure to look at his fields. They are laid off in a correct manner, cultivated with precision, and his crops always grow and produce well. Some time when you are going out the Higgins Ferry road, stop and look at his farm. You will enjoy it.

Speaking of flowers, you might say crepe myrtle is my weakness. It is just now blooming in profusion. To my eye it is even more beautiful than the far-famed hybiscus, of which Florida boasts. In the late summer, when the tender flowers of spring have succumbed to the parching sun of July, the crepe myrtle comes forth in freshness and radiant beauty. The colors are varied, according to the variety of the bush. We have some mighty beautiful crepe myrtle in Clanton, but not enough of it. I was attracted by what the Evergreen Courant said last week about crepe myrtle in Evergreen. It is reprinted in the following paragraph.

We can not resist the impulse to call attention to the quantities of beautiful crepe myrtle which adorn so many lawns in Evergreen. At a vast majority of the homes one will find from one to dozens of clumps of this flowering shrub in colors of pink, red, lavender and white. We've seen Mobile's "Azalea Trail" and it is a thing of beauty, but right here in Evergreen we have a "Crepe Myrtle Trail" that is just as beautiful. To those of us who have grown up with these plants it is difficult to fully appricate their beauty. We are prone to cast aside the commonplace. Crepe myrtle grows in this locality quite naturally and because it is so plentiful we forget to admire it as we should. Take a drive through Evergreen and look at these plants. They are now in all the glory of full bloom. You'll enjoy drinking deeply of their beauty.

The Clanton Golf Club is getting under way. A few games (I reckon you would call it games) have been played already. Among the members the following names are given: V. J. Elmore, Bob Sumner, John Page, Otto Jones, Maurice Lande, Reedie Taylor, R. D. Woodson, George McCain, Raymond Smith, and Claudie Pipes. There are said to be several others who plan to get into the game.

I went by to see Uncle Joe Hester, the depot agent, Tuesday. Found him in a box car figuring on how to get a piece of wood unloaded. I got interested in the wood. It was a cut about five feet long and about a foot in diameter. It was some kind of hardwood (iron wood I think) coming from South America, and consigned to the Lay Dam plant of the Alabama Power Company. Uncle Joe said it weighed as much as a bale of cotton.

This is the kind of weather when we like to look at a picture of Niagara Falls frozen over.

Only TRUTHFUL TIRE ADVERTISING WINS!

WHEN we advertised the fact that Firestone was furnishing us complete lines of Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires that not only met the price but beat the quality and construction of every grade of special brand tires sold by mail order houses and others, the mail order houses made vigorous protests to Better Business Bureaus and made demands upon newspapers not to accept Firestone or our advertising.

We cannot blame them for they did not want car owners to know that they could get, at no more cost, a better tire made by a leading manufacturer, bearing his name and guarantee plus our guarantee and our service.

When car owners awakened to this fact, they came to us, compared the sections we had cut from Firestone Tires and special brand mail order tires, and were astounded at the Extra Values we were giving.

As a result, our business and that of other Firestone Dealers throughout the country, increased so fast that it has been necessary for Firestone to run their factories twenty-four hours a day and Firestone sold more tires in April, May and June than in any like period in the history of the company.

In our advertising we do not make comparisons involving laboratory tests which you cannot verify except in a laboratory—neither do we make comparisons of construction or price based on misleading classifications such as first line tire, second line tire or third line tire*—we do not make comparisons to confuse and mislead you as to actual values and service—we only make statements and comparisons that you can verify for yourself in our store before you purchase the tire.

Come in today and get the greater safety, extra quality and extra values found only in Firestone Tires.

*When the National Better Business Bureau realized that their Bulletin No. 634 was being taken advantage of by some advertisers they issued a Bulletin dated July 10th as follows:

"In our Bulletin No. 634 entitled 'Definitions of Terms Used in the Tire Industry' we pubished definitions of First Line — Second Line — Third Line — Heavy Duty and Super Heavy Duty Tires.

"Our definitions pointed out, 'Although each manufacturer's or distributor's first line tire may represent his best standard size 4 or 6 ply tire, there is not necessarily any equality of competitive first line tires as to materials, workmanship or price.' This interpretation also applies to all lines of tires.

"We therefore recommend that advertising to the consumer shall avoid the use of these terms for the purpose of comparing competitive products."

*A "Special Brand" Tire is made by a manufacturer for distributors such as Mail Order houses, oil companies and others, under a name that does not identify the tire manufacturer to the public, usually because he builds his "best quality" tires under his own name. Firestone puts his name on every tire he makes.

Double Guarantee —Every tire manufactured by Firestone bears the name Firestone and carries Firestone's unlimited guarantee and ours. You are doubly protected.

WINTER LEGUME MESSAGE IS SENT

Auburn, Ala., July 27.—From the experiment station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn is being sent, through the press, a message to the farmers of the state about winter legumes. The message is given because winter legume planting season is approaching; and county agents and organized farmers are featuring winter legume work at this time.

"This message," said J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, "is intended especially for (1) those farmers who are tired of poor land and want big yields per acre; (2) those who want to get their nitrogen fertilizer at a cost much below that of nitrogen in commercial form; (3) those farmers who want to raise more livestock on home-grown feed; and (4), in brief, those farmers who want to make more money."

On what winter legumes will do for farmers Mr. Lowery said that one crop of either hairy vetch or Austrian peas should double the yield of either corn or cotton which follows the next year. Consequently, it is possible for farmers of the state to double their production of cotton or corn in 1932 without increasing the acreage.

This statement is based upon experiments at Auburn and also experiences of farmers throughout the state for more than 10 years. These facts show conclusively that winter legumes are the key to more profitable farming in Alabama.

Preparatory to planting in September and October farmers are now placing their orders for seed. They are also buying basic slag as fertilizer for them, basic slag being an Alabama product. Seed and fertilizer are cheap this year.

ELDRIDGE BAPTIST ACADEMY TO OPEN ON AUGUST 24, 1931

Eldridge Baptist Academy, Eldridge, Alabama, will open the next session Monday, August 24, 1931. The enrollment is expected, from all indications, to exceed that of former years. Many applications have already been received by the principal. The enrollment of ministerial students is expected to exceed that of last year. The enrollment of last year was the largest within the last five years, and came from fourteen counties and two states.

Eldridge Baptist Academy is the only mountain missions school in Alabama, and, in fact, it is the only Baptist high school in the State. It has four beautiful buildings valued at $95,000.

It trains for Christian service and provides educational opportunities for poor boys and girls.

The following faculty has been selected for the year of 1931-32: Prof. A. B. Murphree, principal and field agent; Mr. J. W. Sutherland, science and coach; Miss Virginia Hill, history, Bible, music; Miss Ruby Tedder, home economics; Miss Jewell Gullet, English.

TUBERCULOSIS DEATH RATE

"Eighteen thousand more Alabama farms were operated by tenants in 1930 than 1920," declared Richard Hudson, executive secretary of the Alabama Tuberculosis Association, today in discussing the reports of the U. S. Census Bureau recently released from Washington.

"Farm tenancy tends to lower the standard of living, according to economists, and any lowering of standards in Alabama will certainly be reflected in the general health, not only of the tenants and their families, but for all the people.

"Only nine states have a higher death rate from tuberculosis than Alabama, the decline of the tuberculosis death rate in Alabama is not nearly so pronounced as is the decline throughout the nation, even with the excellent program of the State Board of Health. If there is any connection between farm tenancy and tuberculosis, lower standards of living, lower vitality and resistance, it will in all probability, play its part as an important factor in both the health and economic structure of the state.

"Farm tenancy may be necessary in Alabama, but if so, we should be conscious of the many by-products incident to the system, and a new approach made toward a solution of a most serious health and economic condition which mayy threaten the welfare of both the urban and rural population," stated Mr. Hudson.

We were glad of the privilege of having with us Rev. P. A. Lynch to assist in the meeting. We pray God's blessings on him as he goes from place to place to preach the gospel.

WEST CHILTON

We are having real "farm relief" just now. Crops are finished, rain has been plentiful through July. All crops look well. Fruit is abundant; but unfortunately just as the farmer gets his crops ready for the market the price comes tumbling down. This is good for the consumer. So the producer can go back, make more crops and take chances. But what if he were to strike? Major Allen P. Harrison, in his day, said "the farmer had the poorest chance of all and he wanted to see him succeed."

Dock Edwards, a veteran of the Spanish-American War, of Miss., has been visiting relatives here.

J. Walter Smith of Poole's Cross Roads has been on a visit to his mother here.

Mrs. Cummings of Monroe, La., was a recent visitor to her brother, W. R. Redding, here.

Mr. Glenn E. Hendricks of Sylacauga was here last week looking after monumental work.

Some of our people visited the radio Sunday, to hear the world renowned, greatest Bible schollar, eminent author and jurist, deliver his joyful lecture "The Hope of the World," over the greatest hook-up ever.
